City Only Seeks Measure Of County Goodwill

"We have no designs upon you; all we are hoping is that we may be able to merit a great measure of your goodwill and of your co-operation." So spoke Ald. James Dutton at the goodwill dinner tendered the members of the Peterborough County Council by the city council and the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition Board at the Empress Hotel Thursday night and the sentence furnished the keynote utterance of a most enjoyable function, attended by a veritable cross section of Peterborough county and city.

Practically every member of the county and city councils, county and city officials, the directors and many other members of the Exhibition organization and representative citizens from all parts of the district were present at a jovial, happy affair that must have gone a long way toward helping to achieve that bonne entent between city and country that was the prime objective of the dinner.

A feature of the function was the droll speach of George D. Leacock, brother of the famous Professor Stephen Leacock and himself a humorist in his own right, whose address, sparkling with fun, kept the audience in constant laughter.

Mose Yokom's orchestra provided an enjoyable musical program while the enjoyable dinner was being served and during the later part of the program Mack Gordon delighted the gathering with a number of songs including "The Blind Plowman" and "The Minstrel Boy."

Mayor Welcomes Guests

After the toast to the King had been loyally honored Mayor Hamilton warmly welcomed, on behalf of the city fathers, the warden and members of the county council and congratulated them upon their election. "I hope this year will be a prosperous and successful one for them," said Mayor Hamilton. "I know they will fully measure up to their civic duties and have a large measure of success. We on the city council would like to be closer with the county council."

Mayor Hamilton said that letters of regret at their inability to be present had been received from J. J. Duffus, M.P., H. L. Garner and R. E. Cutting. He also expressed his regret that illness had kept former warden James Milby from attending He had done much for the city, county and the Exhibition Board during his term of office.

President Brown of the Exhibition Board added his expression of welcome to the member of the county council. "If the farmer does not prosper the city will not prosper," Mr. Brown declared. He referred to the great loss the Exhibition Board had sustained in the death of such an enthusiastic worker as the late E. F. Mason.

In acknowledging the expression of welcome from the city council and the Exhibition Board Warden McColl voiced the thanks of his colleagues and himself. "In making it possible for us to get together like this," said the head of the county, "they are showing a grand spirit."

"With a war on," continued Warden McColl, "we should all get together and pull in the same direction. We hardly realize yet that we are at war but I have no hesitation in saying that we wil lrealize it before it is over."

The speaker laughingly stated that sometimes the county council might be inclined to think something was being put over them, and bills for $100 for cutting down a tree did not help to correct that impression.

Helping With The War

Alex Elliott, M.L.A., who was introduced by Mayor Hamilton as one who had always co-operated with the city and county councils and with the fair board congratulated the warden and county councillors upon their election. Before coming down from Toronto, he said, he had consulted J. M. Carroll, superintendent of fairs as to some helpful suggestions to fair boards in regard to their responsibility in war times. Mr. Elliott pointed out that fair biuldings and grounds were being used in the training of troops at Toronto, Welland, Listowel and London and other fair property would come into similar use. Stressing the importance of keeping up an adequate supply of the right kind of bacon for the British market Mr. Elliott pointed out that fair boads could help materially by arranging classes for pens of bacon hogs for export and creating interest that way.

Ross L. Dobbin in introducing George D. Leacock said that the guest speaker was not only the head of a large electrical firm but he was a farmer as well.

Mr. Leacock admitted right off the reel that he was a farmer. "I was raised on the farm," he said. 'In fact the only thing except me that they did raise on that farm was the second mortgage." He had spent the first ten years of his life trying to get away from the farm and the past ten in trying to get back to the land, he declared, proceeding to relate his farming experiences in a racy manner that convulsed the audience. They enjoyed his description of how he bought the farm, and how when he was told he should be careful about the title he discovered that Sir William Mulock and some of his neighbors had titles and how finally he had arrived at the conclusion that anybody who ran a farm in North York deserved to have a title. They laughed at his story of the stoker that paid for itself and at his boast that less than a year after he had launched out into agriculture he had knocked the prices of farm products in Canada to pieces.

Some Leacock Advice

In more serious veing in the closing stages of his speech Mr. Leacock who had been president of the fairs at Aurora and Sutton advised the fair board to give the local exhibitors every encouragement and to offer worthwhile prizes. Above all he urged that they should not forget the boy who got up at daylight to bring in his horse to be shown. Too often some of the classes were left over until it was almost dark before they were judged and Mr. Leacock declared that was a mistake. To the county council he said they could spend money to no greater advantage than in making grants to

Pleads For Co-operation

Ald. James Dutton congratulated the warden and councillors upon their success at the polls and President Tom Brown of the exhibition board upon his re-election. Commenting on the growth of the Exhibition into a first class fair he said that he had only been accomplished by whole-hearted devotion on the part of the Exhibition Board.

"We are happy indeed to meet the members of the county council under such pleasant auspices," said Ald. Dutton. "We have no designs upon you; all we are hoping is that we may be able to merit a great measure of your goodwill and your co-operation in some of the things we feel to be in the best interest of the county and the city. There have been at times some misunderstandings on the part of city folk in regard to their friends in the country and there has been some suspicion on the part of people in the country of city folk. We are anxious to clear away that misunderstanding and allay that suspicion. We in the city council are anxious to co-operate with you. We want your goodwill and we have no ulterior motive; only a genuine desire to seek to develop as far as possible all the resources at our command."

Ald. Dutton congratulated the county council upon its reforestation policy and expressed satisfaction over the pouring of the first goal brick in the eastern part of the county and over the development of nepheline and feldspar mines.

Outside Greetings

Greetings were brought from the Lindsay Fair by B. L. McLean who assured the county council that any assistance they gave the Peterborough Exhibition would be wisely used. Henry Coons thanked the Peterborough Board on behalf of the Lakefield Fair for assistance that had been freely given and G. E. Brethen of Asphodel township reported that there would be a meeting of the East Peterborough Agricultural Society soon and urged the management of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition to cater to the local exhibitor. If they did so he predicted that the attendance would soon climb to the 90,000 or 100,000 mark.

the cause of explosions which took five lives and injured 30 persons yesterday at a munitions plant near London. Indicating possible sabotage was a report that authorities had been tipped several days ago that "accidents might happen" in the plant.

According to the Toendern dispatches, the first attack on German sea bases was believed to have come about 6 p.m. (noon, Thursday, e.s.t.) when a half-hour of anti-aircraft fire was heard on the Danish coast, near Sylt and only 65 miles from Germany's Heligoland base.

Three hours later Danish observers saw five bombers which they believed to be British fly over Sylt to the accompaniment of gunfire and five explosions which sounded like bombs.

Sylt has been raided several times by British aircraft engaged in "security patrol" to checkmate German mine-laying and scouting planes at their takeoff points.

Recall Zeppelin Raids.

The present aerial warfare with Germany is a far cry from the Zeppelin raids of a quarter century ago. This war in the skies is being fought with tremendous faster and more heavily armed planes, and dirigibles have found no place in the struggle.

On the night of January 19, 1915, two of the lighter-than-air craft with which Germany pioneered bombed eight towns along the Norfolk coast. Twenty-four bombs accounted for four deaths and injury of 16 persons.

Those raids gave birth to the blackout because the towns hardest hit were those which showed the most light. Coastal defences were skimpy in those days.

Now—after 4½ months of the new war—Britain is armed not only with a strict blackout but clusters of fighting planes, anti-aircraft guns, sentinel balloons moored to bargest and small boats offshore and balloon barrages inland.

St. Andrew's At Marmora Reviews Splendid Year, Names Officers

MARMORA, Jan. 19 — (ENS). — The annual congregational meeting of St. Andrew's Church was held in St. Andrew's Hall on Tuesday evening, with a gratifying attendance. The meeting was preceded by a bounteous repast, which was served by St. Andrew's Women's Association and helpers.

E. C. Prentice, acting superintendent of the Sunday School, presented the initial report. Figures given by Mr. Prentice included the following: Teachers and officers, 12; pupils enrolled, 92; average attendance, 58.

The amount raised by the Sunday School for its maintenance and other objects in the year was $125. During the year an adult Bible class was started, with the former superintendent, H. W. Sabine, as teacher.

Other organizations commenced within the field of Sunday School activities were the Explorer Group of Girls and a C.G.I.T. Group, the latter being organized by Mrs. W. P. Fletcher.

Interesting reports of the activities of the Women's Association which raised $670.86 during the past year were forthcoming from Mesdames F. Sweet, H. W. Sabine and F. R. Wells. Rev. Dr. Fletcher expressed the joy of Mrs. Fletcher and himself that such good care was taken by the association of the pastor's home besides the good support given to the work of the church by the ladies.

W. A. Sanderson, speaking for the choir, spoke of the good harmony existing and made a few suggestions of a general nature.

$93 To M. And M. Fund.

As treasurer for the Missionary and Maintenance Funds, Mrs. H. R. Haacke mentioned in her report that approximately $93 had been raised.

The financial statement prepared by the church treasurer, W. A. Sanderson, was then distributed among the members of the congregation. Including a balance on hand from the previous year of $166.43, the total of $2,818.84 constituted receipts for the year.

Dr. Fletcher, in the pastor's report, reported 103 families in connection with St. Andrew's and 27 at Zion; 30 baptisms, 19 weddings and 8 burials were performed in the course of the past year. Dr. Fletcher expressed his pleasure at the happy relations between himself and the congregation and brought to his hearers an optimistic outlook for the ensuing year.

The Board of Stewards, consisting of twelve members, with four retiring each year, were elected as follows:

Retiring December 31, 1942: F. R. Wells, R. E. Neal, G. James and W. J. Pack.

All members are eligible for re-election.

The Session to consist of eight members in addition to the pastor, with two members retiring each year but eligible for re-election was elected as follows:

Retiring December 31, 1940: H. A. Burwash and W. J. Pack.

A. Sweet was re-elected recording steward of the church and H. W. Sabine was appointed representative to Presbytery.

Ushers for services were appointed as follows:

Evening: D. Prentice, C. Wallbridge and J. Marett.

Apsley Wolf Hunt, scheduled to end Saturday night. From that point on the party took to snowshoes, rifles slung over their shoulders and spread out in a wide circle. They hunted for only three hours yesterday because their start had been delayed more than two hours in the morning. Not until after 5 o'clock, warmed by brisk exercise, did they leave for Apsley headquarters, where an evening's entertainment awaited them. There was a moving picture show, amateur stage acts and other novelties, proceeds from which went to the Red Cross Society.

Hunters were outnumbered by guides, despite the fact they compromised on three. Stan Windsor, Charlie Smith, and Jim Lean saw to it that Charlie Kingan, and Herb. Mason reutrned safe to their beds, and Inspector I. J. Lyons looked after them all. Herb Earnshaw drove them to the scene of the hunt and home again. And that made up the first day's party, except for reporters.

TRIO GIVEN TERMS IN REFORMATORY FOR WELCOME ROBBERY

Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt Elected Head Of Horticultural Society; R. M. Glover Is Given Diploma

Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt was elected president of the Peterborough Horticultural Society last night at its annual meeting, which was also featured by the presentation of the Ontario Horticultural Society's diploma to R. M. Glover for meritorious service to horticulture.

Mr. Glover was nominated by the local society for the honor of receiving the provincial award for 1939, the first of which was presented to Harry L. Beal for 1938. The presentation last night was made by Dr. J. E. Middleton.

Rev. Mr. Zufelt succeeds John A. Smith, who retired from the presidency after three successful years which won for him a glowing vote of appreciation of his outstanding leadership.

Honorary Presidents: Mayor James Hamilton, Alderman Walter Stocker, Mrs. Gordon K. Fraser, Mr. A. J. Madill, Dr. J. E. Middleton, H. H. Graham, R. M. Glover and Harry L. Beal.

President: Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt.

2nd Vice-President: James H. Matthews.

Secretary-Treasurer: W. C. Wilks.

Directors for two years: George Benton, Wm. S. Gracie, S. T. Harris, John Matthews, and James Forbes; and director for one year, J. S. Mason.

Delegates to the convention of the Ontario Horticultural Society: Rev. Mr. Zufelt and W. C. Wilks, with Frank Biddle as alternate.

Auditors: Harry Beal and Fred Holmes.

Credit Balance.

Mr. Smith reported that the only serious disappointment of last year was a decline of forty-two in the society's membership. Mr. Wilks reported a credit balance of $52.68.

Committee reports were given by George Benton on lawns and gardens; Mr. Wilks, the junior branch of the society which came through the year with a small credit in its treasury; Mr. Forbes reported on premiums; Harold Ball spoke for the show committee which had 701 entries in its events of 1939; and Wm. Gracie for the beautification committee.

Presentation Of Diploma.

"I can't think of anyone more worthy than Mr. Glover to receive this recognition from the Peterborough and Ontario Horticultural Societies," Dr. Middleton said in making the presentation of the framed diploma, and with it a bouquet of roses sent to Mrs. Glover.

"He has always been willing to lend a hand to any cause that was worth while. You won't find the record of his actions anywhere. The many things he did as former manager of the Examiner were done in his own modest way, and that is one reason why they were not generally known."

Dr. Middleton recalled instances when he had solicited Mr. Glover's help when the society had advertising bills to pay and when publicity was required for its meetings. He spoke of Mr. Glover's private quests for wild orchids, the lady slipper, and his knowledge of the bogs where they grew; his long interest in the community gardens to which the late A. B. Cunningham had given such valuable service; Mr. Glover's advocacy of the Memorial Park on Armour's Hill, a public enterprise of the Ashburnham Women's Patriotic Association; and also his support of the plans for the improvement of the Little Lake crescent.

"Peterborough has been better for Mr. Glover's having lived here and having been among us, and we hope he will long be spared to be with us and to continue his interest in horticulture," Dr. Middleton concluded.

Mr. Glover's Reply.

"I appreciate your kindness more than I am able to say to you, and I also thank you for your remembrance of Mrs. Glover. Your roses were very appropriate because she is quite ill at home. Dr. Middleton has generously referred to some things. It was only natural that I should be interested in the Memorial Hill because I lived in Ashburnham up to the time of my marriage," Mr. Glover said in acknowledgment of the O.H.A. diploma, and not the sports organization of which Mr. Glover was at one time president.

"As one goes through life, and becomes associated with many enterprises, the time comes when he feels he should make way for younger people, and it is then that he realizes that there is nothing more pleasant to fall back upon than horticulture. It is good for one's health and nerves, and it adds much to the beauty of the community. I remember especially when I lived on Charlotte Street we formed a west of Park Street organization for the improvement of our street because at that time it was becoming a highway and the lawns and boulevards and general surroundings were not as neat and trim as we wanted them to be. And some of the Charlotte Street men even looked after the grass in front of lots where there were no houses. I really feel that we did something at that time that added a great deal to the appearance of our street.

"Men like Harry Beal and Dr. Middleton have been with this society as long or longer than I have been, and the city owes a debt of gratitude to such citizens for the work of beautification they have done in the past and are now doing."

Mr. Glover suggested that a member of the society might be able to do good work as a member ex-officio of the Parks Committee of the council. "I feel that others have deserved this diploma more than I; however, I will always endeavor to do what I can in the interests of this society."

The society's thanks was expressed to the local press for its assistance; to Frank C. Paterson for use of the Ontario agricultural offices, and to G. S. Matthews, E. W. Watson, Edgar Simmons and Fred Storey for the door prizes which were won by Mr. Gracie, Mrs. Charles Orr, Miss Audrey Dainton, Mrs. S. T. Harris, T. H. Theobald, Fred Storey, Fred Dainton and Harold Ball.

Cup To Mrs. Plunkett.

The T. E. Bradburn silver cup which was won by Mrs. Chris. Plunkett of Keene three times in succession was given to her as a life-time property, then to be returned to the society. It had been won by Mrs. J. S. Bell, who presented it to the society as a challenge cup, implying the condition that it could be won only annually. It transpired that some one had told Mrs. Plunkett that she was entitled to obtain permanent possession of the cup, and on that understanding she had claimed it.

Because of the condition stipulated by Mrs. Bell the society did not wish to part with the trophy for all time, but is giving it conditionally to Mrs. Plunkett.

At that stage Gordon K. Fraser offered the society a new silver cup which he suggested should be in his wife's name.

A resolution by Rev. Mr. Zufelt, seconded by Mr. Beal, gratefully accepted Mr. Fraser's proffered gift, recorded the society's appreciation, and instructed the executive to draft terms of competition to be submitted to Mr. and Mrs. Fraser for their approval.

A motion by Mr. Beal expressed the society's thanks to John A. Smith for his services as president during the last three years.

In assuming the chair at the conclusion of the meeting, Rev. Mr. Zufelt appealed to all the members for their best support this year. Seed catalogue from the Old Country, minus illustration and reduced in the number of pages as an economy of newsprint, brought a reminder of the uncertain months ahead overseas.

"We know that we are all under the shadow of a cloud," he said, "that there are serious things to think about. However, gardening and horticulture provide restful occupation that helps to keep people sane. I hope we will be able to achieve something of the distinction and usefulness this society has had in past years."

The next meeting will be on February 15.

Two Officers Leave Unit

Two keen young officers of the Prince of Wales Rangers have been transferred to a unit of the Canadian Active Service Force and will leave Monday to begin the completion of their training for overseas.

They are Lieutenants Lionel C. B. Sorby, Rubidge street and Ross L. Davidson, 130 Morrow street. Both have been attached to A company of the Prince of Wales Rangers and they have taken great interest in that regiment and in their training ever since they joined the Rangers.

Provincial Constable Suggests Hunters Use Red Flannel And They May Have Better Luck

By JACK PETERSON,
Examiner Staff Reporter.

Seated in a comfortable chair in the warmth of the Apsley hotel he laid down rules for the hunters to follow. The only difficulty was that the hunters were far out in the bush by that time, shivering under a strong west breeze.

Dave's campaign revolved around a piece of flannnel. Just put it on a stick in the sun and wolves will come from miles around, as certainly as women flock to a bargain counter, at least that's what he claims.

The number of hardy hunters was raised today from two to five by the arrival of Garnet Burns and Mel Harrison of Peterborough and Gordon Cook of Lindsay.

Even if the five and their entourage don't get wolves today they can't be dissatisfied, for their six mile sleigh ride to Gregson's camp off the Bancroft road this morning was through a fairy land of fantastic beauty. Trees are weighted to the ground with snow, and the horses struggle through a never broken trail under an arch of green and white.

ROAD CHAIRMAN

Reeve Allan B. Mann was appointed chairman of the new county road committee Wednesday afternoon. The other members are Reeves Johnston, Lean, Martin and Warden McColl. It was decided to make more snow fence for sale to the townships. The county roads have about all the fence that is needed at present.

TRUCK, CAR COLLIDE.

An automobile owned by Ernest Gregson and driven by Miss Mary Gregson was badly damaged Wednesday when it and a truck of the Parks Department, driven by Hilliard Cooper, 243 Euclid Avenue, came into collision on George Street opposite the King Edward Park. Copper had stopped the parks truck to let a man off and Miss Gregson's car struck the back of the truck, suffering damage estimated at $250.

COUNCIL TO LAKEHURST

The county council is going to Lakehurst tonight for the opening of the new community hall. The members were invited by Reeve Wallace Shearer who promised dinner, concert, and probably a dance before the folks of that section of Harvey are willing to start for home. The Lakehurst ladies are preparing for 225 supper guests.

A MODEL TRUCK

A working model of a hydraulic truck made by Armand Trudeau, an apprentice at the C.P.R. Angus shops, Montreal, is on display in the C.P.R. uptown ticket office window until Saturday. It is an attractive model with four wheel drive, five forward speeds and one reverse; and its lifting mechanism operates by hydraulically driven pump. Evidently it is the product of the skill of one of the young employees of the C.P.R. who seem to have a policy of encouraging that kind of work.

OTHER HORTICULTURISTS

The first meeting of the Peterborough Horticultural Society was held in the Caisse Hotel at 343 George street in April ,1861, Harry L. Beal informed the members at last night's annual meeting. The address is about where the C.P.R. ticket office is or just below it. The officers included Rev. B. Clementi president, Sheriff Hall vice-president, G. H. Hughes secretary, and Mr. Ogilvie treasurer. "That was seventy-nine years ago," Mr. Beal said, "and makes this society one of the oldest in the city."

ARBITRATION COMMITTEE

Adjustment of the cost of the administration of justice and the maintenance of the jail for the next five years is to be undertaken by representatives of the city and county in the near future. It is a quinquennial arrangement, usually by two arbitrators, but on several occasions when they couldn't agree the two councils named committees with such amicable results that yesterday afternoon they proposed the following committee as their representatives: Warden McColl, Reeves Johnston and Gifford, Miss Jennie Batten, clerk and treasurer, E. A. Peck, K.C., solicitor. The city is expected to appoint a similar committee.

"LAME DUCKS" OUT

A sharp difference in practice by the councils of Peterborough and Northumberland-Durham counties is reflected in their attitude toward "lame ducks" on their committees. Some years ago a Havelock member suggested the resignation of several members of the county road committee who had been defeated at the polls. Some of the committee men are appointed for three, four and five years; but they have to battle back into Peterborough council to hold their road job. And because of that precedent they have recently asked for the resignation of Harry Reid of Otonabee. Down at Cobourg if a member of the counties council is appointed to the road commission for three years he stays in office until that time is up, even if he is defeated in an election after his appointment.

AN ENVIABLE ACCOLADE

Deputy - reeve Percy Davidson mentioned to the Examiner yesterday, indicating his appreciation of an old lady's confidence in him that Mrs. Dewart of Indian River, mother of Col. John A. Dewart, went out and voted for him at the municipal elections. The polling place was just opposite her home, but Mr. Davidson felt that there was a marked distinction for him in Mrs. Dewart's support. She is ninety-one years old.

SEED FAIR IN MARCH

A news brief the other day that Frank Paterson and Gordon Hancock were attending the Quinte Seed Fair at Port Hope was correct in only one particular, their names. As a matter of fact the fair is not until March; but there was a committee meeting in Port Hope, and when it was learned that the two had set out for the lakeshore town, the conclusion that they had gone to the Seed Fair was leaped at. It seems they didn't even go to Port Hope, if that is telling things out of school. But, they went somewhere.

RECKLESS DRIVING.

A bad accident was narrowly averted at the corner of McDonnell and Water Streets early this morning when a fast-travelling automobile going east on McDonnel street dashed across the intersection without even hesitating at the stop sign and came within an ace of crashing into a big bread truck. The driver of the truck averted a collision by effective use of his brakes, although his machine skidded and almost landed on the lawn of George Street Church. The driver of the offending automobile added insult to injury by coming back west on McDonnel Street and tearing across the intersection again without stopping.

SEVENTY VISITORS

Seventy girls and boys from Durham county were taken on a tour of inspection through the Examiner newspaper plant this morning by competent guides who explained the various operations in the production of a newspaper. The young people are attending a short course at Canton, six miles north of Welcome and while in Peterborough visited Silverwoods Dairy, Brinton Carpet, Canada Packers and the DeLaval plant. They were accompanied by Frank Paterson, local Dept. of Agriculture Representative, Ed. Summers, Durham County Agricultural Rep. who is in charge of the Short Course and R. S. McKircher, of Seaforth, a lecturer.

Underground Blaze Burns At Bonarlaw

The hurricane which visited this district last summer had broken down a lot of trees and Mr. Wellman had had the wood cut up and burned the brush. A few days later it was noticed a fire was burning in the ground.

It took several days to extinguish the blaze as the ground was like a furnace, a smouldering mass of coals. Many barrels of water were used to moisten the ground with the swamps all so dry. It is the first time a fire of this description has been in this district in many years.

$100,000 Voted For Roads United Counties

COBOURG, Jan. 19 (Special). — Northumberland and Durham Counties Council approved the road superintendent's estimate of $100,000 for county roads in 1940. The Council also raised his salary $300 a year, bringing the total up to $2,100. Reeve Mallory of Percy township opposed the figure and lost an amendment that it be only increased by $200.

The road superintendent pointed out that the estimates were the same as last year, and the Department of Highways had intimated that it has no intention of reducing its subsidizable expenditures on county roads in 1940.

Finance Own Machinery Purchases.

The Department of Highways is not paying subsidy on the purchase of new machinery in a lump sum as heretofore, but on a rental basis, which means that purchases of machinery must be financed by the municipalities, the report stated. The use of calcium chloride to prevent dust and to hold the road material in place has given satisfaction, the report said, and in addition to maintaining these roads already treated it is proposed to add new mileage in various places. Snow removal is another large expenditure, and it is expected that five plows will keep the roads in good condition. The item of $9,500 covers rebates to towns and villages which will be required each year, now that the by-laws in regard to urban municipalities in which they agreed to to forego their rebates, have been rescinded.

The counties now possess a new construction unit of a Diesel tractor, leaning wheel grader and earth mover. There are now 344 miles in the counties' road system, with 27 road foremen, 3 power grader operators, four truck drivers, and a crusher foreman. The estimated expenditures are as follows:

Calcium chloride treated roads, $18,000; crushed gravel on roads, $5,000; pit run gravel on roads, $1,000; snow fence and posts, $2,500; snow removal, $5,000; sanding roads, $2,000; washouts, $2,000; dragging, $2,000; grader operations, $3,000; new pavement, $6,000; surface treatment, $1,000; patching pavements, $1,000; rebates to towns and villages, $9,500; bridge repairs, $3,500; concrete culvert, $4,000; metal culverts, $2,000; guard rails, $1,000; road signs, $1,000; ditching, grading and drainage, $6,000; brushing and weed cutting, $3,000; wire fence and land purchase, $1,000; underslung blade for truck, $1,200; machinery repairs, $3,500; tools, $1,000; insurance, $1,000; interest on loans, $800; compensation, $1,000; superintendent, $4,500; road commissioners, $1,500; unforeseen expenditures, $1,500.

Objections raised by some members over the fact that the county snow plow piled up the snow at intersections along some rural roads were discussed yesterday at the Road and Bridges Committee meeting. It was decided to look into the matter to see if a remedy could be devised.

Plainville Road.

Deputy-Reeve W. Cole of Hamilton Township asked the committee to reconsider the request of the township that a five mile road connecting Plainville with Bewdley be taken into the county system. Farmers are even willing to donate land along the route to make it wider. When the road was blocked with snow it meant a very long round-about route, he said. It was accordingly decided to leave it over to June.

Mr. Teetzel addressed the Roads and Bridges committee to some length yesterday, explaining the operation of the highways department's new bookkeeping system. It came under three heads, maintenance of ordinary nature, extraordinary maintenance and construction. Once mastered it was easier than the present system, he said. It was more important to the department to know the cost of a job than to knew where it was.

Commenting on the new system of paying road employees by cheques, Reeve T. G. Shield of Cavan, pointed out that where the amount of the cheque was small, the exchange was an item which attained great magnitude over a period of time. Under the old plan the workman was paid by cheque. Mr. Teetzel promised to look into the matter to see if some plan might be worked out.

The Roads and Bridges committee yesterday recommended that the petition from Haldimand and Percy townships to have a piece of road taken into the counties be referred to the Road Commission to report back to the council in June. The council endorsed the request of Brighton village that the government take over the connecting link between Highway No. 2 and Presque'Ile.

The committee also supported the village of Newcastle in its effort in regard to work on the Lake Road. The committee also recommended that the road superintendent call in the foremen throughout the counties to instruct them on the new bookkeeping system.

County Printers Ask Council For Their Share

An appeal for a "fair deal in the county's printing business" was made to the county council this morning by Mark Bailey, publisher of the Norwood Register, and Fred McKenzie of the Havelock Standard. They were accompanied by T. P. Lancaster, former proprietor of the Standard.

Speaking for the deputation, Mr. Lancaster, former Member of the Legislature for Peterboro, said: "We have come here this morning as taxpayers of the county, without any feeling of resentment and in the friendliest spirit. These two representatives of the weekly press of this county feel that they are entitled to more of the county business than they have been getting. These two newspapers are rendering an important service to the county. We feel that too much of your printing business is going to the job printing offices in the city of Peterboro, who are not taxpayers of the county."

Mr. Lancaster recalled that, when the late E. M. Elliott was clerk, the rural press obtained a large part of the business of the sheriff's office in the printing of many forms required in that department.

"That may have been outside the jurisdiction of the clerk, but he used his kindly offices in the interest of our weekly press," Mr. Lancaster said. He added that Mr. McKenzie was planning to buy a new linotype machine that would enable him to handle the printing required by the county. He and Mr. Bailey both supplemented briefly the appeal which was referred to the printing committee.

Insurance Tender

Gordon S. Evans, Toronto, representing A. E. Wilson & Co., Limited, quoted a tender of $1,274.40 as premium this year for public liability insurance in the amount of $10,000 maximum for one person in an accident and $20,000 for two or more persons in one accident, and $1,000 insurance for property damage. It was referred to the finance committee. Sam Charlton, of Lakefield, is agent for the company.

TILTS WOLF BOUNTY

Tom Curvin says words not meant to be unkind but generally to the effect that Charlie Kingan is barking up the wrong tree when he goes after wolves in the Apsley district. In fact he is willing to tilt the government's bounty of $15 to $20 for every wolf pelt the Kingan patrol brings home Saturday night. Two other doubters are right out of the Apsley country, Reeve Alan Caldwell and Reeve Norman Lean, both of whom lift their eyebrows when the wolf hunt is mentioned.

Service Station Operator Tells Of Holdup

COBOURG, Jan. 19 (ENS) — Concurrent terms totalling 2 years less one day were handed out yesterday afternoon in police court, the accused being Lloyd McPherson, aged 18 of Moncton, N.B.; Fred Macdonald, aged 18, Starkville and William Fascus, aged 20, of Montreal. McPherson, charged with armed robbery at Welcome Service Station on the morning of December 13th, received two years less a day in the reformatory. On a charge of breaking into the service station of R. Harness of Hope township he received ten months, and with stealing a car from William Gage of Hamilton he was given one year. The sentences run concurrenly and date from the time of the arrest. Macdonald was given two years less a day on the armed robbery charge; ten months for the Harness service station charge and the terms are to run concurrent with a term of 15 months received at Hamilton for theft of the car.

"There were three men in the car and one of them told me to fill it up. I was at the tank when one of them stuck a gun in my ribs and ordered me into the service station, with the two others behind. He said it was a 'stick-up.' I recognize the robber as McPherson. I handed them over the money which amounted to about five dollars. Later they robbed me of three dollars and put me out of the car in which I had been driven about a half mile from the service station," stated Beckett.

Provincial Constable A. L. Mennie and Provincial Constable J. Sutherland produced a signed statement of McPherson in which he told of the three stealing a car in Hamilton and coming down near Port Hope where the hold-up occurred. They were "broke" and wanted to get some easy money. McPherson secured the revolver and Macdonald got the bullets.

After the hold-up, police were notified and a cruiser from Peterborough spotted the bandit car but was unable to stop in time to avoid running into the rear of it, after it had been chased, and a collision occured. Their car damaged, the police set out on foot. McPherson was finally found in Cavan Township by Chief E. C. Richards of Millbrook and Detective-Sergeant W. Meagher in a barn. His companions were picked up some days later in Hamilton.

Lack Of Funds Holding Up Red Cross Work

Red Cross work in sections of the county is held up by lack of funds, Reeve E. W. Seeney of Havelock, told the county council Thursday afternoon in asking for a grant of $25 to the branch of the society representing Havelock and Belmont township.

Reeve Martin of Dummer, suggested that the same need of funds was rather general throughout the county.

Reeve Caldwell of Chandos, said his township council had passed a grant to their society for $50 to be used in knitting for the twelve young men who have enlisted from his township, but the council was advised it could not hand out the money for this purpose without the approval of the Municipal Board.

To Reeve W. A. Anderson, Reeve Lean of Burleigh, said the Apsley branch of the Red Cross has a charter.

Reeve Caldwell explained that the Chandos proposal was to buy yarn from the Apsley Red Cross. Women of the township intended to make woollen articles and mail them direct to the Apsley boys who have gone overseas.

Reeve Seeney's motion for a grant of $25 to the Havelock-Belmont society was seconded by Reeve Isaac Anderson.

"If we're going to ask for the Board's approval we had better propose a lump sum that would help other branches in the county," Reeve W. A. Anderson said. Rural canvasses for funds did not "go over" as well as those in the city.

The Seeney motion was defeated, supported only by the mover and seconder.

Reeve W. A. Anderson then moved, seconded by Reeve Wallace Shearer, that the Municipal Board give the council permission to appropriate $500 for Red Cross work in the county. Reeve Gifford said Ennismore had made a canvas and raised $100.

The Anderson-Shearer motion carried in finance committee, with Reeve J. R. Thompson of Norwood, presiding.

Reeve Anderson proposed as a committee to distribute the money —Warden McColl, Reeves Thompson, Johnston, Gifford and Shearer. His motion was seconded by Reeve Martin Coughlin, and was adopted.

Goforth Mission Band Officers Are Installed

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 19 — (ENS)—The Goforth Mission Band of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church held their first meeting of the year on Monday when their newly elected president, Miss Frances Hendy presided. The opening devotional period was introduced with the song "Help to Set the World Rejoicing" followed by the Scripture reading which was very capably given by Miss Constance Black. Miss Margaret Rutledge led the group in prayer and the offering was taken in the missionary boat.

Reports for 1939 given by the secretary and treasurer indicated there had been 21 meetings during the year with an average attendance of 40. The 60 members on the roll had raised a total of $215.00 by their work last year.

Mrs. B. Simpson Black addressed the band, paying tribute to the late Mrs. George Herriot whose valuable work had been of such help to the organization. "The society feels a deep sense of regret in the death of one of our loyal and valued members. Her bright cheery word was a source of inspiration, and her sunny smile and willingness to serve were her outstanding characteristics."

An interesting story from the new study book, "Sailors All" was given by Mrs. Morley Peeling. This was followed by the new Mission Band chorus, "Signal Lights."

The newly installed officers for the year are as follows: President, Frances Hendy; 1st vice-president, Josephine Nesbitt 2nd vice-president, Elaine Carlaw secretary, Bernice McMullen assistant secretary, Ruth McEachern treasurer, Georgie DeCarrol assistant treasurer, Francis DeCarrol; Lookout secretary, Geraldine Peake; leaders, Mrs. Morley Peeling, Mrs. J. Sickness Lowers Havelock School Classes

HAVELOCK, Jan. 18. — (ENS) — The statutory first meeting of the Havelock Public School Board was held Wednesday evening in the school building with trustees B. Smith, H. W. Roche, D. Anderson and J. Covert present. Trustee Smith was appointed temporary chairman, until the full board for 1940 has been selected. The two vacancies are to be filled by a municipal nomination meeting scheduled for Tuesday evening Jan. 23.

Principal W. D. Duncan reported that the average attendance for the past month was 167.13. Much sickness was accountable he said for decrease in attendance. The total enrollment has also dropped since the first of the year, five pupils having moved away.

Caretaker Robert Buchanan reported everything in order and stated that the car of coal had been received during the holidays. He was authorized to have the lock adjusted on the rear entrance so that it might be locked and unlocked from the outside.

A commendable report was received from Public School Inspector M. H. Park, in which both staff and school in general were favourably praised. The report was received and fyied on motion of Trustees Anderson and Covert, and Principal Duncan was authorized to purchase certain books and supplies, as recommended by the inspector, up to the sum of $50.

The board decided to renew their membership with the Ontario Trustees and Ratepayers Association, and on motion of Trustees Roche and Anderson, the secretary was instructed order subscriptions to the school journal for the board members and himself.

A month's leave of absence was granted Charles Renaud, music teacher, who has been ordered to take a brief rest from his duties by his doctor. Principal Duncan said that the staff could carry on the music classes for this period.

The following accounts were passed on motion of Trustees Roche and Anderson with the exception of the account from the village treasurer for the school's share of the cost of printing the financial statement. The latter was laid over until some further information can be obtained on this matter.

Urges Alliance Of Scandinavia

"Last week's events have convinced me that the collaboration of the northern countries should not be limited to the Aaland Islands (fortification) question, but should also embrace military co-operation," Sandler said.

Sandler's retirement from the Swedish Cabinet on December 13 was reported partly due to differences over his stand that the then unfortified Aalands should be fortified. Finland is reported to have fortified them to help keep open communications with Sweden during the Russo-Finnish conflict.

"When asked why, while I was in office, I did not propose a northern military alliance my answer is that conditions had not ripened," declared Sandler.

In reply, Premier Per Albin Hansson said, "The idea of northern collaboration is by no means shipwrecked."

In speaking during the budget debate yesterday, Eandler drew applause with his criticism of Sweden's neutrality policy saying that while "nobody wants war with the Soviet Union," there was no assurance that a victorious Russian army would halt at the Swedish-Finnish border.

Premier Hansson said the opinion that Sweden was obliged to "stand at Finland's side," could not become the deciding factor for the government, being based as it was on sentiment.

Fox Men To Ask Limit On Pelt Importations

CHARLOTTETOWN, Jan. 19. — (CP). — Halting of "unlimited importation" of silver fox pelts into the Dominion is sought by the directors of the Canadian National Silver Fox Breedres' Association, it was announced yesterday at the close of the association's 20th annual convention.

At a private session during the convention, the announcement said, the directors decided to urge the Dominion Govrnment to "give urgent consideration to the request of the association to prevent unlimited importation of silver fox pelts into Canada from other countries."

They resolved also to ask the Government to "take immediate action to extend the quota on Canadian furs entering the United States." It was suggested the services of J. D. J. Forbes, fur advisor to the Dominion Department of Agriculture, be devoted entirely to the extension of markets for Canadian furs.

All retiring officers of the association were re-elected by the directors, in whose hands the annual elections were placed.

Miss Lamb Is Hostess To Hastings Circle

HASTINGS, Jan. 19—(ENS)—The worship service opened the first meeting of the Mission Circle girls in the New Year, at the home of Miss D. Plant, with Miss Jessie Lamb as hostess. The worship period opened with remarks of the worship convener, Miss C. Doxsee, who explained that she intended to take up each worship period under special subject headings. The first, taken at this meeting was prayer, which, she said, mean tryst, or a tryst with God. She showed how Moses was one of the first to use the word when he gave the ten commandments to the Israelites, and the story of how he did so was given by Mrs. Iden Bonds. At least nine allusions to morning trysts with God are given in the Psalms, and a reading from the Bible, by Miss Lamb, told of Jesus Himself keeping tryst, especially in the morning. Miss Doxsee went on to say that the Western Telegraph in the States stopped their clocks for five minutes and tuned automatically in on the Arlington time signal, whereon they started at a given signal exactly on the time of the sun. "Why could not we, who are so much more important than clocks, stop for a few seconds each day and attune ourselves to God, to resume work much more prepared," she asked. Mrs. Glover gave atmosphere with the singing of the beautiful mourning hymn set to Mendel's Consolation. Suitable prayers, by Mrs. Sine and Miss Hoard closed one of the mission circles nicest worship periods i some time.

Business followed, in which it was decided that the girls hold a special valentine tea on February 13, at 6:15 p.m.

A special service will be held in conjunction with the W.M.S. and the Mission Band, for installation of officers, on Sunday evening, January 21.

Mrs. Iden Bonds was made responsible for envelopes for systematic giving, and is to bring them to the next meeting, which will take the form of a sewing bee, at the home of Mrs. Everett Hess, on Tuesday, January 30th. Mrs. Bonds was also elected delegate to the Presbyterial convention.

Discussion of a suggestion by Mrs. Glover followed, about what could be done for girls between Band and Circle age, and it was decided that the presidents of the W.M.S., the Band, and the Circle get together and discuss plans for C.G.I.T. work. A delightful lunch was served by the girls in a social half-hour.

Then came 'DETTOL', the remarkable British Antiseptic with several times the strength of pure carbolic acid, by the Hygienic Laboratory Test. The British medical profession quickly approved—for 'DETTOL' is deadly to germs, yet gentle to human tissue, non-poisonous, non-staining and of pleasant odour.

Federation Is Said Absurd By Rev. Springett

Hitlerism has become the one term that sums up all the basis meaning formerly given to Nazism, Sovietism and Fascism, now regarded as blood brothers, Rev. E. W. Springett said last night in his address on the interrogative subject, "After the War, What?" at the Collegiate Institute. He was speaking under the auspices of the British Israel Federation.

Leaders of thought and government have been saying that this war will not be over until Hitlerism is destroyed. Suppose we destroy Hitlerism, what have we to offer in place of it to those who have been under its influence? We said in 1914-18 that we fought to make the world safe for democracy. Can we say today that democracy as we know it is safe for the world.

The time is at hand to consider what kind of world order must be set up in place of that which we now have. A suggestion has been made that federation of states will be effected. It would be a union of experienced democracies which in the last analysis is but a renewal of the League of Nations.

All these suggestions leave out of their reckoning the divine plan. Present events indicate at least two things, the ultimate destruction of the forces of evil and aggressiveness, and the resultant establishment of a new and righteous world order the sovereign of which is Christ, with the centre of administration in Jerusalem, and the responsibility for carrying it out would be with the Celto-Saxon people.

It is absurd to talk about a federation of states motivated by entirely different idealogies, Rev. Mr. Springett said. And their basic system of law is directly opposed to the common law on which we are established. It must be remembered that British sovereignty is not something that can be given up at will. It is impossible to make a republic of the British Commonwealth of Nations. It is the only true league of nations that has ever really existed, and therefore that which is to be—the new world order. It means the establishment of God's order over against man's systems. The kingdom of God will never come by force. It will come only as a result of the failure of human systems, and the recognition that the divine order must be administered.

Five of the 18 persons arrested by agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation on a charge of plotting to overthrow the U.S. Government and assassinate 14 Congressmen, are shown in this photo, made some time ago by one of their number. LEFT to RIGHT are Michael Vill, 35, Brooklyn, N.Y., born in Germany, a naturalized citizen employed by the B.M.T. Subway Lines; Macklin Boettger, 32, Brooklyn, native of Pittsburgh, Pa., employed as a salesman; Frank Malone, 25, Brooklyn, department store employee; John Viebrock, Brooklyn, an elevator machinist, and John Gray, 23, Brooklyn, employed by the Brooklyn Edison Co. The arrest of the alleged plotters, described as members of the United Christian Front, was revealed by F.B.I. Director J. Edgar Hoover, who summoned newspapermen to his New York office.

Alberta Farmers Urge Union For All Canada

Delegates decided yesterday to defer a vote on a resolution urging union of all farm organizations in the Dominion until to-day.

George G. Coote, former U.F.A. member of Parliament for Macleod constituency and now Secretary of the Canadian Chamber of Agriculture, said about one-third of the people of Canada are on farms, but that they only obtain one-twelfth of the national income. "Farmers must organize if they want this situation to change," he said.

A "Marketing Act" should be put into operation whereby commodity boards would be set up to assist in the orderly marketing of farm products. Such an act would prove beneficial to farmers in all parts of Canada, he said.

H. R. Boutillier of Hairy Hill, vice-president of the Alberta section of the United Farmers of Canada, expressed approval of a proposed merger with the U.F.A. and stated "the 200,000 farmers of Western Canada must stand united in one strong organization if they are to get a fair deal."

"We want to unite first in Alberta, and then get the Saskatchewan and Manitoba organizations with us," he said.

"We shouldn't do anything to hinder successful prosecution of the war. After the war is over prices are going to slump, and that's the time for us to act."

BOSTON, Jan. 19.—(AP).—Determined to eliminate debutante competition, Boston professional models issued a challenge for a "battle of glamor" to-day in their fight against society models.

Led by Miss Ruth Allen, who holds more titles for beauty and "oomph" than can be counted on the fingers, the models hope to win their fight by legislative action which would give them professional status akin to nurses, hairdressers and similar groups.

"Bring on the debutantes," said Miss Allen. "They do our work for fun and amusement. We do it to earn a living. All we want is a chance to earn that living without unfair amateur competition.

"We can prove that a professional model has it all over a debutante. We challenge any and all of them to a battle of glamor—a tournament of beauty" and let the public judge."

"We'll even let the debs choose the weapons. They can make it evening gowns, bathing suits or sarongs—we can beat them at any of them."

The models have drawn up petitions, which they are circulating throughout the State, asking Governor Leverett Saltonstall and the State Legislature to take action on their problem.

Deloro Safety Committee Reviews Splendid Year, Holds Banquet

MARMORA, Jan. 19. —(ENS)— The fifteenth annual meeting of the Deloro Safety Committee was held in Deloro Hall on Thursday evening, R. A. Elliott chairman presiding over a good attendance of members and guests.

Prior to the meeting, the members assembled at the staff dining room to enjoy an excellent repast which was served by Mrs. P. Smith and her helpers and for which the management of the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company have beeen annually responsible.

At the Hall, the regular monthly meeting got under way after the Gypsy Serenaders of Toronto (Clair Rouse, violin and Miss Dorothy Fielning accordion) had given some selections of the exhilarating type. G. Brooks for the Suggestions committee gave the initial report. There were 21 suggestions received in December. C. T. Nicholson then reported for the Competitive Committee. Ten of the twenty-one suggestions received in December were awarded a prize and upon a review of the seventy four suggestions received previously in 1939, eight more awards were made.

W. L. Rigg reported for the Inspection Committee and J. A. Rice followed with that of the Health and Investigation Committee.

J. H. Hemphill for the Publicity Committee dealt chiefly with the recent contest and the new design on the sign board.

C. H. Buskard then gave the monthly statement of the Benevolent Relief Funds as the closing item.

As a prelude to the annual meeting, Clair Rouse as the musical vagabond put on his skit, "If I had the World to Give" in which in turn in vagabond costume and with all the whimsicalities of a hobo, he played a variety of instruments drawn from his top coat.

Annual Meeting.

Minutes of the last annual meeting opened the annual meeting following which Mr. Elliott as chairman gave his report. First, he presented figures of the records of each department of the plant. The matter of the foreman with the best safety record was then touched upon. Three this year, tied for the honor, G. Brooks, M. McCoy and H. O. Loveless.

M. McCoy, through having this honor for the first time, will attend the Safety First Convention this year and the co-delegate from the members of the staff will be C. T. Nicholson.

Mr. Elliott next enlarged upon the dispensing of the Benevolent Relief Funds and mentioned it was in a healthy condition and available in time of true need. Mr. Elliott then quoted from an editorial, the closing words of which were most applicable to all in Safety First work. "The only sure way to happiness is to help others."

F. Paquet, secretary treasurer in his report touched upon work of the various committees and expenditures incidental thereto. Both reports were passed upon motion of S. B. Wright, seconded by H. A. McNally.

Miss Fielding gave some accordion solos that were much appreciated, finishing with same war song tunes which everyone joined.

Officers Re-elected.

The election of officers followed, the executive being re-elected as follows: Chairman, R. A. Elliott, vice-lchairman W. L. Rigg; sec.-treasurer, F. Paquet; assistant-secretary, H. A. McNally.

Each year, one member of the Benevolent Relief Committee retires and R. A. Elliott's turn arrived this year. Upon a vote of the meeting, he was re-elected.

The other two trustees are C. H. Buskard and H. O. Loveless. H. Rennie and H. C. Barlow were appointed as auditors for the Benevolent Relief Funds for 1940.

Mr. S. B. Wright, general manager of the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company mentioned the splendid record accomplished by the committee and reassured his hearers they could always rely upon the support of the company in every way in Safety Work and wished the movement every success and the members a safe and prosperous New Year.

Mr. C. A. Seaton manger at the Consolidated Mines at Cordova gave some details of safety work under the jurisdiction of his company and congratulated the Deloro organization on its excellent record.

H. W. Sabine was the next speaker said he felt that the Safety work of the plant goes out to have an effect upon the community.

Dr. H. Crawford spoke of the low death rate in the village of Deloro and hoped that it was a record that could be kept up and hoped the safety record in Deloro would be better than ever.

J. Arnold Thomson, architect, of Belleville, said he was surprised at the splendid interest and co-operation he noticed in safety work at Deloro.

W. L. Rigg as concluding speaker, said as an observer, he felt the plant was well maintaining the safety spirit. Clare Rouse then gave his concluding number, "The Musical Man" after which the entertainers again played for community singing andwith the National Anthem, the gathering dispersed.

Senate Debates U.S. Cutting Tie With Russia

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 — (AP). —The question of severing diplomatic relations with Russia bobbed up again to-day as Chairman Key Pittman of the United States Senate Foreign Relations Committee asked the State Department whether it wished to comment on a proposal by Senator Arthur Vandenberg, Michigan Republican.

Vandenberg proposed that the Senate call upon President Roosevelt to inform it whether the Soviet Government had lived up to promises made in in 1933 when the United States extended diplmatic recognition to the Soviet.

Vandenberg told reporters he was confident that, if the Senate approved his resolution, the information furnished in response to it would be such that action would be forced on the question of severing relations.

Pittman, Nevada Democrat, said he agreed with Vandenberg that Russia had violated its 1933 pledges not to support political organizations in America and not to interfere with the religious worship of Americans in Russia, as well as its promise to pay for confiscated American property.

No Tie On Swedes To Help Finns

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 19 — (CP-Havas).—Premier Per Albin Hansson today voiced Sweden's determination to fight "with all means at our disposal" any attack against the country's neutrality.

He advised Russia that Sweden needs no "instructions from abroad" regarding its relations with Finland. He declared, however, that Sweden's sympathy for Finland "in no way signifies hostility against the Russian people."

"Caution is necessary," he added, "if we want to avoid becoming part of the great field of conflict."

The Premier spoke in the Riksdag (Parliament) during a debate on foreign affairs. He denied reports of pressure on Sweden from the Allies or Germany.

"There can be no question of acts contrary to neutrality, such as permission for passage of belligerent troops or the use of points of support on our territory," he declared.

"The aim of collaboration between the Nordic states is to ensure their neutrality and independence. There never was a question of a military coalition and Sweden has no obligation to line up at Finland's side."

Sabotage Hinted In Quebec Fire

QUEBEC, Jan. 19 — (CP). — An early morning fire which raced rapidly through Quebec's vacant military hospital "might have been set," Brig.-General E. J. Renaud officer commanding Military District No. 5, said to-day. He did not elaborate on the comment.

Coincident with the Brigadier's statement came an announcement from military headquarters that a military Court of Inquiry, consisting of three officers, would be appointed to investigate the blaze.

"The court's personnel probably will be named to-day and it may sit to-morrow," an officer said. "Until then, we have nothing to say."

Nearly 12 hours after the outbreak of the fire in sub-zero weather, firemen continued to play several streams of water on the smouldering wooden interior of the three-storey structure, whose thick stone walls remained intact.

Cloaked in ice, firemen operated from vantage points on surrounding buildings and on a high stone wall, part of the city's ancient fortifications. The hospital roof collapsed while 12 streams were being poured into the building in Quebec's Upper Town.

The hospital had been vacant about six weeks and was undergoing repairs.

Georgian Bay Farmers Plan Big Meeting

Farmers and their entire families are invited to attend and take part in the Georgian Bay Farmers' Conference, which will be held in Oddfellows' Temple, Barrie, on Tuesday and Wednesday, January 30-31.

The object of the conference is to help farmers and others to find the best way of living and of meeting the difficult problems that face all at the present time; and to prepare for the even more serious hazards that must be met once the war is over.

The conference is being planned and conducted by a farmers' organization, the First Co-operative Packers of Ontario Limited, with the close co-operation and help of the Departments of Agriculture and members of Simcoe County Council. No effort has been spared to get the best leaders available for the several important discussions, with time allowed for a free airing of the opinions of all.

The keynote of the first day's program will be to lay a foundation for a federation or union of all farm organizations and farm production or commodity gorups on a county basis ;to link up with the Provincial and Dominion Chambers of Agriculture to provide leadership for County, Provincial and Dominion agriculture, and to give farmers a voice in the formation of Provincial and Dominion agricultural policies.

The second day's program will stress co-operation with special attention given to marketing farm products and the existing unequal exchange values obtained for farm products.

May Cut School Attendance Age

TORONTO, Jan. 19 — Lowering of the compulsory school attendance age from 16 to 14 is being given "serious study" by the Ontario Government and legislation to effect a change may be brought down before the present session of the legislature ends, it was reported today.

In an effort to trim expenditures of the department to the bone because of wartime needs, Hon. L. J. Simpson, Minister of Education, is reported to have taken the matter under serious consideration following its suggestion by another member of the cabinet a few days ago.

It was argued that many farmers with boys who are 14 or 15 will require all the help they can get as industry speeds up and more men are enlisted; and that it would be working considerable hardship on them if their sons were compelled to go to school until they are 16 years old. Too, it was contended, many city boys of that age would be able to do light factory work in munitions and other plants if the need arises.

New Jersey Blast Held Accident

GIBBSTOWN, N.J., Jan. 19. — (AP)— Explosion of three tons of nitro-glycerine at the Repaupo plant of the Dupont Powder Works, killing two men and injuring five, was put down today as an accident.

That possibility drew attention of both state police and the federal bureau of investigation immediately after yesterday's mid-morning blast. The Dupont Company manufacture war materials at some plants.

The explosion shattered windows and jarred buildings for miles around. Thousands in Philadelphia, 13 miles north, rushed from homes and buildings fearing an earthquake.

A 10-foot deep crater, resembling a battlefield shell hole, was torn in the frozen ground where stood a small building devoted to processing nitroglycerine.

Neutrality Issue May Block Seaway

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19 (AP)— Opponents of the St. Lawrence seaway predicted today that the neutrality issue may become one of the most potent arguments against the waterway project should a new treaty be submitted to the United States senate for ratification at this session.

Representative Martin Kennedy, New York Democrat and author of a resolution for a new study of the seaway project with particular reference to the effect on American neutrality policy of entering into a pact with a nation at war, said he regarded as significant the reluctance of congress to aid Finland.

"It shows that there is strong sentiment in congress against involving the United States in foreign entanglements no matter how worthy the cause," he said.

"Canada is a nation at war and I do not believe this is the time to enter into any treaty with her for the joint development of this waterway."

Meanwhile Representative Francis Culkin, New York Republican, announced that members of the House of Representatives from lake states favoring the waterway would confer tomorrow on plans for building sentiment in support of a seaway pact should one be submitted to the senate.

St. Thomas Guild Plans For Teas

MILLBROOK, Jan. 19—(ENS).— The Women's Guild of St. Thomas' Church was entertained at the home of Mrs. G. F. Harrington on Wednesday at 8 p.m., with the newly-elected president, Mrs. William Simpson, in the chair.

Following the opening devotional period, business items were discussed and it was decided to continue the series of "Vanishing Teas," which have been started, and which have proved successful both financially and socially.

Ways and means of raising money were fully discussed, and the invitation of Mrs. Douglas Sheppard to hold the next gathering, on the third Tuesday in February, at her home was gratefully accepted.

Grace Auxiliary.

Mrs. A. Raeburn-Gibson, newly elected president of the W.M.S. of Grace Presbyterian Church, entertained the Auxiliary for its initial meeting of the new year at the Manse on Wednesday afternoon, the attendance being gratifying considering the extremely cold weather, with the thermometer hovering around zero all day.

The president asked that the executive meet at her home in the near future to make necessary plans for the current twelve months. Announcement was made that the World's Day of Prayer is to be held this year in Grace Church, with the three Auxiliaries of the village participating.

A general discussion of ways and means of raising funds during 1940 took up considerable time, and it was decided to have a membership fee of twenty-five cents, and to continue the "Surprise Box," which is passed at each meeting and opened every three months and the contents passed on to the treasurer.

A reading, "Think Right," was given by Mrs. Z. Seaton, and Mrs. Gibson read "A Prayer of Understanding." An interesting letter from Miss H. Kennedy, who has recently gone to India as a missionary, was read by Miss Agnes Johnston, and the meeting closed with the benediction.

Among those from Millbrook and vicinity who motored to Cobourg on Tuesday evening for the election of Warden at the Counties' Council were: Ex-Wardens P. Stinson and Fred Waterman, Constable E. C. Richards, Township Clerk J. N. McGill, Councillor H. D. Bigelow, ex-Reeve A. Wood, and George Berry.

Westwood W.I. Plans Part In War Work

WESTWOOD, Jan. 19—(ENS). — The monthly meeting of the Women's Institute was held in the Town Hall on Tuesday. In the absence of the president, Mrs. S. Graham, vice-president, was in the chair. Miss J. Davidson acted as secretary for the meeting. The roll call was answered by the members naming a book I have read and liked and why, giving the author's name. A committee was named to look after the war work, which is to be carried on in connection with the W.I. in this district. Mrs. H. Neilson was appointed secretary-treasurer of this work, and will purchase yarn and hand it out to those wishing it. The W.I. will sponsor a card party on Wednesday, January 24, to be held in the Town Hall. A blanket will be presented to a recent bride.

A report on the local library was given, showing that quite a number were taking advantage of its books. Donations of books will be gratefully received.

Mrs. Birdsall gave a splendid address on "The Benefits of the Rural Library." She gave several reasons why the rural library is perhaps more necessary than in the large centres.

Miss Jessie Davidson gave a paper on cooking and care of meat before and after cooking. Mrs. S. Graham put on a splendid contest in conjunction with the meat cookery entitled "Hidden Dinner Contest."

The February meeting is to be held on February 20 at 8 p.m., on account of the hall being used in day-time for a short course during February. Lunch was served by the group in charge.

Half Loan In Lots $5,000 Or Under

OTTAWA, Jan. 19—(CP)—Additional subscriptions to Canada's first loan of the Second Great War, reported to the Bank of Canada to-day, indicated that when allotment of the $1200,000,000 in 3¼ per cent bonds is finally complete 50 per cent of the total will be in the hands of subscribers for $5,000 and under.

This will meet the wishes of Finance Minister Ralston who, when the loan was announced, said he hoped the bonds could be distributed as widely as possible among Canadian people of small means.

For this reason the books remain open for the benefit of small investors in distant points although the loan was 25 per cent oversubscribed Tuesday night, 36 hours after the bonds went on sale.

Allotment of the bonds apart from those of which the sale was confirmed at time of subscription, will be at the discretion of the minister.

This means that all orders received since late Tuesday will be subject to final allotment and in the case of large orders only a portion of the total subscription will be filled.

Scores of dealers whose reports were being studied to-day have found the $50 denomination more and more popular. One firm with branches across Canada reported 1,626 orders fr a total of $1.754,-550 all in amounts under $5,000.

In the loan campaigns of the first Great War, individual subscriptions averaged as follows: First war loan, $4,172; second war loan, $5,835; third war laon, $6,320; first victory loan, $651; second victory loan, $620; and third victory loan, $622.

BOLD plaids carry on. We've had them in evening coats and housecoats, in taffeta and wool. Now comes what promises to be one of the pet beach robes of the cruise and summer season, plaid in hand-woven Mexican linen—the same, in fact, which graces your breakfast luncheon tables, in desert colors of cactus green, sand, gold and rose. Lucille Ball is the Hollywood enthusiast in this picture, snapped at Palm Springs but she's only one of dozens of us who are planning for something more exciting on the sands.

DOROTHY DIX

When You Pick a Mate Be Sure That You Have Many Likes And Dislikes In Common, For Only Then Will You Be Assured At Least Some Congeniality.

"DOES marriage really assimilate a man and woman who have been reared with different habits and tastes and points of view and make them two souls with but a single thought, two hearts that beat as one, as the poet says?" asks a girl.

"Now, I am engaged to a young man who is apparently the answer to any maiden's prayer for a husband," she continues. "He is handsome and intelligent. He is already making a mark in his profession and I am head over heels in love with him. But his ideas about marriage and life are so antagonistic to mine that I am wondering if we can ever reconcile them.

"To begin with, he believes that the husband should be the sole supreme ruler and dictator of the family and that the wife's mission is to yes-yes her husband, make him comfortable and bear him children.

"He says that he would never even consider giving his wife an allowance for the housekeeping and for herself. He would require her to come to him for every cent she needed and to give him a detailed account of how she spent it. He thinks it is foolish to spend money wastefully on flowers and presents or to observe anniversaries. And when he occasionally takes me out for an evening's amusement we go to some inexpensive place and he orders the cheapest-priced dishes on the menu.

"He says that is the way his father treats his mother and it is the way he intends to treat his wife. Now I have been brought up under a different regime. My father considers money a servant instead of a master, and, while we have always lived within our means, we have indulged ourselves in all the pleasures and comforts we could afford. My father has always treated my mother as if she were a queen and not a slave, and his first consideration has always been her happiness. Besides that, I am a competent business woman, with a good salary, and when I think of the chances of my autocratic, tight-fisted fiance changing into a considerate, generous husband, or of me being metamorphosed into an unpaid household drudge, I get jittery.

"Yet my fiance says that as soon as we are married I will see that he is right and do his way and like it. But I wonder. And am afraid."

"You do well to be afraid," I told this girl, "for of all the fallacies that have ever been preached about marriage none is so unfounded, or has done so much harm, as that which leads young people to believe that there is some magic in the marriage ceremony that changes the natures and characters of men and women from what they are to what their mates wish them to be.

"Nothing of the sort happens, yet every day we see optimistic young men marrying Dumb Doras or frivolous little fashion plates or virago-goes in the fond belief that as soon as they are married they will turn into intellectual companions or thrifty housewives or mild little Angel Faces. And we see girls marrying drunkards and ne'er-do-wells and bullies in perfect faith that marriage will turn them into sober go-getters and wife-spoilers.

"Of course, all husbands and wives who keep out of the divorce courts do have to adjust themselves to a degree, because no man and no woman ever think alike. Their opinions and desires are bound to conflict, and even these adjustments are not made without battle and bloodshed. In fact, a large life insurance company estimates that three times as many murders are the result of domestic quarrels as there are in gangster slayings.

"So the moral of all of this is that if you want to be happy though married you must pick out the kind of wives or husbands you want to begin with instead of befooling yourself into thinking that you can make them over to your liking after you get them. It can't be done. Heredity and environment, father's example and mother's teaching have made them what they are and what they are going to be to the end of the chapter.

"In all sober truth, what we call 'the adjustments' of marriage consist in the one who has the most intelligence and the highest sense of responsibility giving into the selfish and dictatorial one for the sake of peace. And it is pretty hard on the poor goat, I gave as my final bit of advice."

DEAR DOROTHY DIX.—I am 25 years old. Have a good and permanent job and I want to marry a girl I have been in love with since I was in the first grade in school. She is a fine girl, well educated, has good manners, but my family objects because her family didn't come over in the Mayflower or win the Revolutionary War, while mine did. But if any of them have ever done anything since to get in "Who's Who" I have never heard of it. My parents say they will disinherit me if I marry this girl. What about it?—PAUL.

ANSWER:

If you are 25 you are old enough to know your own mind, and if you are self-supporting you don't have to ask anybody's permission to get married, so go along and marry your sweetheart and be happy. All talk of disinheriting a son because he doesn't let Mamma and Pop pick out his wife is too silly to discuss. Anyway, the family always gets over being snooty and by the time the first baby comes they think they made the match, no matter how much they opposed it.

WOMEN'S WORK AND INTERESTS

Year Of Marked Progress Is Reported By Congregation Of George Street United

Another fine year's work under the leadership of Rev. M. C. Parr was reported at the annual congregational meeting of George Street United Church this week, the pastor presiding. Mr. L. M. Richardson was appointed secretary for the evening, with Mrs. Cecil Wasson as press reporter.

Work of George Street United Church has been sustained in all directions throughout the year, Rev. M. C. Parr reported. 1261 Calls, with an average of 100 per month, have been made by the pastor, who has spent 33 services out of the George Street pulpit, which was filled by other speakers. Ten of these were during the summer vacation in the union services with Murray Street Baptist Church.

There are 1192 church members, 86 of whom are non-resident, Mr. G. C. Staples, clerk of the session, reported. Fifty-two were received into church membership by profession of faith, and 42 by church letter. There were 54 removals, leaving a net increase of 40. There were 32 infant baptisms, and 13 adults, and 33 marriages. Mention was made of the two faithful members, regular attendants of the church, who passed on to their reward during 1939—Mr. Wilbert McMillan and Mr. D. H. Kerneghan. Mr. Staples also spoke of the splendid service rendered by Mrs. J. Goldie, soprano soloist of the choir. He mentioned with regret the expected removal from Peterborough in July of the pastor, who, with his family, has made an invaluable contribution to the religious life of the city, and to George Street Church in particular. Mr. Parr's wosk in the pulpit has at all times indicated careful thought and preparation, he said.

Mr. A. Stewart, of the official board, also paid tribute to the fine work of the pastor. Mr. H. G. Walker, treasurer, reported a credit balance at the end of 11939 of $602.66, which at present is $601.18. Missionary and maintenance receipts were $3,262.30. Mr. Walker spoke appreciatively of the fortunate position of George Street Church, which has property worth $190,000, clear of encumbrance. The report of the Board of Stewarts was given by the chairman, Mr. E. L. Sackville, who thanked the various organizations for their co-operation, mentioning especially the young people of the church.

Mrs. G. C. Staples, W.A. secretary, stated there was an enrollment of 100 members, and an average attendance of 64 at 10 meetings. The respective committees of the W.A., including the Red Cross committee, have done excellent work during 1939. Total receipts are $847.17, of which the groups raised $512.53. Expenditures totalled $947.06, including $200 to the Board. Cash in bank at end of year $516.95, in bond account, $972.70, totalling $1,489.65. Mrs. Hetherington, treasurer for Christmas cheer, reported 58 families supplied with two baskets each, also 4 baskets of fruit to sick and hospital, making a total of 62. The groceries were valued at $69.31, and the toys from the Y.P.U. and Sunday School, $11.25.

The W.M.S. reported, through Mrs. Fairbrother, a successful year, with a membership of 148, 52 of these being life members. The average attendance is 66. 525 calls were made during the year, and a total of $1,026.55 raised. Reporting for the Evening Auxiliary, Miss A. Curtis said there was a membership of 24, with 2 life members. The allocation of $190.00 was met, she said, and $12.00 contributed to the bale. Miss Nellie Douglas, for the Twilight Mission Circle, told of a membership of 25, average attendance, 19. $100 was raised and sent to the Presbyterial treasurer. Mrs. V. Beatty reported for the Fidelis Mission Band, which has nine life members and 32 annual members. The desire of this group is to teach the children to co-operate with others. $60.00 was sent to the Presbyterial treasury. Mrs. Beatty also reported for the Baby Band, which is one of the most active and interesting groups, with 42 members in the Mothers' group, and 44 Baby Band members. $10.00 was sent to the Presbyterial treasurer, and the Mothers' group made layettes valued at $64.90.

The secretary of the Sunday School reported a membership of 976. Officers and teachers number 85, and there is an average attendance of 445. Mr. McBride emphasized the importance of the Sunday School in the life of the church, and urged parents to visit this department. During the year 36 members of the school joined the church. There was $600.00 raised for the current funds, and $450.00 through the King's Bank for missions. Total contributions were $1,050.00. There are 70 members in the Choir, Mrs. W. Dorrington reported, with an average attendance of 51. Thanks was extended to the orchestra under the leadership of Mr. Cunningham, and also to the highly esteemed soloist, Mrs. James Goldie. Cash amounted to $109.01.

A successful report for the Y.P.U. was given by the secretary, Miss Norma Rennie. She stated that there was a membership of 125, with an average attendance of 90. Receipts amounted to $443.87, being divided as follows: Missions, $140; Church (current), $95; Fellowship Crusade $10; balance in bank, $28.68.

Mrs. Parr reported for the Junior Church, which includes 125 members with average attendance of 73, and 39 C.G.I.T. members. The amount raised was $18.00. A successful year for Boys' Work was reported by Jack Thompson, including Explorers, Trail Rangers, and Boys' Department.

The Men's Bowling Club meets Monday nights, and the Ladies' Bowling Club Wednesday afternoons. Both report successful progress. Mr. L. M. Richardson read the report of the Nominating Committee; Session, Mr. W. H. Frise and Dr. C. H. Fulford, named to fill the vacancies caused by the death of D. H. Kerneghan and Wilbert McMillan for term ending December 31, 1943. Stewards renominated for term ending 1943, Mr. Hamilton and Mr. G. D. Carlisle, with Mr. W. Girven to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Mr. Norman Edmison. Members of Session whose terms expired in 1939 were all nominated and have agreed to act, are: G. C. Staples, L. M. Richardson, B. W. Manning, W. Burns, F. J. Redpath, D. Munro, J. H. Rowe.

SOPHISTICATED LADY

By ALICE ALDEN

OLIVIA DeHAVILLAND goes sophisticated and flirtatious under the influence of the exotic white crepe dinner turban, matching a gown of Grecian liner embroidered with white seed pearls and huge jewels, in this picture. It's possible and it's fun to switch from the old-fashioned to the ultra modern; from curls to a chignon; from the tailored wool frock to the black crepe with ruffly lingerie collar. Wear a plaid taffeta sailor by day, cover your coiffure with Persian drapery by night. Insist on pearl button earrings for the office, but try dangling glitter come evening. Wear your low heels in the woods and on the street, but yield to the allure of spikes for dancing. It takes more imagination than money to dress cleverly. Guard against the ridiculous, that's all.

Enquiry Column

Conducted by Mrs. MARY MOORE

(Conducted by Mrs. Mary Moore).

QUESTION: I enjoy cutting out your helpful household and cooking hints from the Examiner. I think your recipes are also good.

Have you got a recipe for a cake called Walnut Slice, or some people call it Dream Cake?

Could you also tell me what I should serve after a bridge game? If you have some recipes for cakes, cookies and other that are not the average kind I'd be more than pleased to receive them.

Some people serve salads. Have you got any good salads? Hope this is not asking too much, as I'm a beginner in this and would like some of your good ideas.—Thanking you, Mrs. L. T.

ANSWER: Thank you for your letter.

I have two recipes, either of which might be the one you refer to.

Bishop's Walnut Slices.

One cup sugar, 3 eggs, 1¼ cups flour, 1 cup bleached Sultanas, 1 cup best walnuts chopped, 2 teaspoons baking powder. Beat eggs well with the sugar. Sift 1 cup flour with baking powder and pinch of salt, beat until light with the sugar and eggs, then add the raisins and nuts having first sprinkled them with the remaining flour. Bake in buttered pans in thin sheets (about ½ inch thick) at 350 deg. Fahr. Before quite cold cut into pieces about 3 inches long by 1 inch wide. Sprinkle with an additional cup of walnuts rolled fine with rolling pin, mixed with 2 tablespoons icing sugar.

Walnut Slices.

(A Butter Cake Batter).

One cup sugar, ½ cup butter, ½ cup milk, 2 cups flour, ½ teaspoon baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, white of 3 eggs, beaten well, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 cup walnuts. Cream butter very well, then sift in sugar and cream very well. Sift together flour and baking powder and salt and add them alternately to the flour and sugar, with the milk, beating just enough between additions to mix in the flour. Then add chopped nuts, and fold in whites stiffly beaten, and vanilla. Bake in 1or 2 square tins, buttered, at 375 deg. Fahr. If baked in 1 tin, cut into 2 slices and put between layers.

Sour Cream Filling

On cup sour cream. 4 tablespoons sugar, 1½ tablespoons corn starch. Stir these ingredients together, and then cook in double boiler, stirring until thick. Add 1 egg well beaten and 1 teaspoon vanilla and pinch of salt. Remove from heat and when warm spread between layers of cake. Spread top with rich butter frosting—4 tablespoons cream and butter, 2 cups sifted icing sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla—and sprinkle frosting with finely chopped walnuts. Hickory nuts or pecans or almonds may be used in place of walnuts in the above recipe. When ready to serve cut in slices 1 inch wide by three inches long.

Bridge Party Luncheon.

Toasted Rolled Cheese Sandwiches.
Walnut Slices. Tea with Lemon.
Tea With Milk.
Mint Wafers.

Jellied Vegetable Ring.

Two cups tomato juice, 1 cup concentrated bouiloon (canned), 3½ tablespoons gelatin, 1 can No. 2 peas, 1 can asparagus tips, 8 whole fresh tomatoes, 2 hard cooked eggs, curly endive or watercress or lettuce. Soak the gelatin in ½ cup of the cold bouilion, boil 1 cup of the tomato juice and dissolve soaked gelatin in it. Combine all other juice, including liquid from canned peas and asparagus, and stir into gelatin mix. Add the peas. Place asparagus tips, bottom up around sides of ring mould, cutting off any part of the bottom that extends above top of mould. Pour in the gelatin mixture being careful not to dislodge asparagus, and chill.

You may wish to add salt and pepper, but if the bouillon is highly enough flavored no other seasonings are necessary.

Turn out on chop plate to serve and surround with Tomato Roses: Cut cored tomatoes almost to the bottom, in 6 equal sections (like an orange, and spread them out slightly without breaking. In centre of each place a teaspoon of riced egg yolk. Place a small glass of mayonnaise in centre of mould and garnish salad greens with egg whites which have been cut into strips in the shape of petals.

The following recipe is rather unusual—I hope you will like it, and that you are not familiar with it.

Tad's Date and Apricot Bars.

Fillinggn: 1 cup chopped dates, 2 cups drained stewed apricots, ½ cup white sugar, 2 tablespoons apricot juice. Mash, chop or sieve fruit, mix with other ingredients, cook about 3 minutes and cook while mixing dough.

Dough: Three-quarters cup melted butter, 1 cup brown sugar, 2 cups sifted flour, 1 teaspoon soda, 2 cups uncooked quick-cooking oatmeal, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 2 tablespoons water. Mix and sift flour and soda together well, then add oatmeal, then the butter, sugar, vanilla, warm water, and work with fingers into a crumbly dough. Press half firmly into a buttered pan 8 x 12, cover with date and apricot filling, sprinkle other half of dough over and press down lightly and smooth it. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 40 minutes. Cut when cool into 32 bars.

We hope these ideas help you with your entertaining. Watch the cookery page for other entertaining ideas from time to time.

The Stars Say . . .

For Saturday, January 20.

Continued success, progress and good fortune are indicated by the current astrological map. Promotion, preferment and substantial gestures of endorsement and cooperation may be looked for from employers, superiors, and those in influential positions, either in business, politics, diplomacy or fraternal organizations. It is a propitious time for pushing for such advancement, and favors by sound judgment, hard work and fidelity, but in these efforts shun extravagance and unwarranted social ambitions.

Those whose birthday it is are assured of a year of definite recognition for steadfast work, diligence, and faithfulness to those persons and positions that spell efficiency, ambition and progress. Seek these with confidence especially in political or diplomatic circles or in fraternal organizations, but do not indulge in extravagance or too lofty social aims. Let merit and tested responsibility inspire your goals.

A child born on this day may be studious, diligent, steadfast and responsible as well as resourceful, enterprising and courageous. Its intellectual ,cultural and dependable endowments assure it due rewards and perhaps conspicuous public acclaim.

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 19—(ENS)—The dance held under auspices of the I.O.D.E. Bemmerside Chapter on Wednesday was a distinct success. It was the Chapter's second dance of the season and the money will go to help the organization in their war work. The affair took place in the Masonic temple with dancing in the main auditorium and cards in the lounge. Prizes for bridge were awarded by the regent, Mrs. G. A. Ironside to Mrs. Jack Clarke and Mr. G. A. Ironside. The lucky spot dances were won by Mrs. Jack Dooher and Mr. Gerald Mitchell; Mr. Ralph Locke and F. Kelleher won the birthday dances and Mrs. H. T. Scott and Mr. J. Stephens won the lucky number dances. Decorations for the evening were tastefully carried out with red white and blue bunting and music for dancing was provided by Doug Hutchinson and his aces.

ST. JOHN'S LAKEFIELD

A very pleasant time was spent by the 65 young people who attended the skating party of the A.Y.P.A. of St. John's Church, Lakefield in the skating rink on Tuesday evening. Guests were present from Peterborough as well as Lakefield. Following the skating the party returned to the Parish Hall where a hot bean supper was served by the committee in charge.

We Noticed

....Frilly feminine costumes for war-time "blackout" hours is the dictum of Paris dressmakers, who will start their annual mid-winter shows of summer fashions within the next few days.

. . Their decision represents a compromise between the love of French and English women for uniforms—which are worn in the daytime — and the dressmakers' desire to retain the feminine touch.

...."It is the patriotic duty of women to look as pretty as she can always, but especially at this time," said Capt. Edward Molyneux. "Women should leave the uniforms to the men, who look much better in them."

East Emily

The members of Bethel L.O.L. No. 294 held their annual meeting with the election of officers for the coming year as follows: Worthy Master, Bro. Marwood McCarrell; Deputy-Master, Bro. Fred Deyell; Recording Secretary, Bro. Harry Jackson; Chaplain, Bro. Eugene Switzer; Treasurer, Bro. Gordon Harrison: Financial Secretary, Bro. Cecil Casey; 1st Lecturer, Bro. Harry Deyell; 2nd Lecturer, Bro. Roy Howden; Marshal, Bro. John Faulkner; 1st Committeeman, Roger Price; Junior Committeemen, Edmund Ruth, Sayward Switzer, Harry Faulkner, and Elwood Faulkner; Auditors, Charles Mills and Eugene Switzer.

Personals.

Miss Helen Parker has returned home after spending some time in Peterborough.

The many friends of James Franks are sorry to learn he is confined to Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Drain of Clarina spent Thursday visiting at the home of the latter's brother, Eugene Switzer.

A most successful sale of farm stock and implements was held at the home of Mrs. William Kerr on the Lindsay Highway on Tuesday afternoon, with Jack Wilson of Port Hope as auctioneer. Everything sold well despite the bad condition of the roads and the bitter cold weather.

Can YOU tell?

Which is new? Which Luxed 5 times?

Both pictures show the same sweater—both look new—yet the one at the left has been Luxed 5 times!

Here's the way the Lux Laboratories did it: First, an outline of the sweater was drawn on heavy paper. Then the sweater was swished in extra-rich, lukewarm Lux suds; rinsed in 3 clear, lukewarm waters. Excess moisture was removed by rolling in a Turkish towel. The sweater was unrolled at once. Then it was placed on the outline, eased to shape and pinned around the edges with rustproof pins—dried flat.

Beware of hot water, soaps with harmful alkali, and rubbing with cake soap. Lux has no harmful alkali . . . eliminates rubbing. Lux won't fade colours, won't roughen or mat delicate wool fibres. Safe in water, safe in Lux.

2 The same sweater photographed when brand-new.

High Counting Kept Up By The Bowlers

With big triples and singles falling all around him, George Walton topped the City League bowlers again last night. The high flying "Turk" flayed them for the third successive week, chalking up 855 to head off Frank Wood's 840. Jack Playford's 835, Bob Cylde's 822, and Fred Martin's 808.

With team scoring hitting new heights Gordon's levelled off 3760 in a 3 to 1 win over 3651 Capitol Grill effort. Duffus' 3551 was good for 3 points from C.G.E., while the Grafton entry hung up a smashing 3383 game in their 3488 total when they downed Grant's. Walton's three-game string was the deciding factor in Jay's 3-1 decision over the Lock Works five.

Saints Cop Win In Southend Tilt

It was 3-1 for St. Peter's Bantams in their Southend Loop tilt at the Sacred Heart rink last evening over Canucks. The winners got a goal a period, while Canucks rallied in the third to sink one. Mortimer, Jones and Monahan counted for the Saints as Dayman tallied for Canucks. The latter with the two Giardinos went best for Canucks; as Mortimer and Dewart stood out for the winners. The teams:

St. Peter's.—Goal, Dewart; defence, Jones, Monahan; centre, Mortimer; wings, Fallen, Quigley; subs, Ryan, Legrow, McIsaac, Baldwin.

Referee—R. Leether.

Royals Beat Canucks

Royals defeated Canuck Midgets of the Southend League 4-0 last night at the Sacred Heart rink. White broke loose to notch all the markers in the second frame, the other two heats being tight and without a count. White, Close, Leether and Darrell went best for the victors; as Williams, Wilfred, Heath and Keating stood out on the other side. Aside from Royals' pressure play in the middle heat, it was a dandy scrap. The teams:

Royals.—Goal, Leether; defence, Lawson, McGregor; centre, Close; wings, White, Darrell; subs, Cooper, Blaby, Wade, McNaughton.

"TELL BILL GOODBYE"

SYNOPSIS.

The Charasters:
FABIENNE SEYMOUR, rich, young and beautiful.
NICKY BARTLETT, wealthy and in love with Fabienne.
ELLEN CHAPMAN, young and capable mistress of Willoughby House.
DR. BILL MALLORY, close friend of Ellen's.
YESTERDAY: Fabienne starts out to raise some money for a theatre project at the settlement house. With a friend's help she wins $500 and decides to procure an advance on her own income.

CHAPTER NINETEEN

THE SENIOR partner of Hardy, Hardy and Hardy, Counsellors at Law, regarded his earliest visitor with grave interest and approving eyes. He hadn't seen Gertrude Willoughby's daughter since her debutante days, but his memory was clear and he saw a change, and that Fabienne was developing into a very different type of person from her frivolous mother.

He was therefore disappointed when she opened her conversation by saying, "Mr. Hardy, I want an advance of fifteen hundred dollars on my allowance. And I must have it at once."

"My dear child, you should go to Quentin or Nicolas." Quentin and Nicholas were the banker trustees of Elihu Willoughby's estate.

"I know," she told him. "But you are also one of the trustees and I hoped you would handle it for me. You see, I don't want to have to explain why I want the money at once."

Old eyes swept over the graceful length of her seated in the chair opposite, over the expensive gown and furs up the string of fine pearls around her slim throat.

Andrew Hardy sighed. The girl was, after all, like her mother. "And you wish to—er—meet a pressing bill?" he queried. 'Perhaps, in that case, I should explain that certain sacrifices—"

She smiled, reading his thoughts, and shook her blond head. "I know what you're going to say, sir. You're going to tell me that I must learn to live within my income because there isn't any more to be expected. Right?"

"Right," he agreed.

"I'm going to do that. Now, I'll tell you what I'm going to do with this money. I'm going to build a theatre."

Hardy's hopes that had risen fell again. "A theatre?" he asked unbelievingly.

"Yes. It may cost more than fifteen hundred dollars. In which case," she shrugged her shoulders and added, "I'll need more."

"My dear child, I consider it the height of folly! You've always been able to afford whatever plaything you desired—"

"This is not a plaything, Mr. Hardy," she told him solemnly. "Do you think it can be arranged?"

He hesitated. "I—I might advance you the sum myself."

"That might be the right way, sid. If you would be so kind. "I'll arrange to give you my entire monthly check i nthat case. If you could let me have it at once, I should appreciate your giving me a check made out to Willoughby house, or rather sending it there."

The lawyer had opened a checkbook. With his finger on a blank sheet, he paused and gave her a startled glance of inquiry. "Did I understand you to say Willoughby house?"

"You did. I—I'm very much interested in that enterprise, Mr. Hardy."

He sat back in his chair with thoughtfull furrowed brows, regarding her with new and approving interest. "What's the story, Fabienne?"

She told him, sparing herself nothing, of her motives for going to Willoughby house in the beginning; of the promised gift that was not forthcoming; of Rose Riccio and her own feeling of responsibility.

"Don't look at me that way, Mr. Hardy," she said when she had finished the story. "There's nothing noble about me. Some things are written in black and white and nothing in the world can change them. This is one of the things. I'd like to change it, but I can't. I love living in luxury, and all my comforts are mighty important to me. Let's call that the white of that black and white. The black is"—she made a funny little face at him meant to indicate that she didn't like the idea at all—" plain duty. Something's been put up to me and I can't escape it."

"Well, well," the old man was thinking, "so there's someone in the family, after all, with something of old Elihu's stuff in her. He'd be pleased and proud."

Aloud he said, "Congratulations. Meanwhile, what are you going to live on? I understand that you live at an expensive hotel?"

"Did," she corrected. "I'm moving out. I've got a little money to live on for the next three months." She didn't explain the five hundred she'd got from Ned and which she intended to repay into the fund.

Hardy picked up a pen and began to write. He paused a moment and said, "Suppose I make a little gift of this money on my own?"

She shook her head, protesting. "This has to be on me, Mr. Hardy. Thank you just the same. If we need more, perhaps I'll call on you."

"Has to—er—be on you?"

"Yes. I don't think I can explain it, but I'll try. You see, I've got a new slant on—on life these days. It seems that sacrifices pay dividends that I've never experienced. I told you I was selfish. I am. I'm still trying to get new thrills for myself. I think this may be a way. And, incidentally, if there are any questions about where this check came from, will you please say that it came from a client who wishes to remain anonymous?"

"I will, my dear," Andrew Hardy said. "Also, I will see that the check is delivered by messenger at once."

After she had gone, he suddenly remembered that he had forgotten to ask her new address. He wanted to see more of her. Elihu Willoughby had been one of his best friends.

Fabienne couldn't have given him an address. Her rent was paid at the hotel for another six days. After that, she hadn't the slightest idea where she was going to live.

Where did one live, and how did one live for four months on five hundred dollars?

Somewhere she'd read that one should pay a quarter of one's income for rent. A quarter of five hundred dollars spread over four months came to the sum of thirty-one dollars and twenty-five cents per month. What sort of a place could she find for that money? She shivered with distaste at the prospect.

And then she remembered with what high-handed dismissal she had received Ellen's proposal long ago that she come to live at some place Ellen said she could find for her.

With some girls, Fabienne would not have swallowed her pride and gone back for that very help. But Ellen was not like other girls. Asking a favor of Ellen would not mean swallowing her pride.

She went to Ellen after an afternoon's struggle with budgeting for the first time in her life.

"Ellen, I—I've got to economize for the next few months and I need some suggestions. I'm moving out of the Plaza—to where I do not know. Some place really unexpensive. I can't afford more than thirty-one dollars a month rent."

Ellen was immediately understanding and sympathetic. "You haven't lost—I mean—"

Fabienne smiled. "No, I haven't lost my income. I've made—made sort of an investment that keeps me stripped."

Quite unexpectedly, Ellen picked up a check and held it before Fabienne's gaze. "Would this be it?" she said. Fabienne had once told her that Andrew Hardy was the family lawyer.

Swift color painted Fabienne's face with embarrassment, giving her away completely. "Nonsense!" she said. "Do you think I'd do anything like that? What about the housing problem, Ellen?"

"Come and live with me, Fabienne. My place is cheaply rented, but it's quite big. I have a whole floor, you know. I'd like to have the kind of person you are living with me."

Fabienne experienced a series of reactions. Her first was delight; her second was a feeling of warning—if she lived with Ellen, she would have to see a lot of Bill, who was Ellen's Bill. Then she remembered that she had to have some place to live.

She said, "Thanks, Ellen. I'd like to, but I'd have to be sure of absolute privacy. Could I have a tucked-away room somewhere?" Some place where she would not have to see Bill and Ellen together!

The committee has found it advisable to change the time of the bus for Bethany on Sunday to 10.00 a.m. instead of 10.30 as formerly. The bus last Sunday apparently left all the way from four to twenty people stranded for which in our opinion they should give thanks. The bus driver telephoned to Peterborough from Bethany at 1.25 and was informed that at that time no one was waiting. With driving conditions very difficult and growing steadily worse each hour it was felt that the best thing to do was to get everyone home from Bethany as soon as possible. If an apology to those who waited is in order, you have it, but take it from us, you're in about $1.50 each for bus fare plus the cost of getting your equipment back into shape.

Mr. Jamieson at the C.P.R. office is now receiving reservations for the Banff Ski Tour in February to the Dominion championships Feburary 29th to March 3rd. Fares include return passage to Banff, scene of the 1940 championships, accommodations both on the train and at Banff and range from $75.00 per person up depending on the type of accommodation desired. We suggest that you get in touch with Mr. Jamieson at an early date and he will be pleased to go over all the details with you. Looks like a perfect holiday at a reasonable cost. Think it over, won't you.

This Saturday afternoon at Jackson Park, 2.00 o'clock as usual and we're looking for a big tournout. Snow conditions are about as perfect as they ever will be so let's make hay while the sun shines.

A custodian of the property has been appointed for Bethany in the person of Mr. Herman McGill who, by the way, was on the job for the first time last Sunday and staged a young man-hunt for three gate-crashers Any assistance you can give Mr. McGill in seeing that only those people in good standing with the club use the property will be greatly appreciated.

Our appreciation to the Peterborough Examiner for the ski column they are running for us during the week under the heading P. S. C. This appears at least once if not twice during the week and carries news of importance to all members. Watch for it.

PULEEEZ learn to stem efficiently before you try to run from the top of the hills out at Bethany. As we pointed out in the Examiner, we noticed several people taking it right from the highest point and running wide open all the way before realizing that they have to stop. You know the rest and somebody is going to get seriously hurt. You may be lucky a lot of the time but some day a rock will catch up with you and you'll be doing your skiing in a wheel-chair.

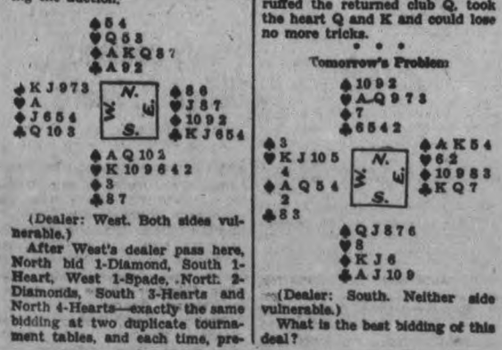
WHO SHOWED STRENGTH?

IF THE KING of your trump suit is in one of your holdings and the queen opposite it, your desire is naturally to get the defenders' ace out of the way without having to sacrifice either of your best honors. In doing that, you protect yourself against losing another trump trick to the jack. So when you play the suit, you hope to lead so that the possessor of the ace will have to play before one of your honors is on the trick. The one most likely to have that ace is the defender who made some kind of strength-showing bid during the auction.



(Dealer: West. Both sides vulnerable.)

After West's dealer pass here, North bid 1-Diamond, South 1-Heart, West 1-Spade, North 2-Diamonds, South 3-Hearts and North 4-Hearts—exactly the same bidding at two duplicate tournament tables, and each time, preserving the coincidence, West led the club 10.

One declarer won the opener with the club A, led the heart 3 to the K and A, and after the club Q won, he ruffed the club K with the heart 2. Ensued the heart Q and three diamonds for two spade discards, but he finally had to lose tricks to the spade K and heart J, so was down.

The other declarer made an overtrick. After winning the first trick with the club A, he ran three diamonds, discarding a club and a spade, led to the spade A, led the heart 2 to the A, was pleased when West took the spade K, ruffed the returned club Q, took the heart Q and K and could lose no more tricks.

Educational Address Given Havelock Group

HAVELOCK, Jan. 19—(ENS). — "Music Appreciation," illustrated by accompanying records, was the subject of an educational talk given by Principal R. W. Goheen of the Havelock High School at the Home and School Association's meeting last evening. The meeting was held in the school building with the president, Mrs. George Rigby in the chair, and with Mrs. V. Brisbin acting as secretary.

A communication was received from the King Edward Home and School Association of Peterborough, regarding a play which they would like to bring here. The local group requested the secretary to write them for a suitable date, and Mrs. W. Nobes and Mrs. D. J. Holdcroft were selected as a committee to deal with this matter.

The Home and School will donate prizes this year to be awarded to the students in Forms 4 and 5 who obtain the highest standing in their final examinations.

Included on the program were two musical selections by six girls from Miss N. Watson's class who sang "South of the Border" and "Scatterbrain."

The parent attendance shield for this month was won by Miss E. Roberts' classroom. The meeting concluded with community singing, with Mrs. D. J. Holdcroft as leader.

Legal Action

WINDSOR, Ont., Jan. 19 (CP).—Legal action was started by the opposition group in Windsor city council today to establish the legality of two special sessions Jan. 4 and 5, attended only by rebel councillors and legality of which was disputed by Mayor David Croll.

The meeting passed a procedure by-law making necessary only a majority vote to upset previous council rulings. The mayor introduced and had passed last December a by-law calling for a two-thirds vote to amend or upset previous by-laws.

Could Not Enlist

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 19—(CP).—The plight of a man who served more than two years as an air force mechanic in the first Great War, and who failed in attempts to re-enlist, was revealed in city court today when William Edward Jewell, 42, of Toronto, was given suspended sentence for vagrancy.

Jewell was arrested yesterday after police received complaints that he was begging from door to door.

Ontario Relief Rolls Show Steady Decline

TORONTO, Jan. 19—(CP)—Relief rolls in various parts of Ontario still continue to decline, according to the weekly report on labor conditions issued today by Hon. Norman Hipel, Minister of Labor. Lack of snow is still holding up logging operations in the north, but in the southern industrial area war orders already received and anticipated are stepping up production.

Belleville reported the new hangar being constructed for the R.C.A. at Trenton is rapidly taking shape, while a large shoe company has taken on a number of employees. Demand for domestics still exceeds supply.

Increased activity is being shown by agricultural implement manufacturers of Brantford, and "all indications point to a continued decrease in unemployment and relief rolls."

A Washington machine company near Guelph has taken on additional help, while textile plants are busy. One plant which has been closed because of overstock of material has reopened.

More Factory Space.

Hamilton reported all lines of industry running smoothly and a number of inquiries for factory space are being received from the United States. "At the same time inquiries were also made as to the possibilities of securing skilled workmen, both male and female."

A large locomotive company at Kingston is increasing its staff with capable mechanics when available. One Gananoque firm has received a substantial war order and is planning to increase its staff.

Kitchener reported a decrease of nearly 33 per cent. in relief rolls during December as compared with a year ago. Metal plants were reported "spotty" but were expecting improvement soon.

In Full Blast.

Steel, textile and shoe plants at London were working full time. A radio firm expects to go into production soon. Planing mills are busy. Recent snow falls are expected to speed up log hauling operations in the North Bay area. Railway lines are busy. Relief rolls show a decrease of 34 per cent. over the corresponding period last year.

Employment conditions in manufacturing industries in the Niagara Falls area continue very steady. Indications points to increased activity in practically all trades.

All Oshawa factories with the exception of one motor concern are working full time. There is demand for domestics.

Not enough snow has fallen in the Port Arthur area as yet to speed up logging operations, although activity had increased over last week.

Textile, paper and miscellaneous plants in the St. Catharines district are busy, while home building, improvements and repairs are keeping building mechanics well employed.

Local industrial conditions remain steady at Sarnia, with movement of freight quite heavy.

Furniture dealers from all parts of the province are attending the furniture show at Stratford and "the manufacturers are very much encouraged." Retail merchants report trade advanced over last year.

Camps Filled.

Lumber camps are filled to capacity in the Sudbury area, although not enough snow has fallen to make hauling good.

Toronto reported gear companies busy. Parts for munition machinery are being made. A carbon company has increased its staff because of war orders.

Franklin's Will Is Amended Second Time To Tempt Borrowers To His Fund

The orginal grant of $5,000 has mushroomed to about $150,000—but Franklin imposed such rigid conditions that there hardly has been a borrower in more than half a century.

As a result the Board of City Trusts, which administers the fund, has amended Franklin's will a second time to make the offer more attractive.

The old philosopher who calculated his gift would grow to $20,000,000 in 200 years, stipulated that a borrower must:—be a "young married artificer" under 25. (An artificer is a skilled workman whose trade requires an extensive period of training.)

Have served a regular indentured apprenticeship in Philadelphia.

Pay five per cent. interest.

Borrow less than $500.

Put up as security a first mortgage upon real estate in Philadelphia.

The Board went to Court, and now—after 150 years—skilled or unskilled workmen, clerks, male

Finnish Fliers Down 11 Of 18 Soviet Bombers

HELSINGFORS, Jan. 19—(AP).—It was reported unofficially today that Finnish pursuit planes shot down 11 of 18 Red bombers which raided Lappeenranta in southern Finland yesterday.

(The Russian communique of last night said 11 Finnish planes had been shot down in aerial combat, but did not disclose the location).

Officially, the Finns reported that the Russians braved the bitterest cold in 25 years to drop 150 bombs yesterday in southern Finland, striking at Hangoe (Hanko) Abo (Turko) Viborg (Viipuri), Rauma, Tammissari and Lappeenranta.

The damage was said to be relatively slight, with only two persons killed, two wounded and two missing.

Finland's great white ally —winter— was reported to have accounted for large numbers of Soviet dead among the land forces.

Finnish patrols said they had seen hundreds of red soldiers frozen to death at their posts on the Karelian Isthmus front alone.

The invaders were said to be inadequately clad for the present record cold which ranged as low as 54 degrees below zero in parts of Finland.

Cold An Easy Death.

A Finnish officer told an Associated press correspondent recently at Viborg (Viipuri) of the silent effectivenes sof the cold against the Reds on the Isthmus front.

"It is the easiest death they could die," he said, "—easier than being machine-gunned and more pleasant than being bombed. They simply fall asleep and after that whatever happens is not their battle."

The Finns have welcomed the coldest weather in 25 years. They have reason to believe that their men at the front are better prepared for it than their foe.

The Finnish soldiers has a superiority in his comparison by his heavy boots, multiple woollen socks, heavy uniform, sheepskin coat and, in many cases, the stamina of an athlete who is accustomed to spending a week-end in a blizzard for the fun of it.

Sunk By Beans

San Francisco, Jan. 19 (AP)

A CARGO of soya beans and not a mine which badly damaged it was the reason the 11,000 ton Danish liner Canada sank off the coast of England.

Captain Carl Knudsen, who was is command of the Canada when it struck a mine near Hull last November, revealed today that chances of taking the Canada into port for repairs were good until 8,000 tons of soya beans were swelled three times their size by sea water.

Even the steel sides of the vessel couldn't stop the swelling.

The plates burst and the Canada sank in shallow water where later it was cut in two when another ship rammed it.

Ask U.S. Delay Seaway, Hold New Survey

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19—(AP)—The United States State Department has been asked to suspend negotiations for a St. Lawrence seaway treaty pending a new study of the project by a House of Representatives committee.

The proposal came yesterday from Representative Martin J. Kennedy, New York Democrat, who introduced a resolution to authorize the House Interstate Commerce Committee to conduct the study and then forward a copy to Secretary of State Cordell Hull with a letter requesting suspension of present negotiations.

A United States mission recently returned from Ottawa reporting "progress" in conversations looking toward a new seaway and power pact.

Meanwhile more than a dozen representatives of organizations opposed to the seaway discussed plans for blocking ratification of any new treaty submitted to the Senate.

May Deciding Month For Finland

30,000 Men, 200 Planes Can Save Her Say British Experts

LONDON, Jan. 20—(CP).—Given 30,000 more fighting men, 200 airplanes and a generous supply of military equipment before May, Finland can save herself from Soviet Russia, British military authorities concluded today.

In line with a growing belief that Finland is the pivot of the entire struggle against aggression in Europe, Great Britain and France have been making substantial contributions to Finland, including planes and military supplies.

The military experts' prediction was founded on close study of the campaign in Northern Finland, where they said one of history's most notable displays of tactical skill had thrown back the Russian invaders.

It was agreed generally that May would bring the ultimate turning point. It is then that the snows melt and the ground becomes firm enough for best use of the Soviet mechanical equipment.

(Military observers in Finland previously have said that a major Russian smash at the Karelian isthmus defences might come as early as March or April. Bitter cold ordinarily continues through March, however).

Florida Freezes, Scores Dead In US Zero Wave

NEW YORK, Jan. 20. —(AP) — More than a score of deaths from exposure in Northern States, ice skating in Southern Louisiana, freezing temperatures in Florida and a bitter chill from the Rockies to the Atlantic emphasized today the intensity and scope of the cold wave in the United States.

At least 95 deaths were attributed directly or indirectly to the frigid weather in 30 states this week.

The cold moderated somewhat in the middlewest and Rocky Mountain region after several days of subzero temperatures. The mercury remained far below the freezing point, however.

Lower temperatures were in prospect for much of the East and South tonight. Little relief was expected until Monday at the earliest. The Pacific coast enjoyed normal temperatures.

There were 28 deaths from exposure in a dozen states. One was reported as far south as South Carolina. Overheated stoves caused hundreds of fires which took at

Norwood Fire Forces Out Two Families

Overheated Pipes In Gas Station Blamed For Fire

NORWOOD, Jan. 20.—(ENS). — Two families were driven from their homes about eight-thirty this morning when a $1,500 fire completely demolished Ennis' service station on Peterborough street and caused approximately $1,000 damage to the post-office building adjoining and owned by Bert Squire.

Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Waddell, living in the second storey over the post-office, were hurriedly rushed from their home when fire from the service station quickly set fire to the window casings and filled the upstairs rooms with smoke.

Started in Service Station

Fire originated in the service station and is believed caused by overheated pipes. Rayfield Ennis, one of the proprietors, said he started a fire in the stove and had left the place five minutes before the building took fire. Left alone in the building was 83-year-old Richard Ennis, grandfather of Rayfield and Melvern Ennis. Shouts of the aged man were heard in a store across the street by Clarence Rogers. Rounding up a number of volunteers, he rushed to the burning building, but flames met them at all doors. All they could save from the service station was the Ennis car.

Norwood volunteer fire department was on the scene in a few minutes, but zero temperatures had frozen up the chemical extinguishers, and they could not be used.

Mail service to Norwood subscribers was held up for hours, while Postmaster Pete Giffen, assisted in preventing spread of the fire into the downstairs section of that building.

Mr. Giffen, who is also an insurance agent, estimated damage by fire and water to the post-office building at $1,000, which is partially covered by insurance. He valued the service station at $1,000, and said loss to household effects and stock in the building would exceed $500. The station was covered by $500 insurance.

Telephone service throughout the village was disrupted for about three hours when one of the main cables on the street, in front of the burning station, was melted into sections from intense heat. Service to about half the subscribers was resumed about ten-thirty, and Bell Telephone repairmen were still working on the severed cables.

Melvern Ennis, one of the proprietors of the station, is in an Oshawa hospital recovering from an operation.

A call was put in for help from the Peterborough Fire Brigade, but when the message was going through the telephone cables broke cuttin gthe connection. Chief Gimblett, however, prepared to be ready to leave, but further word said the fire was under control.

R.A.F. Work

London, Jan. 20 (CP Cable)

THE PRESS today published a vivid Royal Air Force picture of List, the German mine-laying seaplane base in Sylt. The picture is so clear that it is possible to see motorcars and people on the streets.

The wealth of detail obtained for the intelligence officers is shown by anotations indicating a wireless station, seaplane hangars, barracks beside the harbor.

This and other pictures taken by the R.A.F. were published on the front pages of the newspapers, in some cases covering the revelation of Nazi "secrets."

French Patrols In Germany Stir Up Fight

PARIS, Jan. 20.—(CP-Havas)—The French army high command today reported brisk fighting between French and German reconnaissance units in German territory.

This morning's official communique reported:

"There was a lively engagement between reconnaissance elements in the Blies region, in German territory.

"An enemy pursuit plane was shot down within our lines on Jan. 19."

The communique contained the first report of fighting in German territory since the middle of October when the French forces evacuated positions taken up on Reich soil at the beginnig of the war and destroyed the three bridgeheads on the Rhine.

The Blies region is in the centre of the Rhine-Moselle front. The Blies River joins the Saar River in the vicinity of Sarreguemines on the frontier.

Admit Plane Lost.

BERLIN, Jan. 20 — (AP). — The German high command's communique to-day said:

"Between the Moselle and the Palatinate Forest, a scouting group had a skirmish with a French reconnoitring force and took several prisoners.

"The air force conducted reconnaissance flights against Great Britain and France. During border patrol flights, air fights ensued over the French front lines. One German plane was lost.

"Scattered enemy planes in the night of January 19-20 again entered north-west Germany.

King Cancels Tweed $15,000 Job

Holds Expenditure In Wartime Is Not Warranted

OTTAWA, Jan. 20 (CP) — The good burghers of Tweed, Ont., who don't want a new post office, have won their point. They don't have to have one.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King made this known Friday when, in a letter to C. A. Cameron, Liberal member of parliament for Hastings South, he said it had been decided not to proceed with erection of a new post office in Tweed.

At the same time, it was learned in authoritative circles that the contract for the $234,360 Postoffice at Oshawa, let this week, will not be approved by the Cabinet.

Apparently from now on, for the duration of the war, no public buildings or public works not essential to war effort, will be built. There will be no Postoffices in next year's estimates, and no revotes of old estimates.

No Peterborough Building?

Peterborough will lose the proposed $250,000 public building, and Montreal is almost certain not to get the two-wing $500,000 addition to the Terminal Postoffice. Tenders were to have been called in a month.

The Village of Ridgeway need have no fears of getting the $15,000 Postoffice voted last year. In answer to the complaint of a Ridgeway business man published in The Globe and Mail Friday morning, an official stated today that contracts had not yet been called, and would not now be called.

Unneeded Outlay in War.

At a special meeting last Friday the village councillors of Tweed protested the proposed construction of a new post office as unnecessary and contrary to the Government's plan of curbing unneeded expenditure in wartime. The building was to cost $15,000.

In his letter, Mr. Mackenzie King told Mr. Cameron that both he and his cabinet colleagues concurred in the decision to drop the proposed

No War Illusions In Britain Says Halifax

LEEDS, Jan. 20.—(AP Via Radio) —Viscount Halifax, secretary for foreign affairs, today said: Britain is "under no illusion about the war" nor did she underestimate the strength of the enemy."

"To ensure victory we must command all the energy at our command," Lord Halifax said in a speech broadcast across the Atlantic.

"A dictator enjoys great initial advantages. His policies can be made in great secrecy. The people have no part in that policy. They cannot place themselves in opposition to it and therefore the actions of a dictator appear to the outside world as he decision of a single mind."

The People's AApproval

"But when trouble comes the fact that the people approve carries with it the thought that it is the overwhelming will of the people."

His audience in town hall applauded at these words.

The troubles of war, he went on, will be borne more easily by the man "who is in the war from his own convictions and not through coercion."

It was desirable, Lord Halifax said, that the fullest information on the nation's foreign policy will be available.

"I became foreign secretary at the end of February, 1938, and within a fortnight the German army marched into Austria. Two months later there was a crisis over the alleged preparations of Germany to attack Czecho-Slovakia."

"The Munich settlement gave Germany all that she immediately wanted. In applying that agreement I think it is true to say that every contentious matter was settled in Germany's favor. Yet it became apparent at once that Herr Hitler was dissatisfied. In private he inveighed against England and against his advisers who favored peace."

Italians Vote 542 Millions To Bolster Their Army For Dangers Of Coming War

Rome To Ignore Balkan Entente Conference Along With Hungary, Bulgaria To Avoid Any Contact With French Influence

ROME, Jan. 20. —(AP) — Premier Mussolini's Government today approved Italy's biggest military budget since the first Great War to meet possible dangers growing out of the current war during the coming year.

The cabinet authorized the expenditure of 10,846,000,000 lire (about $542,000,000) for military purposes in the fiscal year beginning next July 1.

The enlarged military expenditures represented an actual increase of about $75,000,000 over the current military budget, which has been progressively increased by emergency appropriations to about $469,563,-200.

The total 1940-41 budget, which the cabinet approved, was set at 34,896,000,000 lire (about $1,745,000,-000), with a deficit of about 6,000,-000,000 lire ($300,000,000).

Must Be Ready.

A cabinet statement said the large arms appropriations for the army, navy and air force were designed to "meet the undeniable necessity of placing the armed forces in a condition which will assure the greatest efficiency for any event."

This efficiency would be attained, the announcement said, "by a series of important measures which will be gradually put into effect."

The cabinet decide dto issue nine-year five per cent bonds to meet the budget deficit and retire a previous issue of nine-year bonds which falls due this year.

Government leaders foresaw the possibility that "exceptional requirements of the international situation" might necessitate additioanal emergency appropriations during the budget year. Such expenses, they said, would be met by "appropriate means."

Avoid Belgrade Meet.

Italy, a high authority said, will be absent from the Balkan Entent Conference at Belgrade February 2, not even sending an observer, as some had expected her to do.

The Italian decision, along with reports that Hungary and Bulgaria also would refrain from sending observers, has narrowed the meeting's scope, in the view of diplomatic circles.

Italy's desire to avoid any contact with the entente of Rumania, Yugoslavia, Turkey and Greece, which long has been considered as under French tutelage, was understood to be the reason for Rome's hands-off attitude.

Finn Battalion Annihilated Moscow Claims

MOSCOW, Jan. 20. —(AP) —The Russian army said today it had "annihilated" a Finnish battalion on the north side of Lake Ladoga and inflicted "numerous casualties" on the enemy on the Karelian Isthmus.

"In the Petrozavodsk direction, in the area of Kitela, our reconnoitring group annihilated an enemy battalion which left 26 machine guns on the spot."

The report claimed "the enemy suffered numerous casualties" in clashes of advanced units on the Isthmus front. It said Soviet bombers raided military objectives in a number of areas.

(The Finns said fighting continued on the Salla front where Finnish forces and Swedish volunteer airmen were reported harassing 40,-000 Russians in retreat around Karkajaervi. The Finnish communique reported the capture of "a few enemy positions" northeast of Lake Lodoga. Unofficial Finnish sources estimated the Russians had lost 204 planes and 434 tanks and armored cars during the seven weeks of the war).

The Soviet soldier, meanwhile, has been ordered into intense ski training for warfare on the snows, war commissar Klementi Voroshiloff said in the newspaper "On Guard."

"Trainees must not only learn how to fire under complicated conditions but also be able to solve independently any important problem in battle," he wrote.

Raging Blizzard Burying All Western Ontario

TORONTO, Jan. 20.—Parts of northern and south western Ontario reported the worst blizzard of the winter today while a high wind generally swept the southern part of the province accompanied by snow. Gales and continued cold temperatures with occasional snow was forecast for tomorrow.

A fierce storm raged today in the Owen Sound area of Georgian Bay and in North Bay district. At Owen Sound snowploughs battled the worst snow storm in recent years, now in its third day, and practically all concession and county roads are blocked.

North Bay district citizens arose early in an attempt to dig themselves out from deep drifts due to high winds. Temperatures at both North Bay and Owen Sound hovered at zero.

Norway, Denmark Ready To Fight To Maintain Their Independence

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 20. —(AP)— Declarations of Norway and Denmark that they are prepared to defend their independence were regarded widely today as new evidence of Scandinavian solidarity.

Observers compared both, in tone at least, with the statement of Swedish Premier Per Albin Hasson Thursday that "the idea of Northern collaboration is by no means shipwrecked."

The lower house of the Danish parliament yesterday voted unanimously that Denmark's neutrality "must be maintained" 'and her independence defended.

The pronouncement was intended partly to correct impressions left abroad by Premier Thovald Stauning, who had said in a New Year's broadcast Denmark might be unwilling to offer armed resistence in the event of attack.

The Danish stand was echoed in Norway by Prime Minister Johan Nygaardsvold, who told the Norwegian parliament any attacks on that nation would be resisted.

The Danish press, with one voice, approved parliament's vote. Some urged that the Government take steps to show it was in earnest.

"It was high time that the lower house was saying something," the newspaper National Tidende declared. "It was impossible to maintain an official Danish silence, especially after what happened in the North.

Something More Than Ink.

"The real value of the resolution will be seen from what measures are taken now. The resolution must convert itself into something more tangible than the ink with which the parliament paper is printed."

The Berlingske Tidende commented that no country can be defended "with words alone' and declared "good intention will not do it either."

"The resolution yesterday," it said, "will strengthen confidence and the expectation that the government and parliament will understand and deal according to the demands of the time and the needs of the country."

Statistical evidence indicated the extent of private Swedish aid to Finland, including contributions of 62,600,000 kronor ($15,356,000) by Swedish industry and of the equivalent of almost $10,000,000 by popular subscriptions.

Gifts of clothes, food, medicines and other necessities have totalled 2,000 tons so far. August Lindberg, president of the central organization of Swedish trade unions, returning from a survey of Finland, announced Swedish workers would be sent as quickly as possible to help in Finnish industry.

The war was disclosed, meanwhile, to have cost Scandinavia two more neutral merchant ships. They were the 3,685-ton Swedish steamship Pajalla and the 1,831-ton Danish freighter Canadian Reefer. Both were reported sunk by submarines Thursday.

Belmont Hunters Use Axe When Comes To Slaying Peterboro's Bad Wolves

Sound the Clarion call to all wolf hunters in the Apsley district to assemble at once and switch their base of operations to Belmont township, for evidently the wolf hunt was too well publicized and the fleet footed marauders hied to safer hunting grounds—that is to Belmont township.

And now to cap the chain of events the doughty army of marksmen headed by Wing Commander Kingan have been scooped—or perhaps robbed would be a better word for Ray Barrons of Cordova Mines killed a big timber wolf with an axe a short distance from the eastern village this morning.

According to all rules of the game Mr. Barrons is justified in laying claim to the large medallion, we mean the brass maple leaf which is indicative of supremacy in the realm of wolf hunting and which every man in the Apsley contingent is hoping to win.

The wolf which was killed was first wounded in the leg by Murray Barrons who then returned to the village for assistance and a crew headed by Murray and his brother Ray took up the trail of the wolf. They cornered the animal and Ray who was carrying an axe and not a rifle delivered the coup de grace — to further humiliate the Peterborough hunters who are carrying every type of armament from 22's to anti-tank guns—or so we have been told.

The wolf while large and rangy was reported to be rather thin, due perhaps to the speedy retreat which it beat from the wilds of the north where Herb Mason et al lurked with cocked rifles and cold feet.

The Cordova district hunters are rather modest about their achievement, for that is the way things are done down east. Mr. Barrons reported rather reluctantly of course that a child could kill a wolf with a rifle but to add a bit of zest to the adventure he switched to the axe.

According to reliable reports three staff reporters and three staff news photographers have been warming their toes at the big wood stove in Brown's Store at Apsley every night after the

OTTAWA, Jan. 20. — (CP) — Several Canadian soldiers in Aldershot, England, with the first division of the Canadian Active Service Force spoke to the folks back home in Canada last night.

Their voices were carried across the sea by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation though facilities of the British Broadcasting Corporation and transmitted over the national network.

The names of the Canadian soldiers were announced, but their regiments and their home towns were not divulged. Capt. James S. P. Armstrong, who introduced five other Canadian soldiers, said the Dominion troops had received a hearty welcome upon their arrival in the United Kingdom, and that it was common for Britons to stop Canadian soldiers on the street and chat with them.

Many who invited the Canadians to their homes for week-end visits. "England has not forgotten the heroic deeds of the Canadians in the first Great War," said Captain Armstrong. The officer said he found the English people in high spirits and confident of ultimate victory in this war.

Canadian soldiers were in need of flashlights to light their way around at night in a world cast into stygian darkness by blackouts, Private David McIntyre, a Scot 13 years in Canada, said. Flashlights were scarce in the old country, he said.

Speaking in French to his compatriots in Quebec, Private Gerard Pettigrew said he liked the English girls, who, however, were "no better than Canadian girls."

Hint Hunt Is Off For Slaveship With 300 Britons

MONTEVIDEO, Jan. 20.—(AP).—A London announcement that 300 British seamen had been prisoners under "slaveship' conditions on a mysterious auxiliary to the German pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee led naval sources here to-day to believe that the Royal Navy had abandoned a wide hunt for the vessel.

British officials reported the ship might have reached a German port, and naval sources here said it probably had found a safe haven.

These sources named the ship as the "Altmark," built secretly by Germany as a combination raider, supply ship and floating prison expressly to accompany pocket battleships.

They said it is of about 12,000 gross tons, has three masked six-inch guns, and an anti-aircraft gun, and is capable of 25 knots. It roamed three oceans with the Ad-

U.S. Isolationist Sen. Borah Passes At 74

The 74-year-old Idaho Republican, known in the Senate as an isolationist in personal as well as international affairs, died from a cerebral hemorrahage.

Leader of successful battles against United States participation in the League of Nations and the World Court at the Hague, Borah, "the great oppositionist," was widely mourned.

President Roosevelt, whose foreign policies often brought Borah's denunciation in the Senate, declared that "we shall miss him and mourn him and long remember the superb courage which was his."

A state funeral in the Chamber where Borah sat for 33 years was tentatively scheduled for Sunday or Monday.

Borah was known among his colleagues as an isolationist on questions of foreign policy. But he constantly reiterated that his views sprang from a basic desire to keep the United States out of war.

The Senator, called for years "The Lion of Idaho," fought many a lost cause but was the winner of some.

Fought F.D.R.'s Neutrality Act

He was a leader in the fight against Mr. Roosevelt's recently-enacted neutrality program which barred United States shipping from combat areas but allowed sale of arms to belligerents on a "cash and carry" basis.

Left unfinished by his death was a speech he had planned to make

Wolves Are Still Free To Roam Wilds Of Northern Peterborough

By JACK PETERSON
Examiner Staff Reporter

APSLEY, Jan. 19.—Today is the day. Charlie Kingan's claim that men could come up here and bag wolves within three days stands or fall's today. Charlie had two strikes against him last night when a group of five hunters came in after an all-day search. They came back with their rifle barrels nearly as clean as when they had set out early in the morning. That makes two days without a wolf and Charlie was visibly nervous when the party set out again this morning.

For today will write the end of this hunt, and perhaps, of any future similar hunts in this district. And that will be just too bad in the opinion of Apsley folk who are certain there are wolves about.

Only Five Hunters

The Apsley people have taken a bit of a beating on the hunt. Fifteen guides were warned to hold themselves in readiness, hotels and all homes were canvassed for accommodation, in anticipation of great crowds of sportsmen. Only two turned up the first day and the additional three of the second hauled freight as soon as they had come out of the bush. Even if a greater number should turn up for Saturday's hunt, residents won't benefit much because they'll be leaving soon after nightfall.

The people about here aren't complaining about that part of it. They'd lay their disappointment to the difficulties of pioneering if only they were sure the wolf hunt would be an annual event, for they feel certain wolves can be shot in future. Stewart Brown has a mounted wolf head to prove his statement—it was shot within five miles of the village.

Beautiful Country.

Yesterday's hunt was one of those things participants will remember long after they've forgotten whether any wolves were bagged. Never had their country unfolded for them so much of her beauty. The forest was like a grand cathedral, soft shadows tracing long fingers across new-fallen snow.

And to cap it all came Nature's proudest sight. Crouched about a noonday fire on the shore of frozen lake they looked up to see a great buck racing, all unseeing, across the ice to them, proud in his superb beauty and freedom.

When he would have passed them by of one accord they shouted sharply. He stopped dead in his tracks, scarcely a stone's throw away and slowly turned his great head and stared, symbol of unchallenged freedom in a world of fetters. Half a minute he stood there while they crouched motionless, then bounded off where hunting humans were not.

Deer tracks they saw aplenty, but never a wolf. They're starting out again to-day, Charlie and Herb Mason, with fading hopes. The saga of the wolf hunt will end with their return to-night—a success or a failure.

Heard Three Shots.

Three shots rang out to break the majestic silence of the winter woods in Anstruther Township during the day and gave Charlie Kingan a shivering attack of buck fever—or, more explicitly, wolf fever. He grasped his loose rifle firmly in his

War Loan Over By 60 Per Cent

OTTAWA, Jan. 20—(CP).—Canadians oversubscribed the $200,000,000 war loan by 60 per cent. in five days, contributing $321,276,850 in cash subscriptions which Finance Minister Ralston said "has exceeded my highest expectations."

The Bank of Canada announced the total on the Minister's behalf last night after the books closed. The loan went on sale last Monday and by Tuesday night was 25 per cent. oversubscribed. Subscriptions continued to pour in for the next three days.

Conversion subscriptions totalling $53,300,000 also were received and $50,000,000 has been allotted, making the total of the first war loan $250,000,000. Bonds turned in for conversion were some of the $115,000,000 three per cent. Dominion of Canada bonds due next March 1. Most of this issue already is held by the Bank of Canada but some of it was in private hands and it was these bonds which were converted.

Col. Ralston said the response to the 12-year, 3¼ per cent. loan "will be heard and unmistakeably understood the world over, and particularly by our allies and by our enemies."

But Charlie, and Herb Mason, too, weer doomed to disappointment. The three shots boomed out and then utter quiet fell. No wounded or fleeing wolf made his appearance.

There was a certain amount of scepticism about Apsley last night as to the significance of those shots. For it turned out later that they had been fired by a couple of the hunting party's guides.

"A porcupine—we missed," was the laconic communique issued by the guides last night. Reporters and hunters alike displayed cynicism. "Who ever heard of a porcupine with antlers?" queried Herb Mason.

Charlie Kingan's disappointment would have been even greater had he seen Tom Curvin's bold offer to up the bounty reward by five dollars.

For when he did see that offer, Charlie held his wrath in check with an effort and girded himself for to-day's hunt. It's now or never, he intimated as he set out to-day. "I'm going to be a disappointed man if I don't cost Tom Curvin five dollars."

construction of the new public building in Tweed as "unwise" in view of the "change" in attitude of the village council and wartime conditions."

He recalled that the original request for the building had been put forward because "of my feeling that the post office facilities were quite inadequate and that the public would be better served by a larger and more commodious building."

However, said Mr. Cameron, in view of difficulties that sprang up in Tweed in the choosing of a site and because "certain local political interests felt it to their advantage to create differences," he felt justified, since the outbreak of war, in saying he would approve the dropping of the project.

Announcement from Ottawa that the federal government was shelving for the duration of the war the plans for a new customs-postal building in Peterborough did not surprise Mayor Hamilton and members of the fire, water and light committee in session at the city hall last night.

"I'm not at all surprised," Alderman Dutton commented.

"Neither am I," said Alderman McIntyre.

"We have to accept it," was Alderman Wilson's remark in the same spirit as the rough hand of war once more cuffed the proposed federal building into the discard indefinitely.

"We are willing to accept this keen disappointment as a sacrifice by Peterborough to the successful prosecution of the war," Mayor Hamilton stated to the Examiner. "I am confident it will be accepted by Peterborough citizens in this spirit as loyal Canadians."

His Worship said that fate seemed determined to prevent this city from obtaining a government building which had been undertaken prior to the Great War when the property at George and Sherbrooke streets was bought during the term of J. H. Burnham as member of parliament.

"We have waited more than twenty-six years in expectation, and now, when plans are completed again, war has interfered. However, I am of the opinion that the Prime Minister and his cabinet have reached the proper decision when they rule that Federal buildings can wait while Canada aids her allies in winning this war."

OTTAWA, Jan. 20 — (CP). — Estimates for the forthcoming fiscal year are being pared down to bare necessities, it was learned to-day, and many projects for which money was voted at the last regular session of Parliament will not be proceeded with.

No official confirmation could be obtained today of reports that certain projects in Ontario and Quebec, notably the promised $250,000 public building in Peterborough, would be abandoned.

Premier Edouard Daladier of France and Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain beam a couple of large smiles as they emerge from a meeting of the supreme Franco-British Council in Paris recently. Compulsory Voting Law With 2 Penalties Proposed For Ontario By Liberal M.L.A.; Hepburn Excuses Action Of 9 Party Bolters

TORONTO, Jan. 20.—(CP). — Compulsory voting in elections "would do away with a certain amount of skullduggery," Charles Fletcher (Lib. Essex South) said in the Ontario Legislature yesterday as he resumed the Throne speech debate.

Mr. Fletcher said compulsory voting proved its worth in other places. He advocated two penalties for the voter failing to vote unless he or she could show reason for unavoidable absence from the polls. The two penalties would be loss of the franchise for a limited period and a small fine.

Compulsory carrying of liability insurance by owners of motor cars was also advocated by Mr. Fletcher. He said it was unjust that a motor car's victims often couldn't recover for injuries they suffered.

The tobacco companies received all the benefit from the production control program in Ontario, said Mr. Fletcher The tobacco marketing board set a low basic price to discourage expansion of tobacco acreage. Retail tobacco prices were not decreased, however, and corporation profits were increased. For the tobacco in a small package of cigarettes the farmer got half a cent or less.

Without recorded division the Legislature passed second reading of the Local Government Extension Act, designed as a measure of municipal economy for war time.

Whereas statutes now provide that municipalities may decide by vote to have two-year terms for councillors and others, the bill approved in principle today and now standing for committee stage, provides that the two-year term will be standard in the province and municipalities opposed to it will have to vote themselves out of its provisions.

The measure, sponsored by Hon. Eric Cross, minister of municipal affairs ,will become effective Feb. 1, 1941, and will automatically provide for a one-year term extension for those in municipal office at that time, unless the municipality has voted against the extension.

The proposal, in its present stage, represents a major retreat on government policy, it having been announced that the two-year term would be mandatory for municipalities.

Conservative Leader George Drew asked that the bill be laid over for further consideration. Arthur Roebuck, former attorney general, opposed it outright as a sapping of democracy.

Mr. Cross said he was confident the bill would result in strong and efficient councils and in substantial economies. The economies would be appreciated by the municipalities as the strain of war was felt.

Col. Drew contended the 'unicipal Act as it now stoou was adequate for the purposes of the Bill. Any municipality could decide to have the two-year term. The minister, under the pressure he had scorned, had brought forth an innocuous Act.

Mr. Roebuck said he was opposed to anything to weaken the control of the electors over those they elected to office. Municipal councillors, in office for two years, at the start of their terms might gamble on the short memory of the electors and do things they wouldn't do if an election was a year nearer.

"This measure is symptomatic of a tendency I don't like," he said.

ONTARIO

PURSUANT TO the provisions of The Mining Tax Act (Chap. 28, R.S.O. 1937), the following list is published of mining locations, mining claims, and mining rights, in respect of which taxes imposed by the said Act are more than two years in default, and notice is hereby given that unless the amount due as shown on the said list shall have been paid on or before June 30th, 1940, the property in respect of which the taxes so remain unpaid shall on the day following the above date become forfeited to and revested in the Crown.

In the arrangement of the list, lands are given in the judicial district in which they are situated, commencing from the west, and in each district the lots in townships are placed first and in alphabetical order, according to the townships; then follow the locations or claims not originally in surveyed territory, also alphabetically arranged and in sequence. Owners of property thus advertised are advised that extra costs are incurred if payment is delayed beyond February 29, 1940, as the Act requires an additional notice to owners of claims on which the taxes have not been paid by this time for which there is a statutory charge.

Communications regarding this matter should be addressed to A. C. Young, Mine Assessor, Department of Mines, Parliament Buildings, Toronto.

2 Neutralities Laid To Swiss

BERNE, Jan. 20—(AP).—A German newspaper attack, charging a double standard in Swiss neutrality, caused concern in some quarters today that Germany might be planning a propaganda against Switzerland.

Some observers considered it a possible "preparation for the springtime," contending the Nazi high command wants to keep the Allies guessing where it plans to strike.

DNB quoted the Berlin newspaper Berliner Boersen-Zeitung, which charged that Switzerland had banned the pro-Nazi Neue Basler Zeitung of Basel "for having too much understanding of the German viewpoint," but tolerated other Swiss newspapers "completely in accord with the British and French desire to destroy German unity."

The German agency's attack in its Swiss service brought a flood of critical comments from the Swiss press.

The Courrier de Geneve, one of the newspapers cited by the Berlin article, accused the Boersen-Zeitung of "trying to muzzle the Swiss press by threats."

The Lucerne Vaterland said "We don't write to please the Boersen Zeitung for that would be above the ability of an honest, straightforward Swiss paper."

to carry out his foreign policy through direct diplomatic contact with individual capitals.

Italy, while arming for the possibility of war, is expected in foreign circles to avoid as long as possible any complications that might involve her directly, or indirectly, in fighting.

Wake Italy Up.

On the other hand, Ettore Muti, Fascist party general secretary, warned Italians Wednesday they must be ready to take up arms at any moment. This was intended, many diplomats believed, to shake people out of the feeling that Italy, while making money from the war's trade opportunities, had escaped its dangers.

Army leaves are expected to terminate by April, so the present force of some 800,000 men will be back to more than 1,000,000, perhaps 1,500,000. New guns, tanks and airplanes will be ready. Stocks of supplies will be stored up.

Premier Mussolini told Adolf Hitler, through their foreign ministers last May, that Italy would need three years to arm herself to the limit. That has been cut drastically since the outbreak of the war in September, which imperilled Italy through her ally, Germany.

Huron County Buried.

At Stratford, a raging westerly wind that brought with it one of the worst blizzards in recent years hit Huron County today, causing drifts to fill in provincial and county roads as quickly as ploughs could open them, and leaving roads in the northern part of Huron County virtually blocked. Some of the roads in the southern part of the county were navigable, but so heavy that motorists were advised to leave their cars at home.

While Perth County escaped the full blast of the storm roads in this immediate district were reported by Department of Highways and county road officials as being "very heavy."

Canadian National Railway officials here reported that trains in the northern section of this division were running as much as 20 minutes late as the west wind and the blizzard made tracks heavy. Snowploughs worked all last night north from Goderich and in the Kincardine, Wiarton, Owen Sound, and Southampton districts.

Scores of motorists were snowbound in the Huron district and many of them spent the night in farm homes as the storm continued unabated.

The Department of Highways office here reported that ploughs were working north from Goderich and between Wingham and Teeswater, where a terrific storm was reported blowing in full force.

'39 Farm Revenue Best Since 1930

OTTAWA, Jan. 20.—(CP)—Canadian farmers obtained gross value of $634,130,000 for their labors on field crops in 1939, the highest since 1930 when the valuation was $662,040,900, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reports.

In the third estimate of the 1939 crop, announced yesterday, the Bureau said the gross value of field crops was $84,061,000 more than in 1938.

Value of the 1939 wheat crop, now estimated at 489,623,000 bushels, was placed at $252,779,000, an increase of $41,514,000 from the previous year. The effect of increased wheat production on the value of the crop was offset partly by lower farm prices.

Coarse grain prices improved with the oat crop valued at $105,963,000, an increase of $16,626,000; barley at $33,147,000, an increase of $4,701,000; rye at $5,766,000 an increase of $2,619,000.

All other coarse grains showed increases and the potato crop jumped from $33,093,000 in 1938 to $39,040,000 in 1939. The yield was slightly higher than the year before, being 70 hundred weight an acre.

The sugar beet crop was placed at 605,000 tons with a value of $3,673,000, which was $200,000 ahead of the previous year.

The wheat production estimate was offset somewhat by reduction in estimates of spring wheat in Quebec and the maritimes and a drop in fall wheat estimates in Ontario.

The subject of the debate was: Resolved that young people of 25 years ago enjoyed life more than the young people of today. The affirmative was upheld by Miss Emily Teasdale and Doris Savigny, the negative by Miss Gertie Thompson and Margaret Chambers. The judges were Rev. E. Rowland, Lynn Stewart and W. Dawson. The points were well given and although it was a very even argument the judges gave their decision in favor of the affirmative.

The meeting closed with a hymn and Mizpah Benediction.

The captain of the Admiral Graf Spee destroyed his ship Dec. 17 as British warships lurked outside the port.

Informed persons in Montevideo said the Altmark is one of two German naval units which British vessels had been hunting in the South Atlantic, and that they believed the second is a cruiser or armed raider which was in the Pacific when the Admiral Graf Spee met disaster here. This was not confirmed, however, and the British announcement mentioned only one unidentified ship, described as a tanker.

It said the 300 captured merchant seamen were forced to live in filth and vermin, with insufficient food and only a quart of water allowed each man daily for drinking and washing.

Quilting Is Held By Havelock WA

HAVELOCK, Jan. 20. —(ENS) — The Women's Association of the Havelock United Church following the same procedure as last year have divided their membership into three separate working groups, under different leaders, which meet on the first and third Thursday of each month at the members homes. The whole society meets as a united body once every three months in the church basement to report upon their various activities.

Mrs. Thomas Easterbrook Heads the W. A. for 1940 as its president with Mrs. A. Anderson as vice-president and Mrs. A. C. Price as secretary. Miss E. Wright is secretary of the flowers and cheer committee, while the group leaders are, (east end) Mrs. L. Weese; (centre), Mrs. G. Denike; (west) Mrs. George Rigby. The three groups met individually this Wednesday afternoon.

The west end group assembled at the home of Mrs. Bernard Smith where Mrs. Rigby the leader took charge. She is assisted by Miss Edna Haig with Mrs. W. Nobes as secretary-treasurer. The twelve ladies present quilted during the afternoon, and completed plans for a home-baking sale to be held Saturday.

This group will hold a social evening on Friday, January 26th at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Haig, for their members and husbands or friend. The next meeting will be held on February 7 at Mrs. John Ronald's.

Ten members of the central group, under Mrs. Denike's leadership, met at the home of Mrs. Bruce Post, when work on a "crazy quilt" was commenced. They will hold a "valentine" tea" on February 14 at the home of Mrs. A. McLauchlin. Mrs. Denike is secretary-treasurer. The next meeting will be held at Mrs. E. Chiles.

Despite the extreme cold weather, the east group's meeting at the home of Mrs. H. Hoard was exceptionally well attended, sixteen members being present. Mrs. L. Weese the leader has not as yet selected her assistant, and Miss E. Wright is acting as secretary. A quilt was completed during the afternoon and plans made to hold a bake sale on February 10 at Denike's drug store.

Refreshments were served by the lunch committees of all three groups and a most enjoyable social period spent.

CHRIST AND ZEBEDEE'S CHILDREN
"While we were yet sinners Christ died for us." Romans 5:8

Judas Is Claimed Ardent Nationalist

Judas is one of the enigmas of the New Testament. Why did he join the apostlic group?

Did Jesus know the kind of man he was from their first interview? These and other questions occur at even a surface acquaintance with the record of Judas.

A small minority of scholars have held that Judas was a man of good motives. He was an ardent nationalists who joined himself to Jesus because of His messianic sayings. He expected that Jesus would lead the Jewish people out of their slough of despond and emancipate them from the hated Roman Empire into national freedom. Jesus however moved too slowly and at times seemed morbid over an approaching sacrifice of Himself at Jerusalem. Judas became inpatient, and decided to bring matters to a head. He would compel Jesus to make the plunge. We went to the high priests because he was impatient, and for no other reason. He was a gambler, took the gambler's chance and lost. It is well known that gamblers have strong hearts. Judas they say had no intention of selling Jesus into death, he wanted to awaken Him to life. The theory implies that the judgment of Judas was at fault, but that he had no evil intent. De Quincey writes up this story of Judas and his charming literary style has given it a fascination out of all proportion to its probability. The question arises however, does this theory square with the facts of the New Testament?

Did Judas do evil deeds with a good motive? will be the title of the address in St. Andrew's Church on next Sunday night.

Presentation To William Atkinson

HALL'S BRIDGE, Jan. 20—(ENS)—The many friends and acquaintances of William Atkinson of Pittsburg, Penn., gathered in the True Blue Hall at Hall's Bridge on Friday evening to enjoy a social hour in his honor and to present him with gifts as a small token of their thanks for his untiring efforts in the field of sports in the village.

Sam Wood presented him with a handsome club-bag, the gift of the community, and Miss Leona Shearer presented him with a lovely scarf from the girls' ball team.

Mr. Atkinson was completely taken by surprise, but thanked everyone in a short speech, after which "For he's a jolly good fellow" was sung.

The evening was spent in games, which were entered into heartily by both young and old. A delightful lunch was then served by the ladies of the community.

Women's Institute

The Hall's Bridge branch of the Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. S. Wood n Tuesday evening last, the president, Mrs. W. Shearer in the chair, and 13 ladies present. A balance of $30.00 was reported in hand. Old business was disposed of and new activities planned. Most of the members are busily engaged as members of the Hall's Bridge Women's Knitting Guild on knitting socks and scarves to add to the comfort of our soldiers and sailors.

The topic for the month was "Canadianization," with Mrs. Wood convener, followed by a paper "Canadian Products" by Mrs. A. Bennett. A musical contest to test the ladies' knowledge of old and modern songs, a paper "Emigration and Immigration, contest "Notable Characters in History." The hostess and her assistants served lunch.

Mrs. N. Harris of North Smith spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Herman Windover.

Mrs. Clare McNevin of Lindsay spent the week-end at Hall's Bridge with relatives.

Millbrook Circle Plans To Raise $55

MILLBROOK, Jan. 20—(ENS)—Mrs. A. L. Siscoe extended the hospitality of the parsonage for the initial meeting of the Golden Links Mission Circle for the new year, the president, Mrs. E. J. Powell, taking the chair for the first time since her election to the office.

Miss E. L. Hetherington offered prayer, and the appointment of a Christian stewardship secretary was considered, Mrs. J. Johnson being elected to this position and presenting some material relative to the subject. Jean Burnham and Phyllis Kidd will write the letter this month to a former active member, Miss Margaret Luxon, incapacitated through illness of long duration.

A letter from Mrs. J. R. Trumpour gave the information that this year's allocation will be $55.00, and the treasurer reported $53.55 raised during 1939. "The World Outlook for Jesus" was the worship theme, the president reading the poem, and the Bible lessons being read by Leitha Edworthy and Phyllis Kidd.

Following the offering, the hymn, "We Give Thee but Thine Own" was sung softly, and the study book, "Freedom," was taken up by Jean Burnham, festivals and holidays, with marriage customs in India covering the material of the chapter.

Besides being a specialist in Young People's work he is a very acceptable speaker and one of America's outstanding song leaders. The Saturday night meeting will be held at 8 o'clock, and Sunday gatherings at 11 a.m., 3.15 p.m., and 7 p.m. Besides the above Senior gatherings he will visit the Young People's meetings which take place prior to the Senior gatherings. Biblical Thoughts For The Shut-Ins By Rev. E. R. James

THE FIRST CHRISTIAN MARTYR

They stoned Stephen, calling upon God, and saying, Lord Jesus, receive my spirit.—Acts 7:59.

This is the account of the death of the first Christian martyr. Do you see anything startling about it? Having been brought up in the Christian atmosphere you take it for granted that the dying Christian should commend his soul into the Hands of the Lord Jesus.

But remember that Stephen is a Jew. Every devout Jew was trained from boyhood to say this creed daily: "Hear, O Israel, the Lord thy God is one Lord." Moreover he was taught to offer it with his dying breath. It was to be his dying prayer. Stephen, a Jew, devout and religious, dies with the prayer: "Lord Jesus, receive my spirit." He is praying to a man apparently. This is the horror which fills the mind of Saul of Tarsus; an official representative of the Sanhedrim to see that the sentence of death was duly carried out.

Saul has been trained from boyhood in the strictest sect of the Pharisees. He has sat at the feet of Gamaliel, one of the most renowned theological teachers of that age. Perhaps Gamaliel looked upon Saul as one of his most promising pupils. Saul seems to have held a very high position in the gift of Sanhedrim, the highest Jewish court.

Moreover Tarsus was famed for its university and very probably Saul had studied Latin and Greek philosophy in his home city. You can imagine his horrow that a Jew with his dying breath should pray to a man, Jesus of Nazareth, crucified under Pontius Pilate. He determines to wipe out this most awful heresy creeping into the Jewish Church. In the mind of Saul Stephen's prayer is a denial of the unity of the Godhead: "Hear, O Israel, the Lord thy God is one Lord."

Now you can understand why it is written: "As for Saul, he made havoc of the Church, entering into every house, and haling men and women, committed them to prison." He felt it was his duty to destroy this most horrible heresy and teaching that a man should pray with his dying breath to a Man, Jesus, calling Him Lord—the title of Jehovah. Stephen was giving Jesus of Nazareth the value of God.

On the other hand Stephen was a Jew who had lived outside of Palestine. The strict Jerusalem Jew called such a man a Grecian Jew. He was a Jew who had studied very probably at the great university of Alexandria, famous for its philosophical teaching, which made a great appeal to the clever Jewish men of that day.

This man has been converted to believe that Jesus is indeed the Christ, the Anointed of God, the Son of God in a very mysterious sense. He has discovered by personal experience that spiritual power came from Jesus of Nazareth, the risen and ascended Christ, which enabled him to overcome his sins. "The life that I now live I live by the faith of the Son of God, Who loved me and gave Himself for me." Years later this was the testimony of Saul of Tarsus, converted to the faith by the death of Stephen, and become St. Paul the Apostle to the Gentiles.

Stephen and other Jewish Christians experienced the spiritual power which came from the risen and ascended Lord Jesus. Slowly and painfully they thought out the meaning of the experience and felt convinced that Jesus is more than Man; that He is truly the Son of God as well. The mysterious union of God and man. He is "God manifest in the flesh"; He is "the express image of God." "He that has seen Me hath seen the Father" is the Lord's own testimony.

Have you experienced the saving power of the risen Lord? The writer has placed this prayer on the lips of dying men and women. Will you ask the Holy Spirit to write this sentence in your heart that with your dying breath you may say: "Lord Jesus, receive my spirit."

"THANKS BE UNTO GOD FOR HIS UNSPEAKABLE GIFT."

War Group Named By Westwood No. 2

WESTWOOD, Jan. 20—(ENS)—The January meeting of the Women's Institute was held on Tuesday afternoon in the Town Hall. Owing to the extremely cold weather the attendance was smaller than usual, only fourteen members being present. In the absence of the president the first vice-president, Mrs. Stuart Graham, took charge.

Four members were appointed as a War Fund Committee and included Mrs. Hilliard Nelison, secretary, Miss Jessie Davidson, treasurer, Mrs. S. Graham and Mrs. F. E. Birdsall.

It was decided to hold a euchre card party on Wednesday evening, January 24, in the Town Hall. Nine donations were promised as prizes from the members present. The annual library report was given and several books were donated to the library. A contest sponsored by Mrs. S. Graham was won by the following group: Mrs. H. Neilson, Mrs. Morris and Mrs. McColl.

Mrs. F. E. Birdsall addressed the members on the subject, "The Benefits of a Rural Library," and a general discussion followed.

The next meeting on February 20 will be held in the evening owing to the fact that the hall will be engaged during the day for the agricultural short course.

Refreshments were served by the group in charge at the close of the meeting.

A runaway horse on a cutter, driven by Joe Lytle, caused much excitement on Tuesday morning nea rthe McLaughlin home. The cutter ran up on the bank, tipping it over and frightening the horse which bolted, and later ended up in the fence corner on its back, still fastened to the cutter. Fortunately no one was hurt, but the harness was a total wreck.

Mr. and Mrs. Mervyn Baptie and little daughter spent one evening last week with Mr. and Mrs. J. Buchanan and family.

Pope Cements Relations With Italy

Returning a visit made a week previously, Pope Pius XII. ends a 70-year rupture between the Italian government and the Vatican. To do this, the Pope made a visit to Rome and Italy's king. (In 1870 the grandfather of the present king invaded Rome to displace the pontificial rulers and incorporate the city into Italian territory, a condition that existed until Mussolini's lacteran pact in 1929). Despite the drizzle, the Pope rode through the city of Rome in an open car. He is pictured in conversation with the King.

A New Standard of Greatness — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON — By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Matthew 20

The Kingdom of Heaven said Jesus, is like a householder who went to the market place and hired men to work in his vineyard, some came early in the morningasome in the third hour, some in the sixth, ninth and eleventh hours.

When this man came to pay his workers all received the same amount, whereas there was murmuring because some had worked so short a time, but he said, "Is it not lawful for me to do what I will with mine own money?"

The Mother of Zebedee's children asked the Lord that her sons might sit one on His right, the other on His left in the kingdom. Jesus said, "It shall be given to them for whom it is prepared by My Father."

Leaving Jericho Jesus and his disciples were approached by two blind men asking for help; Jesus called them, asked what they wanted, then touched their eyes and they received sight.

A Peculiar Vote

The Hepburn Government stole the front page from Russia, the Finns, from Germany and the Allies, and it was done by passing a vote of censure on the Federal Government. We do not believe it is the first time a Provincial body has censured a National one; there was something of the sort passed by Quebec during the last war on the issue of conscription.

This resolution was brought to a vote hurriedly toward the last. The preceding discussion had been bitter, but as far as we can learn there was nothing in advance to indicate that a vote was coming on that particular Thursday afternoon. The resolution at best is a peculiar one, and is based on the criticism made by Mr. Hepburn, leader of the Liberals, and Mr. Drew, leader of the Conservatives, and the wording of the resolution says: "...the House hereby endorses the statements made by the two members in question." Mr. Hepburn injected a degree of urgency into the situation by announcing that the resolution was a Government measure, and if it were rejected it would be the same as a want of confidence vote which in turn would call for his resignation. That appears to have been putting on the pressure.

A study of the result of this peculiar vote is informative. There are 90 members in the Legislature listed this way:

Conservatives	23
U.F.O.	1

Those who voted for the resolution of censure were:

Liberals	26
Total	44

There were 10 Liberals who voted against the resolution, so in all there were 54 members voting on a resolution on which the life of the Government depended. There were 30 Liberals who did not vote and there must have been 5 Conservatives in the same class. As far as a Government measure goes then the 66 Liberals were distributed this way:

For censure	26
Against censure	10
Did not vote	30

There were Liberals who had left the House not knowing the vote was coming, but there must have been many more who got out in a hurry because they did not want to face the vote. They had to live with Mr. Hepburn afterward and yet they did not want to turn down the Federal leader. We realize quite well that is looking at it from a straight political angle, but as votes go it was not at all satisfactory.

Nor is there much to be said for the procedure. In a few days the Federal House will be in session at Ottawa. That is where our war effort is centred, whether Premier Hepburn believes it or not. Also in the House there is Dr. Manion, leader of the Conservatives, a gentleman with sufficient experience to attend to all the Federal censuring which is necessary during a war period.

Our own belief is that if members had been given sufficient time to carefully analyze that motion of censure they would not have voted for it even as they did. It stated specifically that the House had heard the reports and statements of Mr. Hepburn and Mr. Drew and endorsed them. Not another thing was mentioned.

The Ontario Government was bent a short time ago on adding more to its powers so it could tell municipalities when they could or could not vote. Now the same House has turned its attention to the more serious business of telling the Federal Government how to operate. Some bright day it may dawn on Toronto that the business of the Legislature is to look after the affairs of the province of Ontario.

Misusing The National Anthem

The Board of Education in Toronto wants to make certain that no organizations which come within the subversive classification have opportunity to use any of the school premises for the holding of their meetings. So those who express aims which are contrary to the war desires of Canada or the Empire are ruled out, and with that there will be little fault found.

Then there was another resolution saying that all meetings held in school premises would have to sing the National Anthem as proof of their loyalty and good intentions. About that resolution we are not so certain because it is making a use of the National Anthem which was never intended. It is putting a premium on lip loyalty and accepting it as the real thing.

It is possible to visualize certain people singing the National Anthem and not meaning a word of it. It is quite correct to say that some of the greatest spies and traitors on record have stood at attention and sung the National Anthem, not only the anthem of our Empire, but the national song of any country in which they have been operating.

The National Anthem is actually a national prayer, as the first line indicates. It is something which people sing because they want to sing it; it is a way in which honest citizens can express their loyalty and devotion collectively. For such reasons we do not believe it should be used as a test piece to determine what organizations should be permitted to rent space in the school buildings of Toronto or elsewhere.

Aha! Those Big Shots!

There are some people who would not consider the day had been well spent if they did not have a spell of grievance. From one such the Examiner received a short note, signed only with the initials "D.H." As a rule we would pay no attention to it, but this time it is a little different. He wrote:

"I hope you are satisfied with the way the big shots came in and gathered up that War Loan. The fellows with the millions and the big corporations crowded in so fast that no one else had a chance. I wanted to take $200 of it, but what will become of my chance? The people with the full purse always get the preference."

Since D. H. subscribed $200 and asks the question about what will become of his chance we are inclined to express an opinion. And it is simply this — that D. H. will get his full $200 even if the loan is away oversubscribed.

How will it be done? By cutting down on the amount allotted to the large subscriber. We are as sure as can be that the small contributor to the War Loan will stand a better chance of getting his full amount than the individual or corporation with a subscription which was impressively large.

It is numbers which are needed to make a success of the War Loan just the same as it is numbers which will make a success of the war effort. It might make much less clerical work to take up all the large subscriptions in full and let all the lesser ones go by the boards, but we are satisfied it will not be done that way. D. H. will find one of these days that his application has been attended to and he will receive his $200 bond. The big shots of whom he complains will not be allowed to crowd him out even if they wanted to.

None Of Our Business?

It would be far from the truth to say that one is inclined to indulge in a feeling of sympathy for the three young men who were sentenced to two years in court at Cobourg. They had robbed a gas station at Welcome, using a gun for the purpose. Then they drove on toward Peterborough and smashed up the stolen car in which they were travelling. One of the occupants was caught in Cavan and afterward the other two were rounded up in Hamilton.

Their homes were as widely separated as New Brunswick and Montreal; two of them were 18 years old and one was 20. They had no money and they had no jobs. They were thrown together in that condition and decided to steal a car and hold up something or other. In that way they could secure funds.

One has no patience with that sort of a resolve, but never yet have we been able to come to the decision that the predicament in which these youths found themselves is none of our business. Truth is it is our business although we have for the most part refused to recognize it.

There have been thousands of young men in the Dominion in the same position. Had they been given the opportunity they would have gone to work the same as their fathers had done; they would have been tired at night; they would have looked ahead to a normal future of effort and advancement. But they never got started and we never bothered much about it.

So we can't complacently sit back and view three young fellows 18, 18 and 20 starting life by going to prison as something which does not concern us. If we dare look at it that way then there's something seriously wrong with us.

Bring On The Wolves

The Peterborough Wolf Club is something like the charmed inner circle of the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association. The latter organization has many members, but they are not of the wolf hunting sort. They prefer to cast a line into the water and draw forth a fish. Some of them in season secure red hats and gaily colored jackets and enter the bush in search of venison, but it takes a man of iron with a deadly gun to go forth to trail a wolf.

Jim Curran of the Sault Ste. Marie Star says wolves are harmless. He has not yet met the man "who has been et by a wolf," and they started keeping the things in some sort of a menag in the Sault. Harmless things until they broke out one day and then all the crack shots in town started peppering away at them. The slaughter we believe was very great.

Perhaps that is why our Wolf Club has such an abbreviated list of members. When the hunt started there were as many reporters and camera men as there were hunters. In fact there were more. But reporters are hardy fellows; they attend meetings of city and county councils; they occasionally break in on meetings where they are told to get out, and so they grow fearless. They were on the job around Apsley for the purpose of getting a picture of a wolf before he was shot at, and probably having an interview with him.

The folk in the district are sure there are wolves there because they hear them singing in the night—or whatever it is a wolf does when he steps out for the evening. But where do the wolves go when the hunters approach seeking their destruction? One would think that a man from the city, sound of limb and well fed and watered, would be the object which a wolf would search. Taking bites out of Charlie Kingan or Herb Mason would be the very thing a hungry wolf would most desire.

But in the early days of the hunt the wolves were not having any. They were not in the bush, nor were they in the wide open spaces. They did not come forth to attack the horses which pulled the sleigh which in turn contained the hunters. In the old school book the wolves in Russia did something like that. They were going to eat the master, the feudal lord or some such person, and a loving and a trusted servant popped out of the sleigh. The result was he got et and his master escaped. We never could see much to that yarn, but the old school reader pointed out it was the proper way to live.

But Peterborough county wolves are not that sort. They are pretty darn smart. They haven't been leaving any tracks and they haven't gone into a huddle to see what they are going to do about the Wolf Club. Up to the time of going to press no person has banged a successful bang at one of them. They seem to be just as smart as the well-trained farm dog who used to hide under the barn on the day when the assessor came around to inquire about a dog tax.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Britain reported the loss of three submarines, and when a sub is lost the sad part is that the crew goes with it.

Germans are said to have a gun which will shoot 100 miles, and that would be one way of going to war without getting too close to the front.

Hungarian-born rancher, being naturalized in British Columbia, says on one occasion he beat up on Hitler. If he would do it again even his ranch would be a more pleasant place on which to live.

South Leeds Producers' Association want cheese prices to include cost of production and a profit. And that is a contention with which no fault can be found, and also one which no person seems to have been able to make operative.

A trapper in the north who used insulin died in his tent, and the report says he had broken the needle of his springe and therefore could take no insulin. That part is correct, but his must have been an extreme case. People who use insulin have now and then run short of a supply, and they then cut down on their diet until they can secure more.

STRATEGY

¶ When it came on to Christmas time, my nieces stood in dainty line, my nephews were there too; combined they brought me many ties, the kind that smite upon the eyes, and of the gayest hue.

¶ They claimed the neckwear that I wore, was fashioned in the days of yore, it was almost uncouth; insisted that I should look gay, forsake my poor old-fashioned way, and start my second youth.

¶ And so I had to lay aside, the emblems of my modest pride, my dark tie would not do; I gazed in terror at design, that came to me at Christmas time, the feeling up and grew.

¶ My nieces watched me that I knew, they'd spy upon the thing I'd do, I had to wear their stuff; it would have brought tears to their eyes, had I dared travel otherwise, they'd call me old and rough.

¶ That's why I rather like the cold, although I'm getting bent and old, it's welcomed now by me; for as I travel day or night, my muffler keeps the ties from sight, and none can gaze and see.

¶ But when it moves along toward spring, I'd simply have to face the thing, no matter what the cost; I'll wear a saddened sort of look, and tell them how I look and look—and fear the things are lost.

Sold Town Lots To Pay Cost Of First School

THE eightieth anniversary of Peterborough's oldest public school, Central School, is to be celebrated on Monday. It was handed over after completion in January, 1860, and ever since has been engaged in the task of teaching the young idea how to shoot. Some of Peterborough's best known citizens began their education in Central School and their children and in some cases their grand-children are pupils there today.

It is interesting to note, on the eve of the celebration, that the locale of the Central School has been connected with education in Peterborough almost ever since there has been a Peterborough. The first school established here was a little log school located north of the present Central, in fact in the yard of the school as we know it today. It was taught first by the Rev. Samuel Armour and the children of the little backwoods hamlet were instructed in the three R's there.

SURROUNDED BY TREES

Early histories tell us that at that time the little schoolhouse was almost entirely surrounded by trees. It was the community's only school for some years and afterward was used as a high school while a common school was established in what had been a Methodist church on the north side of Hunter street, east of Sheridan street about the site of the house in which the late Archdeacon Davidson of St. John's Church lived so long. Later the old school in the Central yard was considered too cold to be used and both high and common schools amalgamated in the building at the corner of Hunter and Sheridan streets.

February 1854 saw the amalgamation of the schools under a board headed by John Langton as chairman and William Cluxton as treasurer, and soon an agitation started to build a Union School to take care of Peterborough's educational needs. The movement gained such rapid momentum that it was not long before they were ready to select a site for the new building. At first the favored location was on Water street at the bottom of what was then called Central Park and the Central School would have gone there had it not been discovered that the town and county had not power to allocate that land for such a purpose. Then the present site on the north side of Murray street, facing the park was selected.

Architect Sheard of Toronto drew up the plans for the new building and the contract was awarded to Mitchell, Graham and MacDonald. The estimated cost was $16,000 and the authorities in those days were evidently closer figurers than some members of present-day public bodies for the work was completed at a cost of only $200 above the estimated figure.

The building committee was composed of leading figures in the community at that time, most of whom have been commemorated in the naming of Peterborough streets. James Hall, grandfather of Deputy-Sheriff F. J. A. Hall was the chairman, and the other members were W. S. Conger, Wm. Cluxton, Thomas Fortye, James Stevenson, Fred Ferguson and Rev. Mark Burnham.

The building was financed by the sale of several town lots and it was a notable addition to the community's list of public structures. A newspaper of the day describing the Central School as it was in 1860 said that it was a fine white brick building in the Italian style with wide corridors and lofty class rooms and that it was "truly an ornament to Peterborough."

IT'S MUCH THE SAME

In the main the school still is much the same now as it was when that eulogy was written. The old tower has gone; it was taken down some years ago in the interest of public safety. The pump in the back yard covering a well that was famous for the coldness of the water it contained was banished long ago for the same reason. Gone too are the old playsheds that ran north to south across the grounds and were supposed to be used by the pupils in bad weather, and the little wooden gymnasium where Sergt. Major Rundle used to do his stuff. The long fence on the McDonnel street gate with the narrow gate through which pupils coming from the north had literally to fight their way on winter mornings when the snow packed well has also taken wings.

But the main building, although renovated from time to time inside and equipped with a better heating plant and lighting facilities, is little different.

The lower building, now used as part of the Central School was built in 1870 and for years until the erection of the present Collegiate Institute was used as Peterborough's High School. It was built at a cost of $5,000 originally, according to an old history.

LET PEOPLE SAY

THE Hepburn-Cross bill providing for wartime suspension of municipal elections as evidently undergone drastic modifications. It is now understood that even the two-year term will not go into effect until the 1941 elections, and municipalities will be at liberty to vote themselves out of the plan. Therein the ministers are paying belated heed to expression of public opinion, and there is no occasion for them to feel any loss of dignity. They are put where they are to do what the people want, not to persist in notions of their own after these are found unacceptable.—Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

• How Germany Dictated Peace

Terms imposed on France, compared to Versailles, as set forth in a letter to the New York Herald Tribune.

THE Franco-Prussian War is not so far distant as to be entirely forgotten. There are students and diplomats, historians and memoir writers to whom the record of this old war (its origin, why and how it was fought), is the half-obliterated preface to 1914, the war of today. The answer to many of the questions now on every one's lips can be found in any clear account of Bismarck's formation of that German Empire which was finally achieved in 1870 by the Franco-Prussian War.

This was terminated by the Treaty of Frankfurt, and it is this treaty which we Americans ought to know about.

By the Treaty of Frankfurt, France ceded to Germany Alsace and Lorraine and the great fortress of Metz, and, in addition, France had to pay an indemnity of one billion dollars and to permit a German military prince with fifty thousand German soldiers to remain on French soil until the last cent was paid—truly a "conqueror's peace."

In this war France had lost 156 000 dead, 17,000 of whom died of wounds and sickness as German prisoners. Paris sustained a four-month siege, to surrender only to famine. At its close 30,000 German troops marched down the Champs-Elysees. If ever a nation seemed utterly down and out, it was France in 1871.

And she had no friends. Bismarck's Ems telegram had thoroughly succeeded. All the world believed that France had been the aggressor.

And yet, in this condition, without one gesture, one cry for help or sympathy, France paid her German conquerors their price—one billion dollars. The first loan was oversubscribed two and a half times. When the final payment was made, Bismarck complained that, had he known France would do it, and in so brief a time, he would have asked her three times as much!

Compare this with the twenty years of Germany's evasions and her ever more strident outcries against the treatment she had received in the Versailles treaty.

These facts should cure us of our sentimentalizing with Germany over the "shameful" Versailles treaty.

And, although we may sadly acknowledge that "Versailles might have been better," we need feel nothing out contempt for the latest German contention—that the treaty inevitably brought about and justified the present war.

• Prize Ships On Auction Block

ON FRIDAY next the United States Maritime Commission will put four former German luxury liners on the auction block. The ships have been rusting for a long time on the mudflats off Solomon's Island, Maryland, and they will probably be sold at scrap value. To restore them to passenger rating, says St. Thomas Times-Journal, would cost more than they are worth, but they could give years of service if their innards were torn out and they were converted into freighters. That, too, would cost a lot of money.

The four are the Monticello, the America, the Mount Vernon and the George Washington. The Monticello was originally the Kaiser Wilhelm II, built in 1903, of 19,460 tons; the America was the Amerika, built 1906, of 21,329 tons; the Mount Vernon was the Kronprinzessin Cecilie, built two years later, of 18,372 tons, and the George Washington, which always bore that name, was built in 1907, of 23,788 tons. They remained in American ports after the war broke out in 1914, and when the United States declared war against Germany in April, 1917, they automatically become prizes of war along with the big liner Vaterland, which was re-christened Leviathan.

The crews of that period had not been schooled in the art of scuttling, but they did the next best thing. Careful examination by American engineers showed that hull plating and frames had been cut away in vital spots, filled with soap and painted over; abrasives had been put in the bearings and concrete filling in the engine cylinders. The crews fondly believed the ships would never be seaworthy again. But the Navy Department went to work and got the ships ready for sea. The interiors were remodeled, new engines installed, and in a few months those German liners were in service against Germany as troopships. To or from France during the rest of the war, they carried 300,000 American troops, and great quantities of supplies. One of them, the Mount Vernon, was torpedoed off the coast of France on September 5, 1918, a 19-feet hole being blasted in the hull, killing 35 of the engine-room staff, but by fine seamanship she reached the port of Brest. The George Washington later had the distinction of carrying President Wilson and his party to that same port for the Versailles Conference and took them back again.

Germany's future, it used to be said, is on the sea. War with Britain is the surest way to destroy whatever prospect there is of that prediction and of perpetuating British supremacy.

• The Penalty Of Being A Failure

THE Associated Press records from Copenhagen a report that more than 100 Russian army officers have been recalled from the Finnish front; some of them to be put on trial before special courts. If this is true it means that a good many of these men are about to be "liquidated," in accordance with the customary Soviet penalty for failure to perform up to Dictator Stalin's expectations.

Already it is reported in leftward centres of information that with but one exception all the leading Soviet officials sent to Spain to help the Loyalist cause have paid this penalty. The exception is General Stern, recently reported as having been rushed from Moscow to take charge of the sagging offensive against Finland. Of eight others, one is said to have been put to death and seven to have been "arrested," which means that they have disappeared from view so completely that their closest friends do not know what has become of them. Not even the offences are known to the public. Perhaps their real crime was in reminding the dictator by their presence of the Spanish failure.

Managers of collective farms which did not come up to expectations have been liquidated. Most of the survivors of the old Bolshevist group, not lucky enough to get out of Russia in time, have been liquidated. Engineers, managers of industrial plants, operators of railroad lines have been liquidated. A great many former officers in the Red army were liquidated before the Finnish adventure had started. Now a fresh purge seems to be in the making.

The reasons are not far to seek. Despots have always deemed it expedient to eliminate human tools no longer useful. But in the particular kind of Asiatic despotism by which Russia is now governed there is additional cause. The Soviet system is proclaimed by its adherents as the final word in perfectibility. It would never do to admit that it could fail; the utmost that could be conceded if that the frailty of its agents has caused it to seem in important respects to have failed. For any such agent to exhibit signs of frailty is to prove him ipso facto a scoundrel or a traitor deserving of elimination.—New York Sun.

TORONTO DOG STORY

WE HAVE this from one of the guests at a big party. A doctor and his wife were entertaining very grandly one evening when the doctor was called to an accident just as he was about to eat his lobster salad. He departed in haste.

Half an hour later one of the maids came and whispered that she had found the dog dead outside the house. She said she had just given the dog the lobster salad left by the guests. The doctor's wife was horrified. She couldn't locate him so, in desperation, she called his unloved rival across the road. That gentleman brought over his stomach pump and each guest submitted to the ordeal.

Some time later, as they were lying about on chesterfields and chairs and suffering the after-pains of pumping and praying to die, the host arrived. His wife explained. "Why," he told them, "I ran over the dog just as I came out of the garage but I hadn't time to come back and tell you."—Toronto Gossip.

WERT OVER WAR

LONDON, — British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and American Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy were in tears the morning of Sept. 3, the day war broke out, according to Beverley Baxter, M.P. and journalist, in a new book, "Men, Master and Mountebanks."

Before going to the House of Commons that day to announce that war on Germany had been declared by Great Britain, Chamberlain, Baxter relates, received Kennedy at No. 10 Downing Street.

"They shook hands," writes Baxter. "They said the conventional things, and then both men could keep up the pretense no longer. Openly and unashamedly, they wept."—New York Herald-Tribune.

DIMINISHING INDUSTRY

In 1918 the carriage, wagon and sleigh industry of Canada employed 4 057 men on wages and its products were valued at nearly $14,000,000, including those of the parts industry. In 1928 the men employed on wages numbered 218 and the products were valued at $676,576; this in addition to a relatively small value of such products turned out as a sideline in other industries.

MAKING THEM MEET

Up to now farmers have struggled to secure enough income to pay the price that others ask. The same or even a better standard of living could be maintained if we put a like effort into getting other prices down to what we are able to pay with the income we have.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

Then cometh Jesus with them unto a place called Gethsemane, and saith unto the disciples, Sit ye here, while I go and pray yonder...And he went a little farther, and fell on his face, and prayed, saying, O my Father, if it be possible, let this cup pass from me: nevertheless not as I will, but as thou wilt....

When the morning was come, all the chief priests and elders of the people took counsel against Jesus to put him to death: and when they had bound him, they led him away, and delivered him to Pontius Pilate the governor. — Matt. xxvi, 36, 39; xxvii, 1, 2.

BY RULE OF ARITHMETIC

UNDER the terms of the latest court decision in the Daniel Dodge estate mix-up, Mrs. Laurine Dodge, Danny's widow, gets $1,250,000; Mrs. Matilda R. Wilson, Danny's mother, gets about $3,500,000; the State of Michigan gets $4,800,000; and the United States gets $1,050,000.

That is Danny's widow and mother get about $4,750,000, while the two governments take about $6,000,000.

But, if the court decision had stated that Danny's money was not his to be willed, but that it was to be distributed under the estate of his father, then the state would not be entitled to the $6,000,000 in inheritance taxes, because the inheritance taxes had already been paid on the estate of John F. Dodge, Danny's father. And, in this event, the three sisters of Denny would share in the estate.

As the value of the estate is approximately $11,000,000 and as it would remain free from inheritance taxes, if it were decided that the money was to be distributed under the John F. Dodge will, it would seem to the layman that the sisters could pay the mother and the widow of Danny the sums they would get under the other arrangement, and still be ahead of the game.

Of course too early a settlement might not suit the persons engaged in the case. But, plain arithmetic seems to show that a friendly settlement would save a lot of millions from going up the spout.—Windsor Daily Star.

WHAT? NO TEA!

INCREDIBLE as it may seem, Prime Minister Chamberlain refused to stop for a spot of tea with officers of a Royal Air Force squadron in France. He said he hadn't time.

The British Ministry of Information had better let Herr Hitler know about that right away. If anything is required to impress on the Fuehrer how seriously Great Britain is taking this war, the very fact that the Prime Minister is doing without his tea is all that is needed.

Tea is an institution in England. It is as much a part of the daily life as getting up in the morning and having breakfast. Soldiers at the front like to pause for tea. And, in some regiments tea is the big break in the day. It is even more of a ritual than dinner.

Just a bit of toast and jam and a cup of tea may be all that served for the repast. But, that is enough for the ceremony. If a bit of cake can be added, so much the better. And, if toast can be served, why that is getting up into the upper crust.

To go without tea is something the Englishman cannot imagine, unless there is some dire emergency. Mr. Chamberlain is passing up his tea. That means he's playing for keeps.—Windsor Daily Star.

Cleanliness Is Vital Factor In Heating Plant

Cleanliness is to the body what oil is to the machine and the best kept machines last the longest says the Canadian Institute of Plumbing and Heating in a bulletin discussing cleanliness and health. The skin, says the Institute is not merely a covering and protection for the body against infection, but is also an important part of the heat-regulating machinery of the body and is important as an organ of secretion and excretion of waste products. Its main function, however, is to regulate the heat of the body. A clean skin is able to regulate the body heat more efficiently than one whose pores are clogged with hardened secretions and whose surface is insulated with layers of foreign matter.

Bathing is vitally necessary for cleanliness and good health. The hands, face and finger nails should be kept clean, especially before meals. Any cut or abrasion of the skin may allow bacteria to enter when the spot is dirty or touched by dirty hands. The need for cleanliness is particularly great for those who work in places where dirt is liable to be carried to the mouth by the hands. Many infections get a foothold in this way.

In the interest of good health, there should be adequate bathing facilities conveniently located for the washing of hands, both in homes and in places of employment. Every community that desires hygiene and sanitation must spend a great deal of money for equipment and maintenance and so every home owner and operator of public buildings must also be prepared to instal adequate plumbing equipment for individual needs.

Percy W.I. Plans Social Evening

WARKWORTH, Jan. 20—(ENS)—Despite the cold weather their was a large attendance of members and a few visitors at the Women's Institute meeting held in the council room on Wednesday afternoon. The president opened the meeting in the usual way, singing the Institute Ode and all repeating the Lord's prayer. "Forget the past start where you stand" was beautifully illustrated in the paper given by Mrs. Percy Windover and the reading, "The New Year" by Miss Blanche Baker. The roll call "My Best Bargain" was heartily responded to.

Reports were heard from the sunshine and visiting committees, also a report from those knitting socks and letters of appreciation read from the soldiers receiving socks at Christmas time. The Institute is planning to hold a social evening for the members and families on February 8. A committee was appointed to look after the program and social part.

The program consisted of community singing, a paper on knitting socks by Mrs. Peter Jones. Reading by Mrs. Leigh Isaac. Reading on "health" by Mrs. Joe Greenly and a reading by Mrs. Norman Gummer were much enjoyed. Mrs. Puffer also contributed a reading.

The hostesses and the lunch committee served a lovely supper and a social time spent together. The singing of the National Anthem brought the meeting to a close.

Sharbot Lake Driver Damages Car In Crash

HAVELOCK, Jan. 20—(ENS). — A minor collision occurred opposite the village post office on No. 7 highway in Havelock early Thursday evening, when a new car proceeding east and driven by H. J. Thomson, of Sharbot Lake, struck the rear right fender of an Ocean Blend Tea Company's commercial delivery van, heading west, and driven by David Humber of Peterborough. Thomson was turning out, intending to pass a transport packed on his side of the street, at a point just a few yards distant from the point of collision. Thomson stated that he saw the approaching truck but judged that there was sufficient room for both to pass.

County Grants Remain Same To Exhibitions

A grant of $75 to the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association was recommended by the finance committee of the County Council Friday afternoon in a motion by Reeve Wallace Shearer. This contribution is for the general work of the Association and especially for its efforts in restocking the County with wild life which Mr. Shearer said was a strong attraction to tourists coming from the cities of the United States and Canada.

E. N. McDonald incidentally told the committee that in the distribution of fish from the Deer Lake and other hatcheries last year he had received remarkable assistance from some of the members of the Fish and Game Association, from members of the County Council, especially Reeve Shearer, and from many other citizens throughout Canada. Their aid was given freely, without any suggestion of payment, and their attitude was plainly a desire to have a hand in the work of the Department in the restocking of lakes and rivers with fish.

A $25 Contribution.

The finance committee also passed a grant of $25 to the Quinte Seed Fair in response to a petition by Gordon Hancock and Frank C. Paterson.

Grants To Fairs.

Grants to the agricultuaral societies were the same as last year: Peterborough Exhibition $500; Norwood $300; Lakefield $250; Apsley $150; Galway (Kinmount) $150.

Several of the members advised that this form of assistance might as well be disposed of at once, especially as a means of forestalling any requests for increases if the matter of grants was left until June.

Market Proposal.

The agricultural committee was authorized to consider on a broad basis the question of the Peterborough market accomodation and report in June. The motion by Reeve Johnston and Reeve Seeney of Havelock, was preceded by Mr. Johnston's statement that the city had "used us pretty well after the fire last June. They went to the expense of putting up a tent that was much appreciated by both buyers and sellers."

Reeve Johston said the new entrance did not begin to solve the market problem, that accomodation upstairs had been removed and not replaced.

"We had a deputation from producers here this week, and I think we should try to do something to meet their request. It might be a good idea to have the agricultural meet with the city's market committee, and see if there is anything that is needed. It may be possible to get Northumberland and Durham to come in too."

Reeve W. A. Anderson suggested that if the committee took up this question they should broaden their enquiry even to consider matters regarding grading. He said that some persons take great pains in preparing produce for the market. Others were not so careful, and usually they were the first to cut prices, to the detriment of the others.

Home Loans Approved For 406 Homes

National Housing Act loans for December, 1939, totalling $1,254,541. are announced to-day by the Honorable J. L. Ralston, Minister of Finance. The number of loans approved was 252, providing for 406 new dwelling units. Comparative figures for December, 1938, were 191 loans, 377 units, and $1,241,374 in volume of loans.

Under new regulations dated December 5, the deadline for applications to finance two-family and multiple-family houses was set at December 31, 1939. The maximum loan for each single-family house was also limited to $4,000 in respect of all applications made after the same date. Owing partly to these new regulations the number of applications received by the Department in the final two weeks of December was the heaviest since operations began and altogether 588 applications, providing for over 1,500 housing units, were received during the month. Checking, appraisal and approval with reference to a number of these will continue into 1940, but with this exception further loans will be limited to $4,000 to finance single-family dwellings.

Of the 252 loans approved in December, 238 were to finance single-family houses, 7 to finance two-family houses, and 7 to finance multiple-family houses. Of the 406 units financed 148 were financed by loans of $2,500 or less, 220 by loans of $3,000 or less, and 360 or 88.6 per cent. by loans of $4,000 or less. Sixty-five of the small 90 per cent loans (maximum $2,250) were given approval.

December also saw the further extension of the loaning facilities to two new communities where loans had not been made previously. The loaning facilities have now been made available in 396 communities, an increase of 103 over the number at the beginning of the year.

Aprovals in the last month of 1939 brought the total volume of loans for the year well above the $20,000,000 mark and the number of new homes financed in the same period to more than 6,300.

Havelock Oddfellows Hold "Wiley Night"

HAVELOCK, Jan. 20—(ENS). — "Wiley Night" was celebrated jointly on Thursday evening by the members of the Royal Lodge No. 286 I.O.O.F. and the Dorcas Rebekah Lodge No. 98 of Havelock. Some sixty persons, including a few guests, were present to participate in a social evening of cards, dancing and musical numbers.

Speaker for the evening was Bro. Harry Ferguson, noble grand of the local Oddfellows lodge, who presented a most interesting and detailed sketch of the life and work of Thomas Wiley, the founder of the Independent Order of Oddfellows on the North American continent. Wiley Night is celebrated yearly on the meeting date closest to January 15, the date of the late Thomas Wiley's birth. Bro Ferguson touched as well on Rebekah work and the principles of Oddfellowship during the course of his talk.

Suggests Using Militia In Making Round-Up Of Wolves In Northern Part Of County

This wolf hunt should be given a military touch complete with drums and bugles in the opinion of Lou's Yeotes, who claims the soldiers in Greece staged a very successful wolf hunt with the aid of martial music.

As the story goes, wolves were destroying sheep in a certain district in Greece several year sago, and the bewildered farmers appealed to the district military officer for aid. The soldiers formed a huge V at one end of a five-mile stretch of country, while a line of sharpshooters took up positions at the opposite end of the five-mile section. The soldiers at a given signal started to march toward the marksmen playing drums and bugles and created such a noise they drove many wolves in front of them, which were picked off by the other soldiers once they were within range, and the sheep were saved.

Mr. Yeotes suggests that Herb Mason call out the Rangers Band and enlist their services to rid Burleigh Township of the savage beasts, or perhaps the country, although wild and rocky, might be a fitting locale for military tactics, with a little wolf hunting thrown in to liven up the program.

Cleanliness is to the body what oil is to the machine and the best kept machines last the longest says the Canadian Institute of Plumbing and Heating in a bulletin discussing cleanliness and health. The skin, says the Institute is not merely a covering and protection for the body against infection, but is also an important part of the heat-regulating machinery of the body and is important as an organ of secretion and excretion of waste products. Its main function, however, is to regulate the heat of the body. A clean skin is able to regulate the body heat more efficiently than one whose pores are clogged with hardened secretions and whose surface is insulated with layers of foreign matter.

Bathing is vitally necessary for cleanliness and good health. The hands, face and finger nails should be kept clean, especially before meals. Any cut or abrasion of the skin may allow bacteria to enter when the spot is dirty or touched by dirty hands. The need for cleanliness is particularly great for those who work in places where dirt is liable to be carried to the mouth by the hands. Many infections get a foothold in this way.

In the interest of good health, there should be adequate bathing facilities conveniently located for the washing of hands, both in homes and in places of employment. Every community that desires hygiene and sanitation must spend a great deal of money for equipment and maintenance and so every home owner and operator of public buildings must also be prepared to instal adequate plumbing equipment for individual needs.

Percy W.I. Plans Social Evening

WARKWORTH, Jan. 20—(ENS)—Despite the cold weather their was a large attendance of members and a few visitors at the Women's Institute meeting held in the council room on Wednesday afternoon. The president opened the meeting in the usual way, singing the Institute Ode and all repeating the Lord's prayer. "Forget the past start where you stand" was beautifully illustrated in the paper given by Mrs. Percy Windover and the reading, "The New Year" by Miss Blanche Baker. The roll call "My Best Bargain" was heartily responded to.

Reports were heard from the sunshine and visiting committees, also a report from those knitting socks and letters of appreciation read from the soldiers receiving socks at Christmas time. The Institute is planning to hold a social evening for the members and families on February 8. A committee was appointed to look after the program and social part.

The program consisted of community singing, a paper on knitting socks by Mrs. Peter Jones. Reading by Mrs. Leigh Isaac. Reading on "health" by Mrs. Joe Greenly and a reading by Mrs. Norman Gummer were much enjoyed. Mrs. Puffer also contributed a reading.

The hostesses and the lunch committee served a lovely supper and a social time spent together. The singing of the National Anthem brought the meeting to a close.

Sharbot Lake Driver Damages Car In Crash

HAVELOCK, Jan. 20—(ENS). — A minor collision occurred opposite the village post office on No. 7 highway in Havelock early Thursday evening, when a new car proceeding east and driven by H. J. Thomson, of Sharbot Lake, struck the rear right fender of an Ocean Blend Tea Company's commercial delivery van, heading west, and driven by David Humber of Peterborough. Thomson was turning out, intending to pass a transport packed on his side of the street, at a point just a few yards distant from the point of collision. Thomson stated that he saw the approaching truck but judged that there was sufficient room for both to pass.

County Grants Remain Same To Exhibitions

A grant of $75 to the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association was recommended by the finance committee of the County Council Friday afternoon in a motion by Reeve Wallace Shearer. This contribution is for the general work of the Association and especially for its efforts in restocking the County with wild life which Mr. Shearer said was a strong attraction to tourists coming from the cities of the United States and Canada.

E. N. McDonald incidentally told the committee that in the distribution of fish from the Deer Lake and other hatcheries last year he had received remarkable assistance from some of the members of the Fish and Game Association, from members of the County Council, especialyl Reeve Shearer, and from many other citizens throughout Canada. Their aid was given freely, without any suggestion of payment, and their attitude was plainly a desire to have a hand in the work of the Department in the restocking of lakes and rivers with fish.

A $25 Contribution.

The finance committee also passed a grant of $25 to the Quinte Seed Fair in response to a petition by Gordon Hancock and Frank C. Paterson.

Grants To Fairs.

Grants to the agricultuaral societies were the same as last year: Peterborough Exhibition $500; Norwood $300; Lakefield $250; Apsley $150; Galway (Kinmount) $150.

Several of the members advised that this form of assistance might as well be disposed of at once, especially as a means of forestalling any requests for increases if the matter of grants was left until June.

Market Proposal.

The agricultural committee was authorized to consider on a broad basis the question of the Peterborough market accomodation and report in June. The motion by Reeve Johnston and Reeve Seeney of Havelock, was preceded by Mr. Johnston's statement that the city had "used us pretty well after the fire last June. They went to the expense of putting up a tent that was much appreciated by both buyers and sellers."

Reeve Johnston said the new entrance did not begin to solve the market problem, that accomodation upstairs had been removed and not replaced.

"We had a deputation from producers here this week, and I think we should try to do something to meet their request. It might be a good idea to have the agricultural meet with the city's market committee and see if there is anything that can be done to get the improvemittee, and see if there is anything ment that is needed. It may be possible to get Northumberland and Durham to come in too."

Reeve W. A. Anderson suggested that if the committee took up this question they should broaden their enquiry even to consider matters regarding grading. He said that some persons take great pains in preparing produce for the market. Others were not so careful, and usually they were the first to cut prices, to the detriment of the others.

National Housing Act loans for December, 1939, totalling $1,254,541, are announced to-day by the Honorable J. L. Ralston, Minister of Finance. The number of loans approved was 252, providing for 406 new dwelling units. Comparative figures for December, 1938, were 191 loans, 377 units, and $1,241,374 in volume of loans.

Under new regulations dated December 5, the deadline for applications to finance two-family and multiple-family houses was set at December 31, 1939. The maximum loan for each single-family house was also limited to $4,000 in respect of all applications made after the same date. Owing partly to these new regulations the number of applications received by the Department in the final two weeks of December was the heaviest since operations began and altogether 588 applications, providing for over 1,500 housing units, were received during the month. Checking, appraisal and approval with reference to a number of these will continue into 1940, but with this exception further loans will be limited to $4,000 to finance single-family dwellings.

Of the 252 loans approved in December, 238 were to finance single-family houses, 7 to finance two-family houses, and 7 to finance multiple-family houses. Of the 406 units financed 148 were financed by loans of $2,500 or less, 220 by loans of $3,000 or less, and 360 or 88.6 per cent. by loans of $4,000 or less. Sixty-five of the small 90 per cent loans (maximum $2,250) were given approval.

December also saw the further extension of the loaning facilities to two new communities where loans had not been made previously. The loaning facilities have now been made available in 396 communities, an increase of 103 over the number at the beginning of the year.

Aprovals in the last month of 1939 brought the total volume of loans for the year well above the $20,000,000 mark and the number of new homes financed in the same period to more than 6300.

PETES TAKE FIRST PLACE WITH O. H. A. WIN OVER BELLEVILLE

Tight Contest Dished Up On Quinte Ice

Intermediate "A" standing to date:

Team.	P.	W.	L.
Redmen	3	0	3

The Petes climbed back on top of their O.H.A. Intermediate "A" group last night in Belleville with a 9-7 win over the Redmen before a fair-sized crowd of fans. It was the third straight setback for the Thomas team.

This was a fast, clean and open contest with the Redmen having a lead in the first frame and crowding the faster visitors all the way. It was 4-2 for the Petes in the first and 6-4 for them going into the third. The Quinte crew rallied hotly toward the end and ganged up repeatedly to filing the disc home twice in the last two minutes and whittle down the Buckland band's margin.

Coughlin and Starr led the attack for the Petes most of the way, the former being in on four goals and Starr figuring in three. Kingdon was also dangerous on the attack and Blewett played a good steady game. The defence checked well, with Harding steady most of the way in the visiting cage. The Jackson brothers were outstanding for the losers and proved a constant threat when carrying the puck. Hinton also looked good in goal, and the whole team hustled the Petes all through the fray.

Nip And Tuck.

Gardner counted from Blewett early but Barriage evened it up, the Jackson brothers aiding. The latter two combined for another shortly to give them the margin. However, Ellis took a pass from Kingdon to sew it up and then Coughlin put the Petes in front with a nice one, aided by Starr. The latter tallied a solo marker before the bell. Coughlin opened the second with a score, but St. Louis and Barriage popped in quick ones for the homesters. Coughlin got another later in the heat with Starr aiding. Kingdon sifted through to open scoring in the third, with W. Jackson sinking a neat one for the other side. Blewett and Coughlin finished the scoring for the Petes with nice efforts, Crowe assisting on the latter. Belleville pressed at the finish and tallied twice, C. Jackson being the sniper, with St. Louis assisting on one. There were only five penalties altogether, the Petes having two.

The teams:

Petes: Goal, Harding; defence, Jopling and Crowe; centre, Starr; wings, Coughlin and Heal; alternates: Ellis, Gardner, Kingdon, Tompkins, Blewett and Burton.

Belleville: Goal, Hinton; defence, St. Louis and McCreary; centre, C. Jackson; wings, W. Jackson and Crawford; alternates: McGuire, Windsor, Storms, Barriage, Yates and Watt.

Setting a precedent in hockey, officials four years ago today postponed the Toronto Maple Leaf-Montreal Canadiens National league game scheduled for Jan. 21 as a mark of respect for the late King George V, who died Jan. 20. The Chicago-Maroon game at Montreal on Jan. 28 was also called off, as the King's funeral was held that day.

1940 Holds Much For Adherents Of Horse Racing

By Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt
President, Belmont and Pimlico Race Tracks

BALTIMORE, Jan. 20.—(AP)—The year 1940 will be a banner one in racing.

It will produce probably the best group of handicap horses the country has had in some years. Several horses will win more than $100,000, and mathematically-minded sports fans will compute that in such a celebrated race as the Belmont Futurity, the winner will net $1,000 a second for the actual time of the race.

Casual readers will look with envy upon the horseman whose horse has flashed across the finish line to win a lavish purse and a coveted trophy. Little or nothing will be written about the horses that are a dead loss, or the next thing to it, to the hundreds who own them. Some revealing figures on this subject have been compiled by disinterested statisticians.

The sum of all money to horsemen in purses, stakes, prizes and trophies have been totalled for one average year. Then the average cost of keeping a horse alive and in good condition through a calendar year was estimated and multiplied by the number of horses that raced in an average year. These two totals, when compared, give the answer to the man who reads of huge purses and interprets them as huge profits.

These estimates show that for every dollar spent on the care of a horse, the average return is just over 75 cents. When it is understood that this covers just the expenses and not the original investment, it can be seen that those big purses are not all gravy.

The picture isn't all black, however. Sometimes an owner can make money with his horses, but he must work against odds. A lot of stables will make money during certain years, but few stables will make money every year—a very few. As a rule, the bulk of stable accounts are written in red ink.

PRO PUCK PERSONALITIES

BINGO KAMPPMAN
Toronto Maple Leafs.
By Central Press Canadian.

One of the six defencemen being used in a sort of relay system by Toronto Maple Leafs this year in the National league is Rudolph (Bingo) Kampman, one of Kitchener's many hockey products, who is serving out his third term with the team. He had helped Sudbury win the Allen cup in the 1936-37 season and was signed to a pro contract the following fall, first going to the Toronto team's International-American league Syracuse farm team. He didn't stay there however, an injury to Reg Hamilton giving him his chance to move up to the Leafs and he hasn't looked back since. A turbulent type of player he mixes into any and every scrap that comes along and can give and take knees and elbows in the corners with the best of them. As a lofter of shots down the ice when his team is short-handed he's in a class by himself. Although not likely to break any scoring records he is dangerous on the attack, packing a heavy shot that he fires accurately from any distance out. In his two seasons he's accounted for three goals, 16 assists and served 108 minutes in penalties. He will probably get more of everything except penalties this season than he did in the first two combined. Before going to Sudbury he played with junior and senior teams in his home town. Twenty-six years old, weighs close to 190 pounds.

Burk Is Wanted To Meet Pearce In Race

TORONTO, Jan. 20.—(CP)—Pressure was being put on Joe Burk of Philadelphia today to forfeit his amateur standing and meet Bobby Pearce of Hamilton, Ont., for the world professional sculling championship.

It seemed to be entirely up to the blond and barrel-chested Burk, for the Canadian National Exhibition was ready to stage the match and Pearce was ready to defend his title against "anyone, anywhere."

Jim Rice, former coach of the Hamilton Leander Boat Club, brought into the open the proposals for what would be the greatest match sculling race in years by saying in New York last night that Burk might turn pro, because there was no more competition for him in amateur ranks. Burk has won the diamond sculls the last two years and the 1940 Olympics games are doomed.

Elwood Hughes, general manager of the Canadian National Exhibition, said he had made an offer to Burk within "the last few days," repeating offers of last fall. Pearce, at Hamilton, declared: "I'll go for that," meaning a series of races along the exhibition waterfront at Toronto. But the Toronto Globe and Mail quoted Burk as saying in a telephone conversation from his farm home at Bridgeborough, N.J., that "The way I feel now, I won't turn professional for some time."

Wait Until April

"I'm going to wait until April, when Finland must declare the Olympics on or off," Burk was quoted as saying on his 26th birthday. "But, feeling the way I do now, I won't turn professional for some time yet. I'm only a young man."

In the past it has appeared that Burk would be ready to listen to professional offers after the 1940 Olympic games. With the war on in Europe, there doesn't appear to be an amateur within Burk's reach who could touch him.

"The reason I think Burk might turn pro," Rice said, "is that he has run out of competition among the amateurs, the same as Pearce has outclassed the other pros. Now that the Olympics have been called off, there is nothing for Burk to look forward to in the amateur field, and I know he loves competition."

Rice suggested that Burk and Pearce tour the country, staging series of races on a best-of-three basis. One would be at a half-mile, another at the Henley distance of one mile and 550 yards and the third at three miles.

Hughes said he had made Burk an offer on that basis, but had suggested a one-mile race rather than the half-mile event.

Dear Slope Dopes:
Tomorrow we go to Bethany aboard the Fletcher bus,
We changed the time to ten o'clock so don't be late and fuss;
The fare is cheap, the ride is warm, the skiing will be rare,
Now don't forget and have to say, "Oh, heck I wasn't there."

There's even room for ski dudes and guys that always crab,
And ski-babes will be welcome, but must expect "not bad";
So won't you plan to come with us, you must be there on time,
And don't be late, a sad mistake, we've a purpose in this rhyme.

The Chalet will be heated, the canteen food is swell,
Then some prefer to bring their own and manage very well;
The ski town will be running for those who wish to pay,
It does the work that takes your pep, you ski down-hill all day.

The public will be welcome, but don't drive in too far.
Watch out for Driver's farmhouse, and there you park your car;
Come one, come all, it's good for you to get some fun and air
The exercise will do you good. Ski Hell, we'll see you there.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

Provincial "golden gloves" championship — emblematic of Ontario mitt titles—will be of interest again to local fighters when the new Peterborough Boxing Club is organized here shortly. On account of the Ontario Athletic Commission is behind the move in Peterborough and various clubs and prominent persons are getting busy to line up the local club. It will mean a big new gym where the boys will get the best of training under good conditions. When they're ready to enter the ring, they will be matched properly in inter-city bouts—and given every medical protection. The best of the local talent will fight it off against the pick of pugilists in other centres, and we might even have the Eastern Ontario finals here. Then the victors go to Toronto for the "golden glove" tourney. It's the right way to handle this sport, and we hope real progress is made within the next week or so in organization.

Monday's puck offering on the Rue Brock is a classy exhibition fixture betwixt Toronto Goodyears and the Petes. The senior "A" champs will have a full lineup of their stars on deck, and it'll be a nifty number. Rates a big crowd, as club expenses are high. We're anxious to see that first (or pepper) line of high scorers, Inglis, O'Flaherty and King. Latter two have been leading in the loop in scoring. Inglis is the pivot man, coming from Saskatchewan and having played for St. Mike's. O'Flaherty was with Marlboros and Dominions ere hopping to Goodyears, and he's a classy puckist, going both ways. King at left wing was with Dominions previously and he's dynamite on the attack. Yep, Eddie Powers has a fine club in senior "A" competition, and the Petes—of senior "B" calibre—can hardly be expected to lick 'em. But it'll be a neat scrap.

It Was A Surprise

The boys along the Avenoo were a bit blue last night as Oshawa Bees buzzed through the Colts for a 7-2 O.H.A. junior "B" win. Everyone had figured on a classy and tight tilt. Well, it wasn't a bad game at all—plenty fast and with some excellent hockey shown for junior "B" calibre. But it wasn't any closer than an intoxicated spendthrift. Barring the final period, when they ganged up all the way, the locals were well beaten, 3-0 in the first frame and 4-0 in the second. They put on the pressure then for a 2-0 edge in the third but that didn't aid much. It came too late.

* * * * * *

In fairness to the Colts, it must be pointed out that they're strictly junior "B". A little better than the "C" class of the district but quite a piece from the "A" type of hockey, too. And those Oshawa Bees are mighty close to junior "A" calibre. Two of 'em—Peters and Wilson—belong to the Generals, and several more are about ripe for that class. While the whole gang is pointing toward it. Don't ever worry about the generous General Motors—which won't sponsor a sport unless sure of a winner—carrying players on the Bees who haven't "A" possibilities! However, the Colts have a real problem now in worrying about group playoffs.

And Two Slid By

A couple of the Bees' counters were a bit soft, one from outside defence fooling the home goalie and another being notched as he was down on his knees looking behind—thinking he had the elusive rubber trapped beside the cage. Take off those two counters and it would have been closer, and the Colts did some terrible shooting and finishing-off work when in close. But they'll likely do better ere the playoffs. Parnell, Craig and Vitarelli looked a little the best to us on the attack. Peters, Wilson, Reid, Fraser and Jackson stood out for the winners. Quite a crowd, for a junior melee, braved the chill weather for the tussle, too.

* * * * * *

These Lakefield laddy-bucks in the intermediate "B" race are starting to roll these days like a bowler hat on a windy day. They climbed into second place at home last p.m. with a decisive 10-4 decision over the Sutton scrappers. And quite a joust it was, too. A fist fight in the third, a brawl around the penalty box, a free-for-all among players near the finish and an after-game battle between followers of the two teams. They gave you everything but cakes and coffee in this offering! Shrimp McDougall was hotter than molten metal last twilight and turned back the years to his Owen Sound peak on several sparkling rushes to lead all the scorers. With Cournyea also effective on the attack and Windsor brilliant between the pipes. Sutton goes to Oakwood on Tuesday and Lakefield journeys to Sutton next Friday—and won't it be a pip?

Petes Climb Back

Petes climbed back atop the intermediate "A" heap last eve in Belleville with a 9-7 triumph over the Redmen. Using Hinton in goal, the Thomas team put up stiff resistance and led the locals for a time. It was a wide-open tussle, we're told, and by no means one-sided as in their previous meeting here. It was the third straight loss for the boys of Bella Villa, who might have gone somewhere this semester if Gow and Hastie had not been snatched from 'em. Don Coughlin seemed to be the main sniper last night for the Buckland band, but the scoring was pretty well spread around. Belleville Redmen return here next Friday to tangle with the locals.

* * * * * *

In girls' basketball last gloaming in the Y.W., three snappy contests were run off, only one being too one-sided. "Y" Gym kept up their high-steppin' ways with an 18-8 triumph over Westclox, but the game was tighter than the score hints; Orfuns nearly had to turn themselves inside out to avoid an upset and gain a 29-27 nod over St. John's; and the Quaker Aces galloped through the Debs for a fairly soft victory. There were three high school tilts last night, too, up in Lindsay. And P.C.I. copped the triple-header—still being undefeated this season. Senior boys beat the Scugog squad 40-27, senior gals won 14-12, and junior boys took a 33-24 win. A men's senior City Cage Loop twin bill is on tonight at the "Y", Bees playing C.G.E. at 7.15 and Independents clashing with Dominions at 8.15.

Goodyears Here To Play Local Puckists

'Peanuts' O'Flaherty

Toronto Goodyears will play the Petes here Monday night at 8:30 o'clock in the Brock St. rink in an exhibition contest. It will be the first time this starry senior "A" aggregation has appeared in Peterboro and should prove a big attraction. They have led their 'A" group easily all season and appear to be Allan Cup timber, the squad being packed with topnotch senior puckists. The speedy young Petes will hardly beat them but might give the Goodyears a hard battle, or at least make it interesting. Such a fray should draw a large crowd of fans.

Coach Eddie Power and Manager Bob Ecclestone will bring their full team here and will arrive on time. The squad includes the leading league scorers, Eddie King and Peanuts O'Flaherty as well as Jim Drummond, Jack Draper, Russ Bowman, Bobby Laurent, Jerry Cooper, Paul Mundrick, Johnny Inglis, Bert Turney, George Imlach, Shorty Robinson, Bus Benson, Frank O'Brien, Herby Mortimer and Blondy Sutcliffe. All the Petes will see action in this exhibition fray.

Very few double-headers have been noted during the past week, except the double-header the Fire Hall team did down the stairs when the fire alarm rang in.

The surprise game of the week was when the De Laval Separators took all the juice out of the oranges, leaving King Billy and his gang just a big pip.

In another local derby the captain's guard managed to take three points from their work mates, the scabs.

East City decorators could not repeat their first win on the heavyweights but got away with 3 points, making it 7 out of 8 in the series.

King Billy and his mighty orange squeers put the pressure down on Rumary's antiques, making a clean sweep of the series, both points and scoring averages.

Presents Cup Entries.

No further entries have been received to date and we would urge all skips to get in touch with the secretary at 3067 regarding same. It would be fine to get every team entered this year. No. 8, No. 10 and No. 12 have already placed their entrie. What about your team?

OSHAWA BEES HAND LOCAL COLTS FIRST LOSS OF THE SEASON

Oshawa Bees handed the local Colts their first setback of the season in a O. H. A. junior "B" joust here last night by a 7-2 score before a good-sized crowd of fans. The win put the Bees on top of the heap with four wins in as many starts, the Colts dropping back to second place in the six- team setup.

The visitors turned in a smart performance, using two junior "A" players and outstepping and outsmarting the locals for the first two periods by a good margin. They had a 3-0 margin in the first heat and made it 7-0 going into the third. The Colts ganged up hotly throughout the third and tallied twice to carry most of the play in this period.

Fast skating, some nice combination and good work around the net earned the visitors their win. The Colts had a bad night when in scoring position, missing a number of chances through inaccurate shooting or the inability to lift the puck off the ice when the goalie was sprawled. They battled hard the first two chukkers but did not succeed in checking the Bees up tightly enough, while the third frame was the opposite with the Colts doing the pressing as Oshawa laid back to protect their lead. While there were 14 penalties handed out —with the Colts drawing but five —the game was mostly clean, and very fast (with some good hockey shown) except for a minor mixup between Vitarelli and Wilson in the first.

Cournyea had a tough night in the home net and had little chance on most that beat him, only two easy ones slipping in, and one of these occurred when he was looking behind the net for the puck. Defensively the Colts didn't go any too well, while on the attack Parnell was outstanding the last two periods with Craig and Vitarelli going well in spots. The rest went fair, showing their best hockey in the third. For Oshawa, two "A" pucklsts — Peters and Wilson— stood out with Reid, Jackson and Fraser also playing a fine game, and the rest not far behind.

It was fast from the start with some good hockey dished up but the Bees were showing an edge early on fast breaks and neat passing. McMullen's shot from outside defence beat the goalie after about three minutes and Fraser took Reid's pass in close for another two minutes later. They kept pressing, sometimes having five men on the attack, and made it 3-0 shortly when Reid banged the disc home in a close-in scramble. Craig and Fraser were gated for roughing it, and McMullen followed for tripping. The Colts pressed hard till Wilson and Vitarelli tangled behind the Oshawa cage and drew majors. Jackson getting a minor penalty for interfering. The Colts ganged up but could not count, Craig coming close. Fraser later got the air for slashing and Foster nearly tallied just before the bell.

Get Four More.

Oshawa continued to shade the homesters in the fast second frame. Barber was aired for tripping but got back without the home crew counting. Barber worked in close and scored on Jackson's pass after six minutes. Foster missed the net with the goalie out and when Parnell went off for tripping, the Bees buzzed in to tally twicme. Jackson got one on assists from Peters and Reid. Then McBrien bulged the hemp on Fraser's pass. It was hot and even for a time with Wade's shot knocking out the goalie for a minute. In a wild scramble around the Colts' cage, Fraser scored on a paritally empty net on Peter's assist when Cournyea was down at one side of the cage looking for a puck he thought he had trapped. Wade and Foster pulled a fine rush but were blocked near the finish.

The Colts ganged up most of the third and pressed hard in a good chukker. Foster tried hard but missed a chance and when Jackson was waved away for tripping, the Weir-coached crew made it bot for Phillips. Rochetta and Craig did everything but score on a drive, and then Craig fluked one when his passout glanced in off Morris' skate. Parnell and Fraser were penalized for bumping each other and nothing happened in their absence. Parnell got back in time to pull a fine rush down the boards, skirt defence and pick a corner to make it 7-2. The Colts kept pressing till fans threw stuff on the ice and held up the game. Oshawa shot down the ice a few times to relieve pressure as the homesters kept ganging up. Craig was waved off for tripping and Kitchen followed for tripping just before the end.

The teams:

Oshawa: Goal, Phillips; defence, Fraser and Morris; centre, Peters; wings, Reid, and McBrien; alternates, Jackson, Barber, McMullen, Wilson and Kitchen.

NorwoodHornets Put Sting On Batas 10-4

HAVELOCK, Jan. 20. —(ENS) — Climbing steadily towards the top of the T. V. L. group, the Norwood "Hornets" went on a scoring rampage last night at the Norwood arena to swamp the Frankford "Batas" by a decisive 10 to 4 count. After two straight losses at the beginnnig of the season, the Hornets began to hit their stride, and haven't dropped a game in their last four starts.

From one extreme to another was the tale of last night's tussle. A scoreless first session was followed in the second by a seven-goal scoring orgy by the winners, in which the visitors also managed to pop home one tally. Forcing the play continually in the final frame, the Batas notched an additional three markers. Playing every man up however they left theimselves wide open for breakaways, through which the Hornets were able to bolster their scoring averages by three more goals. Two injuries to the Frankford squad in the last session materially aided their defeat. Guay, their rushing defense ace, was put out of action in the first few minutes of this period, and Romhanyi, rookie goaltender was knocked cold when he dove out of his nets to avert a Norwood score in the final moments. All three Hornet goals were counted after Lawrence, a forward took Rombanyi's place in the net.

The Batas were minus two of their regulars, Rogers the goalie, and Stojan a defenseman, for last night's encounter. Although Romhany looked a trifle weak when the locals began to push them in during the second stanza, his work in the final session, up until the time he received that crack on the head, was nothing less than sensational. Most effective member of the Bata lineup, was Reid, their flashy centre star, who set a blazing pace both ways all evening. Guay, Bryden, Dore and Pollard were best among the others.

Honours were almost evenly divided among the winners, every member of the squad notching a goal with the exception of W. Rogers, Rod Webb and goalie McMaster.

The teams:

Frankford: Goal, Romhanyi; defense, Guay, Bryden; centre, Reid, wings, Meyette, Foster; alternates, Pollard, McDonnell, Lawrence, Dore, Spencer.

Referees: R. Ennis, Norwood; H. Finnegan, Frankford.

Omemee scored four times in the first frame on shots from Barkley, Tripp, Jamieson and Parsons, while English for Lindsay netted their only counter. Tony Galento Is Out To Moider The Person Who Gave Him Pair Of Pants With No Seat

ORANGE, N.J., Jan. 20—(AP).—Two ton, two gun Tony Galento fanned the hammer of his shootin' iron and vowed he's, "get dat bum who gave me a pair of pants with no seat in 'em."

Galento, eminently successful as a pugilist, made his debut last night as leading man in "Two Ton Tony and his Buckaroos," a benefit show which attracted 1,500 townsfolk to the High School auditorium.

To add to the illusion that he was an actor, Galento donned a pair of chaps, the supposedly final touch to his cowboy costume. He discovered, two minutes before the entrance, that chaps do not cover that portion of a cowboy which is ordinarily settled in the saddle.

Surveying his figure, Tony announced in awed tones:

In the silence that followed one could have heard Joe Louis drop. Then:

"Holy moses! Where's me pants. I do dat stage in two minutes and I can't find me pants," shouted the eminent pugilist and tavern keeper. "I'll moider somebody!"

Underlings rushed away in search of suitable covering for the perspiring heavyweight, while a stage manager pleaded: —

"Keep quiet, please, those people out front will hear you."

"So what" roared Galento. "Dat's what they paid for dem tickets for ain't it? To see and hear me?"

Someone shoved a pair of pants in Tony's hands. He went out and spike his nine-line part, each line consisting of three one-syliable words.

Baseball Writers To Honor Barrow

NEW YORK, Jan. 20 — (AP). — On the theory that it is better late than never the baseball writers of this tremendous town decided today to give President Ed Barrow of the world champion Yankees a plaque "For meritorious services to baseball over a long period of years."

Such an award has been made annually for 11 years and perhaps the only surprise in the selection is that it didn't come sooner. He'll share honors at the New York Chapter's 17th annual dinner on February 4 with Bucky Walters, Cincinnati Reds' pitcher, who will receive a plaque as "Player of the year."

Aside from the fact that baseball has had a lot of notable characters to honor for valued services, the delay in getting around to Barrow may have been occasicned because he remained hidden in reflected glory for many years and really only came into his own upon the death of Col. Jacob Ruppert a year ago this month.

"Cousin Ed" has been running the Yankees for 20 years, however, and has been in organized baseball since 1896 [illegible] he managed and [illegible] pennants for Wheeling, W. Va. in the [illegible] League.

Army's Set-Up From Division To Foot Squad

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Jan. 20—(CP).—As the manhood of the Empire again mobilizes for war a bewildering succession of military terms greets the eye of the casual reader. Recruits entering the army learn their meaning by experience and instruction but civilians are sometimes confused. A glance through the organization of the Canadian Active Service Force provides concrete illustrations of the meaning of the commoner terms.

Canada has two divisions mobilized, one in England and one at home. The division is the largest Canadian military organization at present and contains about 12,500 men, divided among artillery, engineer, signals, infantry and servicing units of different functions. It is commanded by a major-general.

Main components of a division are three brigades of infantry and three brigades or field regiments of artillery. An infantry brigade is commanded by a brigadier, and consists of three rifle battalions, using service rifles and light machine guns.

There are also machine gun battalions which used heavy machine guns and travel in armored cars. They are corp troops, that is to say, while they may serve with a division they actually form a part of an army corps which consists of two or more divisions.

The officer commanding a battalion, whether rifle or machine gun, is a lieutenant-colonel. Each battalion consists of four companies, each under the command of a major or captain. Each company consists of three platoons, each commanded by a lieutenant, and each platoon of three sections, each in charge of a corporal.

Divisional artillery is in process of reorganization. The old setup, still in effect in Canada, provides for three brigades, each consisting of four batteries, one using howitzers and three using field guns. A howitzer is a short-barrelled gun used for firing projectiles high in the air in order to pass over obstacles such as hills, woods or buildings. It has a high "trajectory" the term used by gunners to denote the elevation reached by a projectile in the air before striking its objective. The field gun has a longer barrel, a flatter trajectory, and a greater range than a howitzer.

Each battery consists of a number of sections of two guns or howitzers each. A battery is commanded by a major, while a lieutenant commands a section and a sergeant heads a sub-section or the crew of a single gun.

The new set-up now being placed in effect with the first overseas division in England provides for three field regiments in divisional artillery. Each regiment consists of two batteries and each battery of a number of "troops" while each troop includes a number of sections. Divisional engineers are organized in companies.

Regimental Organization

This summary of the formations included in a division makes no mention of two terms commonly used both in and out of the army, regiment (in reference to infantry) and squad. A regiment is a recruiting organization and may include one or more battalions. In former years most of the regiments of the non-permanent militia included at least two battalions one called the active and one the reserve battalion.

A few years ago all but two were put on a one-battalion basis.

The regiments mobilized for the first and second divisions were called upon to provide battalions at war strength. Each infantry unit of the first division left behind in Canada a nucleus of all ranks which is called a depot.

"Squad" is a term used freely to designate any small body of troops, usually when they are in training. Thus a squad may be a group ranging from a half-dozen to 50 men, receiving instruction in drill, bayonet fighting, or rifle shooting.

Another term sometimes used is "detail." It designates a small group of men detached from their regular unit for some special duty. The men called up from the non-permanent militia units to guard air stations, docks, canals, bridges and other key points in Canada are organized in details.

Hat In Ring

Frank E. Gannett, Rochester publisher, who at a civic reception in his honor, announced his candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination. The 63-year-old critic of the New Deal will be a rival of New York County District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey for the state's 92 votes in the forthcoming G.O.P. national convention.

Finnish President Visits Bombed City

Major Ake Sloor, young aide-de-camp of President Kallio, of Finland, shows the President the golosh of a Soviet airman, shot down by anti-aircraft guns during a raid on Helsingfors. The President is constantly in touch with the men fighting in the front lines and frequently pays them surprise visits. Even the Soviet airmen appear to be insufficiently clad. Near Helsingfors a plane was shot down, the crew of which had no other shoes but rubbers.

LONDON, Jan. 20 (CP Cable)—Failure of Germany to launch a blitzkrieg—lightning war — may be due to a lack of seasoned leaders in the Nazi High Command.

The fact that Adolf Hitler's army does not contain a single officer who held rank above captain in the first Great War was revealed today by an unimpeachable source which cannot be disclosed.

The amazing revelation came from a man who once served in the Germany Army and whose present war duties demand that he be perhaps the closest student of the Nazi armed forces outside Germany itself.

Devitalized in Purge

There are a number of reasons why the "soldiers of the swastika" serving under Hitler, himself a corporal of the last war, are so completely lacking in leaders and tacticians with military experience.

For one thing, many of the Reich's front-rank army officers did not embrace the Nazi creed. Many others disappeared in the blood bath Hitler gave the party in June, 1934. That purge was as devitalizing a blow to the German Army as the more recent one Joseph Stalin carried out in the Russian Army.

Years, too, have removed a large number of other officers who directed Germany's unsuccessful war against the Allies from 1914-18.

The Reich's present military leaders had such an easy row to hoe in Hitler's absorption of neighboring countries that they have not gained the experience vital to facing a major enemy such as the Anglo-French Allies.

Polish Experience Useless

Some valuable lessons were learned by the men Germany loaned to General Franco in Spain's protracted civil war, but the blitzkrieg successfully carried out by the Nazis against a surprised Poland has been of little use to the German High Command so far as directional experience under fire is concerned. Once the Polish bases of supply—both in manpower and materials—had been scattered by the unchallenged German air force, the campaign was as good as over.

Military students regard the amazing stand of Finland against Russia as at least partly due to the fact that Stalin "rubbed out" a large number of his military leaders in a purge of "traitors" to his brand of communism.

If that is correct, lack of action on the Western Front is possibly due to Germany being completely devoid of experienced military leaders such as those who are directing the Allies' campaign.

Two Outstanding Producers

FRANK J. HUGHES CHARLES H. FOSTER

Mr. Sackville, Branch Manager of the Manufacturers Life Insurance Company at Peterborough, has pleasure in announcing the qualification of two well-known local representatives for the Company's 1939 Production Club. Mr. Frank J. Hughes, Inspector for the Peterborough Branch, will make his tenth appearance at the annual convention of the Company's outstanding producers, which will be held during the summer of 1940. A member of a well-known family in Peterborough county, Mr. Hughes was associated with the Manufacturers Life Branch at Edmonton for many years before his return to Peterborough in 1936. His many friends will be pleased by this further evidence of success in his chosen profession. Mr. Charles H. Foster joined the Peterborough agency of the Manufacturers Life Insurance Company in March of 1939 and, although his first year in the life insurance field has yet to be completed, he has achieved the enviable distinction of qualifying for the Company's $100,000 production club convention. Mr. Foster's accomplishment augurs well for a successful future in his new work. The Company's policyholders will be interested in the 53rd Annual Report which appears on this page in this issue.

County's Forest Is Commended

Ratepayers of East Peterborough are beginning to realize the value of the county's newly-acquired forest, E. N. McDonald, former warden, told the reforestation committee of the county council on Friday. Reeve W. A. Anderson presided.

"In other countries where I visited reforestation areas and plantations I found the people were very proud of their forest investment," Mr. McDonald said, "and that same spirit is developing in our own section. They appreciate its value as a means of conserving moisture, and it will also be a means of providing some work for men from time to time."

Reeve Anderson said that 2,660 acres of the property had been Crown lands from which no taxes had been collected and to that extent no hardship could be caused to the municipalities. In the discussion it was suggested by Reeve Martin of Dummer that if the two townships have been deprived of any tax income by the county forest some concession might be made to them when equalization of assessment is being considered again.

The committee decided to prepare a system of bookkeeping for the reforestation investment, instead of leaving accounts in the general statement of county receipts and expenses.

Harold J. Kirby, Minister of Health, to have passed the examination for nurse registration in the Province of Ontario, as required by the Department of Health.

Officers Installed

Past County Master Bro. R. J. Leeper presided as the officers of Blairton District Orange Lodge held their annual election and installation. The new executive for 1940 include: P.D.M., Bro. S. Buck; D.M., Bro. Wm. Yelland; D.D.M., Bro. W. Ellis; D. Chaplain, Bro. T. Stevenson; D. Rec.-Sec., Bro. W. Buck; D. Fin.-Sec. and Treas., Bro. H. Gardner; D. Marshall, Bro. M. Brown; 1st D. Lecturer, Bro. A. Cook; 2nd D. Lecturer, Bro. F. Elmhurst.

United W.M.S.

The Women's Missionary Society of the Havelock United church held their January meeting at the home of Miss A. Young, with a good attendance. Owing to the illness of the president, Mrs. A. McLauchlin, the vice-president, Mrs. T. Easterbrook, took the chair.

The devotional program concluded, Miss Young gave a fine talk on temperance, showing how much temperance is on the increase and told that intoxicating drink destroys more lives than war, pestilence and famine. Miss Young thought all should be more active in trying for better temperance legislation.

Mrs. G. W. Chiles was in charge of the lesson study with other members assisting. The lesson was from the new study book on India, dealing chiefly with the "untouchables" who were such a contrast to the Brahmans and others who were cultured and ready in speech and action and interested in religion and public life. The "untouchables" had nothing and were uncultured and uncouth had nothing to say in public affairs and were shut out from everything worth while. They were inarticulate in religion and reputed to be dirty and starved. Gradually, however, the Christian message reached the oppressed 'untouchables' and here and there it was heard with gladness. At first it seemed too good to be true, but their lives soon became changed when they heard, so changed that whole villages became Christian. A brighter day had dawned for them and they loved to hear more and more of Christ and His love. They also soon became intelligent, active and happy citizens.

The meeting adjourned with prayer.

Y's Men's Club Had Busy Year In Service Work

A parade of worthwhile service activities that merits approval from the public is indicated in the annual report of the Y's Men's Club which was submitted this week at the annual meeting of the Y.M.C.A., and proves again that this organization is keeping pace with other well-known service clubs of the city.

The report tendered by W. C. Wedlock, club secretary, is featured by a grant of $250 which provided shoes and boots to needy children who would have missed classes but for the assistance. Another service venture which was successfully sponsored was the transportation of al children in the Children's Shelter and St. Vincent's Orphanage to and from Zeller's Store to see the annual Santa Claus parade. Twenty-five dollars was donated by the club to assist in taking local children to Toronto during the Royal Visit.

Added to these were the sponsoring of a junior lacrosse team and the supplying of sweaters and equipment, entertainment of thirty boys at a turkey dinner at Christmas, entertainment of new members at the Y on October 26, and the expenditure of $100 to pay for memberships and help purchase gym clothes for some thirty boys.

Five Projects Sponsored.

During 1939 five projects were carried out and consisted of an excursion to the Toronto Skating Carnival, a bingo booth at the Peterborough Exhibition, sponsoring of the Wooding Southland Singers, bowling supervision, and formation of leagues and the annual dance.

The club contributed further to the welfare of the city and district by purchasing and mailing 150 copies of the 1939 annual vacation edition printed by the Peterborough Examiner.

According to the annual statement there was a los sin membership owing to illness and transfers but the high standard of service was maintained and the club looks for new growth in this year.

'Sally Anns' Busy Kiwanis Told

The "Sally Anns" are doing a job in this war as effectively as they did in World War No. 1, Adjutant Buckley of the Salvation Army told members of the Kiwanis Club at the regular dinner meeting in the Empress Hotel.

Adjutant Buckley, who succeeded Major Neil Warrander was introduced by Jacob Low, and in the course of his short talk he described a visit to Toronto in which he watched the Salvation Army workers busy in the huts at Exhibition Park. "Coffee and doughnuts cost a nickel if the soldier has the cash and if not the soldier gets the lunch free," said the speaker and thus the "Sally Anns" as they are affectionately dubbed by the soldiers, follow the custom set up during the last great conflict. He also stated that socks were distributed at regular intervals.

Adjutant Buckley's talk on Salvation Army war work was punctuated by several meaty bits of philosophy and interesting humorous stories which were thoroughly enjoyed.

He explained that the Salvation Army has a religion at which they work and suggested that the motto of service to others might well be accepted by many people to-day. "We have many likes and dislikes and very often we have a keen dislike for a person we know little about. I can assure you that one rarely hates a fellow when one knows him very well," he declared.

Leo W. Copp voiced the thanks of the gathering to the speaker and W. C. English, chairman of the Club, added his words of praise.

Next Friday is the 25th anniversary of the founding of Kiwanis and the program will be in charge of the Kiwanis Educational Committee headed by C. S. Browne.

Growth Of Aviation In Canada Is Described To Supper Club

There are men alive today who can remember when ox-carts pulled the first settlers across the Canadian prairies at a maximum speed of three miles an hour but this year sleek sky-liners with a speed of more than three miles a minute, wing their way from Halifax to Vancouver carrying in a year more than 25,000 passengers. With this statement H. D. Harling, city traffic manager at Toronto for Trans-Canada Airways opened his address to members of the Friday Night Supper Club in the 'Y' last evening.

His talk entitled "Today, Canada Flies," was a vivid word picture of the rapid growth of aviation and commercial flying in Canada during the past quarter of a century and he proudly pointed to the fact that for years Canada has led the world in volume of air freight carried.

"For some reason or other men have always wanted to get closer to the angels but if the fact was known they were probably very much nearer to the angels in the first flying contraptions than we ever will be in this era of aeronautical science where safety is the watchword.

Mr. Harling traced the evolution of flying from the ancient winged gods of commerce to the present day when air travel is practically accepted as an everyday medium of travel.

"The Trans - Canada route stretches from Moncton to Vancouver, 2,839 air miles, crossing seven provinces and bridging five time zones. In its swing T.C.A. takes in most of the capital cities of Canada and connecting lines carry to Calgary from Edmonton, to Seattle south from Vancouver and to other points in the States from main Canadian airports," he said.

Radio Beam Explained.

The radio beam, that invisible highway of sound between airports across the Dominion, was described by the speaker. He stated that there were radio beacons all across Canada which sent out signals in four directions. On the transcontinental airway the east-west legs are so claibrated as to form a continuous line over the route flown. When the pilot is on the course his radio gives out a steady hum broken at regular intervals by call signals identifying the radio beam he is riding. If he flies off the course he knows just where he is by a change in the signals. Should he bear too far to the right, he may hear the letter N which in Morse code is dash dot or if he veers to the left he may get a letter A which is dot dash. Like the ground traffic, the pilot keeps to the right in the "twilight zone" as it is called listening to the letter signal with the background of hum. When he passes through a cone of silence he knows he is directly over the range station.

The T.C.A. has a double track route from the Atlantic to the Pacific but the tracks unlike the railway do not run side by side. By rigid rule all west and southbound planes fly at odd number altitudes, that is, 3,000, 5,000, 7,000, and so on. Thus each flow of traffic has a smooth unobstructed channel 1,000 feet away from planes travelling the opposite direction. Another rule is that T.C.A. planes never fly lower than one thousand feet above the highest country, once cruising altitude has been reached.

The planes used on the T.C.A. are stream-lined Lockheeds with a wing spread of 65½ feet. They are considered to be the fastest air transports in existence, are powered by twin engines which generate 1,700 at take-off and 1,500 at normal flight and have a cruising speed of 187 miles an hour and a 244-mile-an-hour maximum speed. So powerful are these planes that they can maintain safe altitude with only one engine in operation. Each ship weighs five tons when empty and they can take a useful load of 6,300 pounds, including 2,800 pounds of cargo and 536 imperial gallons of fuel. Rubber overshoes on the leading edges of the wings and tail surfaces are mechanically inflated and deflated to break up ice film, while a de-icing fuel is kept running over the propellers during the times ice is likely to be encountered.

Mr. Harling explained the rigid rules followed to ensure the safety of passengers who use the T.C.A. facilities and summed up by saying a car is taken to a garage after something goes wrong, but an airliner gets a thorough check-up so regularly that danger of accidents are practically eliminated, in other words the airliner goes to the garage before anything can go wrong.

Mr. Harling paid tribute to the Dominion Government for the 24-hour meteorological service which warns of bad weather and makes it possible to maintain flying schedules by providing valuable weather data. All airports are connected by teletype and radio range equipment across the continent permits instrument flying.

"Canada has benefited by the experience of Europe and United States in the building of airports, in that she has allowed ample room for the airports to grow. The airports usually have three or four hard-surfaced runways running in suitable directions, and averaging 3,000 feet long. They are lighted by the most modern methods with white boundary lights placed 300 feet apart while the runways are outlined by flush type lights and the approaches have special identifying lights. Each field has a revolving beacon and a wind direction indicator.

Discipline never slackens on the airlines according to Mr. Harling, who told the club that pilots are being checked regularly on their knowledge and practice and they are require to appear before T.C.A. medical men for examination every month. Hours are regulated so that they never become fatigued on the job.

Radio Is Essential.

Without radio, operation of a commercial airline would be next to impossible the speaker salad. By this medium the T.C.A. pilot is never out of touch with the ground because he has four separate radios in the cokpit. Through one receiver he gets the radio range or beam signals that guide him through the air, this is in Morse code. Through another he receives by voice the latest weather data and other information. This is a two-way set and he may talk back, reporting his position, asking for clearance and so on. The third brings him the marker beacon signal in the mountains which indicates when he may begin to descend. The fourth is the standby for emergency.

The ever increasing use of the airways for business and vacation trips was stressed by the speaker and he also outlined the increase and popularity of air-mail and air express.

Outstanding Color Film.

Following the talk a film in color with sound was shown by Mr. Harling which illustrated a trip by air from Montreal to Vancouver and the rich coloring of the country was truly remarkable. The varied and valuable role played; by the air stewardess was also cleverly depicted.

Mr. Harling was introduced by H. L. Garner, chairman of the Friday Night Supper Club and the 90 boys in attendance gave the visitor a real ovation at the close of the program. The Club was particularly favored by the visit and showing of the film as it was the premier showing in Canada and the chairman had been trying for the past two months to have it brought to this city.

Committee Asks City Council To Buy Pumper

Purchase of a Bickle-Seagrave pumper and hose truck at cost of $9,450 was recommended to the council by the Fire, Water and Light Committee Friday night.

This machine, made in Woodstock, excepting its engine, was described as a triple combination pumper, booster and hose truck with a capacity of 600 gallons of water a minute, equipped with a 12-cylinder custom-made motor developing 190 horse-power, and capable of supplying three lines of hose.

Alderman McIntyre presided with the following members present: Aldermen Stocker, Ovens, McCannan, Dutton, Cotton, Wilson and Mayor Hamilton. Tenders were received from Bickle-Seagrave, Limited, The LaFrance Company of Toronto, and also from Charles H. Elliott and Lillico Motors of Peterborough.

The council has been discussing purchase of new motorized apparatus for the Fire Department for the last year or more, and came close to the buying point a year ago. It renewed its intention at a recent meeting, and the committee was authorized to advertise for tenders.

"With the excellent service the department has given the citizens I feel that we ought to buy the best machine when we are at it," Alderman McCannan said.

The LaFrance and Bickle-Seagrave prices for a new unit which has the approval of the Fire Underwriters' Association were identical, and neither company would consider accepting as trade-ins three obsolete pieces of equipment which are only occupying space at the fire hall.

Alderman McIntyre recalled that a year ago the Bickle Company had quoted $8,500 for a pumper with $2,000 allowance on the old apparatus. He asked B. I. Bickle, representing the company, why they now declined to consider "a deal" on the old equipment.

Mr. Bickle replied that the trade-in policy had been discontinued in recent months by a decision of the company that it was a mistaken policy which simply cut too heavily into profits.

"If you come up to our factory I can show you a pile of stuff that has cost us $24,500," Mr. Bickle said. "We are breaking it up as junk, and we will be lucky to get $700 for it."

Chief Gimblett informed the committee that the present pumper was bought in 1927, and had depreciated 35 per cent. The recommendation to buy the Bickle-Seagrave machine was moved by Alderman Dutton and seconded by Alderman McCannan.

Isinglass may now be used only in preserving food, in Moravia.

Lakefield Wins 10-4 Game Over Suttonites

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 20—(ENS)—In an O.H.A. Intermediate "B" game here last night Lakefield clinched second place by defeating Sutton 10-4 in a very hectic battle. Owing to the late arrival of the visiting team the game was late starting. Play was fast on a good sheet of ice with both teams putting up a good brand of hockey. The play was speedy and fairly clean during the first two periods with 10 penalties being handed out by Referee Max Board.

Sutton drew most of the penalties, getting seven altogether, but it broke into a near-riot in the third with every player into the scrap. A fight broke out after the game was over between some Sutton followers and Lakefield fans. Windsor in the Lakefield nets played a spectacular game robbing the Sutton rushers time and again, losing only on the rebounds.

Open Fast.

The first period opened fast with Sutton leading the play. Deith and O'Leary broke away and Deith scored, only to be called back by the referee. Shupe went off for tripping and Lakefield started pressing, keeping the Sutton goalie hopping. Chappell scored on this power play and Mortimer banged it in again four minutes later. Gerrard and Courneya were penalized for slashing and Culverwell and Milroy broke away with Milroy scoring the only goal for Sutton this period. The period ended 2-1 for Lakefield

The opening of the second started to show that it would likely end up in a fight. Stabler got the gate for tripping but the Lakefield squad held them to no score while a man short. Gerrard went off for holding and McDougall scored on a pass from the corner from Courneya. Shupe and Gibney were given a rest in the cooler for tripping and Courneya turned the red light on again on a swell pass from McDougall behind the defence. McDougall scored again on the picture play of the evening by going around four Sutton players and drawing Smith out of the nets to score. Birchell and Gibney both received penalties but Lakefield could take no advantage of them. Just before the bell Culverwell for Sutton scored on a good combination play with Millroy receiving the assist. The score at the end of the second period was 5-2 for Lakefield.

Some Trouble

The third opened hot and heavy with Sutton trying to cut down the 3-goal lead. Mortimer went off for tripping and with Sutton every man up, McDougall and Creighton broke away with McDougall scoring. Deith scored for Lakefield, picking up the loose puck from a scramble in front of the nets. Pearson was penalized and Milroy beat Windsor on a solo effort. Sutton lost heart when Culverwell scored on his own goalie. Mortimer and Milroy got the gate for slashing and Courneya got another goal while both teams were a man short. The game was held up for a time with the Sutton manager arguing with the referee. When play was resumed McDougall scored again this being the last goal for Lakefield. Gibney scored Sutton's fourth and last goal one minute later. With only three seconds of the game left the fight got under way. Smith and Stabler started and before it was finished every player on both teams was in it, no one drawing major penalties.

Windsor and McDougall starred for Lakefield. White, Milroy and Shupe looked best for Sutton.

Port Colborne Swamps Galt; Goodyears Win

By The Canadian Press

Teams clustering at the top of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior "A" standing had things almost their own way against occupants of lower berths in the three games played last night.

Port Colborne swamped Galt 10-1, St. Catharines shellacked Niagara Falls 7-1, but Toronto barely edged Hamilton 5-4 to remain at the head of the group with a four-point margin over the Ports who, in turn were two up on the Saints.

A goal by Lloyd Fitzgerald in the first period and another by Earl Laroche early in the second gave the Ports a working margin before Reilly sniped the lone Galt marker. MacKelvie added another for the Ports in the second session and then Vince Upper, Gooney McGowan, Fitzgerald, Laroche, McKelvie, Thompson and Leitch scored in the final frame to complete the rout.

Despite the one-sided score the Saints and Cataracts provided a rugged spectacle punctuated with 10 penalties, including a major to Rudy Pilous, Winnipeg skater who has made good in the O.H.A., after wanderings in England and the Eastern united States League.

After a scoreless opening session St. Catharines' marksmen banged in four quick tallies in the second period, Bill Mocha, Pete Backor, Red Reynolds, and Bobby Pinder finding the target before Ken Begin notched the Cataracts' lone score.

Reynolds wound up the scoring in the second frame. Blondy Buell increased the Saints' margin in the third before Reynolds turned the hat trick with his third goal of the game.

John Conick gave Hamilton a two-goal margin again early in the second chapter, but the Toronto club came back with a brace of goals, Eddie King and Murray Eszard, finding the range. Ab Tonn put his team back in the running with a score before the frame ended and Bert Turney tied the count early in the third. The winner counter went to John O'Flaherty half way through the final session when the Toronto forward line caught Hamilton's defence out of position.

Nine-Year-Old Bowler Has Average Of 140 With Top Score Of 237 In 10-Pin Bowling

CLIFFSIDE Park, N. J., Jan. 20.—(AP)— Joey Ferraro, going on nine, is a half-pint bowling prodigy who hasn't any doubts about what his career will be.

Joey, 46 inches tall and weighing in at an even 50 pounds, put on an exhibition of his technique the other night by chalking up two strikes in succession for newsmen.

"I guess I've had enough," he said in businesslike tones then.

In April he's going to go to the American bowling congress in Detroit, not just as the mascot of a local team, but as a full fledged contender.

Joey graduated into the 10-pin sport from his old business of shining shoes. He used to play around with a duck pin ball while waiting for customers in a bowling alley.

The tot surprised Teddy Berghorn, the manager. Berghorn gave him a few lessons and Joey began using a nine-poung ball.

That was just about a year ago. Now he uses a 12-pound ball and can bowl through a regular three-game match without tiring.

His average for 150 games is 140, and he's had four scores over 200. His top score is 237.

That career when he grows up?

It's all set, says Joey, he's going to be a bowling alley owner.

P.C.I. Cage Crews Defeat Lindsay

Three P. C. I. basketball teams kept the Garnet and Gray victory string intact by sweeping a triple header from Lindsay in the Scugog town's high-school gym last night, the junior boy's coming from behind to win 33-24, the Senior Girl's nosing out L. C. I. 14-12 and the Senior Boy's taking their third straight, 40-27. While they ran their combined winning streak to 7 in a row, all three teams met stiffer resistence than they expected.

Lindsay Juniors ran up a 13-6 lead in the early minutes, the homesters scoring the first three baskets before P. C. I. got going to bring the score to 22-15 at the half. The losers started off as though they were going to run away with the contest but their attack bogged down and P. C. I. got under way to win by a comfortable margin. P. C. I. made only 3 of their 13 attempted free throws while the winners made two in 8 as both teams passed up a good chance of picking up points. The P. C. I. guards were the winners stars, Ferguson and Rogow gaining 15 points between them and going well defensively. McQuarrie and Callahan lead the losers. The teams:

P. C. V. S.: (33) centre, Hall 10; forwards, Gillespie 6, Moorhead 2; guards, Ferguson 11, Rogow 4, Subs: Smith, Gardiner, Richardson, Saunders.

L. C. I.: (24) centre, McQuarrie 10; forwards, Bate 3, Callahan 10; guards, Stewart 2, Hamilton ; Subs: Anderson, Whitney, Lees.

Small Margin.

The P. C. I. Senior Girl's maintained a small margin almost all the way through their game to finally yank out a 14-12 victory in a fast if somewhat raggedly played middle game. The winners lead 9-8 at the half way mark and seemed to have just enough at all times to keep a point or two ahead of L. C. I. as the teams almost traded baskets after P. C. I. jumped ahead early in the game. Both teams played a fast passing game but spoiled a lot of nice offensive plays with bad shooting in and around the basket. P. C. I. made two in five free throws and Lindsay 2 in 9 chances. E. Saunders and E. Craig led the winners and E. Betts and M. Hamilton were best for the losers. The teams:

P. C. V. S.: (14) B. Cooper 2, J. Johnston 1, E. Saunders 7, G. Galley, E Craig 4, F Merrett, A Richardson, D Bateson, H Beatt, D Glover

L. C. I.: (12) G. McNiven, N. Webs, E. Betts 4, G. Routley, M. Hamilton 6, H. Algar, O. James, R. Marsales, M. Mackay, G. Pogue.

Referee: M. Walsh.

The Senior Boy's encountered stiffer opposition than expected and had a bad score before they finally walked off with a 40-27 victory over the red, blue and gold to run their winning streak to 3 games. The homesters, like the L. C. I. junior boys got the jump on the Garnet and Gray and ran up a good lead before the visitors got going and hauled down the deficit to lead at the half 19-10. The winners had good passing and beat the losers defence a lot of times on long passes for easy baskets. Moorhead lead the winners dropping in 21 points with Taylor and Johnston also prominent, while Delell and Reeds lead the losers. The teams:

Referee: Dr. Worton. Umpire: Mr. Hodeson.

CURLING

By HERB MARTIN

Fred Green is now the only skip who has not lost a schedule game this season. Up till last night Dave Grant shared the honors with Fred, but Dave had to bow to Charlie Westbrooke after a hard fought game on ice No. 4—and at that Grant scored six of the 10 ends but only one point at a time. The final score read, Westbrooke 8, Grant 6.

Looking over our records right from the beginning of the season with very few exceptions, the most interesting games have turned out to be those on ice No. 4—and invariably there has been only one or two shots difference in the scores and very often the last stone played has decided the game. On the seven o'clock draw the Best-Giroux duel was on ice 4 and it was all decided on he last end—and so it goes night after night.

We notice that the entries are still coming in for the big spiel on Wednesday—and once more we remind the local boys to get busy and line up their rinks.

A number of mixed rinks from Bobcaygeon will visit the club this evening to play in the first round for the "J. G. Harkness" trophy.

One of the young lady curlers said, "I don't see my name in your column". Well it will be there just as soon as we are sure of the date.

Marmora Boys Drop Game To Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 20. — Sunocos gave their best game of the season here on Friday when before close to five hundred fans they copped a 5 to 3 victory from Marmora.

Wilf Perry's squad certainly played well and the entire contest with one notable exception, saw a clean brand of hockey by both teams. The exception came in the second stanza when Wib Blake, flashy Sunoco right winger tangled with C. O'Neill of the visitors' defense. What started the row is not certain but sticks were being carried high and Blake emerged from the melee with a nasty gash on the face. Both players were benched for five minutes in the third period for the offense and Godden served the time for Blake who was still in the dressing room for repairs.

Robinson, who was out of the Stirling game Wednesday due to a knee injury he received in the game with Bata was back in the line up and though he tried hard it was evident that he was not in top form. Hendy dominated the play for the locals and gave a starry performance.

The game opened at a fast pace but the period ended scoreless despite the fact that the Marmora attacking unit managed several times to penetrate the visitors' defense.

Following Buskard's opening tally early in the second the locals went on a scoring spree and hammered in three in less than six minutes and finish with a safe 5 to 2 lead.

Both teams began the third period short handed when Buskard drove one that appeared labelled but Donald cleared into the corner and the play continued on even terms. G. Leonard bagged the final marker after eight minutes of the period. Hendy was chased for spilling Leonard and the Marmora attacking unit led by the two Leonards tried hard to overcome the two-goal lead but close-checking by the Sunocos rear guard held the score at 5-2. The game gave the locals their sixth win in seven starts and they will now meet Norwood here for their return game on Monday.

"Y" Gym, Aces Orfuns Win Girls' Tilts

'Y' Gym and Orfuns continued at the top of the Ladies' City League when they both won last night, but St. John's gave the leading Orfuns a bad scare before bowing 29-27 in a thriller; 'Y' Gym nosed out Westclox 18-8 in the first game and Quaker Aces trounced Quaker Debs in the nightcap, in the weekly trio of cage battles at the Y.W.C.A.

Orfuns have now won their last five games and the second place 'Y' team have dropped but one of their last five starts. Quaker Aces are in the third slot with St. John's, Westclox and Quaker Debs bringing up the rear.

Although held to a 4-3 score in the tight last half, 'Y' Gym were able to coast to a victory over Westclox by virtue of their commanding 14-5 first half margin. After a shaky start the losers came right back and made the last half plenty interesting, despite the winners' heavy lead from the opening stanza, several times threatening a rally that would have closed the gap. The winners made two of the seven fouls called against the Westclox and the losers could count only two of their eleven chances. 'Gigs' Dalliday again led the winning 'Y' Gym squad with 11 points, with B. Flynn also prominent in their victory. M. Goldie and B. Saunders domianted the play for the Westclox. The teams;

Westclox—A. Flynn, D. Dawson, B. Saunders (3), J. Hair, C. Metcalfe, M. Goldie (3), P. Wolstenholme, J. Crowe (2), M. McFadden, I. Vivash.

'Y' Gym— R. Dalliday (11), B. DeMaio S. Florence, S. Zacks, B. Flynn (5), S. Zacks, B. Pomeroy, R. Sullivan, L. Wesley.

Nearly Upset.

Orfuns were almost the victims of an upset in the middle game when the St. John's team put on a spirited rally that only fell two points short, in a thriller. A momentary lapse in the first half that let the winners pile up a 22-11 lead was the difference between a surprising upset and a close win. The winners gained an 11 point lead in the dying minutes of the first half that was just too much for the losers to handle, although they had a 16-5 margin in the last half and had most of the play in that period. The winners had a trifle the better shooting although both sides were above par. R. Thompson and A. Craig with ten each led the winners on attack, with H. Harte-Maxwell and E. Clarke topping the St. John's team. The teams:

St John's—E. Clarke (8), A. Bowler (6), D. Groombridge, E. Foster, H Harte-Maxwell (10), E. Gynane (1), F. Gynane (2), E. Harte-Maxwell.

Orfuns—A. Craig (10), A. Livingstone, G. Mortimer (5), M. Hawthorne, B. Thompson (10), M. Ferguson, M. Clarke, D. Ackford (4), M. Wood.

Referee—K. Gillespie. Umpire—H. Smith.

Quaker Aces had a wide margin over the Debs in the all-Quaker rival sortie, hanging up a 20-1 margin in the first half and then fattening their score with a 12-3 edge in the final period. The Aces had a wide margin in the play all the way, holding the losers to a single field goal while running in points through the rather weak defence of the losers. Aces made two of their 8 free throw chances and the losers made 1 in 10. P. Lawless and D. Weese shared the winners' scoring, getting 20 points between them with R. Farr best for the losers. The teams:

Referee—B. Dyer. Umpire —H. Smith.

Tweed Terriers Beat Stirling

TWEED, Jan. 20.—(ENS) — The Terriers on Friday evening took the Stirling Shells into camp at the local arena by a count of 5-2 before a small crowd.

In the first period the Terriers opened the scoring with Courneyea banging in a pass from Marsh, however, the Shells came back with two counters, with Walker tallying the first and Richardson the second. The second goal came with the Terriers two men short, Wagar and Tummon being in the panalty box. Four penalties were handed out in the first period with Walker and Wagar getting one apiece and Tummon getting the nod for two.

The only goal of the second period was scored by Courneyea on a pass from Marsh and Elsbury. However, there were numerous penalties for charging and tripping with Orr, Woodcock and Elsbury going off for the Terriers, and Walker and Armstrong of the Shells getting two trips apiece to the box. However clever playing by both teams preventing either side running up the score.

With the score tied going into the last period, both teams opened up, and as a result the Terriers on close passing plays rapped in three goals, with Courneyea getting the first of the last period on a pass from Elsbury, who went dow nalone on a solo rush to tally the second counter of the canto. Long, the mighty atom of the second line tallied the last goal of game on a pass from Wagar. J. Courneyea, Walker ond Tummon went to the bench in this period.

Reeves in the home team's nets played exceptionally well and only for his good work, the Shells would have run up a high count. The front line for the Terriers of Elsbury, J. Courneyea and Marsh were the most effective on the ice. Fox in the Shell nets also played well, and was fortunate on several occasions when several plays went astray.

The teams:

Stirling: Goal, Fox; defence, Jones, Walker, centre, Armstrong; wings, Fraser, Walker; subs, Morgon, Long, Dainard, Mays, Richardson.

ST. LUKE'S BRANCH.

A skating party with Miss Marion Dundas' group in charge was held on Thursday evening at the London street rink. The members gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. Dundas, and the skaters then proceeded over to the rink, while the non-skaters stayed and enjoyed the evening playing cards and Chinese checkers.

When the skaters returned (and it wasn't long) hot hamburgers, cake and coffee were served.

The thanks of the A.Y.P.A. to Mr. and Mrs. Dundas for the use of their home was voiced by Ray Pamnett and the members singing "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows."

The members are reminded of the District Council meeting to be held Tuesday evening in All Saints' Parish Hall.

ALL SAINTS BRANCH

All Saints A.Y.P.A. held its first regular weekly meeting of the 1940 season in the chapel on Monday evening. A singsong of favorite hymns was followed by a short business session with Miss E. Abraham in the chair. Plans for the annual play were discussed, and Les. Cavalier was appointed chairman of the dramatic committee.

At the conclusion of the business Doug. Weir and his edification committee took charge of the balance of the evening. Two teams of 16 members participated in a lively debate on the subject "The Church has failed its people." Following the debate an informal discussion group of all members led by Doug. Weir further enlarged on the topic. Although the subject was keenly debated no decision was arrived at and the matter was adjourned to a future meeting.

Bowling

Tonight is the closing night of the first half of our bowling schedule. There will be a short business meeting in the board-room after the games. This is open to all bowlers, so please arrange to be on hand. And again we repeat, bowling commences sharp at 7.00 p.m.

ST. JOHN'S BRANCH

St. John's branch held their annual sleigh-drive last Wednesday night with a fair turnout of the members and friends. The party finally got under way at 8 p.m. and set off for a merry drive up the river road, to Nassau and back. It being such a cold night, quite a number of the members preferred the warm Parish Hall to the extreme atmosphere outside and consequently missed the usual fun that takes place. On returning however, everybody joined in on the dancing with John Hooper at the piano. Afterwards, refreshments were served and the Rev. Brain brought the evening's entertainment to a close. Just at this time, we would like to thank all those who assisted in any way whatsoever, in helping to make our sleighdrive a successful one.

ST. GEORGE'S BRANCH

"Resolved that a wife is more beneficial to a young minister than a car", was the subject of a very interesting debate which constituted the literary program on Thursday evening. The decision of the judges, Miss B. Curtis, M. Holden and Rev. Floyd, was in favor of the affirmative. Miss C. Legon and B. Anderson. Their opponents were Mrs. Ray and Mr. Heap.

A short business meeting followed. Members going on the sleighdrive next Thursday please meet at the Church at 8 p.m. sharp. A bean supper will be served afterwards in the basement of the Church.

Trinity Group Entertains At Friendly Tea

A delightful, friendly tea took place on Friday afternoon when members of the Women's Association of Trinity United Church were at home to the ladies of the congregation at the parsonage, 30 Reid Street. Over 160 guests called during the afternoon, and were welcomed by the hostess, Mrs. G. S. Easton, and the Association president, Mrs. W. Stocker.

Vases of red tulips were used with charming effect in the library, and the drawing-room was bright with bowls of yellow roses. A chinese cut-work cloth covered the tea table, which was adorned with a graceful arrangement of spring flowers in a silver bowl and green tapers in low silver holders. A bowl of daffodils and ivory and green tapers in silver candelabra on the buffet added to the spring-like atmosphere of the dining-room. Pouring tea were Mrs. R. Neill, Mrs. R. E. Cutting, Mrs. R. J. Kidd, Mrs. F. C. Neal. Assisting to serve were Mrs. H. Chown, Mrs. W. Ovens, Mrs. L. Hale, Mrs. H. A. Mitchell, Mrs. H. H. Dinsdale, Mrs. F. Leslie, Mrs. H. V. Dobson, Mrs. C. Cummer, Mrs. F. S. Potter, Mrs. F. C. Paterson and Miss Lulu Morrow. Mrs. D. E. Bell and Mrs. J. D. Hall were in charge, and guests were ushered to the tea-room by Mrs. S. L. Smoke and Miss T. Mathers.

Hostesses in the drawing-room and library were Mrs. Gates, Mrs. J. Wolstenholme, Mrs. A. Sanderson, Mrs. G. E. Porter, and Miss Evelyn Morrow.

. . . Highlights of the annual mid-winter shows of summer fashions which are to be shown in Paris within the next few days, will include military-cut tailored costumes, with braiding and buttons and pockets borrowed from men's uniforms.

. . . Rich styles are out until the end of the war. There will be few ensembles and not many special afternoon dresses. Dresses will use a minimum amount of materials, probably three or four yards.

. . . Tailored suits are expected to make a comeback, along with straight-line long-sleeved woollen frocks. Dresses will be definitely shorter to please women with attractive legs as well as to conserve woollens and silks.

DOROTHY DIX

A Wife Can Divert and Amuse Her Husband Without Being a Combination Fan Dancer and Singer —All She Has to Do Is Keep Him From Being Bored.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—In a recent article you spoke of a wife keeping her husband nailed to his own fireside and from philandering with other women by entertaining and amusing him. In what way can she do this? If you can answer that, you know what you are talking about. If you can't, you don't. Don't duck this question.

A READER.

Answer:

I won't. And it doesn't require any I.Q. shark to answer it, either. Nor does it demand that the wife shall be a vaudeville artist with a repertoire of thrilling, amazing, amusing, colossal, side-splitting stunts that she can put on in order to keep her lord and master diverted. Nor does she have to be a fan dancer like Sally Rand, nor a wisecracker like Dorothy Parker, nor a singer like Grace Moore.

All that a wife needs to keep her husband entertained and amused at home is to use the same technique after marriage that she used before, and every woman who has got her man knows exactly what that is. She knows what went over big with him when he was courting her and, unless she is a moron, she is perfectly aware that it will still get the glad hand from him if she will only put on her act. Only she gets too lazy, or too indifferent, or too overconfident to do it. Now it is a matter of common knowledge that the No. 1 enemy of marriage is boredom. It incites husbands and wives to quarreling. It makes them yawn in each other's faces. It starts them out to hunt for somebody more amusing to talk to than the stooge across the table. It is at the bottom of nearly every divorce. Yet not one married couple in a thousand ever even think that if they want to keep their husbands and wives in love with them they must keep them entertained.

Especially must a woman make her home a cheerful and a pleasant place for her husband to spend his evenings if she wants him to stay in it, and she must be good company if she wants him to talk to her instead of some other woman. In the old days, when matrimony was a more stable affair than it is now and when husbands were more inclined to stay put, a woman might risk being a dumb clucK or a tear jug, and get away with it. But not now when there are too many places to go and too many jolly women just waiting for a bored husband for an audience.

I am not implying that every wife should be a spellbinder and carry a scintillating line of conversation. Quite the contrary. A tired man doesn't want to have to spend his evenings arguing politics or religion or philosophy with a wife who has boned up on them for the occasion, but he does want a wife who can talk pleasantly and intelligently about the topics of the day and who is full of cheery little small talk about the neighbors and what she has done and what she has seen.

Stevenson rated being a good gossip as among the most desirable qualities that a wife could possess, and most men secretly agree with him. At any rate, no matter how our husbands berate us for talking scandal, there isn't a wife who can't testify that her husband never stops her until she has told the last salacious detail.

Before marriage a girl's best play is always talking to a man about the things in which he is interested. She listens with rapt attention while he discourses about his business, his hobbies, his car. She laughs at his jokes. She begs him to repeat his funny stories. And one of the main reasons he leads her to the altar is to get a good listener.

But how many wives do you know who even make a pretense of listening to their husbands when they talk? A wife will glance over a paper while her husband is trying to explain his hopes and plans to her. She will say: "For heaven's sake, don't tell that old joke again." She will interrupt him in the midst of his best story to say: "Look at the kitten!" Many a husband has to go away from home to get any one to lend him their ears.

There is no mystery about amusing and entertaining husbands. It is just saying to a man the things he would like to have said to him. Listening to him when he wants to talk. And being good company. It is as simple as that.

DEAR MISS DIX—I am a divorcee, aged 28, with a child 4 years old. I am about to marry again, but my fiance has told me that he loves children and wants some of his own, and I have told him that I will not have another child because I feel that my boy would be neglected if I had other children. I feel that if this man really loves me he will be satisfied with my boy and me. Don't you think I am right?

MISS

Answer:

Certainly not. Your position is utterly preposterous. For how could you expect this man who loves children and has the paternal instinct to feel to another man's child as if it were his own, or to be willing to deny himself the joy of his own flesh and blood children in order that a stepchild may have no rival? Unless you can be more broad-minded and unselfish than that, you had best stay single.

The Bible Has a Phrase For It

DEAR MISS DIX—My husband is one of the finest characters I have ever known. He teaches a Bible class; works in church and any organization that is for the uplift of humanity; is charitable to a fault; seems to detest anything immoral; is regarded as one of the finest Christians and is much esteemed. We have been married more than 20 years and he has been devotion itself to me. Takes me with him to most places he goes and when he is away writes each day telling how lonely he is without me and how anxious he is to get back. BUT he has had many affairs with women. Recently when he was away and writing me these letters he had another woman with him. What do you think of him?

DISTRESSED WIFE

Answer:

The Bible calls a man like that a "whited sepulchre" and I don't think you can improve on the description.

Easy to Train Your Dog the Way He Should Go

Give a Course in Manners

It's so simple to teach the manners a well-bred dog should know. Give—in easy stages—this course of lessons: 1—Come, 2—Sit, 3—Lie Down, 4—Speak, 5—Lead with a leash, 6—Lead without a leash, 7—Retrieve, 8—Carry, 9—Shake hands.

Your pet learns quickly if you use the same words each time you give a command, use also the same tone of voice. And only one person should train your dog.

Use patience, too! For instance, to train your dog to lie down on command, you wait until he sits, then gently pull his front paws forward, saying "Lie down!" He'll try to rise, but patiently hold him down, repeat your command until he catches on. Then a tasty morsel to reward him!

In our 32-page booklet, an authority on dogs gives complete directions for diet and grooming, for recognizing, treating ailments. Tells how to train your dog, teach clever tricks.

Send 15c in coins or stamps for your copy of HOW TO CHOOSE AND CARE FOR YOUR DOG to Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

STOP FOR CHIC!

By ALICE ALDEN

WONDER what we'd do without traffic in fashions? First our clothes are matched to automobile upholstery—or vice versa. Next, we adopt stop-red for a sensational wardrobe color and match it in lipstick. Today's gloves are even newer, traffic-lighted in glass buttons of red, yellow and green! They were designed by one of our clever young Americans for the lady at the wheel, but are an all-around asset at any sports event, luncheon or the movies. The trim is only half of their attraction, the fit the other half. Cut three-dimensional to follow the contour of the hand, they are also made with rounded finger-tips and stitched to stay.

Teachers' Guild Views World Fair Through Eyes Of An Artist

With an unusual and very interesting approach, Andrie Bieler, a member of the distingushed Canadian group of painters, lectured on Friday evening in the Y. W. C. A. Green Room, to members and friends of the Women Teachers' Guild.

Mr. Bieler was introduced in gracious terms by Miss Constance Wagar who referred to his training and the high standard of his work which has usually a French-Canadian setting. She also spoke of the pleasant associations at Queen's University, where Mr. Bieler is president artist in which capacity he is well known to a large group of Peterborough Summer School students in art.

Beginning his lecture with an imaginary tour in the various buildings of the World's Fair, Mr. Bieler drew an interesting contrast between the representative art displayed. In the dictator countries he found a lack of originality and vitality, while the paintings of France and Belgium are perhaps, most outstanding and worthy of their great traditions. The art of the United States displayed a strong social consciousness and seemed a sad reflection of the depression.

Completely different were the pictures exhibited by Canadian artists whose strong highly spirited quality to their landscapes, which were however, barren of people.

In explaining the reason for this contrast, the speaker pointed out that American artists had been greatly influenced by modern French movements, as well as by Mexican painters, and thus have been slower in formulating a national art. This is not so in Canada, however, for as early as 1913 a group of artists were painting Northern Lakes and rivers. Then came the Great War and the forming of the well-known school of seven, whose landscapes were termed "an art of escape"—from the drudgery itself. Then, too, the fact that they were true sons of nature, as well as descendants of the Impressionists, made them wholly a landscape school.

"Our art cannot be a true expression of Canadian life until the social scene becomes equally important" declared Mr. Bieler who referred to the way in which the Egyptians, Greeks and Florentics made use of the human figure, as do such modern French painters as Cezanne, Renior and Van Gogh.

The guild is to be congratulated for having given Peterborough artists the privilege of this lecture. On behalf of the organization, their sincere appreciation was voiced to Miss Cox for her piano numbers and to Mr. Bieler for his fine resume of Canadian art by Miss Margaret Whittaker who is also a summer school student at Queen's University.

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, January 21.

Sunday's horoscope holds omens of a conflicting nature, with the personal relations giving unrest or concern, despite their activity. While there may be gaiety, good fellowship and pleasure trips, there are certain dangers or upset plans. These call for discretion and prudent readjustments. Be alert to accidents.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of contradictory circumstances to cope with. While there will be much activity, desirable change and moderate progress, with social or affectional relations holding happy promise, as well, there are menaces of deceit, treachery and probable accident or other sudden misadventure. Use wise and circumspect behavior in equivocal places.

A child born on this day, although talented, enterprising, bold and adventurous, with much personal charm and geniality, may have certain trends toward deceit and treachery, inviting kindred reactions and sufferings from its fellows.

For Monday, January 22.

Monday's astrological forecast is for a particularly lively and strenuous day, with much progress to be made by shrewd, even drastic and high pressure methods. Yet, the best endeavors seem beset by dangers of loss, possibly by confused ideas, duplicity or fraud. It may take tact, intrigue or strategy to circumvent trickery.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year in which success, happiness and prosperity may depend upon their native shrewdness, prudence and diplomacy, since there are omens of fraud, deception and secret enmities, undermining business as well as personal relations. Precaution, vigilance and strategem may circumvent sinister undercurrents.

A child born on this day may have much adaptability and talent, with keen imagination and quick intuitions averting much deception in its life.

First, make a syrup by stirring 2 cups granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. A child could do it. No cooking needed.

Then get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. This is a compound containing Norway Pine and palatable guaiacol, in concentrated form, well known for its prompt action on throat membranes.

Put the Pinex into a 16-ounce bottle, and add your syrup. Thus you make 16 ounces of very efficient remedy, and you get four times as much cough medicine for your money. It tastes fine and never spoils.

And for quick, blessed relief, it is splendid. You can feel it penetrating the air passages in a way that means business. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and eases the soreness. Thus it makes breathing easy, and lets you get restful sleep.

Just try it, and if not pleased, your money will be refunded.

FOR EXTRA MONEY, YOU CAN RENT THAT SPARE ROOM OR SELL YOUR USED FURNITURE, OLD STOVE, REFRIGERATOR OR CLOTHES

"TELL BILL GOODBYE"

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

By Marie Blizard

SYNOPSIS.

The characters:
FABIENNE SEYMOUR, rich, young and beautiful.
NICKY BARTLETT, wealthy and in love with Fabienne.
ELLEN CHAPMAN, young and capable mistress of Willoughby House
DR. BILL MALLORY, close friend of Ellen's.
YESTERDAY: In order to economize, because she has drawn on her income for a theatre project, Fabienne goes to live with Ellen, asks for her own room so as to avoid Bill.

CHAPTER TWENTY

IT RAINED the Saturday that Fabienne was moving from her spacious, luxurious quarters to the small room at the back of Ellen's apartment. It was a cold, spirit-chilling rain that sluiced over the windows and dripped drearily on the roofing of the terrace below Fabienne's windows, beating out a dirge to mark the passing of comforts.

The room at Ellen's had a big four-poster bed that took up most of the space, a writing desk and big easy chair, fresh frilled curtains at the windows and lamps that cast a cheery glow over the freshly painted walls. It was comfortable and attractive. But it's single window looked over a brick court and presented a view very different from the one that Fabienne faced from her hotel window.

The broad areas of the park, for all that they were brown and gray with winter's blight and January rain, gave her a feeling of space. Space, space, she thought wildly as all men do when the limitless fields of peace are not within the domain of their own hearts. I must have space! As if an answer lay over the far horizon, an answer to the inarticulate cry for fulfillment.

That cry was deep in Fabienne Seymour, although she did not know it for what it was. If she had had a gift for divining the depths of herself, she would have known that chance had swerved her from the destiny toward which her twenty-four years had been pointed.

Who is there to know that the fit of pique that sent her footsteps on the unaccustomed path of service was not something more? A predordained means, perhaps, of sounding the sleeping good that had been wasted in the soft, selfish pattern by which she had lived.

For the changes in her character had been many since that autumn day when she had first come to Willoughby house. Not that she was willing to recognize a growing strength and grace and unselfishness in herself. Later, she thought it was the gift of love that had erased her former values and taught her the real meaning of life.

In a sense, at this period of her life—this novitiate that was her experience in working for others—it was not Bill Mallory, or her feeling for him, that was molding the fine, strong lines of her character. It was her feeling for him that had first made her aware of a quickened sense of living. But it was the poor, the unfortunate themselves — and Ellen Chapman—who had made her feel a sense of responsibility that she was never to rid herself of.

As for her feeling for Bill, she had met that problem twice. The first time she had told herself, with conviction, that her brief unhappiness had been only frustration. The second time had been recent; it was on Christmas day that she had decided she wanted to have him for her friend.

The cry within her was not strident, was not voiced. Not even once did she say to herself, "This is the man I want. I know now that I want and need love." No, for she believed that it was not true.

And yet when Ellen invited her to share her home, instinctively Fabienne had said she must have a room that would guarantee her privacy.

It would not be privacy like this, she thought, sweeping the living room with her glance. She went on into the bathroom and looked for a long time at the gleaming tiles, the mommoth bath, the great thick towels. She turned her back on them and went out to close the last of her three trunks.

Not for many years was she ever to know luxury like that which she was leaving. But the years were to be filled with greater happiness than sybaritic pleasures had ever brought her.

She was putting on her hat when a sharp knock sounded at her door. It would be the porters coming for her trunks.

"Come in," she called.

"Thought I'd surprise you," Nicky drawled in his nice, easy voice from the door.

"Nicky!" She flew across the room, kissed him and told him that he was the proverbial sight for sore eyes.

"What's all this?" he asked, waving his hat in the general direction of her luggage.

"I'm moving. Going out into the cold cruel world," she said, suddenly feeling sorry for herself. She added, "I'm moving down to Twelfth street with Ellen Chapman. Remember her? I wrote you about her."

"Remember her!" he snorted. "The woman that ruined my life! How I rue the day I ever consented to drive you to those slums! What is this strange power this female has over you? She must be a she-wolf in sheep's cloth—"

"That'll do, Nicky. Ellen is the one real person I've known in my life and she hasn't done anything but show me the way to the most interesting thing I've ever done. If you know Ellen, you'd feel the same way I do about her." She looked at him then and said, "No, I don't think you'd see Ellen's qualities."

But she was quite wrong.

"I drove up this morning with the Jackson's," he told her. "They are waiting for us at the Meadowbrook. You can do your moving later."

"But I said I'd be down by five."

Nicky picked up her coat. "Come along, old girl. We'll have a cocktail and move you later. You'll need something bracing on a day like this."

It was cheery at the Meadowbrook. Mirabel and Frank Jackson were full of good gossip, horse talk and plans.

Fabienne forgot that she had promised to be at Ellen's at five. When she remembered, she thought it didn't matter, since she was going to spend four dreary months—maybe longer—living at the apartment on Twelfth street.

After her second cocktail, the prospect seemed completely unattractive and she wondered how she had been able to let herself in for that impulsive act that would cost her her comfort.

Mirabel said, "The Yancys are coming back from their honeymoon next week, darling, and there are some grand parties planned. Why don't you come back with us? You know you promised that you'd come back after your Christmas trip."

Not since the days before her mother had told her she must marry Nicky had Fabienne liked him as much as she did that night. Perhaps when she finished the theatre project at the settlement house, it would be a good time to make a decisive move in her life. To marry Nicky and make a home and family life for herself.

She looked at his profile covertly, liking it, as she rode beside him in the tonneau of Mirabel's town car in which she had driven from Maryland. It was cosy and warm in the car. Outside it was cold and wet and lonely. Inside was the little world she preferred.

It was after nine and her luggage was in the truck that preceded them down Fifth avenue and turned into Twelfth street, while she was thinking those things.

The car pulled up in front of Ellen's apartment house. Fabienne said, "We'll have to get someone in the apartment—the superintendent— to help the driver. He can't manage all those trunks by himself."

She rang the bell beside Ellen's name and waited for the buzzer to open the door. A minute later, Bill Mallory opened the door. "I was afraid I'd have to come and get you," he told her.

"Where's Ellen?"

"Don't know. I've been waiting for you since five. Go on up. I'll give the truckman a hand. Rustled trunks to pay part of tuition at college, you know."

He'd been waiting for her since five! She forgot all about Nicky, standing at her elbow.

"The Authority on Authorities"

A TIME TO FINESSE

HOLDING a singleton of a side suit opposite an ace-queen in dummy, it is usually bad tactics to finesse during play of a suit contract, especially if there are no side entries on the table. But if the discard of a loser is needed badly in some other suit, the finesse may be the correct play. It is emphatically so in such situations if the defender at the left had bid that suit, thereby indicating the likelihood of his having the king.

After South's 1-Spade on this deal, West bid 2-Hearts and North doubled. East refrained from making his natural bid of No Trump, passing to see what might follow. He was later glad, because South took out the double with 2-Spades. West bid 3-Diamonds, North 3-Spades and East hopped on this with a double.

West led the club 8 to the Q and A. South led the heart 8 to the A, refusing to finesse, then led the diamond 7 to the J and Q. West returned the spade 3 to the K. East took the spade A and offered another spade, taking out dummy's last one. With three tricks already gone, South still had to lose two more diamonds and the club K, so was down two.

Had South properly finessed the heart Q on the second trick, he could then have discarded a diamond on the A, would thus have lost only two diamond tricks and would have been down only one, for a loss of only 100 points, less than the real value of the part score the opponents could have made.

County Road Levy Cut Fifth Of Mill

The county council clipped one-fifth of a mill from its county roads appropriation of last year in fixing Friday afternoon the rate for 1940 at 2.5 mills.

The corresponding levy in 1939 was 2.7 mills, and as the roads and bridges committee, with Reeve A. B. Mann presiding, began consideration of the rate for this year it was at first suggested that the rate be retained a 2.7 mills.

Reeve W. A. Anderson, Otonabee, suggested that in view of the possibility of the county making some contribution to Canada's war fund this year the rate might be reduced one-tenth of a mill to 2.6 mills.

Reeve M. H. Johnston, North Monaghan, moved, seconded by Warden McColl that the county road rate be 2.5 mills, and without any further debate that figure was recommended for the council's approval.

The county's contribution for the work of the Suburban Area Commission is $10,000, the same amount as last year. Reeve Johnston moved that resolution, which Reeve M. Coughlin, Douro, seconded.

For work on bridges the sum of $7,500 was suggested, leaving the disbursement of the money to E. A. Chalmers, county engineer, but it was decided to leave this item to the county roads committee for a report at the June sessions.

Road Appropriated

Deputy-reeve McIlmoyle of Smith succeeded in getting through the committee, and ahead of the rush, a motion for the assumption of the three and a half miles of township road from Young's Point to Selwyn as a county road. It had once been in that category but was returned to the township. Traffic in the last few years, Mr. McIlmoyle said, had been increasing over that strip of road, and for that reason he contended that it should be assumed by the county. Reeve Gifford seconded the motion.

The two Otonabee members, Reeve Anderson and Deputy-reeve Davidson then asked that the five miles of the old Norwood Road from the Lift Lock to the sixth line be assumed by the county, and that brought other claims by Reeve Coughlin and Warden McColl, and just as the procession was forming, Reeve Gifford moved, seconded by Deputy-reeve Archibald, North Monaghan, that these proposals be left with the road committee until the June session.

Reeve Wallace Shearer, Harvey, suggested that the county might consider buying the old Mississauga bridge if it was needed anywhere. Its span is thirty feet, but its width only twelve feet. He said the Department of Highways would probably offer it as a bargain, and it could be widened. The roads committee was asked for a report on this in June.

E. N. McDonald, former Warden, recommended to the committee that some money could be economically spent in removing from the Cordova Road some of the boulders against which the county's plow bangs with possibility of damage to the machine.

Norwood Bridge

The committee acceded to the appeal of Reeve J. R. Thompson, Norwood, for the assumption of Findlay's Bridge in the village, and its repair during the coming summer.

"I don't like this idea of the British holding up United States mail," Senator Borah told an Associated Press writer Monday, "and I'm going to speak about it in the Senate. (State Secretary) Hull has rightfully and vigorously protested to the British Government on the question, but Britain pays no attention.

"We can make them respect American mails and I have in mind demanding that the United States take retaliatory action—perhaps denial of port facilities to British ships—until they permit the passage of mails without interference and without delays."

"I suppose they'll start howling again that I'm anti-British," he added. "I'm not anti-British and I never have been. It's just that they do so many things to us that need to be called to the attention of the American people."

(He referred to a United States protest over British examination of all mails which might contain currency contraband for Germany. The British reply, now being studied, has not been made public.)

Paris Attitude.

PARIS, Jan. 20.— (AP).— The newspaper L'Orde paid tribute today to William E. Borah's force as a leader, but expressed the view his death had improved France's position in the United States.

Comment on the death of the Idaho senator showed two interpretations of his international outlook. L'Orde called him one of Frances "adversaries," but Le Matin, the only other morning newspaper to comment, quoted him as having said: "It is false to say I do not love France."

"He had always been one of our adversaries," L'Orde said. "He understood nothing, absolutely nothing, of things of Europe and made of this incomprehension a sort of crown."

Stephane Lauzanne, writing in Le Matin, reported a dinner conversation in which, he said, Borah declared that if he knew France, "perhaps I would love her, but I wish to know and love only America."

Premier Hepburn gave assurance that no disciplinary action was contemplated against nine Liberals for voting against the Premier's motion of censure concerning Federal Government war policy.

The Premier said in an interview that the resolution having been presented "on the spur of the moment" and not having been discussed in caucus, left the members free to vote as they pleased.

One echo of Thursday's debate was heard in the house yesterday when Col. Drew replied to the charge of Allan Lamport (Lib. Toronto-St. Davids) that Col. Drew had impeded Canada's war preparations by his Bren gun contract charges. Mr. Lamport's statement was made yesterday and Col. Drew was not in the house at the time.

Mr. Lamport attempted to continue the discussion yesterday after Col. Drew spoke, but the speaker ruled the matter closed. Mr. Lamport persisted but Premier Hepburn called orders of the day.

Col. Drew said that all his charges concerning the Bren gun contract had been proved "in every detail" at the Royal Commission inquiry conducted by Mr. Justice H. H. Davis of the Supreme Court of Canada.

Quebec To Push Apple Sales

MONTREAL, Jan. 20 — (CP). — Quebec's apple growers were advised last night by Premier Godbout that the Provincial Government would be "right behind" them with "all possible co-operation" in any campaign to promote apple sales.

The Premier spoke before the 46th annual banquet of the Quebec Pomological and Fruit Growing Society here. He suggested a newspaper advertising campaign to stimulate apples sales, lagging since the outbreak of war.

To make up for export markets lost by the war, Premier Godbout urged a vigorous campaign throughout Canada.

The Premier discussed agricultural associations and expressed belief they should be headed by practical farmers, not by any government official, no matter how competent.

"But don't think that this is a hint that I might refuse co-operation," he added. "Rather the contrary. The government is anxious to help you as much as it can—in a financial way, if that be needed, though we haven't much money to spare."

(New evidence of aid for Finland came from Canada where exporters with Finnish connections were buying up quantities of Canadian oats and oats products.

County Favors Re-appointment Of M. H. Gainey

Possibly it was the afterglow of the amenities of Thursday night's dinner that prompted the county council Friday afternoon to recommend to the city council the reappointment of M. H. Gainey as the city's representative on the Suburban Area Commission.

The county has already reappointed for another five years its veteran member, Morley E. Smithson. He and Mr. Gainey were present Friday for the preentation by E. A. Chalmers, county engineer, of his annual report, including his summary of the work of the Commission in 1939.

Mr. Smithson thanked the council for their confidence in retaining his services for another five years, but Mr. Gainey remarked that he did not know where he stood because the city council had not yet made its appointment.

At that stage Warden McColl, in committee on roads and bridges, with Reeve A. B. Mann in the chair, moved a resolution, seconded by Reeve Norman Lean of Burleigh-Anstruther, "that we convey to the city council our complete satisfaction with the work of Mr. Gainey as a member of the Commission, that we tell them of the pleasant business relations with their appointee, and that we respectfully ask for his re-appointment." The resolution was unanimously adopted.

Has No Regrets.

Mr. Gainey said his record as a member of the Commission was known to the council. His policy had been to try to deal fairly by the county and the city. "I feel that the city should have no complaints as far as I am concerned. We assumed city boundary roads, because there was a lot of county and city traffic over them, and no objection was raised by the county or the Department of Highways. We have tried to equalize things between the county and the city. We improved the River Road because it is a scenic asset to the city, and again the county did not make any objection to that expenditure. I could mention other work of that nature that has been done.

"I would like to say that I have always been well treated by the county, and it has been a pleasure to work with the other commissioners. If some one else is appointed in my place I know that he will be equally well treated. I have always felt that the farmers have to be considered in our expenditures, and also that the better roads we make the more farmers will come to the city, and that means more money spent in Peterborough."

Reeve Melville Johnston moved a resolution of thanks to the Commission for their co-operation with the council. "I think they have done their best for the convenience of the largest number of people. I hope the city will see fit to keep Mr. Gainey in his old place again."

The resolution also acknowledged the efficient services of Mr. Chalmers.

County's Deficit Is $2,864.72 Council Advised

A deficit of $2,864.72 in its financing last year was reported by the finance committee of the county council in a session with Reeve J. R. Thompson of Norwood in the chair.

An increase in education costs, a more or less continuous and chronic vexation to the council was said to account for the comparatively small item in the red ink, and Miss Jennie Batten, clerk and treasurer, said it might be slightly increased when final school demands were returned.

Sessional meetings on the third Tuesday of January were at about a week too early for a final statement, Miss Batten said, and it was recalled that councils used to convene for their first sessions of the years a week later than at present, the change having been caused by a decision of the government.

One of the larger credit items in the county's assets is the sum of $42,641.19, the subsidy of the provincial government on the 1939 expenditure for roads and bridges. The council directed that this levy be sent forward to the Department of Highways.

No Dep't. Is Exempt Fears Federal Taxes To Hit Revenue

TORONTO, Jan. 22. —(CP) — Premier Mitchell Hepburn, Provincial treasurer, has instructed all provincial departments to reduce their estimates of controllable expenditures for the next fiscal year by 15 per cent, it was learned today as cabinet ministers were busy revising preliminary figures they had prepared.

Estimates for the 1939-40 fiscal year to end March 31 next were the highest in the history of the Province, though they showed reductions in some departments. The general order now issued exempts no departments from the cutting to be made in the figures for the fiscal year to start April 1.

The Premier has said that it is feared that Provincial revenues will be impaired by new Federal taxation.

It has not yet been determined whether Provincial grants for schools, universities and like purposes are to be cut 15 per cent. They may escape the cut if the total reduction can be made in other items in the education department.

Last 6 Scotians In 4 Million Rum Case Get Off

HALIFAX, Jan. 22 — (CP). — Acquittal of six alleged conspirators in a liquor ring here today marked the end of one of the longest and most extensive criminal actions in the history of the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia.

The cases date back to the autumn of 1938, when charges were laid against 24 Nova Scotians of conspiring to defraud the Government of revenue by illegal liquor traffic. The amount involved was placed at $4,000,000.

Only one of the accused elected summary trial. He was Captain E. A. Young of Halifax, who was convicted and sentenced to seven months in jail. He was released several weeks ago after having served 10 weeks of his term.

Tip To Neutrals Received Quite Coolly

LONDON, Jan. 22—(CP Cable).—A British spokesman today said Winston Churchill's speech urging neutrals to joint Great Britain and France in their war effort against Germany should be regarded as a "fireside talk" by a Cabinet Minister and not as a considered statement of government policy.

The statement was made after press reports reached here showing the warning of the First Lord of the Admiralty had met a chilly reception in neutral countries. The spokesman asserted:

"The neutrals should keep the speech in its right perspective. Nonetheless it was the statement of a situation which was obvious to every one."

Britain is engaged in a war to prevent German aggression and the neutrals "who have had to spend vast sums preparing to resist such aggression would benefit from a peace won through the Allies' expenditure of blood and treasure just as much as the Allies themselves."

In his speech Saturday, Mr. Churchill said he believed the war would spread both to the north and south. He invited neutral states to join in "united action" against "aggression and wrong."

Just Want Neutrality.

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 22 — (CP-Havas). — The three Scandinavian countries want only to preserve their neutrality, the newspaper Politiken said today in commenting on Winston Churchill's proposal on Saturday that all neutral countries of Europe unite with the Allies in the war against Germany.

The editorial in the Politiken was the only comment carried by the Danish press. Asserting that various speeches by responsible Ministers of Denmark, Norway and Sweden have already given answer to the British suggestion, Politiken said:

Four British, 3 Neutrals Sunk In Wave Of Ship Losses; British Destroyer Victim

8 Killed, 73 Missing On Warship Mined Or Torpedoed

LONDON, Jan. 22.—(CP).—Four British ships, one of them a destroyer, were sunk in a wave of week-end shipping losses.

Three neutral victims also added to the heavy toll of men and ships, especially in icy waters around the British Isles, which some sources blamed on an increase in German mines.

Sinking of the destroyer Grenville, 1,485-ton flotilla leader, "by a mine or torpedo" was announced by the Admiralty yesterday. She was the fourth British destroyer sunk in nearly five months of war and Britain's 21st loss to her fleet. When she sank was not disclosed.

The Admiralty said 118 officers and men were saved, but "eight are known to have been killed and 73 are missing and must be presumed to have lost their lives." Among survivors landed at the east coast port were some severely wounded, and the commander of the warship, Capt. G. E. Creasy.

Britons saw the week-end losses as pointing up Winston Churchill's warning of Saturday that "many losses and misfortunes" still lie ahead in the war at sea, even though allied successes have been

MARSEILLE, France, Jan. 22. — (AP) — Italian officals announced late this afternoon that all of the 412 passengers aboard the burned Italian motorship Orazio had been rescued, despite heavy seas and speed with which fire ravaged the vessel yesterday off the south coast of France.

Local agents of the Italian line, owners of the vessel, said that "only a few" members of the crew of 231 still were missing after a new check-up of survivors taken aboard half a dozen rescue ships.

First Survivors Arrive

MARSEILLE, France, Jan. 22.— (AP)—First survivors of about 600 persons aboard the burned Italian liner Orazio reached here today with harrowing stories of a sudden explosion which enveloped the 11,699-ton ship in flame and destroyed all but two of her lifeboats.

The 47 survivors brought to safety by a French auxiliary cruiser said most of the Orazio's passengers and crew threw themselves into the stormy Mediterranean, where they were picked up by lifeboats launched from three Italian merchantships and two French warships

TOKYO, Jan. 22.—(CP).—Japan to-day formally protested the British action in halting the Japanese liner Asama Maru and removing 21 German merchant seamen. A shot was reported fired across the bow of the Japanese ship.

The Japanese protest declared "forcible measures" were used to remove the Germans when the Asama Maru's captain declined to surrender them.

It asked that Britain "promptly furnish a full, valid explanation" and reserved for Japan the right to demand return of the German seamen.

GERMANY is secretly throwing out feelers for peace with the western powers and at the same time preparing for a stroke to the east, the diplomatic correspondent of the Observer said Sunday.

"From no fewer than four neutral countries—Sweden, Holland, Switzerland and Italy—information has been received," the correspondent said, "that German agents, calling themselves delegations, have crossed the frontier from Germany and have made known their 'mission', namely, to suggest still another basis for an immediate armistice."

Italy Recognizes Jap Regime, Angers Chinese

ROME, Jan. 22.—(AP).—Foreign observers predicted to-day the Central Chinese government would protest against Italy's virtual recognition of a Japanese-controlled government for conquered territory in China before it is organized.

Felicitations to the projected regime were conveyed in a telegram to Wang-Wei, whom the Japanese have designated as government head.

Foreign Minister Count Ciano, it was disclosed officially, messaged Wang that "China with her great neighbor, Japan, will find a new era of prosperity and friendship" and added:

"I must express most sincere felicitations, and I assure you that Fascist Italy is ready to offer your work of national reconstruction her comradely collaboration."

Wang arrived at Tsingtao to-day for a conference with heads of the Japanese-controlled governments of Peiping and Nanking in an effort to work out a central regime.

Wang's message in reply said that he appreciated the "full value" of the Ciano note.

The former Chinese premier broke with General Chiang Kai-Shek, head of the Chinese government and army, a year ago and since has sought an end of the war on Japanese terms for the "new order."

No Anti-Red Clauses?

Diplomatic observers expressed doubt that the anti-comintern pact figured prominently in the exchange of messages. Japan, Italy and Germany were the chief signers of the pact to oppose international Communism.

Sunday Storm Leaves Highways Piled Deep In Snow

TORONTO, Jan. 22 (CP)—Winter returned with renewed fury to most parts of Ontario during the week-end, leaving a heavy fall of snow, blocked sideroads and scattered drifts that impeded traffic.

Eastern sections along Lake Ontario bore the brunt of the storm which rode in on a high wind Saturday night. Belleville, Kingston, Brockville all reported high winds and intermittent falls of snow. Peterborough district reported nine inches of snow over the week-end though the fall was fluffy and failed to block traffic. Belleville reported railway snowploughs in use throughout the week-end, permitting rail traffic to adhere pretty well to schedule. Highway traffic, however, was confronted with "heavy" roads and buses were travelling an hour behind schedule all week-end.

Rising temperatures were indicated from most sections, including most of Western Ontario. The main storm missed Hamilton although spasmodic falls helped to block sideroads. Brantford, Galt, Stratford Kitchener, all were in line of the main storm which reached proportions of a blizard in some districts.

Snow still was falling in some sections today.

Although there were no blocked roads in Peterborough vicinity, light snow and high winds for the Belleville area caused anxiety to county and provincial authorities as they battled to keep roads open. Over the week-end snow ploughs cleared the main highways out of Belleville while country roads were made fairly passable. North and south roads were completely filed by the worst storm of the year on Saturday, while east and west roads were passable but not good.

Canadian National Railway snowploughs worked over the week-end out of Belleville and trains were kept fairly well to schedule. Bus lines were at least an hour late over the week-end. Farmers welcomed the snow for their fall crops.

The paper said an increase in the excise tax from $4 to $5 per thousand on cigarettes is expected. The last tax increase from $3 to $4 per thousand was made about three months ago and brought about a re-

Miss Long Trip

London, Jan. 22 (CP).

HOW a 25-ton Royal Air Force flying boat just missed going to New York was told to-day.

The big plane, with a crew of 10, was on patrol over the Atlantic recently when ice formed on its wings and forced it down.

A Netherlands freighter took the British fliers aboard and the plane in tow, stern first.

"Where will you put us ashore?" one of the airmen asked.

"In New York," the skipper replied.

It was agreed eventually, however, to send a wireless message to England, and the next day two British destroyers picked up the men and plane.

Bed Catches Fire Woman Perishes

LONDON ,Ont., Jan. 22 — (CP). —Mrs. Marion Anderson, 40-year-old beauty parlor operator, died here to-day from burns received last night when her bed caught fire.

Severely burned about the face, neck and upper part of the body, Mrs. Anderson was found in a flaming bed in her third-storey apartment when firemen were summoned by neighbors who smelled smoke. She was rushed to hospital where doctors for a while held hopes for her recovery.

Several residents of the apartment house ran into Mrs. Anderson's room, but were unable to approach the blazing bed before firemen arrived. Fire from the bedding had caught on to the woman's clothing and she was unconscious when firemen smothered the blaze with blankets.

It is believed the fire was caused by a cigarette.

Dominion Admits 5,000 Refugees

OTTAWA, Jan. 22 — (CP). — Canada admitted 5,000 persons who might be classed as refugees between January and August, 1939, an official of the Immigration Branch of the Mines and Resources Department said to-day.

"Some of the best and most useful immigration Canada has ever known has been in the past few years," he added.

"The figure of 5,000 is based on the number of persons we know have had trouble in their native land and are seeking new homes. They are not always admitted as families. Sometimes a man who has settled in Canada is permitted to bring in his dependents. In other cases they come in as single individuals.

"In the refugee group there are well-to-do people who brought millions of new capital and are now engaged in establishing new industries in this country. Others are admitted on the ground of special skill required in the establishment of these industries. Quite a number came as farmers, bringing their own capital, are being settled in Saskatchewan and British Columbia, on funds supplied from overseas."

$40,000 Gambling 'Take' One Night Arouses Pastor

TORONTO, Jan. 22. —(CP)— A story of how $40,000, takings from one night in a gambling club on the borders of Toronto, were deposited for safety in a guarded cellar, was tol dto his congregation last night by Rev. Gordon Domm in Bathurst Street United Church.

"The almost unbelievable proportions to which this latter kind of commercialized gambling is developed," he said, "is illustrated by the following story vouched for by a friend with whom I was discussing the anti-gambling crusade launched by Rev. E. C. French, Wesley United Church, a few weeks ago. One of his friends was custodian for about $2,000, the proceeds from an athletic event in the city. It was Saturday night, and the banks were closed. His banker couldn't accommodate him, but knew where the money could be deposited on a Saturday night—not so very far from where we worship this evening.

"You enter that place by a sort of secret trap door, and by a sliding process you navigate down into the cellar. Just as he landed he encountered another man, all out of breath, who had just deposited $40,000 with the exclamation: 'Thank God I'm rid of that!'"

"The $40,000 just put away in this depository represented the taking of one night, a Saturday, and this is the kind of thing we ask that our government come to grips with. This represents a need for making decent the home front base without which much of our talk about the enemy without the state is idle prattling."

"The issue of the big gambling clubs has now reached the stage where I wanted it, on the floor of the Ontario Legislature," said Rev. E. C. French in Wesley Church. "It is now up to the government."

New Finn Threat In Freezing Of Gap To Estonia

HELSINGFORS, Jan. 22—(AP)— Freezing of the Gulf of Finland from the Estonian to the Finnish shore has confronted Finland with the possibility of an over-ice attack from Soviet Russian bases in Estonia.

Foreign military observers speculated today on the chances of success for such a thrust, but Finns said they were well prepared to meet it.

The coast, in some sections at least, has been fortified and barricaded with barbed wire. The frozen beach at Hangoe (Hanko), for example, is laced with barbed wire.

Canadians Disappoint 1,000 Society Lassies, Have No Time For Big London Ball

LONDON, Jan. 22.—(CP Cable) —One thousand London society girls and dainty debs were disappointed this morning but at least they've learned there's a war on.

The girls paid five bob each for the privilege of being dance hostesses to the husky Canadian troops for a few glamorous hours.

But it's all off. The headquarters of the Canadian Active Service Force pointed out that to send 1,000 men to London for the ball would mean a serious interference with training.

The girls understand. The boys understand. All the titled guests understand. And the military authorities said to the organizers: "Why didn't you tell us before, we could have saved you all this trouble."

The secretary of Major-General A. G. L. McNaughton, the Canadian commander, told the London Daily Mirror:

"It must be remembered that we are over here to fight a war. Our troops are going through an intensive course of training, and to send 1,000 men to London would mean serious interference with work. We do not want our folks at home to think we are frittering our time away in hospitality, no matter how delightful."

Britons Growing Careless Not 1 In 6 Carry Masks

LONDON, Jan. 22.—(CP)—One of the more alarming sidelights of the war as it affects this capital is the stubborn refusal of the citizenry to stay gas-mask-conscious.

Back in September the average man in the black-out, who wouldn't have dreamed of going to work without a shirt, also carried a mask, and for similar reasons. It was risky and conspicuous to be without one.

Now, it's an undeniable fact that if the Nazis unbottle gas over London most people are going to be caught without protection.

A survey of the principal London streets showed that only about one man in six carries a mask. You just couldn't tell about the women.

The snooper is constantly thrown off the scent by the females because they tend to use a combined handbag and carrier. Worse still, it's never certain that the official square box, snake-skin case, or paper bag does really contain a mask. A.R.P. wardens report that often there's nothing in it but sandwiches, lipstick and a library book.

Sometimes newspaper photographs show that even the King's mask is not always in evidence. But his heavy service mask is often carried by a member of the entourage or is parked within easy reach in an official automobile. Queen Elizabeth is never seen without her beige corduroy sack slung over the left shoulder.

There is at least one man who has found a use for his gas-mask. From Liverpool comes the report of a citizen who wore the mask for the better part of two days and at the end of that time had cured his cold. The breathing through the mask of pure air undefiled by smoke and soot, relieved the pressure on his lungs and gave his body time to throw off the chill.

Farmers To Visit Farmers In New Army Leave Idea

OTTAWA, Jan. 22—(CP) — Leaves for Canadian troops abroad in this second Great War are going to be different from those of the last war. They will be made systematically educational as well as pleasureable.

The bureau of public information, in making public the details of plans for soldiers' educational facilities, said today the program goes beyond the classroom. Special emphasis will be laid on education during leaves.

One of the primary aims of the program, directed in England and France by Robert England of Winnipeg, will be to let the men see and study those things in which they are most interested, while on leave.

For instance, those soldiers who were farmers will be invited to spend leaves with farmers; painters with painters. Canadian newspapermen who longed for an assignment abroad will get a chance to cover the beats of London and parts with members of their craft.

Mechanics may go into factories to watch and assist mechanics of Great Britain and France at their work. Others, in the cities, may take part in carefully guided tours of museums and art galleries and, as far as possible, explore every cultural avenue available.

Whenever Canada's men in uniform go to the little red school house is going to be within striking distance. The current scheme of soldiers' education was described as the most comprehensive ever devised to fit an army on the march.

Classes already have been established in Canada, backed by the Canadian Legion War Services Incorporated, the Canadian Association for adult education and kindred groups. Thus men who need greater scholastic stature for higher army rank may attain it. So, too, may they prepare for the day when the war is over.

Allies Only Hope Churchill Warns Neutrals

LONDON, Jan. 22—(CP).—Winston Churchill told Europe's neutrals bluntly on Saturday he believed the war would spread both in the north and in the south and that their hope of survival lies with the Allies. He invited neutral states to join in "united action" against "aggression and wrong."

If Britain and France, "wearying of the struggle, were to make a shameful peace, nothing would remain for the smaller states of Europe but to be divided between the opposite, though similar, barbarisms of Nazidom and Bolshevism," the First Lord of the Admiralty said in a worldwide broadcast.

Germany, he said, was waging warfare on the neutrals. "Whether on sea or on land, they are the victims on whom Hitler's hate and spite descends."

Their plight is lamentable, he said. They "bow humbly and in fear to German threats of violence, comforting themselves meanwhile with the thought that the Allies will dent, Sakichiro Suma, foreign office spokesman, reported that Japanese embassy officials at Washington would approach the State Department on "technical matters" regarding Japanese-American trade relations.

The commercial treaty between Japan and the United States expires Friday.

The spokesman termed the removal of Nazi seamen by a British warship as "very regrettable" because the "search and arrests took place so near our shore."

Passengers aboard the ship said the liner was stopped about 35 miles off the Japanese shore. The Asama Maru left San Francisco Jan. 6.

Passengers said the Nazi prisoners were among a group of 40 men formerly seamen on Standard Oil tankers who were being sent home at the company's expense because of the war. They were en route from San Francisco to Germany by way of Japan.

Named Blocked Out.

They said the warship, apparently a light cruiser with her name blocked out, came alongside the Asama Maru Saturday and ordered her to halt. A shot was fired across the liner's bow.

Three British officers and nine seamen boarded the liner, it was said, and "with the utmost courtesy" examined the passports of the German passengers.

Seventeen of the group of 40 were ignored, apparently because they were unskilled seamen and two others hid from the boarding party, it was said. Eleven other Germans, mostly merchants, also were allowed to remain on board.

The captain of the liner, Yoshisada Watabe, said a "semi-merchantman which appeared to be armed" remained about two miles away during the proceedings and then disappeared.

The British Embassy termed the incident as "in accordance with international law."

Ontario House To Recess Thursday Waiting Ottawa's New Budget

TORONTO, Jan. 22 — (CP). — Possibility was seen today that the Ontario Legislature will be recessed next Thursday night until after the federal budget is presented, or until the Government has more of its legislative program in shape.

Premier Mitchell Hepburn has said it is planned to have the bill amending the succession duty act dealt with before the recess, but reports are that difficulties in drafting a lawyer-proof measure may not be overcome in time.

Preparation of the Ontario budget is necessarily delayed until it is seen what Ottawa proposes in the way of new taxation. It is likely that increases in the federal income tax will be followed by increases in the Provincial income tax, which is now exactly half of the federal rates.

There is speculation as to what was the purpose in calling the house earlier than usual. Some observers hold the view that it was to give a sounding board for the dissatisfaction of Premier Hepburn and a seeming majority of his followers, and Conservative Leader George Drew with the conduct of the war by the Federal Government.

Only 23 Liberals of the 65 in the house followed Premier Hepburn in his condemnation of Prime Minister King. Nine voted against the resolution. Ten or more ducked the vote, and the rest were absent.

Delicate questions in constituency organization are facing the Liberal party in Ontario by reason of the renewal of the open feud between Premier Hepburn and Prime Minister Mackenzie King. Anxiously awaited is some statement in the House of Commons by Mr. King.

Presented With Duck

An unusual presentation featured the City League Basketball games at the Y.M.C.A. Saturday night. Don Weese of the Dominions team was celebrating a birthday and in the intermission in the Dominions - Zephyrs game was called to the middle of the floor by Referee Curly Krug and congratulated. At the same time Les Ascott advanced from the sidelines and presented the blushing player with a plump live duck. The gift duck watched the balance of the game from the gallery and threw in an encouraging "Quack-Quack" every time its new owner was in a scoring position.

Father Fighting Her Mother Shot By Girl 12

WILMINGTON, N.C., Jan. 22. — (CP).—Police to-day detained a 13-year-old girl after, Sheriff David Jones said, she told authorities that she killed her father, William H. Morrison, 64, of Toronto, with her .22 calibre rifle.

The sheriff said the girl, Zelda Dolores Morrison, told him this story:

"Father had been drinking, and he and mother started arguing about some government business. Mother said she was going to tell that he came to this country from Canada without a passport, and they began fighting. I grabbed my rifle and shot him.

The shooting occurred yesterday at Mrs. Morrison's five-room home on the Carolina Beach road, near here. Mrs. Morrison, a native of Wilmington, was held as a material witness, Jones said.

The Morrisons were married in Florida in 1925.

Jones said the girl told him her parents entered the United States about Jan. 1.

It was stated at Toronto that Morrison was a son of the late James Morrison, founder of a brass manufacturing company bearing his name.

At Kingston, heavy gales, accompanied with snow, prevailed throughout the night and to-day many side roads were reported as being rapidly filled. About six inches of snow fell and was still coming down this morning, forcing many snow shovellers to be summoned by the city.

In the country it was reported side roads were suffering, though snow ploughs were out early.

BUFFALO, N.Y., Jan. 22 — (AP). — Gusty winds of near gale force drifted snow-glutted highways through Western New York for the seventh day, threatened Buffalo's milk supply and piled more snow on Watertown in the city's "worst storm in 14 years."

A 12-inch fall last night brought Watertown's snowfall to 64 inches since Thursday. Bus schedules were abandoned as the wind piled drifts which reached a depth of six and seven feet.

In Buffalo milk producers said Sunday's supply was 40,000 quarts short with milk trucks lost on drifted back roads. Dealers said supplies were arriving "eight or nine hours late," but hoped for better delivery to-day.

John Wagner, secretary of the Niagara Frontier Milk Dealers' organization, said milk was arriving so late that some dealers had supplies shipped in from Rochester and a producers' leader suggested asking a supply from less affected areas of the state.

Snow In Texas.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22. —(AP) — Winter prolonged its stormy symphony over much of the United States today.

It drove a cold wedge deep into Texas and visited upon San Antonio and Houston their first snow in 10 years. Southern points long accustomed to warm January weather were encrusted by freezing rain. A blizzard swept all the way to the Gulf.

Crop damage was reported extensive in Texas.

At least 231 had died from causes attributable to the harsh weather prevailing over the country for nearly a week.

Although some easing of winter's rigors appeared here and there on the domestic map, temperatures generally remained low, and forecasters indicated a wide continuance of severe weather.

Florida suffered a cold wave at 27.8 above. Crops such as beans and peas apparently were destroyed. Citrus growers reported their crop still undamaged, but were fearful of indicated colder weather.

Schools were closed in Miami and West Palm Beach.

Lakefield Girls' Club Learns To Entertain

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 22 (ENS) — Misses Jean and Dorothy Mann, daughter of Reeve and Mrs. A. B. Mann of Bridgenorth were joint hostesses for the meeting of the Kawatha Kids Klub meeting on Friday evening when twelve girls met.

The roll was answered by "One duty of a hostess toward her guest." Her plans should be arranged so that she will have time to entertain her guest. She should appear neat and tidy at all times and if her guest wishes to help with some of the household duties she may be allowed to do so.

The ladies gave an outline of serving both formal and informal tea.

Informal tea maybe served from 3.30 to 6 p.m. and the invitations are quite plain. Tea is served in the room where the guests are gathered. It is customary for the hostess to pour tea, but a close friend may perform this duty.

A formal tea is served from 6 to 7 p.m. The hostess receives and entertains in the living room while tea is served in the dining room.

Menus were discussed and the leaders, Miss Eva Higgins and Miss Hazel Northey demonstrated the making of sandwiches which consisted of the closed, open or rolled varieties. The girls put into practice what they had been taught when they served these sandwiches as part of the tea, supposedly informal, with Miss Muriel Bullock, president of the Junior Institute pouring.

The making of iced tea and chocolate drinks was also demonstrated during the evening.

The next meeting is scheduled for Friday evening, January 26 at the home of Miss Minnie Charlton. The roll call to be "My favorite sandwich spread." For homework the club was asked to make sandwiches in their homes and record the results in their record books.

Many Roads Blocked In Dummer Township

WARSAW, Jan. 22 (ENS).—Cars cannot travel the boundary road and many other roads. Ivan Drain has had to take a cutter on his mail route, but Mr. Hendren has been able to use the car. The main roads have all been snow-plowed and the Peterborough mail has come through on time every day.

Farmers are assured their winter wheat and others crops are well protected, as there was a good covering of snow, then just thaw enough to form a crust and prevent that coat blowing away.

Newcastle Fire Wipes Out General Store

NEWCASTLE, Jan. 22. — Fire, which for a time threatened to duplicate Newcastle's greatest conflagration of fifty years ago, destroyed Emmerson Fisher's general store here Saturday night and scorched adjacent buildings before it was extinguished by the combined efforts of Bowmanville and Orono fire brigades. Loss was estimated at about $6,000, mostly covered by insurance.

The blaze, which is believed to have originated from an overheated stove, secured a strong foothold in the rear of the one-and-a-half-story frame building before it was discovered by George Bonathan, proprietor of an adjoining hardware store.

Bonathan smelled smoke between 11.30 and 11.45 o'clock, less than an hour after Fishers store had closed for the night. Investigating, he saw smoke curling from a rear

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Jan. 22 — (CP). — Little change was shown by wheat futures prices after a featureless session on Winnipeg Grain Exchange to-day. Outside markets were moderately weak but absence of selling pressure partly offset this influence and left quotations only ⅛ to ¼ cent lower, May at 86⅝, July 87⅜, and October 88½ cents.

Chicago wheat prices dropped a little under pressure of light selling prompted by forecasts of snow in the Kansas area of the United States winter wheat belt. Hedging and new wheat deliveries knocked ⅝ to 1⅛ cents off Buenos Aires wheat prices shortly before the close.

Operations in cash wheat and coarse grains were negligible.

Rail Grading Is Praised As Only Fair Way

BELLEVILLE, Jan. 22.—The rail-grading system is the only fair and square way of estimating the value of hogs, Linn Fair, Hastings County agricultural representative told the County Council in an address of farming matters of the county.

He asked members to contact their constituents and advise them to the effect that in increasing the hog population to meet demands of the Mother Country not to forget quality as well as quantity.

Hastings County, he said, was one of the most important hog-producing counties in Ontario, ranking tenth in pre-war production. It produced 55,000 hogs last year, 28 per cent. of which were select grades and on which the Government bonus of one dollar per head was paid.

To Provide Boar Free.

In order to encourage the production of bacon, the Government, Mr. Fair said, will provide free of charge, an advanced registry boar to groups of six farmers owing at least twenty brood sows between them. Service charges would recompense the farmer chosen to care for the boar. Twenty-four bacon-hog clubs have already been established in the county, the speaker said, which are producing hogs that mature rapidly which not only provides quick products but also cuts down feed costs.

Twenty sows have been placed in the county by the Department, Mr. Fair said, and litters have been distributed to young farmers' clubs throughout the district in an effort to speed up production of bacon type hogs. The present type hogs raised in the county was "fairly decent," Mr. Fair told Council, but there was a tendency toward them being too long and shallow-bodied. This could be remedied, he felt, by the introduction of the bacon type sows and boars offered by the Government.

Assumes Responsibility.

Prices at the present time are $20.18 cents for 112 pounds of pork laid down at an Atlantic seaport. The British Government assumes all responsibility of transport from Canadian shores. At the present rate of exchange this price nets the farmer approximately 9 cents per pound liveweight on an average.

HAVELOCK, Jan. 22 —(ENS) — While Charlie Kingan's gang were fruitlessly scouring the Apsey district on their much publicized "wolf hunt," young Ray Barrons, 14-year old Cordova lad, rather placed his elders to shame on Saturday morning, when he bagged himself a fine grey timber wolf near his home in Belmont township. Not being old enough to handle a rifle, Ray killed his wolf by the unusual means of an ordinary axe.

Looking Over Sheep.

The Cordova wolf episode started about 10 a.m. on Saturday morning when Murray Barrons, an uncle of Ray's, first sighted the animal from the window of his farmhouse, about a mile north west of the village. The wolf was on a knoll some 300 yards distant, apparently looking over the flock of sheep near the barn. Barrons grabbed his rifle and a handful of shells and ran outside, meantime calling to his brother Jim Barrons, who soon joined the chase. The latter started shooting first, emptying his rifle, and then Murray fired five rounds. The brothers felt quite positive that the last shot had struck home, and later found this to be so, the wolf having been wounded in the leg.

Their ammunition exhausted, Jim returned to the house for more, while Murray started on the trail of Mr. Wolf which had disappeared over the hill. The chase carried on for over a mile, Jim having caught up with his brother.

Chopping Hole In Ice.

It was during this interval that young Ray Barrons their nephew entered the picture. The lad was down at the water-hole on Jim Spry's farm, when he spied the animal going across the field, evidently badly wounded. Ray, as he later related, did not know that it was a wolf, however, he grabbed his axe and started running on top of the hard crust to head it off. Finally catching up, he soon finished it with a couple of quick blows over the head. By the time his uncles had reached that spot, Ray had already started for the road with the wolf on his back. They overtook him shortly and accompanied by Messrs. Ross and Charlie Barrons who had arrived to take part in the chase, the party of five made a triumphant entry of the village with their prize prominently displayed.

Several Belmont farmers have reported sheep killed by wolves recently. Reeve Isaac Anderson lost several from his flock, Harry Bowen reported two missing, and Murray Barrons lost one.

"There would be less wolf menace, said Mr. Barrons, if the bounty was increased to the old sum of $40." "As it now stands, he said, the bounty paid wouldn't near repay a hunter for his trouble."

Correction Of George Street Church Report

The editor of this page is anxious to correct a regrettable error that appeared in a report of the annual congregational meeting of George Street United Church, published in the issue of Friday, January 19.

The report read that Mr. W. Girven was the steward appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Mr. Norman Edmison, and should have read that Mr. Girven was "the steward appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the retirement of Mr. Norman Edmison."

Local Red Shield W.A. Is Hard At Work

Activity of the Salvation Army Red Shield Women's Auxiliary branch in the city continues. It is directed by Mrs. N. Buckley, wife of Adjutant Buckley, and last week sent to headquarters 70 pairs of well-knit socks, and a large number of sweaters, scarfs and wristlets.

Enthusiastic newcomers to this group of workers are two Girl Guide groups who have commenced knitting on wristlets under careful instruction. The great problem facing the Auxiliary at the moment is the lack of funds for wool. To help raise money for this purpose, Guides are planning a varied program which will be presented in the Salvation Army Temple the second Monday of February.

A group of from 15 to 20 women, members of the Mothers' Auxiliary of All Saints' Boy Scout Troop, under the convenership of Mrs. W. Magee, have volunteered their services as a unit to assist the Red Shield Auxiliary with knitting. This group also sews for the Red Cross. The knitting, and some sewing, is done by these women at their weekly "Thimble Teas." They also meet each Thursday evening in the Red Cross sewing room at the Public Library. Mrs. Lacey is convener of sewing for the group.

One member of the Red Shield Auxiliary is very proud of her letter from an R.C.A.F. man in which he expresses his gratitude for socks she had knitted, and Adjutant Buckley tells of meeting several soldier boys on the train en route from Toronto to Ottawa who were proudly wearing socks and sweaters made by Peterborough Red Shield workers.

LIFT FOR WARDROBE

By ALICE ALDEN

DID YOU ever buy something new for the sheer joy of it? Lots of women do, dropping into a shop on their noon hour or making a special trip into town just to catch up with some bright lift for their wardrobes. Probably nine times out of ten it's a new hat which catches the eye from a window and which promises to go nicely with several dresses. Such straws as the one shown also do well with winter furs and take the place of a white hat at mid-season, if this seems an extravagance. It's an extremely soft straw, toasty in color and tied around with Roman stripes in blue and rose. No need to worry about your head getting cold . . . the crown curves out and over in back, protecting that spot most likely to feel the chill.

FASHIONS

Did your little girl get a baby doll from Santa Claus? If she did she will love to have these dainty clothes for her. She will play by the hour, dressing her up in the bonnet and coat, then change into the little sleeper. This same pattern is ideal for a real baby, too. The layette make a baby's entrance into the world even more glamorous. If you know some one who has a brand new baby, or will have one soon, they would love this layette, and you will enjoy making it.

Women Need To Be On Their Guard To Stop Movement Now Under Way Which Would Prevent Them From Holding Positions Outside Their Own Homes.

IF WOMEN have not all gone to sleep at the switch they must perceive that the effort now being made to stop married women from holding any job outside of their own kitchens is but the first shove at the door to shut all women out from gainful occupations. The taboo against the working wife will inevitably spread to all women—with husbands or without.

This will be a tragedy for society as well as for the individual woman, for no other one thing has done more to promote decency of living, self-respect and happiness than has giving women economic independence. Those of us who fought to gain this great boon for our sex cannot see women deprived of it without lifting our voices in warning and protest.

The propaganda against married women working hasn't a leg to stand on. To begin with, it violates the constitutional right of every individual, regardless of sex, to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, and that certainly includes the right to earn money by honest labor. The use of one's talents and abilities is surely not a prerogative monopolized by the masculine sex. The whole theory, that because a woman has a husband she has no need to work, is based upon the fallacy that every woman is married to a millionaire and has no dependents and no need for money except to blow it in on French finery. The falseness of this contention is so obvious that it is needless to combat it, but, anyway, it cuts no figure in a woman's right to a job.

If employes are to be chosen solely on the basis of their needs we should substitute the bums and the park loafers for our bankers and big executives. No one would be foolish enough to do that, yet the cry is continually made that women's poverty and not their ability should determine their right to follow gainful occupations.

The men who are so anxious to put women out of business think that life would be much easier and richer for them if they could take women's pay envelopes away from them, but in this they are sadly mistaken. Because, after all, they can't let their female relatives and friends starve. If they take away from Sally and Mamie the opportunity of earning their own bread and butter they will have to split their own loaves into enough slices to go around among the girls, and it will not leave them many crumbs for themselves. In the good old days, when there were no business girls, fathers and brothers were slaves to their daughters and sisters. I knew one man who was engaged to a girl for twenty-five years and who was never able to marry until after he was 50. Because of a succession of deaths among the males of his family he had been left with fifteen helpless women to support and it took that long for them to die off or get married. Nowadays every one of those women would go out and rustle some work that she could do and not only support herself but also be able to send him a handsome present before he was 30.

So the man who is trying to pry Mamie and Sally away from their mahogany desks may as well face the fact that somebody has to support them and that he will be IT if he doesn't let them do it themselves.

Another thing that those who wish to take away from women's economic independence must realize is that if it is done it will be a death blow to morality among the young. There are millions of fathers who do not make enough money to give their daughters the pretty clothes, the beauty treatments, the gawgaws that every girl craves and which she is going to get by hook or crook. Now the girl goes to work, makes her own money, buys what she wants and preserves her self-respect. She doesn't have to sell herself, as parasitic women have done from time immemorial, for a handful of chiffons. Becky Sharp said that any woman could be virtuous on five thousand a year, and the price of many a modern girl's virtue is in her pay envelope.

Also, in these days of economic stress it is the working wife who makes marriage possible for many a young couple. The boy does not make enough money to support two, and they would eat their hearts out in waiting or perhaps establish an illicit relationship if it was not that the girl can add her salary to his so they can marry and start their life together honorably and with security.

And last, but not least, giving women the opportunity to achieve financial independence has done more than anything else to broaden women's outlook, sweeten their dispositions and eliminate the bile from their systems. Suffering the humiliation of dependence, bored to death with idleness, they are filled with malice and envy and took their revenge by meddling in every one else's affairs and backbiting and clawing. But when, in work, they found independence, freedom and something interesting to do and think about, their whole characters were changed as by a miracle, so that nowadays a cat-woman has become so rare as to be almost a museum spectacle.

And, all of this being true, let men think a long time before they take women's jobs away from them.

Activity of the Salvation Army Red Shield Women's Auxiliary branch in the city continues. It is directed by Mrs. N. Buckley, wife of Adjutant Buckley, and last week sent to headquarters 70 pairs of well-knit socks, and a large number of sweaters, scarfs and wristlets.

Enthusiastic newcomers to this group of workers are two Girl Guide groups who have commenced knitting on wristlets under careful instruction. The great problem facing the Auxiliary at the moment is the lack of funds for wool. To help raise money for this purpose, Guides are planning a varied program which will be presented in the Salvation Army Temple the second Monday of February.

A group of from 15 to 20 women, members of the Mothers' Auxiliary of All Saints' Boy Scout Troop, under the convenership of Mrs. W. Magee, have volunteered their services as a unit to assist the Red Shield Auxiliary with knitting. This group also sews for the Red Cross. The knitting, and some sewing, is done by these women at their weekly "Thimble Teas." They also meet each Thursday evening in the Red Cross sewing room at the Public Library. Mrs. Lacey is convener of sewing for the group.

One member of the Red Shield Auxiliary is very proud of her letter from an R.C.A.F. man in which he expresses his gratitude for socks she had knitted, and Adjutant Buckley tells of meeting several soldier boys on the train en route from Toronto to Ottawa who were proudly wearing socks and sweaters made by Peterborough Red Shield workers. These young men were on their last visit home before leaving for active service overseas.

Mrs. George W. Peacock of Toronto, director of the Red Shield W.A., urges Salvation Army workers to increase their knitting efforts for soldiers, sailors and airmen. Knitters were asked to "knit loosely in order that circulation will not be stopped. The need of sailors for socks, scarves and sweaters is more urgent than that of members of other forces." Adjutant Elizabeth Watt reports continued enthusiasm for the Red Shield work by inmates of the Mercer Reformatory. Already hundreds of socks and a large number of sweaters and mitts have been knitted by the girls.

By ALICE ALDEN

DID YOU ever buy something new for the sheer joy of it? Lots of women do, dropping into a shop on their noon hour or making a special trip into town just to catch up with some bright lift for their wardrobes. Probably nine times out of ten it's a new hat which catches the eye from a window and which promises to go nicely with several dresses.

Such straws as the one shown also do well with winter furs and take the place of a white hat at mid-season, if this seems an extravagance. It's an extremely soft straw, foasty in color and tied around with Roman stripes in blue and rose. No need to worry about your head getting cold . . . the crown curves out and over in back, protecting that spot most likely to feel the chill.

Women Fliers Make Royal Air Force History

Some of the young women who made British Royal Air Force history on January 10 are shown going out on a flying field in England to fly a squadron of R.A.F. planes from a manufacturing plant to training schools and reserve centres. This was the first time that women have been employed to fly British military aircraft.

Many Out-of-Town Guests Attend Sidwell-Banks Wedding on Saturday

Many out-of-town guests attended the wedding at three o'clock on Saturday afternoon of Miss Helen Margaret Banks, the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Banks, 338 Rubidge street, and Mr. Francis Edward Siddell, youngest son of Mrs. Sidell and the late George Siddell of Hamilton. Rev. Dr. E. W. Young officiated in St. Andrew's United church against a background of ferns, and Mr. R. B. Harle played the wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in a lovely gown of dusty rose triconain crepe, designed on simple lines with a sweetheart neckline and puffed sleeves. She wore a matching draped turban trimmed with small white flowers, elbow-length white kid gloves, and carried a bridal bouquet of Briarcliff roses with lily-of-the-valley and maiden-hair fern. Miss Audrey Jones of Toronto, the bride's cousin, was the attendant. Her frock of toe-length maroon velvet and taffeta had a jacket in clover rose shade, and she wore a hat to match her dress trimmed with a clover rose ostrich feather. Her flowers were Bettertime roses. Mr. John Sidwell of Hamilton, brother of the groom, was best man. Ushers were Mr. Donald Dalziel of St. Catharines, and Mr. Carl Banks, brother of the bride.

A reception for sixty guests was held later at the home of the bride's parents, a which catering was done by Hooper and Son. The bride's mother received in a gown of rosewood crepe. He black felt hat was trimmed with lamb, and she wore a corsage of Talisman roses. Mrs. Sidwell, mother of the groom, wore black lace crepe with an ostrich-trimmed hat of black velvet, and corsage of Bettertime roses.

For their trip to Limberlost Lodge, Muskoka, the bride wore a becoming frock of French angora crepe under a black fur coat. She carried a scarlet handbag, and other accessories were black. Mr. and Mrs. Sidwell will live at 357 Rogers street on their retrn to the city. Congratulations by telegram were received by the bridal couple from Birmingham, Alabama; Pasadena, California; Royal Oak, Michigan; Montreal, Ottawa and Hull, Quebec.

Ottawa's Decision

In a report from Ottawa dealing with the Tweed post office controversy there was mention made that the new Federal building in Peterborough would go by the boards for the present, as well as the erection of a similar structure in Oshawa. Later in the same day a wire received at the Examiner office stated that no action had been taken to interfere with the erection of the building in Peterborough. So for the moment it looks as though a story had been made and unmade within the short period of one and the same day.

The making of such a decision is something which is primarily a matter for Ottawa. It is entirely separate and apart from anything in the nature of a municipal plan where the people in this community would have the decision in their hands. The proposed Federal Building is the property and the plan of the Federal Government to take care of the business which that Federal Government carries on in this city, and it is of a very considerable volume.

If the decision of Ottawa is that public buildings shall not be proceeded with during war time, then that decision will be quite acceptable to the people of Peterborough. The one thing which does seem apparent is that any such decision should have been made before taking final steps to clear the property on Charlotte and Louis streets, and take the tenants out of residence, and give business people notice that they would have to make other plans for the housing of their enterprises.

But Ottawa can make up its own mind on this question. If it is considered that war expenditures are going to make such a drain on revenue and the ability of the people to keep on providing that revenue, and for that reason building operations should be set aside then we are certain this city will accept that explanation and be content to wait. Primarily and all the way through it is Ottawa's project and it will have to be Ottawa's decision.

No Disciplinary Action!

On the day after Premier Hepburn had succeeded in getting a diminutive vote to support his censure of the King Government, he announced at a press conference that no disciplinary action was contemplated against the ten Liberal members who voted against his resolution. And that resolution said in effect that the Ontario Legislature approved of the reports and criticisms of Hon. M. F. Hepburn and Col. George Drew. Nothing else was mentioned.

There are 66 Liberals in the Legislature. Twenty-six of them voted for the Hepburn resolution; 10 voted against and 30 did not vote at all. Then why pick out the 10 who voted against their leader as the ones on whom it might have been considered right to have inflicted some sort of disciplinary action? How about the 30 who did not vote at all

The application of a little arithmetic to the problem leads to the conclusion that when it came to a vote on which the continued existence of the Government depended—for Mr. Hepburn himself made that clear—the Premier had but 39 per cent. of the Liberal members actually voting for him. There were 61 per cent. of the Liberals who did not vote at all or who voted against Mr. Hepburn.

But why make any mention whatever of disciplinary action? Are we still in that stage of life and of outlook where a member of the Legislature or of any of our governing bodies is not allowed to think and act for himself? It would be as impossible as it would be undesirable if all Liberal members at Toronto were to move as a unit when the finger of blame was being pointed at the Federal Government. To say that no disciplinary action was to be taken against those who voted against Mr. Hepburn is saying something which might better have never been mentioned.

Took a Long Time

The man who gets out a paper called "Hush" in Toronto—we hesitate to call him an editor—has been found guilty of publishing obscene matter. A jury heard the evidence and returned the verdict, and an average jury of common sense and honesty would be able to pass intelligently on such a question. The accused and his assistant have been remanded for sentence.

Perhaps public or official conscience is more acute than it has been, because those filthy little papers in Toronto have been at it for a long time. So long that the space can be mentioned in terms of years rather than months. And during all that time those papers did about as they pleased. They sought to ruin those whom they selected as victims, and they aimed always to print the sort of material which people would want to read behind closed doors where no person could see them.

Rather Useless Work

Possibly the censors come across a good deal in their day's work which they consider useful. There was an envelope in the mail coming to this office the other day. It had been posted in England just about one month ago, and was addressed to the editor of the Examiner.

The envelope had been opened and closed again with one of those stickers which announces in red letters it had been opened by the censor. So the envelope took on added significance and made one a trifle eager to see what was on the inside.

But it was nothing but a letter, probably the same as others being sent to papers all over the country, dealing with some of the work at a British institution which greatly aids blind folk. There might have been some hundreds of the same letters going out, and it would appear that the right way would be to have it arranged so that all could be released at once without censors having to go through and open each one.

Why Talk About It?

There has been talk in the city of making the London street bridge wide enough and strong enough for vehicular traffic. And it is rather loose talk.

Speculation has been going on as to how much it would cost to make the bridge wider and stronger.

It is well to remember one or two things. First is that the ratepayers voted to spend $10,000 for the construction of a foot bridge at London street, and they did so largely because they felt it was something which had been pledged some years ago when the Ashburnham bridge was erected at Hunter street.

There was nothing said about a vehicular bridge and there is no money available, nor will there be. The only thing on which the voters placed their stamp of approval was the erection of a footbridge and they voted exactly $10,000 for the purpose.

Paying War Pensions

Pension figures which have been brought to the surface in Washington are so colossal that they are beyond the power of understanding. From 1790 to June of 1939 United States paid in war pensions a total of $13,702,692,413.

United States is still paying one pensioner of the war of 1812, the daughter of a soldier of that war. There are still 135 pensions being paid from the Mexican war of 1846-48.

The cost of pensions for the Civil War of 1861-64 is now on the wane, although the cost was $33,000,000 last year. But the total of pensions paid as a result of that war has already amounted to over eight billion dollars.

United States has a remarkably efficient way of keeping its statistical records and drawing the right conclusions. The announcement from Washington reveals that the pension cost of a war does not reach its peak until 40 years after the fighting has ceased. It is anticipated that the pension peak from the World War will not come until 1958.

Cold Reaches South

The weather turned cold enough so people could skate in Southern Louisiana, and it has been freezing in Florida. That is bad for people there who have no place to keep warm. For days it was cold in 30 of the states across the line and 95 persons died from exposure.

One could well believe that in the average Southern home the cold would hit hard. Particularly in Florida they build their homes on the theory that it is going to be warm and remain that way. There is seldom any provision for a central heating plant. We recall a doctor living in Clearwater, Fla., who used to take visitors at his home to a boiler he had installed to provide steam heat, although he said it was seldom used.

As a rule a fireplace is all that is needed, and many houses have rooms where only screens fit in the windows; there is no glass. When it turns cold and gets below the freezing point the people feel it. They're not used to it.

A Great City, But—

A person can visit New York once, twice or a dozen times, and come away always with the same impression—it is a great city. It is filled with enormous buildings; it has hundreds of thousands of people on the streets at all hours, and it has millions of others who are not to be seen on the streets.

But a great city is no stronger than a smaller one. The men who deliver coal in New York went on strike because they wanted $1 per hour instead of $45 per week of 48 hours.

As soon as the truckers quit the people began to complain. The mayor heard from thousands of families; they telephoned, they wrote, they came as individuals and deputations. They were cold and they had no coal.

It is explained that thousands of families buy only a little coal at a time; they have not the money to follow the old standard of filling the coal bin. They live in a great city but they can be hurt in a hurry.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Man in Detroit claims he can make 31 different faces, but the chances are the men who collect bills know them all.

At least we did not have to organize a rescue expedition to get the wolf hunters out of the trenches.

Winston Churchill declares that the British navy is not doing too badly and probably the Nazis feel that is putting it all too mildly.

It is worthy of note that the northern reeves did not consider it advisable to return home until the wolf-hunting party had moved out of the country.

Of 16,000 persons passing a given point in London only 323 had their gas masks. Isn't there some old saying about eternal vigilance being the price of something or other?

Often enough a man who has poured a good deal of liquor beneath his own belt is astounded to find that his son goes out now and then in search of a drink.

A man arrested in New York had eight wrist watches, $200 in cash and a number of rings. Our book on "How to Be a Detective" suggests he may have burgled a jewelry store.

Great Lakes sailors in a gathering said they worked 12 hours a day, and often enough from 18 to 24 hours. When a man puts in 24 hours a day there's not much time left for getting into mischief.

At Hamilton the judge gave a man a 10-year term and advised him to forget the past and look to the future. And for the 10-year future the looking may be done at the sky and also at four stone walls.

Chicago report says blues and soft greens will be the right colors for men's clothes this year. That soft green touch will come to a number of suits with age, so a number of us stand a good enough chance of being in style.

Hired man in court at Sarnia was sent down for six months because he sold a load of pigs for $167 and kept the money. A very foolish fellow we would say as he might have known the pigs would squeal on him.

There are times when Mr. Hepburn can be diplomatic. Called upon to comment upon the success of the war loan in a nation-wide broadcast Ontario's premier congratulated the Canadian people and said nothing about the Government.

Union Nationale of Quebec met and passed a vote of confidence in Maurice Duplessis, the leader. The one thing wrong is that so many people in Quebec voted the other way when they had a chance to cast a ballot.

MUSIC

(By A.M.K.)

¶ For years that number thirty-eight, and never once has he been late, my Cousin Jake has gone; within the village choir he sits, and at the bass notes swings and hits, and breaks forth into song.

¶ I do not hesitate at all, in saying Jake can fill the hall, I know that such is so; and when my Cousin up and shoots, the notes seem coming from his boots, he likes them set down low.

¶ They have a book with anthems in, there's nothing there to startle him, knows all the notes and lines; in years that number thirty-eight, I guess it's right enough to state, they're sung two hundred times.

¶ Jake doesn't really need the book, he doesn't need to take a look, so he can read the score; he only needs the sign to start, he knows the stuff clean through by heart, just like it was before.

¶ When they sing hymns it's much the same, the books were there when Jake first came, there's no surprise for him; a good deep breath is all he needs, before he starts to pipe his reeds, can't stick Jake on a hymn.

¶ Jake says the notes wink now and then, when he blasts at them once again, and some look rather scarred; and I have heard my cousin say, he reckons that they get that way—because he hits them hard.

The Last Days Before Final Break In Berlin

THE REPORT of Sir Nevile Henderson on his last days in Berlin prior to the declaration of war makes interesting reading, particularly where he describes the changed attitude of Hitler. One is left with the impression that there was an element in Germany which seemed to fear that Hitler would weaken, and that Hitler himself was surprised when he found the British would go to war over Poland. From the official record we quote:

On the evening of the 25th August the Anglo-Polish Pact had been signed in London . Though it had been under negotiation for several months, its signature gave great offence to Herr Hitler, who was at first inclined to regard it as the reply of His Majesty's Government to his message to them. His immediate retort was the announcement on the morning of the 26th August that Herr Forster had been appointed Reichsoberhaupt, or Head of the State of Danzig. At the same time the German concentrations against Poland began to reach their final stage.

Thereafter there was a lull for two days pending my return to Germany with the reply of His Majesty's Government. I had left London at 5 p.m. on the 28th August, and at 10.30 p.m. I was received by Herr Hitler at the Chancellery and handed to him that reply, together with a German translation. I sent to your Lordship a full record of my conversation with the Chancellor the same night.

On this occasion Herr Hitler was again friendly and reasonable and appeared to be not dissatisfied with the answer which I had brought to him. He observed, however, that he must study it carefully and would give me a written reply the next day.

I would mention incidentally that both that evening and the next, when I visited Herr Hitler again and was handed his reply, nothing was left undone to enhance the solemnity of the occasion. A considerable but quite expressionless crowd was waiting outside the Chancellery and a guard of honour awaited me in the courtyard of the main entrance. In view of what has been reported to the contrary, I desire to bear witness here to the fact that throughout the whole of those anxious weeks neither I nor my staff received anything but the utmost courtesy and civility from all Germans, except on one occasion to which I shall refer later.

THE CHANGE CAME

Such information as reached me during the course of the day of the 29th August tended to represent the atmosphere as not unfavourable and to foreshadow Herr Hitler's readiness to open direct negotiations with the Poles. I was therefore somewhat disappointed on being summoned to the Chancellery at 7.15 that evening to find the Chancellor in a far less reasonable mood than on the previous evening. The German midday Press had reported the alleged murder of six German nationals in Poland, and this story, which was probably fabricated by the extremists in fear lest he was weakening, together with the news of the Polish general mobilisation, I had probably upset him. I sensed in any case a distinctly more uncompromising attitude on Herr Hitler's part when he handed me his answer. I read it through carefully, and, though it reiterated his demand for the whole Corridor as well as Danzig, I made no comment till I reached the phrase at the end of it, in which, after a grudging acquiescence in direct discussions with the Poles solely by way of proof of Germany's sincerity in her desire for lasting friendship with Great Britain, it was stated that "the German Government counted upon the arrival in Berlin of a Polish Emissary with full powers on the following day, Wednesday, the 30th August." I pointed out to his Excellency that this phrase sounded very much like an ultimatum ("hatte den Klang eines Ultimatums"). This was strenuously and heatedly denied by Herr Hitler himself, supported by Herr von Ribbentrop. According to the former this sentence merely emphasised the urgency of the moment, not only on account of the risk of incidents when two mobilised armies were standing opposite one another, but also when Germans were being massacred in Poland. In this latter connection his Excellency asserted that "I did not care how many Germans were being slaughtered in Poland." This gratuitous impugnment of the humanity of His Majesty's Government and of myself provoked a heated retort on my part and the remainder of the interview was of a somewhat stormy character.

It was closed, however, by a brief and in my opinion quite honest harangue on Herr Hitler's part in regard to the genuineness of his constant endeavour to win Britain's friendship, of his respect for the British Empire, and of his liking for Englishmen generally.

I should like to state here, parenthetically but emphatically, that Herr Hitler's constant repetition of his desire for good relations with Great Britain was undoubtedly a sincere conviction. He will prove in the future a fascinating study for the historian and the biographer with psychological leanings. Widely different explanations will be propounded, and it would be out of place and time to comment at any length in this despatch on this aspect of Herr Hitler's mentality and charcater. But he combined, as I fancy many Germans do, admiration for the British race with envy of their achivements and hatred of their opposition to Germany's excessive aspirations.

• Germany Has To Export Planes ?

REPORTS of the sale of German pursuit planes to Rumania read rather strangely in the light of the European situation today. The strengthening of the armed forces of one of the rumored victims of Germany's next attack would scarcely seem good preparation for such aggression.

Whether the transaction assumed that Rumania's capacity to defend itself against German invasion would not be increased enough to affect the outcome seriously, or whether Germany has abandoned any thoughts of immediate aggression in that region and perhaps even sees to strengthen its ties with Rumania, cannot now be answered.

More striking, however, is the fact that Germany is reputedly exporting fighting aircraft at the very moment when its race with the Allies for air supremacy—a race that may decide the outcome of the war itself—is at its very height.

If it is true, as reported, that the Allies are setting a pace, with American aid, in building up their air forces which Germany cannot hope to maintain, it might be supposed that the latter country would do nothing to weaken in any way the position it has already attained.

The virtual certainly that such planes as Rumania may obtain are not Germany's best is no adequate answer, in view of the possibility that a time may come when even inferior fighting equipment may be urgently needed.

The answer is rather to be found in Germany's continued dependence on foreign supplies, despite all efforts toward self-sufficiency.

The Allied blockade has not yet been able to prevent Germany from importing needed materials from neighboring neutrals, but the problem of payment therefor by Germany has, if anything, been aggravated.

Imports Germany must have, and she can pay for imports only with exports. "Germany must export or die" no less in war than in peace.

It may therefore be assumed that if Germany is exporting war planes, it is because she needs other war material even more. Such exports are a measure not of her air superiority but of her economic weakness.—New York Times.

• Ocean Waves Sixty Feet High

THE Atlantic liner President Harding recently encountered a wave that swept Walter Johnston, a waiter, overboard and caused injury to 108 other persons. Captain James E. Roberts, master of the ship, estimated the height of the wave at sixty feet. The impact heeled the ship over forty-five degrees. Another great ship, the Rex, was thrown off balance by a huge wave encountered between Cape St. Vincent and the Azores in March, 1937. The Italian Line officially reported that "twenty tourists were injured and a member of the crew was killed." The liner's crossing was described as one of the roughest ever made in a modern ship. The tanker Larry Doheny was struck by a wave "possibly sixty-five to seventy feet high," according to her captain, J. Wilder, on October 23, 1934. "I can't say accurately," he said, "but I believe the wave was as high as our masts, which are sixty-five to seventy feet." The ship was caught in the midst of a Pacific typhoon, 400 miles northwest of Guam, and was almost overwhelmed.

Although waves of fifty or more are uncommon, storm waves in the open sea often attain a height of twenty to thirty feet. It is difficult to measure accurately the height of waves. Observations made on the Majestic when it was hove to on December 29, 1922, showed waves from trough to crest exceeded seventy feet. The wind was blowing seventy-five miles and upward. Waves 675 feet long from crest to crest have been measured in the southern Indian Ocean, and it is said that wave lengths may reach as much as 1,500 feet.

The surf of waves breaking against an obstacle is thrown sometimes to a height of from 100 to 300 feet with sufficient force to damage or destroy rock cliffs and lighthouses. The original Minots Ledge Lighthouse, south of the entrance to Boston Bay, was destroyed and two assistant keepers lost their lives on April 17, 1851, as a result of a storm along the New England coast. This storm became known as the "Lighthouse Storm." The nine wrought iron piles supporting the keeper's quarters and the lamp room were bent and broken; the tower was swept away.

Tidal waves caused by earthquakes, which may be more destructive than the earthquakes themselves, sometimes rise to great heights. After the Lisbon earthquake on November 1, 1775, three great waves inundated the city. Waves that devastated Callao, Peru, following the earthquake of October 28, 1746, were said to have been eighty feet high. Waves estimated at fifty to sixty feet high inundated Arica, Chile, on August 13, 1868, and Iquipue, Chile, on May 9, 1877, both of these following earthquakes.

Wave motors, designed to obtain power from the force of ocean waves, have been set up from time to time, but so far none has proved of commercial value. The power derived from the wave action is irregular, and the motors necessarily have to be erected in many instances far from the place where the power may be used. A wave motor was operated on a California beach for many months, but shifting sands and winter storms finally destroyed it.—New York Sun.

• Not A Desirable Sort Of Job

THE Japanese Cabinet has endorsed the plan to establish a new government in all of China now dominated by Japanese arms.

Wang Ching-wei, a Chinese dissident from the policies of Chiang Kai-shek, will head the new regime, according to a report from Tokyo.

We doubt if Lloyds would insure his success.

Wang was one of the promoters of the revolution which ousted the Manchu dynasty in 1911-12, was an able and faithful collaborator with Sun Yat-sen, and was supposed to have fallen heir to the latter's mantle when he died in 1925. At one time Wang was premier of China.

The alleged failure of Chiang Kai-shek to carry out Sun's political will appears to have been the cause of Wang's defection from the Generalissimo's side.

At any rate Wang and Chiang have for several years followed widely separated paths.

Chiang still rules all of China outside the range of Japanese guns, apparently with popular approbation throughout the whole country.

Wang Ching-wei, if he becomes Japan's puppet ruler of the Japanese-dominated area, will last only so long as he is backed by Japanese arms.

And even then he will be regarded by the majority of his countrymen as a renegade, a fair target for the pistols and hatchets of Chinese assassins.

A less enviable job could hardly be conceived even in these days of widespread unemployment.—Detroit Free Press.

HOW TO GET A HUSBAND

(Letter in Victoria Times)

SIR,—A woman who can make real soda biscuits can certainly get married. I would have the clerk that issues marriage licenses require the prospective bride to swear that she can make good soda biscuits, and I would have the preacher leave out the word obey, but have the bride promise to make soda biscuits at least twice a day.

It is really preferable to eat them in the kitchen where you can reach them in the oven, but that is not necessary if you will sit down at the table a few minutes before the biscuits are done, and get them piping hot.

Then the true biscuit-lover butters three at a time (plenty of butter), and puts one-fourth in his mouth at once. Of course, everyone knows that a big biscuit or a warmed-over one is not the real article.

WAS THEIR OWN CHOICE

THE Chatham News says the people of Chatham wonder why "such a fuss" should be raised about the Ontario Government's plan for abolition of municipal elections during the war. That city, it adds, already elects its public bodies for two-year terms, and the system works satisfactorily.

The explanation is simple. Chatham made its own decision in the matter of the two-year term. Other cities prefer to elect their councils and school boards every year, and that should be their privilege. They want to decide for themselves what is best for them, as Chatham decided, and they resent it when the provincial authority steps in to say what they want doesn't matter at all, because Mr. Hepburn knows best and what he says goes.

MANHOOD IMPAIRED

THE Readers' Digest contains an article sponsored by a former high medical authority of Berlin which contains overwhelming statistics that Hitlerism has not strengthened but greatly weakened the health of the young people of Germany, while the past six years of hardship and privation, with reduced food calories, have reduced greatly the efficiency of German workers. There have been alarming increases in many diseases, diphtheria, tuberculosis, etc., while Hitler Youth now beat the world's record for fallen arches and flat feet. This process has been going on for six years of strain under Hitler and the conclusion is that no nation can combat two fresh, well nurtured people, the British and French, who are beginning warfare with stamina unimpaired.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

And Pilate, when he had called together the chief priests and the rulers and the people, said unto them, Ye have brought this man unto me, as one that perverteth the people: and, behold, I, having examined him before you, have found no fault in this man touching those things whereof ye accuse him....I will therefore chastise him, and release him....

But they cried, saying, Crucify him, crucify him....And when they were come to the place, which is called Calvary, there they crucified him, and the malefactors, one on the right hand, and the other on the left. — Luke xxiii, 13, 14, 16, 21, 33.

A Bit of Nonsense

Not in this Army

Two business men had joined the Army. The other day they met while on leave.

"I've sent in an application for my commission," said one.

"What!" exclaimed his friend (or so I'm told). "Can we get commission as well as our pay?"

Well, I suppose there's a percentage of truth in it.

Not Strong Enough

"Yes, it's great stuff, this tonic," said the salesman. "It'll make you feel ten years younger, sir."

"Ten years? Well, it's no good to me, then," said Brown. "I wouldn't mind feeling sixteen years younger, but ten years—no."

"How's that?" asked the salesman.

"I've been married fifteen years—that's why."

PLAIN DENIAL

IN HIS SPEECH and action in the legislature yesterday Mr. Hepburn gave further proof of his complete unfitness for the position he occupies—his unfitness in fact for public life whose amenities and responsibilities he violates. He is reported in the Globe and Mail to have made the following reference to the publisher of The Star:

"He charged that the publisher of The Star, in an interview in the Premier's office relating to the government's policy opposing the C.I.O., told me in the presence of one of my colleagues that unless I supported his policy he would harass me and attack me to the end of my public life.

"'I had the privilege of telling him to get out of my office,' the Premier said."

The first of these untrue statements has been made before and the publisher of The Star has denied it. The second is made for the first time. They are both without a vestige of truth.—Toronto Star.

THE McINTOSH RED

DISCUSSING the respective merits of the McIntosh and the Northern Spy, the Vancouver Sun implies that the Mac is a comparatively young apple. That may be the case as far as the Okanagan Valley is concerned, but the McIntosh is old hereabouts, where it was born, where it continues to thrive and whence it was transplanted to British Columbia and other parts of the world. And we wouldn't trade one prime tasty McIntosh grown beside the St. Lawrence in its natural environment for a barrel of the insipid B.C. Macs. —Brockville Recorder and Times.

Ralston Drafting Bonds To Suit Small Investor

OTTAWA, Jan. 22 — (CP). — Canadians of modest means, many of them unable to invest in the first loan of the Second Great War because of the heavy over-subscription, are going to get a chance to play their financial part in the Dominion's war effort.

Finance Minister Ralston, in thanking Canadians for the overwhelming support given last week's $200,000,000 loan, gave small investors this assurance last night.

He was not sure just what form the new program would take. But he said the flood of small orders for war loan bonds that rolled total subscriptions to $374,576,850 showed the need of some plan in which the small investor "could at any time put his savings into some sort of a war loan security of suitable small denomination."

"It has been decided to institute such a program," said Col. Ralston. "What the plan will aim at is to encourage regular savings by giving the citizen of modest means an opportunity at any time — not just when a war loan campaign is on— to invest those savings in Dominion war savings securities of small denominations."

The Finance Minister said the plan might be along the lines of the war savings certificates of the last war. As soon as details are worked out they will be announced.

Col. Ralston spoke over a national network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation and was joined in his thanks to the Canadian people by representatives of the Allied Governments and the nine Dominion Provinces.

Thanks From Far And Wide

"Fellow Canadians—this Dominion htanks you all," he said, but he warned against letting satisfaction lead to complacency.

"After the heartening experience of last week's striking success, the orders for all of us are—not "halt and rest' but 'carry one'," Col. Ralston declared.

Col. Ralston spoke from Ottawa as did Sir Gerald Campbell, British High Commissioner to Canada; Count Robert de Damplerre, French minister to Canada; and Victor Podoski, Polish consul general in Canada.

Sir Gerald expressed the sentiments of all the speakers when he said: "This is London calling, calling Canada, 'Well done, old friend'."

Contributing to the broadcast from widely points were: Premier Thane Campbell of Prince Edward Island; Premier Macdonald of Nova Scotia; J. J. Hayes-Doone, provincial treasurer, New Brunswick; J. A. Mathewson, provincial treasurer of Quebec; Premier Hepburn of Ontario; S. S. Garson, provincial treasurer of Manitoba; Premier Patterson of Saskatchewan; Solon Low, provincial treasurer of Alberta; and Premier Pattullo of British Columbia.

Seymour Fair Dairy Show Lauded T. J. Horkins Honored By Society

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 22.—(ENS)—The Seymour Agriculture Society had one of the best dairy shows in the district according to Ian McLeod, Agriculture Representative, Brighton. Mr. MacLeod addressed the Society's Annual meeting held here Thursday when the board of directors for the year was elected.

Feature event of the meeting was the presentation of a certificate of merit made to Mr. T. J. Horkins on behalf of the society by W. J. Duncan. The diploma is presented each year to some member who has given an outstanding contribution to in the interest of agriculture and it was particularly fitting that Mr. Horkins should be the recipient this year in view of the fact that he is now retiring from the chairmanship of the Sports Committee having previously run the entire gauntlet of offices from president down. He is the oldest active member of the organization and as a further tribute to his many years of service was made honorary president.

A Real Bond

In his address made in reply Mr. Horkins thanked the organization for the honors it had bestowed on him and praised the work that had been done in recent years particularly in repairing the land and buildings. "The society forms a bond between the township and the town" declared Mr. Horkins who on Monday next will celebrate his 85th birthday, making him the oldest merchant in the town of Campbellford.

He briefly reviewed the early history of Seymour which was a township some years before Campbellford was thought of. Mr. Horkins recalled how the post office which was one day to become Campbellford, was located not on the present town site but farther down the river at what was then known as "the Patch". Emphasising the bond between town and township, Mr. Horkins reminded the meeting that every road in Seymour township lead to Campbellford and that it was impossible to go out of Campbellford without being in Seymour township.

With reference to his retirement from the Sports Committee he urged the election of a man familiar with the work since thought the "fair is primarily an agricultural one it is necessary to have a good program of sports and horse races to attract a good portion of your annual attendance."

Has Some Praise

Mr. Alex Hume who is likewise one of the senior members of the Society and widely known as a breeder of pure bred dairy stock moved a vote of congratulation to Mr. Horkins. "He is the smartest man at 85 I know of." He recommended that in the future prizes should be given for registered Clydsdales and Percherons. In his opinion much of the fair's value hinges on a good show of horses.

Mr. John Locke, vice president of the Northumberland Seed Growers association and a member of the Society's directorate in 1939 suggested that a seed fair might be held here this year. He expressed regret that a number of the registered grain growers had disappeared declaring the society had done much to foster an improvement in grain.

Before the election of officers was begun a vote of thanks wa stendered to the retiring president, James Waters for his work on behalf of the society during the preceding year. It was announced that the president, vice presidents and secretary would be elected by the directors chosen at the meeting.

Officers for 1940 were chosen as follows: Honorary President, T. J. Horkins; Honorary Directors, Alex. Hume, W. A. Fraser, H. N. Carr; Directors — Garnet Curle, William Hume, James Waters, Wm. J. Duncan, John Locke, Robert McCulloch, Robert Stephens, Victor Irwin, Douglas Rutherford, J. A. Murray, G. G. Stephens, Garnet Kerr, Ed. Stanbury, Frank Lee, Melville Wight, E. Irwin, E. C. McCook. Junior Directors—Craig Nelson, Allen Curle, William Bateson, Robert Curle, Morley Bennett, Gordon McCulloch; President, G. Curle; 1st Vice President, William Hume; 2nd Vice Pres., R. McCulloch; Secretary Treasurer, G. G. Stephens.

Ex-Tweed Lawyer Dies In Vancouver

TORONTO, Jan. 22.—Word reached here yesterday of the death at his home, Cedar Crescent, Vancouver, of Charles William Craig, K.C., formerly of Belleville and Tweed, and one of British Columbia's most prominent barristers. He was in his sixty-eighth year and had been ill for some time.

Born at Walkerton, Mr. Craig was the son of Joseph and Lucinda C. Craig. He was a graduate of Osgoode Hall, and read law with Clute & Williams, Belleville. Called to the Bar of Ontario in 1894, he practiced law in Tweed until 1905, when he moved to Vancouver. During the past 25 years he has figured in many important law cases in British Columbia, and has appeared before the Privy Council. He was created a K.C. in 1918.

A member of the United Church, Mr. Craig was vice-president of the Central City Mission. He was a Liberal and a member of several Vancouver clubs. He was a frequent visitor to Ontario during his long residence in Vancouver. Surviving are his widow, Ella Sulman Craig; two daughters, Mrs. T. L. McMaster of Smiths Falls, and Mrs. George Rea, Saskatoon, and two sisters, Miss Lily and Miss Ida Craig, Toronto.

Closer Understanding Among Men Is Urged By Rabbi Slonim

National Sunday in St. James' United Church was observed at all services yesterday with an innovation in the evening, when members of B'nai B'rith Peterborough Lodge were guests of St. James', and Rabbi Reuben A. Slonim, of McCaul Street Synagogue, Toronto, occupied the pulpit.

An unusually large congregation, representing both Christian and Jewish faith, greeted this distinguished speaker, whose timely message was "Building Brotherhood." "Not strength nor might alone can save the world, but the spirit of God in man," claimed the Rabbi as he introduced his eloquent and inspiring challenge to a new world brotherhood. Taking for his text one of the noblest affirmations of faith in the Old Testament, Zechariah 4: 6: "Not by might, nor by power, but by my spirit saith the Lord of Hosts."

In developing this theme the Rabbi pointed out that both Jew and Christian should ask themselves certain questions. The first of these, "Do I feel superior to any man?" We must realize that there is no superior race, for we are all children of the same God, and equal in His sight.

An Interest In Man.

"De we ignore or hate anything strange to us?" It seems to be a primitive instinct in man to do this, and to exclude the stranger. We ought to learn that differences are inevitable and it is our duty to penetrate beneath the surface to our common desires and aspirations "Are we apt to make quick generalization and attribute an undesirable trait to a whole race?' We must be tolerant—eager to listen to the good, and slow to hear the evil. We are at present engaged in conflict and even a righteous war may make men less eager to shun hate — may make it difficult for us to return to sanity and progress. We need something to keep our hearts wholesome, and that is the spirit of God in us.

History Of Freedom.

Canadian history knows only freedom, but even here we ought not to ignore the danger of autocracy. Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty. In our schools we must vigorously teach our children that democracy is the best way of life. In our homes we must instil the belief that all men are created in the image of God.

Jew and Christian must stand side by side and proclaim with their last breath the Brotherhood of Man—the love that transcends class and creed. This does not mean a fusion of races for every group culture has its characteristic which is valuable and ought to be sustained. Tolerance means, not wiping out differences, but making the world safe for differences. That is why we are struggling today against those who would force us into one mould.

Based On Compassion.

Finally, the speaker said the spirit of God is based upon compassion and understanding. Cruelty in wartime grows upon a people once humane. Capacity to behold suffering without pity has been held up as heroic in Germany. Persecution was first excused, then justified, and at last glorified.

The contagion of savagery sweeping over continental Europe may crush us, too, in Canada. There is danger that we may be so satiated with pity that we can no longer react to the stories of atrocities. Give us power to see that the greatest weapon against cruelty is love, or compassion. Every war piles up more intolerance and cruelty and, lest the thin, low voice of tolerance and democracy die out, we must lavish our energy upon building brotherhood. Today, humanity is on severe trial. We must wage war because our cause is just, and we must determine to fight for justice abroad and for tolerance, democracy and kindness at home. Then people will understand that the world can not be saved by strength or might, but by the spirit of God in man.

Special music for the day arranged by the organist, Cecil E. Lapp, included a beautiful soprano solo, "The Voice of One in the Wilderness," by Mrs. H. F. Doig, who also sang the solo part in the anthem, "Sun of My Soul." Mr. S. Hanlon also sang in fine voice, "This Is My Task," and another anthem by the full choir was "God is a Spirit."

The Rev. Fred W. Craik, pastor of the church, took the opening devotions and welcomed the Rabbi to this service, which was concluded with the fitting hymn, "Faith of Our Fathers."

Broods 7 Years On Kidnapping

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 22—(AP)—Mary McElroy killed herself yesterday after seven tragic years of brooding over what she termed the unjust punishment of the men who kidnapped her in 1933.

Police said she had taken her own life. They found a note penned in the handwriting of the 32-year-old daughter of the late H. F. McElroy, stormy Pendergast political machine leader, who was ousted as city manager last spring.

The note said:

"My four kidnappers are probably the only people on earth who don't consider me an utter fool.

"You have your death penalty now —so—please—give them a chance."

It was signed "Mary McElroy."

While no official comment was forthcoming, the npte was interpreted in some quarters as referring to her known attitude of sympathy toward the fate of the men who abducted her.

Clarence Stevens, one of the men sought by Federal agents as a member of the McElroy kidnapping gang still is at large.

Two of the other three kidnappers, Walter and George McGee, brothers, are serving life sentences in penitentiary. A third member of the gang, Clarence Click, who lived on the farm where Miss McElroy was held prisoner, was released in 1938 after serving an eight-year sentence.

The bullet penetrated her head just forward of and near the top of her right ear. Police made tests which they said showed Miss McElroy's right hand held and fired the death weapon.

Her body was clad in a lounging suit, slacks and jacket. A pair of dark glasses covered her eyes.

Her death was the tragic end of seven harrowing years, beginning with her kidnapping in 1933. Then followed the trial of three of her four abductors; her successful appeal to the Governor to commute the death sentence; the ousting of her father as city manager in the breakdown of the Pendergast machine last spring and finally her father's death last summer.

Miss McElroy was kidnapped from her bath, May 27, 1933, chained to the basement wall of a farm house near Shawnee, Kas., and released after being held prisoner twenty-nine hours. Her father paid $30,000 ransom.

Stork Leaving Siegfreid Line

PARIS, Jan. 22 (CP).—Citizens of the old city of Strasbourg in Alsace are worried about the stork situation. Whether the birds which have built their nests among the Alsatian chimney-pots have observed the work going on at the Seigfried Line and deemed it prudent to pull up twigs and move west or not, is unknown. It is a certainty there are fewer storks this year—some of the nests which have been inhabited for years are empty—and those birds which have come don't seem to be any too decided about staying.

One French member of parliament suggested that Premier Daladier or Public Health Minister Rucart, who launched propaganda for an improvement in the birthrate, might have something to do with it. Since the formation of the leagues for the encouragement of more births and the serious attention the government is devoting to the problem of repopulation; perhaps the storks have been pressed into service in other parts of the country.

This is the idea of one journalist who saw a stork perched on the top of the war museum, take his bearings and fly in the direction of the Ministry of Health.

Millbrook Presbyterians Review Splendid Year Of Grace Church

MILLBROOK, Jan. 22.—(ENS).—The one hundred and fifth annual meeting of Grace Presbyterian church was held on Thursday, the minister, Rev. A. Raeburn-Gibson, presiding, and conducting the opening devotional period.

Margaret Armstrong acted as secretary pro tem, and the chairman spoke briefly on the subject of starting a men's club with a view to fellowship, and of helping the church.

The report of the Session was presented by Mr. Joseph Burns, who mentioned the loss sustained during 1939 through the death of four active workers, Mrs. R. J. McKnight, Mrs. William Deyell, Mr. Stark and Mr. H. W. Ball. One communion service had been held since Rev. Mr. Williams left the circuit, and at that time new members had been received into the church.

Mr. H. A. Kerr gave the treasurer's report showing finances in excellent condition and well over $100 on hand to begin the new year. The books had been audited and found correct by Messrs. E. L. Armstrong and T. W. Belch.

Miss Mina Gibson reported for the Ladies' Aid Society, showing total raised $601.76; expenditures $411.09; balance in bank, $190.67. For the five groups the amounts raised were: Miss Jean Syer, $16.35; Mrs. H. A. Kerr, $22.85; Mrs. L. Ingram, $21.50; Mrs. S. Pritchard, $21.00; Miss M. Gibson, $15.45.

Fine Secretary's Report.

Mrs. Alex Miller presented the secretary's report, telling of 13 regular meetings, with an average attendance of 12; flowers had been placed in the church during the year, and the money raised through an Irish supper, a sale of aprons, a strawberry festival, the annual bazaar and afternoon tea, meals on Fair day, talent money, and teas served at the regular meetings.

For the W.M.S., the treasurer, Miss Agnes Johnston, reported the allocation not quite reached, 11 meetings, with an average attendance of 13; the study book, "Moving Millions," taken up monthly, two thank offerings, at Easter and in the fall; an outfit for a girl of nine years prepared for the annual sale, valued at $22.00, and containing other clothing, quilts, etc., as well. The loss of valuable workers in the persons of Mrs. McKnight and Mrs. Deyell, was feelingly mentioned by the Ladies' Aid and the Missionary Auxiliary.

The Sunday school report was most gratifying, showing a substantial balance on hand and all supplies paid for until the end of March. Recently another junior class had been organized and the attendance and interest are growing.

Gladys Coyte gave the report for the Girls' Auxiliary, telling of 16 meetings held with an average attendance of 6; study and work meetings had been held alternately, and activities had been of a constructive character. Miss Gladys also reported for the Young Peoples' Society, recently organized, and with meetings progressing favorably, and finances in satisfactory condition.

Mr. Kerr gave an outline of the work of the cemetery board, which has a balance on hand, and after discussion it was decided to have three communion services during 1940, and to increase the Board of Managers from seven to nine members, those remaining on being T. W. Belch and J. R. Thompson; new members included L. W. Larmer for two years, S. Pritchard for 3 years, and L. H. Gibson for one year. The church treasurer, H. A. Kerr, was re-appointed and acorded a hearty vote of thanks for his fine services. Auditors for 1940 are T. W. Belch and J. R. Thompson.

Jos. Burns was appointed to the trustee board in place of the late H. W. Ball, and the hearty vote of thanks to the women of the church for their self-sacrificing and faithful service during the year was sponsored by J. Burns and J. R. Thompson.

Following prayer by the minister, the meeting closed and was followed by a social hour, and congregational tea, served by the Ladies' Aid, the long tables being attractively laid, and the menu of a substantial character.

Bradford Baker Shoots Wife Then Suicides

BRADFORD, Ont., Jan. 22.—(CP)—Police today sought to account for a motive for the deaths of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stephenson in their home here. They believed Stephenson, 32-year-old baker, shot his wife twice through the head as she slept and then fired a bullet into his own temple.

First word of the tragedy came when their five-year-old daughter, Joan, fully clothed, went to the neighboring home of Russel Warfolk early yesterday and called: "They're both dead. They're shot."

Provincial Constable C. F. Dean and Chief Constable Wallace Reeves said they found Mrs. Stephenson lying in a normal position in bed with two bullet wounds in her head, while the body of her husband was sprawled beside the bed, one hand grasping a .22 calibre rifle. A nine-months-old daughter, Marilyn, was in a crib in the same room.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephenson, who had been married 13 years, were skating in the village rink Saturday evening and apparently left about the same time. Later Stephenson was seen in the stores downtown and police said he was following his usual habit of checking the stores for orders for the bakery.

Shots Waken Daughter

Police believe Joan was awakened by the sound of the shots although she seemed unable to remember incidents of the previous night.

Albert Hunt, Stephenson's partner in the bakery, could not account for the shooting.

"We have always got along," Hunt said. "The whole thing is a surprise and a shock to me. He was cheerful —they both seemed cheerful yesterday—and there didn't seem to be anything wrong. I can't give any reason any more than anyone else can."

Stephenson was active in athletics, being a good bowler and hockey player. Mrs. Stephenson was a member of the Bradford Badminton Club.

Bradford is 32 miles north of Toronto.

United Counties' Surplus Will Be $10,000

COBOURG, Jan. 22.—(Special.)—Surplus in the neighborhood of ten thousand dollars for the year just ended was forecast by the counties clerk and treasurer in his financial statement at the close of the January session of Northumberland and Durham Counties Council. The Special Schools committee was empowered to proceed with the necessary legal arrangements in connection with the Wooler School Board's decision to appeal the Supreme Court judgment which had dismissed its claim against the counties. Appointment of members of various boards and commissions wound up a session which had been highlighted by no contentious issues or anything of more than routine nature.

Started With $7,000.

According to the financial statement of the clerk and treasurer the counties commenced 1939 with a surplus of $7,000. The income from the counties rate was $304,730.18 with unpaid taxes of $13,164.83 or a total of $317,895.01. Provincial highway subsidy was $46,000; corn borer items, $203.58; license fees, $280. Total income was $365,069.53. The expenditures were made up in part of counties roads, $100,209.53; administration of justice, $16,923.69, bungetted, $16,000; debenture and interest payments, $87,629.08; indigent patients, $8,568.16, budgetted, $12,000; registry offices $18,000, budgetted, $15,000; printing, postage, etc., $2,000, budgetted, $2,092; counties home, $16,306.59, less income of $5,091.71, leaving a net cost of $11,214.80, budgetted, $12,000; children's aid, $9,000, budgetted, $10,000; council and committee, $6,500; salaries, $3,800; county rooms, $5,600; public and separate schools, $9,800; high schools, $46,-765.13; continuation schools, $16,-214.58; education, $72,577.75 agricultural grants, $3,000; interest on loans, $4,000; sundries, $2,600; counties home $17,802.61. The surplus is expected to be reduced to some extent by a number of factors.

Commenting on the financial statement, the clerk and treasurer stated that 1939 had been a very successful year as far as the counties were concerned. The debenture debt was $497,511.32, made up of paving, $357,696.42, construction and maintenance, $139,874.80; bank loans, $40,000. Discussing the financial circumstances of the counties, Reeve R. Mallory of Percy township lauded the 1939 warden, Reeve Bert Reid of Clarke township. Reeve Charles Calver of Campbellford, asked the clerk if the tax rate would be reduced. The clerk doubted if more than a slight reduction would be possible as the counties were being operated at rock bottom.

Committee Recommendation.

The committee reports contained only the average recommendations in regard to resolutions forwarded from other councils. The legislative and by-laws committee recommended that a section of the rules of order be deleted where it stipulated two sittings a day and set forth the hours. It was held that with the large amount of committee work, now being done, as compared with years past, two sittings per day were too much.

By-laws were passed appointing J. F. George of Smithfield and Deputy-Reeve C. Morris of Bowmanville, auditors of criminal justice accounts at $4.50 a day and ten cents per mile, coming and going. Commissioners of county offices appointed were Reeve W. J. Troop of Colborne, east Northumberland registry office; Deputy-Reeve Alan Field, Cobourg, west Northumberland registry office; Deputy-Reeve W. J. Crowhurst, Port Hope, east Durham registry office; Reeve G. A. Edmonstone, Bowmanville, west Durham registry office; jail and county offices, Reeve Roy Dodge of Cobourg. Trustee appointed to represent the counties on high school and continuation schools were, Bowmanville, tabled; Campbellford, A. Thompson; A. Armour and H. Bleecker; Cobourg, A. D. Spragge; Colborne, A. Dance; Newcastle, H. Tom, Port Hope, W. J. Davison. Corn borer inspectors are J. N. McGill, Durham county and Leslie Campbell, Northumberland.

Termed Ridiculous.

Inconnection with the by-law which permits the counties to borrow money up to $150,000 for administration of the counties affairs pending the collection of taxes, the clerk and treasurer labelled as ridiculous the government requiring the school grants to be paid in the summer instead of at the end of the year and then providing no immediate legal machinery permitting the counties borrowing to meet this obligation. It cost the counties money to get the necessary authority to borrow for this purpose.

A committee was appointed, consisting of the warden, the clerk and treasurer, Reeve Mallory, chairman of finance and Reeve C. Devitt to interview the Department of Municipal affairs in connection with the school grants financing.

Hospital board appointees were Reeve C. Burison of Hamilton Township to the Cobourg Hospital Board; Reeve S. Gifford of Port Hope to the Port Hope Board and Deputy-Reeve C. Morris of Bowmanville to the Bowmanville Board. A by-law was passed confirming the increase in salary from $1,800 to $2,100 of A. S. Miller, the counties road superintendent. Reeve Gifford and Deputy-reeve Crowhurst of Port Hope were appointed the counties representatives on the Children's Aid Board. Deputy-reeve H. Woodley of Hope Twonship was appointed to the special county property committee; Reeve, W. J. Boggs, Manvers Township, Board of Management; Reeve W. R. Prouse, road commission; W. J. Ross and W. J. Patton, reforestation committee.

A brief summary in connection with the counties manufacture of their own snow fence was given by Mr. A. S. Miller. He pointed out that at one time the counties obtained their snow fence from the government machine at Orono but hat snow fence manufacturers objected and had this practice stopped. The counties then proceeded to make their own snow fence, after buying a machine for the purpose. The snow fence was only for counties and township use and was not sold elsewhere. Due to low overhead the counties could make their own snow fence at a lower cost than manufacturers.

The following items were listed in the report of the finance commitee: Administration of justice, $4,-150.47; maintenance of indigents, $2,816.85; printing, etc., $454.70; roads, $16,008.75; counties home, $3,698.32; jail, $627.58; municipal governments, $4,516.27; education, $10,374.65; grants, $4,930.00; loans repaid, $286,000.00. The finance committee recommended that $100 be made available when needed so that the crown attorney could see that all witnesses and jurors were paid as soon as a court case was over. The report was adopted.

Although some members of the council felt that the Wooler School Board was bluffing in its threat to appeal a decision which had dismissed their action against the counties, the council as a whole decided to take no chances and authorized the preparation of the counties' representations for the appeal.

The case arose out of a claim by the Wooler Continuation School Board for $1,176.00 for transporting pupils to and from school from outlying parts. The counties contended that Board had no authority to go out and pick up students outside the school section and bring them in by bus and then to turn around and attempt to collect from the counties. After the claim was dismissed in Supreme Court, the counties offered to pay its own costs and the Wooler Board to do likewise. It was intimated that the Board would send up a deputation at the January session to talk things over but no delegation materialized and the Board announced its intentions of going on with appeal. The Board's alternative offer was that the counties pay $1,000 and costs to the Board.

"Mr. Morrow and I did all we could to settle the thing," stated Deputy-reeve Smith of Murray Township. "It is a case of where a school board has more authority than those who elected them. We are pretty well sunk down there financially and I can't scee how their expense of going to court on it is justified."

Col. F. D. Boggs, K.C., counties solicitor, asserted that in his opinion the counties had an excellent case and should win.

Painful Boils
Bad Blood the Cause

When boils start to break out on different parts of the body it is an evidence that the blood is loaded up with impurities.

Just when you think you are rid of one, another crops up to take its place and prolong your misery.

All the lancing and poulticing you may do will not stop more coming.

Why not give that old, reliable, blood purifying medicine Burdock Blood Bitters a chance to banish the boils? Thousands have used it for this purpose during the past 60 years.

Take B.B.B. and get rid of the bad blood and the boils too.

Fire Destroys Norwood Service Station

House Of Refuge Costs In 1939 Showed Increase

Fewer inmates receiving old age pensions accounted for an increase last year in the cost of the House of Refuge, Reeve M. Coughlin, chairman of the board, reported to the County Council.

The cost per inmate per week was $4.38. Reeve Gifford said that a few years ago the corresponding cost was several dollars less, and a reporter's glance at the records for 1936 when Reeve Gifford was Warden and George Mullen was chairman of the board showed that "the cost per inmate per week" was $1.37½.

Reeve Coughlin informed the council that there were ony four inmates at the end of 1939 who were receiving old age pensions. At the beginning of last year there were seventeen inmates. Eight persons were cimmitted during the year, three were discharged and seven died.,

The number of pensioners dropped from eight last January to four in December.

"This of course has helped increase the cost of maintenance of the home quite a great deal. Two inmates, who were paying their way in the home, died during the year."

Produce of the farm included 175 bushels of wheat, 500 bushels of oats, 40 tons of hay, 1,056 pounds of butter, 409 dozens of eggs, 12,216 quarts of milk.

Receipts last year totalled $2,225,-33 and payments $6,096.26. The net cost of the home was $3,870.93.

Insurance for 1940.

The council accepted the bid of A. E. Wilson & Co., Toronto, of $1274.40 for public liability insurance for this year.

A resolution of the council expressed the members' appreciation of the hospitality of the city council and Peterborough Exhibition Board as evidenced at Thursday night's dinner. Another motion conveyed the council's regret of the illness of James Milby, last year's warden.

Saved County $4000.

"There is $4,000 less a year going out of the county treasurer than there would be if I hadn't been chairman of the education committee, Reeve W. A. Anderson casually commented in a discussion of the appointment of high school trustees. "May be we all have been happier if we had just sat back and let it go." The curtailment included payments to Lakefield and Norwood Boards. Reeve Anderson recalled a statement of a Lakefield trustee, "Why shouldn't we put it over the county if we can."

It was generally felt that county appointees to school boards seemed at times to be indifferent and hostile to council members.

Reeve M. H. Johnston said he was convinced Mr. Anderson was "a splendid, good man on the job," that he had seconded the motion for his appointment as chairman of the education committee, and he was glad Mr. Anderson was again chairman this year.

Reeve Johnston's motion recording appreciation of Mr. Anderson's services as chairman of that committee was seconded by Reeve G. W. Seeney.

"I assure you Mr. Warden that we're not going to have a lawsuit with Norwood. Our case will be so much stronger than theirs that they'll never start to fight," Reeve Anderson remarked. "We have no quarrel with the Norwood High School Board. The difficulty was the council dipped in and took out a certain sum."

Reeve Thompson said the village council asked the school board to reduce their requisition and that was done.

Reeve Anderson suggested the council should have asked the board to reduce their school cost. "The board's estimate was $3,000 and the actual cost was $2,900, so the board wasn't far out."

The council finally made the following appointments to the Norwood High School Board. David Stark for three years, W. H. Montgomery two years, and E. T. Buck one year.

The motion was made by Reeve W. A. Anderson, seconded by Reeve J. R. Thompson.

Finland Light of Freedom

He paid tribute to Finland, "superb, nay sublime, sublime in the jaws of peril" and said that if the light of freedom should be quenched in that northern race "it might well herald a return to the dark ages when every vestige of human progress during 2,000 years would be engulfed."

To Austria, Poland and Czecho-Slovakia he had a word of comfort. "Let the great cities of Warsaw, or Prague, or Vienna banish despair, even in the midst of their agony," he said. "Their liberation is sure."

Much of his speech was a review of the war at sea. He said that while he was sure many losses and misfortunes lie ahead, yet things were going better for Britain than they had in any previous naval warfare.

More survivors were due this morning aboard two French destroyers. Special hospitals were ready to care for those who had suffered burns and exposure.

Refugees from the abandoned South America-bound liner said the explosion occurred about 5 p.m. yesterday in her engine room while she was fighting her way through a tempest 60 miles off Barcelona.

While two French warships, the 23,350-ton Italian liner Conte Biancamano, the 11,760-ton Italian liner Colombo and the 5,441-ton Italian freighter Recca put out their boats the two remaining Orazio lifeboats were launched.

Survivors said one, believed to have carried an Italian diplomat, was lost. He had been en route to his South American post.

The Italian Minister to Panama, Renato Firenze, was aboard the burned motorship. Former Belgian Premier Paul Van Zeeland was reported to have been a passenger.

Another lifeboat was said to have been picked up by a French auxiliary cruiser, one of the rescue fleet summoned by tow distress calls from the Orazio. The United States liner Washington, bound from New York to Genoa, also answered her SOS.

All survivors who had reached Marseilles so far were Italian and German. Many were burned badly.

Officials in Genoa said the origin of the fire was not known, but that it apparently broke out while the Orazio was about 20 miles off Toulon.

They said the Conte Biancamáno had taken the Orazio in tow and, according to their latest information, she still was afloat.

Estimates of the number of persons aboard varied from 900 to 940. (Officials in Rome withheld the exact number of passengers and crew members pending a final check.)

Seek Boats in Storm.

Although all aboard were reported removed from the flaming liner, Italian shipping officials sought word of two lifeboats with 107 or 109 survivors who they hoped had been picked up by one of the French warships or Italian rescue vessels.

Ships answering the SOS searched throughout the night for the lifeboats bobbing in the storm on the Western Mediterranean.

The Orazio, launched in 1926 and in the Italian line's South American service since October, 1927, when she made her maiden voyage from Genoa to Valparaiso, Chile, left Genoa on Saturday for Barcelona, first stop on a trip to Valparaiso.

window and turned in the alarm. Bowmanville Fire Department was notified and, when it was seen that the blaze was reaching serious proportions, a second alarm was turned in to Orono.

Fear For Block.

Bonathan's hardware store, east of the burning building and Deline's confectionery, immediately west, were threatened for a time, and residents feared the blaze would sweep the entire block. Fifty years ago a fire destroyed an entire block of buildings, including a store owned by Mr. Fisher's father, before it was brought under control.

The fact that Deline's store was of brick construction and a narrow vacant lot separated the burning building from Bonathan's establishment was considered largely responsible for the firemen's success in confining the fire to a single building. Low temperatures and a high wind made their task doubly difficult.

The ruined building had a metal roof, which confined the blaze to a comparatively small area until it was almost under control. When the roof gave way, shortly after 1 o'clock Sunday morning, the flames had been checked to such an extent that nearby buildings were no longer threatened.

Practically the entire population of Newcastle turned out to watch the fire and take part in fighting it. The glare of the flames was clearly visible in Bowmanville when the fire was at its height, and many Bowmanville residents motored to Newcastle to watch.

was reported to have struck at Russian aviation bases on one of the few occasions in which the small Finnish air force has challenged the Russian aerial armada.

The high command announced that Finnish warplanes, "in addition to carrying out reconnaissance flights and repelling enemy aircraft, successfully bombed certain enemy air bases."

Bomb Great Naval Base.

(A Reuters News Agency dispatch from Helsingfors said Finnish airmen had bombed the Soviet Union's great naval base at Kronstadt in the Gulf of Finland and the Estonian port of Baltiski, where a Russian air base was set up by Russian-Estonian treaty.

(Press dispatches reaching Stockholm reported that Kronstadt and an Estonian coastal base were attacked by 20 planes which returned safely to Finland.

(An Oslo newspaper said a group of foreign volunteer fliers for Finland, including several Swedes, staged a one-hour raid on Kronstadt a few days ago).

The Finnish command also reported shooting down an observation balloon and 11 Russian bombers.

The communique made no mention of fighting in the Salla sector above the Arctic Circle but an Associated Press correspondent with the Finnish forces there said the Russians had checked their retreat to engage the Finns in heavy fighting near Marajaervi, 50 miles within Finland.

One of the thrusts was said to have broken in the face of Finnish shellfire while the other was turned back by counter-attacking troops.

"Heavy casualties were inflicted on the enemy," said the Finnish high command.

Using Estonian Fields.

It was in the same communique, issued Sunday, that the high command linked the announcement of raids on Russian bases with this statement:

"From information obtained from enemy airmen who fell into our hands yesterday (Saturday) it is clear that air bases situated in Estonia are being used at least for air raids on southwest Finland."

Whether because the cloudy skies or the reported counter-strokes, Finland yesterday found respite from aerial attacks.

The pounding from the skies reached its height on Saturday with perhaps 500 Russian planes in the air and more than 3,000 bombs dropped on cities and villages from the southern coast to the far north. Only three civilians were said to have been killed and 35 wounded.

so great. The First Lord of the Admiralty in an Empire broadcast said "things are not going so badly after all. Indeed they have never gone so well in any naval war."

500 to 1 Chance

He said that the chances were 500 to 1 against any ship in a British convoy being sunk; that half the U-boats with which Germany began the war have been destroyed and "their new building has fallen far behind what we expected; and that mines "do not present us with any problem which we deem insoluble."

"Here we are, after nearly five months of all they can do against us on the seas, with the first U-boat campaign for the time being utterly broken, with the mining menace in good control, with our shipping virtually undiminished and with all the oceans of the world free from surface raiders," he said.

United States officials in Washington intimated they are watching anxiously the apparent shrinking of American farmers' export markets as a result of British shipping restrictions. Possibility also arose in Tokyo that Japan might make a formal protest against the stopping of the Japanese liner Asama Maru by a British warship.

Eight Vessels Lost.

Besides the Grenville, grief to these eight other ships became known during the week-end:

The 7,807-ton British tanker Caroni sank suddenly Saturday after an explosion when she was 20 minutes out on a trial run after refitting. Her crew of 55 was saved, but many were sent flying high into the air and several were injured severely.

The British steamship Protesilaus, 9,557-tons, sank yesterday after striking a mine off the west coast of England. A rescue vessel brought her cre wof 60 sofely ashore.

The 1,086-ton British steamship Ferryhill sank apparently after striking a mine off the northeast coast. Two survivors were landed, but 12 of her crew were believed lost.

Swede Hits 2 Mines

The 1,179-ton Swedish steamship Flandria went down after striking two mines, and 17 of her crew were reported lost. Four survivors, picked up after spending two days in an open boat, said the Flandria sank Thursday.

The 1,469-ton Danish steamship Tekla was reported to have sunk after striking a mine yesterday off the northeast coast of Scotland.

The 4,842-ton British freighter Kirkpool was reported to have run aground on the southwest coast Friday night. Her crew was saved.

A collision damaged the 10,786-ton British liner Llandaff Castle, and she turned back from a voyage to South Africa.

The crew of the Norwegian merchantman Notos took to lifeboats Saturday when a submarine attacked. But when a torpedo churned past the Notos' bow a loud explosion and dense smoke suddenly came from the submarine, which disappeared and was not seen again, the crew returned to their ship and told their story in a northern port yesterday.

Besides the Grenville, British destroyers sunk since the outbreak of war were the Blanche and the Gipsy, both victims of mines, and the Duchess, lost as the result of a collision. The destroyer Jersey was damaged by a torpedo.

The Grenville, leader of the "G" class of destroyers, was built at a cost of £336,900 ($1,494,756) and carried five 4.7-inch guns, seven smaller guns and eight 21-inch torpedo tubes.

A pathetic sight was this Turkish peasant woman, survivor of the violent earthquake, as she sought refuge with her baby in a shelter made of 'quake wreckage. The death toll in the earthquakes was placed officially at 30,000, but unofficial sources placed the number of deaths from tremors over a wide section of the country at nearly 50,000.

Band Observes Anniversary With Concert

By way of marking their first anniversary, the Peterborough Brass Band returned to the Regent Theatre Sunday night where they made their bow to the public a winter ago, and delighted a large audience in a concert that displayed the progress the band has made in twelve months or thereabouts. They were assisted or thereabout. They were assisted by Mrs. James Goldie, soprano, and the Aloha Serenaders conducted by Gordon K. Fraser was chairman, and on behalf of the band and its director, Walter Dark, thanked the capacity audience for their support, and also expressed appreciation of other assistance the band has received during the year.

In two of the band's numbers, the baton was transferred by Walter Dark to his brother, E. J. Dark, formerly of the U. S. Marine Corps Band. Altogether it was fine entertainment and Mr. Dark announced that another concert was being planned for next month. At the opening of the concert the individual bandsmen were introduced by their leader, a pleasing gesture of acknowledgement of their faithful co-operation. Mr. Fraser complimented Mr. Dark on his accomplishment in bringing the band into being, and polishing its work to the present stage of development. Godfrey Matthews, president, referred to the year's experience in struggling along on contributions by the ling along on contributions by the men, contributions and concert receipts to pay for music, instruments and other expenses.

Rythmic melody featured two of the numbers, a Spanish waltz "Marchena," and the sparkling overture, "Gypsy Festival" which was played by the band in its first program. Ernest Dark conducted two numbers "Golden Gate" overture, and the dashing "March Imperial." Other band numbers were the opening march "Bands and Banners," a selection of Southern melodies, and a hymn "Sun of My Soul."

The Aloha Serenaders were invited to assist in the concert by reason of special requests following their last appearance with the band, and renewed their popularity. Mrs. Goldie sang three selections, "Arise O Sun," "Homing" and "Morning" with Harry Northrop, accompanist. Her sweet, lyric soprano rounded out an interesting program.

Sam Ward Told To Leave Town

Sam Ward whose erratic stories about the Cardinal bank robbery and a prospective holdup of a local drug store gave city and provincial police a little excitement a week ago Sunday and who was remanded until this morning when he pleaded not guilty to a charge of vagrancy changed his plea today and said guilty when brought before Magistrate Gee.

"I think it would be all right to let this man go now," said Chief Constable Newhall. "Provided he gets out of town right away".

"What are you trying to do—wish him on Lindsay?" queried Magistrate Gee.

"Anywhere, so long as he gets out of here," said Chief Newhall, who said that Ward should stop talking about guns or holdups. "He had a record but I am not going to bring it against him now," the Chief stated.

Magistrate Gee sentenced the accused to seven days to date from last Monday which meant, of course, his immediate release.

No Steps Taken To Cancel New Post Office

"No steps have been taken for the cancellation of work on the Peterborough federal building," was the message the Examiner received Saturday afternoon from the Department of Public Works in regard to the broad announcement on Saturday that suspension of the building of a post office at Tweed was part of a general policy affecting all similar works until the end of the war.

The telegraphed statement at best conveys the information that so far the Peterborough project has not been definitey struck from the list of federal improvements the Department had been planning before the war struck.

Lakefield Man Is Given Two Months

"This is a case in which unless there is something done this man will be found frozen to death on one of the city streets or on the road between here and Lakefield," said Sergt. G. T. Puffer in police court this morning after a 64-year-old Lakefield man had pleaded guilty to creating a disturbance on Charlotte Street on Saturday.

"He has no work, and no home," continued the officer. "Why don't you try getting a job with a farmer?" asked Magistrate E. A. Gee.

"It's not easy to get a job like that now," replied the accused.

Magistrate Gee sentenced the man to two months in the county jail, saying that he would be better inside during the cold weather.

German Transient Seeking Night's Lodging Is Placed Under Arrest By City Police

When a transient came into the police station Saturday night to ask for a night's lodgings and gave his name as Fritz Mueller, Constable John Stevenson, who was on desk duty immediately began to take notice.

His interest was deepened when Mueller admitted that he had been born in Germany, that he had only been in Canada three years, had not been naturalized and that he had not been registered as an enemy alien.

The result was that instead of getting shelter for the night Mueller was placed under arrest and this morning he was charged with vagrancy before Magistrate E. A. Gee in police court.

"Where have you been living?" asked the court.

"Kitchener," was the laconic reply.

"And where were you born?"—"In Germany."

"The police are reporting this man to the Royal Canadian Mounted Police," said Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry in asking for a week's remand.

Under the wartime regulations Mueller's failure to register as an enemy alien within a month after the issuing of the proclmation will probably result in his internment for the remainder of the war. Mueller told police that he had fought with the German army against the Allies in the last Great War.

"What do you think of Hitler?" he was asked.

"No understand," was the only reply from the German.

Mark Street United Church Reports Encouraging Year

A period of increased activity in all departments and organizations of the church was reported at the congregational meeting of Mark Street Church, Ashburnham.

The congregation met for supper at 6.30 p.m., over 100 members being present to enjoy the dainty and substantial dishes prepared and served by the Women's Association. The business portion of the meeting opened at 7.30 and was presided over by William Tinker, with Carlyle Ferguson acting as secretary.

The report of the Session was given by the Pastor the Rev. E. W. Rowland and showed excellent progress. Many new families had allied themselves to Mark Street, many baptisms and weddings had been solemnised, and two pastoral calls upon each family of the congregation had been made during the year.

Ward Gamble reported for the official board of the church and asked for the continued co-operation of all departments in the carrying out of the activities of the church.

A splendid report of the board of stewards and treasurer's report was given by J. L. Welsh, particularly the Building Fund of the new church, built around ten years ago. The mortgage upon this building now stands at less than $2,000 and will be further decreased when a bequest of $500, so kindly left to the Building Fund by the late Mrs. A. Payne is received.

Mrs. Sedgewick gave the report of the Women's Association, and mentioned the increasing work of that organization. This is one of the strongest groups of workers in the church, and the report reflected great credit upon the association.

The President of the W. A. Mrs. Gordon Eason was presented with a beautiful boquet of flowers at this point as a slight token of esteem and thanks for her splendid leadership during the past year.

The report of the Sunday School was given by Kent Throop, veteran treasurer of this excellent department, and the report of the choir by Mrs. Northrop.

The Women's Missionary Association reported a most successful year through Mrs. A. R. Scriver, and Fred Stephenson reported for the M. and M. fund.

Mrs. Alton gave the report of the Baby Fund and Cradle Roll, reading extracts from letters received from Northern Ontario by the recipients of bales of clothing sent from Mark Street. These letters were full of thanks and appreciation for the clothes received.

The report of the Men's Brotherhood and Bible Class was given by the secretary C. W. Sutton, and the president, H. Cheel, and gave great encouragement for the future.

Miss Irene Throop reported for the Mission Band and Junior congregation both of which showed excellent progress, as did that of the Young People's Society prepared by Miss K. Hales.

The C. G. I. T. report and Dramatic Club given by Miss Mary Ferguson, and the report on the Cubs and Boy Scouts given by Rev. E. W. Rowland, (in the absence of D. Windsor) brought to an end the various reports showing continued progress in every department.

Deep appreciation of the efforts of the choir during the past year were voiced by various speakers, and thanks were given to Mr. Northrop, and the members for the musical numbers given during the evening, and to Norman Hewitt for conducting the community singing.

The following were elected to the Board of Session for Five years: Len Adiam, E. Butler, E. Lillico; and the following the Board of Stewards for three years: Cyril Agnew, A. E. DeNure, Robert Sagar and Stan. Wood.

The singing of "Blest Be The Tie that Binds" and the benediction by the pastor brought to a close one of the most successful annual meetings in the history of Mark Street United church.

Holstein Breeders Favor Local Fair

The Holstein Breeders' Association appointed Joe T. Tully as their representative with the county Chamber of Agriculture at their annual meeting Saturday, and also made a contribution of $10.

The members were well satisfied with their "black and white" day at the Lakefield Fair last year, and from all reports it seems that this feature is continuing to retain its popularity and usefulness throughout the country. Robert Holtby, eastern Ontario field man, intimated that the system of fair grants by the Canadian association may be radically changed, demanding a new policy of even distribution of prizes.

An inference from the meeting was that, although the Association would not presume to tell the Peterboro directors how to run their Exhibition, the opinion of most of the members is that Peterborough should endeavor "to serve" its own district, with Ottawa in the east and London in the west filling similar regional roles.

Holstein business last year was exceptionally good, more transfers were registered, and the outlook for 1940 was said to be quite promising.

Prisoner Gives Alarm As Man Attempts Suicide

Only the fact that another prisoner in the cell block noticed his act and called for help, prevented a man from hanging himself in the local police station early on Sunday morning, police report. The accused was arrested Saturday night on a charge of creating a disturbance, after he pulled down some stovepipes at his home on George Street North.

He was locked up in the main cell block and in the early hours of the morning, according to the police report, he managed to tie his belt around his neck and faster it to a chain that supports a bed. Then he had jumped off the bed and was hanging in that position with his feet off the floor when another prisoner saw what was going on and called the police in time to save the man's life.

This morning he was charged in police court with attempted suicide and at the request of his counsel, John A. Bradshaw, was remanded until tomorrow morning without plea or election.

Mark Burnham Is Re-appointed To School Board

Mark Burnham of Otonabee was re-appointed to the Peterborough Collegiate and Vocational Board by the county council Saturday, and B. Q. Dench to the Lakefield High School board.

Reeve Gifford, chairman of the agricultural committee, was authorized to attend the Ontario Agricultural Association in Toronto if he so desires; Reeve M. H. Johnston and Reeve W. A. Anderson may also attend the association of rural municipalities if they wish.

Henry Coons of Smith and Rae Williams of Havelock were re-appointed auditors, and Dr. J. A. Morgan remains jail surgeon.

Plowmen Fail To Draw Grant

The Plowmen's Association failed to draw a contribution from the county council last week. For the last year or two the plowmen have been thrust more or less on the defensive when they approached the council. They more than suspect that the councillors have a sort of low opinion of plowing competitions and their influence on the improvement of agriculture in Peterborough townships.

As a matter of fact, and probably the county council was aware of it, the plowmen have a fairly substantial nest egg, thanks largely to the positive genius of Erle Tully in putting on dances, and not at all due to grudging support from the council that has finally petered out.

So, in spite of the county council's discouragement and also the problems and worries of war time, the plowing match will be in a position to carry on this fall, and the county's treasury has been thereby saved the bulky sum of $50.

Warkworth Woman Driver Fined $19.95

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 22 (ENS) —Miss Evelyn Partridge, Warkworth, was assessed $15.00, and $4.95 costs, following her plea of guilty to a charge of careless driving. According to the evidence Miss Partridge had failed to bring her car to a stop before entering No. 30 Highway at Bradley's Corners, south of here, on January 6. Her failure to stop resulted in a collision with a car driven by Sergeant H. Thompson, Provincial Police, Belleville.

Police claimed an estimated $400 damage had been done by the collision. In giving judgment Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., Peterborough, warned the accused to obey the rules of the Traffic Act in future.

Increased Tree Plantings Are Reported During Past Year In United Counties

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 22 —(ENS).—According to figures recently released by the Forestry Branch of the Department of Agriculture, Northumberland residents are becoming "tree conscious" and are taking an increasing interest in planting in both rural and urban districts. Figures for the year 1939 show an increase of approximately 28,000 as compared with 1938 plantings.

According to a bulletin issued by Ian MacLeod, Department of Agriculture, Brighton, the Forestry Branch made 7,198 shipments of trees from Ontario Government nurseries totalling 12,252,535 trees during the year 1938, while in 1939 the number of trees was increased to 16,383,406 representing 10,669 shipments. Northumberland county alone received a total of 328,062 trees with the number of shipments increasing from 151 to 227 during the year.

Woodlots, 193,941; windbreaks, 32,697; schools, 24,016; public property, 9,740; municipal, 25,668; county forest, 42,000.

According to Mr. MacLeod it is not expected there will be any change in the Ontario Government's policy of tree distribution in 1940. Residents of Northumberland who are interested in planting trees this spring may obtain further information and the necessary application form by applying to Mr. Ian MacLeod, Department of Agriculture, Brighton.

The Rambling REPORTERS

BITTEN !

Friends of Jim Wharry will be sorry to learn of reports he was bitten by a wolf Saturday somewhere in the Apsley section. This is Jim's second misfortune on the hunt in recent months, coming as sort of sequel to the time in November when he killed a deer, investigated to see why it was standing up, dead, and then have it rather exasperatingly, lope off.—D.

Given 30 Days When Man Assaults Wife

Although he pleaded that the excitement caused by stovepipes that would not go together and a still-hunting raid by R.C.M.P. officers and the strain of eight years on relief had been responsible for the trouble, Wesley Lawford, Lakefield, was convicted before Magistrate E. A. Gee in police court this morning on a charge of assaulting his wife, causing actual bodily harm.

He was sentenced to 30 days imprisonment in the county jail. On a charge of assaulting his 15-year-old stepdaughter, Grace Lawford, on the same occasion Lawford was acquitted.

Mrs. Lawford said that on Saturday two R.C.M.P. officers searched the Lawford home in search of a still. They did not find anything. A little later her husband was trying to put some stove pipes together with the assistance of his stepdaughter but lost his temper when the pipes would not fit and knocked them down, at the same time knocking the daughter off the chair which she had been standing.

"Then he began throwing dishes around", said Mrs. Lawford. "I had been sick in bed with pleurisy and when I got up to try and calm him down he grabbed me by the throat and threw me down on the bed. My back struck the end of the bed and has been sore ever since."

The witness said that when her daughter had come to the rescue Lawford had struck the girl in the face, cutting her lip.

Conditions Upset Him

Taking the witness box Lawford told the court that he had been away for a couple of days and when he got home and found his wife had been in bed ill and no doctor had been called it upset him. The story told by the wife as to the visit of the Mounties and of the stovepipe incident was correct, he said, but he declared that he did not assault his wife, but had merely tried to put her back into bed as the house was cold.

"Being on relief for eight years", said Lawford "has caused trouble. "When you are together 24 hours a day it gets on everybody's nerves."

Magistrate Gee registered a conviction.

After the evidence of the daughter had been heard in the second charge, His Worship said that he would give the accused the benefit of the doubt in that case and would acquit him.

"Is there any chance of you two coming to a reconciliation after this is over?" asked Magistrate Gee.

"I will never live with him again" said Mrs. Lawford, whereupon the court sentenced Lawford to 30 days in jail.

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C. prosecuted the case while Lawford was undefended.

Goodyear Team Here Tonight To Play Petes

The O.H.A. senior "A" champions, Toronto Goodyears—a good bet for the Allan Cup this year — tangle at 8:30 in the Brock with the Petes in an exhibition tilt. It will be the hockey tidbit of the year and should draw a huge crowd of city and district fans. On a good sheet of ice, the speedy Petes and powerful Goodyears—who will be at full strength and on time—will dish up a first-class puck display, with some swell hockey shown throughout. Coach Buckland will use all his players, changing the lines regularly to match the speed of the visiting stars.

Paul Mundrick

Led by O'Flaherty and King—who top the senior "A" snipers of the province in scoring—the Powers-coached crew will be well worth seeing. Their names and numbers are listed elsewhere and a program will be given out at the rink so fans can follow these aces all through the contest. Some of these players are about ripe to step into pro ranks within another year, and all are among the finest amateurs in Eastern Canada.

139 Nominated For Preakness

BALTIMORE, Jan. 22.—(AP). — On the assumption that the winner's expected $90,000 pot of gold won't be hard to take, 75 turf owners have nominated a record total of 139 top three-year-olds for the Golden Jubilee running of the Preakness at Pimlico, May 11.

Headed by Col. E. R. Bradley's 1939 juvenile king, Bimlech, the field already lists most of the crack youngsters last year, it was announced to-day. More are virtually certain to come into the fold as supplementary eligibles for the mile and three sixteenths classic.

Bimelech's chief two-year-old rival, Andy K. probably will come under the latter heading. The son of Jack High is roaming the farm and it is likely Tony Pelleteri didn't want to make him eligible for the big stakes until he sees how the colt comes through the winter.

Otherwise, the turf's "royal family" of 1939 juveniles is well represented. Mrs. Parker Corning's Straight Lead, winner of the New England Futurity and a total of $41,800 last year, is entered. So is Mrs. H. C. Phipps' Merry Knight, an impressive winner at a mile and 70 yards in the mud last season. This bay son of Sir Gallahad III earned $22,860 in '39.

North Bay Team Defeats Oshawa By A 5-4 Score

NORTH BAY, Jan. 22.— In a wide-open exhibition game here Saturday night a squad of ex-Trappers, now playing for teams in the local intermediate league, nosed out Oshawa Generals, Dominion junior titleholders by a score of 5-4.

The ex-Trappers grabbed a surprising three-goal lead in the first period. The home boys had no more of the play than the Generals, but they found young Turner playing his first big game in the nets for Oshawa shaky as the game got under way. Turner settled down thereafter and played a bang-up game.

CURLING

Six mixed rinks from Bobcaygeon motored down Saturday evening and by the smallest margin possible —one shot—were successful in taking back with them the "J. E. Harkness" trophy.

This trophy was donated by James Harkness of this city some years ago and is competed for twice each year. It is expected that in the near future the return game will be played in Bobcaygeon and then maybe the trophy will find its way back to Peterborough, and maybe it won't. There is more to these games than just the competitive spirit—it brings together old friends and it helps to cement the friendly feeling that has long existed between these two clubs.

At the conclusion of the games the visitors were entertained at Hooper's Palm Gardens.

The arrangements for these games were ably carried out by Miss M. Patterson and Mrs. E. Metcalfe.

A nice crowd turned out on Saturday for the week-end bonspiel. Every ice was going afternoon and again in the evening. If this pace keeps up it looks as if we'll have to put on three 8-hour shifts.

The wining skips were Fred Green, Jack M. Williams,, George Green and E. R. Shirley.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC PERDUE

So tonight it's the exhibition a lot of fans have been waiting to see. It's Toronto Goodyears versus the Petes here at 8.30 in the Brock. With a runty three-team schedule, and the intermediate "A" Petes only at home once in awhile this season, both the local puckists and fans have been anxious for more games. They had one when Oshawa Generals came here but now an even more attractive exhibition joust has been lined up. With the senior "A" champs of Ontario, a team generally rated as having a fine chance for the Allan Cup, emblematic of senior supremacy in Canada's Dominion. If the Petes tick 'em, we'll fall right out of our perch and bust a New Year's resolution, but nevertheless the locals may make it pretty close and, anyway, it should be a fine fixture. Fast, exciting and with some swell hockey shown. Rates a real crowd.

* * * * * *

Here is the likely lineup for Goodyears, with numbers: Goal, Mortimer (19); defence, Drummond (2) and Draper (3); centre, Inglis (9); wings, King (15) and O'Flaherty (2); alternates, Bowman (4), Laurent (5), O'Brien (17), Cooper (6), Mundrick (7), Turney (10), Imlach (11), Robinson (12), Benson(16), and Sutcliffe. Moose Ecclestone is manager and Eddie Powers the coach. They're a husky, fast and very clever squad as St. Kitts, the Falls, Port Colborne, Hamilton and the rest know. All the Petes will be used in this fray and the speedy locals will be kept hustling every minute to make it close. Sounds like a right nifty exhibition tilt to us.

The Electric Lads

Four C.G.E. shop squabbles Saturday aft at the Brock, and the lads were really on the hop in every heat. Eddie Starr was flying to lead the Cabinets to a 7-2 decision o'er Induction Motors; Art Heal rapped in three to aid Wire Dept. defeat Machine Shop "A" squad by a 4-0 touch; Switchgears and Industrial Control battled it out in a nifty 5-5 draw, the Switchgears coming from behind in the third; and Machine Shop "B" took a 6-4 win from Drafting Room. O.H.A. players are allowed in these games, and the frays are plenty fast and interesting every Saturday afternoon.

* * * * * *

And in the School Hockey League, the youngest puck circuit in the city—they have a triple-header every Saturday at All Saints' rink—there was action the past week-end. King Edward School grabbed off a 3-1 win from Prince of Wales, Queen Alex squeezed out a neat 4-3 verdict over the Central crew, and Queen Mary proved too strong for King George in a 9-0 melee. This is the spot a great many future hockey stars in high company get their start, most of the present Petes being young punks in the School Loop not too many years ago. They're taught the game by the teacher-coaches who insist on fast, hustling hockey with no fighting. They learn the dirty tricks of the game in later years!

Thomas Has Retired

Skipper Eddie Thomas, long-time pilot of the 1-ton cruiser Belleville Redmen, gave up the ship last week and has retired to shore life. The rink management of Bella Villa has taken over the team for the time being and Goalie Ken Watt may or may not finish the season as manager. Thomas has been burned up like an Apsley guide (at the recent wolfless wolf hunt) over the O.H.A. action in awarding two of his star imports, Hastie and Gow, to Gananoque, and following several defeats this season, he upped and quit the club. Evidently the Redmen expect to finish out the season, regardless of Eddie Thomas, and they're playing the Airmen in Belleville tonight, and then meet the Petes here on Friday.

* * * * * *

This item was in the Quinte sheet: "In a wide-open game that pleased 600 fans, the Redmen were defeated by the Petes here Friday night by a score of 9-7. The win places the Petes at the top of the loop with the Fliers in second position. The Redmen played under new management this game and, if they continue the exhibition given in their game with the Petes, they will not be wanting for paying customers. The boys played a wide-open game and the Petes went right along with them, and the result was a series of fine rushes, good blocking on the defence and sensational goal-tending at both ends of the ice igloo." The account adds that Coughlin and Kingdon were the main scoring threats in this fracas, and that the Petes had an edge on play all through.

A $500 Peacherino

Hank McLemore—to drag in a breath of the diamond — says Ty Cobb, when a rookie down south, used to write numerous letters to sports editors (signing names like Brown, Smith, Robinson, etc.) telling 'em to keep an eye on a young fellow who was coming fast, a guy named Cobb. The shrewd Tyrus never missed a bet and cashed in on publicity early when it gave him his chance. Hank finishes his interesting article like this: "A year with Augusta, and Detroit bought Cobb for the then impressive price of $500. If ever there was a greater bargain in baseball, you try to name it. Wonder what a major league team would pay these days for a rookie who for 24 years could get a batting average of .368 per year!" And we wonder how many local athletes ever thought of selling their services to bigger towns by writing phoney letters to the sports editors of those cities.

Up at the Y.M.C.A. gym on Saturday after dusk, two men's senior City Basketball League melees were staged. Zephyrs, sporting a new monicker, rambled into the loop lead with a 33-23 decision against the Dominions, whilst the Bees took a honey from C.G.E. by a 32-28 buzz. Two lively contests every inch of the route, enlivened at one rest period when Referee Curly Krug, on behalf of others, presented one player—whose birthday it was—with a duck. A live one and a quacky one at that! The league standings are listed in tonight's paper.

Lindsay Curlers Get Stones From Scotland

LINDSAY, Jan. 22.— The shipment of new curling stones for the Lindsay Curling Club has arrived in Lindsay following a delay of several months and were inaugurated in the final round of Patron-President Bonspiel, when the Patron T. J. Tilly, 78 years of age, threw the first new rock, and Immediate Past President Hallie McMullen threw the second, the bonspiel being won by Percy Skitch from Harvey Forsyth, 10-9.

The Lindsay Curling Club is among the first to modernize their stones in Ontario, the first shipment from Glasgow, Scotland, having been sunk on the ill-fated Athenia torpedoed by a German submarine last September. Local curlers used stones furnished through the kindness of the Granite and Boycaygeon clubs until the new shipment which gave good satisfaction on Saturday, arrived.

Track's Iron Man Plans To Retire

The durable Kansas miler disclosed in a radio interview last night this would be his last season.

"For a long time now, I've postponed my retirement from active competition, bu it's one of those things that can't be put off forever," he said. "This will be my last year.

"I've continued in competition these past two years mainly with the hope of trying for my third successive Olympic team. Now conditions on the other side have made the holding of the Olympic games impossible."

Shoots Stepfather

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 22 — (A P). — Norman Sweider, 16, became enraged as he saw his stepfather knock down his mother three times. He shot the stepfather and then bicycled to a police station to surrender. Police found James Hart 40, dying, and Mrs. Hart cowering in a corner.

Skier Breaks Neck

OTTAWA, Jan. 22 — (CP). — Marcel Bart, 18, of Ottawa, died in hospital last night of a broken neck suffered in a fall while skiing on Faery Lake near Hull, Que.

Doc Romnes

Romnes, now 31, came to the Americans at the start of the season from Toronto Maple Leafs, with whom he played one season after five with the Chicago Black Hawks. He had not seen much action because of a broken hand suffered shortly after the season opened.

One of the few American-born players in the N.H.L., Romnes never was a prolific scorer, but at his best he was rated one of the finest playmakers. He won the Lady Byng Trophy as the played best combining sportsmanship and ability in the season of 1935-36.

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 22 (ENS). — Lakefield High School and the Grove played an exhibition game in the rink on Saturday afternoon, with the Grove easily defeating their rivals 11-2. The High School were short several of their players, having to fill in with ones off the second team.

Queen Mary Wins

Queen Mary blanked King George by a 9-0 count in their School Hockey League contest at All Saints' rink on Saturday. They ran up four in the first, two in the next heat and three in the windup chapter, showing too much speed and punch for the losers. Mortimer, who starred throughout, counted four of the goals while Fallen and Lester had two apiece, and Dundas one. The teams:

King George: Goal, Clark; defence, Moscrop, Andrus; centre, Zephyrs Jump To Top Men's Loop In Basketball

Zephyrs jumped to the top of the heap in the Men's Senior City League race by taking their third straight, trouncing Dominions 33-23 to gain a half game edge on the idle Quakers; while the Bees climbed into third place, taking their first victory by nosing out C.G.E. 32-28 in the weekly basketball double-header at the Y.M.C.A. before a fair crowd.

The newly-named Zephyrs flashed a pretty passing attack that began to pay-off in the second half after they trailed 9-8 at the rest period, to go to their third straight win, while Jim Thorburn, '39 scoring champ snapped out of a slump to gain 20 points and lead the Bees to their first triumph in their cellar battle with C.G.E. Standing to date:

C. G. E.	2	0	2
Dominions	2	0	2
Quakers	2	2	0
Bees	3	1	2

Maintaining a small margin throughout the game Bees gained a 2-point edge in each half, having slightly the better of the play in a game that saw both teams handling the ball well, but shooting poorly around the basket. The winners led 13-11 at the rest period. C.G.E. rallied to go into the lead in the opening minutes of the second half but the winners' passing attack started to click and they once more jumped ahead, this time to stay. The Bees counted only 4 of their 10 free throw chances, while C.G.E. dropped 8 of their 20 tries for a fair average. Jim Thorburn led the winners with a total of 20 points, with Pete McArthur and Nels Foster also prominent. Jack Gemmel and Bill Ferguson stood out for C.G.E., Gemmel passing well besides counting 8 points. The teams:

Bees (32)—Centre, Craig 5; forwards, Thorburn 20, McArthur 4; guards, Ascott, Rogow 1; subs, Foster 2, Whaley.

C.G.E (28)—Centre, Holmes; forwards, Calley 10, Gemmel 8; guards, Archibald 1, Broadley; subs, Dundas, Ferguson 9.

Referee—Curly Krug.

Win In Second.

Dominions rallied near the halfway mark of their game to come from behind and lead 9-8 at the rest period, but Zephyrs' good passing began to get results in the final period and they ran in 25 points to win going away, 33-23. The winners gained an 9-8 margin mid-way in the opening half, but Dominions hauled them down and jumped into a lead, playing their best basketball at this point. Zephyrs made three in their 10 chances from the free throw line, while the losers dropped in 7 of their 19 tries. Bob Dyer, Joe Stewart and Don Sedgwick sparked the winners, Dyer and Stewart starring up front and Sedgewick displaying a good game at guard. Harry March and Steve Csumrick were stand-outs for the losers. The teams:

Zephyrs (33)— Centre, Stewart 10; forwards, Dyer 10, Dougherty 4; guards, West 2, McIntyre 1; subs, Sedgewick 6, Jeffries.

Dominions (23)—Centre, Hamill 2; forwards, Dundas, Currie 2; guards, March 4, Grose; subs, Wolstenholme, Csumrick 7, Weese 8.

Referee—Curly Krug. Scorer, R. Rogow.

D. Simpson; wings, V. Simpson, Cornwell; subs, Withers, Rainer.

LEAFS DEFEAT AMERICANS 5-1 BUT DROP GAME TO RED WINGS 3-2

By JACK CALDER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Taking a quick look at the important roles the centre-ice stars are playing in the National Hockey League these nights and you might come to the conclusion that their job more than ever can be called the pivot position.

Discussion over the greatness of Toronto's Sylvanus Apps at centre has gone to the background during his absence from the game through injury. Instead, without detracting from Apps' brilliance, there has grown a conviction among many observers that more good centres are around.

Clint Smith

Clint Smith, the half-pint from Assiniboia, Sask., scored twice last when the Rangers took undisputed possession of first place in the standings through a 4-2 victory before 9,214 customers at New York over the Bruins, with whom they had been tied. But Smith was only one of a long line of centres who made the weekend headlines, and of 20 goals scored around the league the pivot men figured in 18.

Smith scored the first and last goals against Boston, overcoming a one-goal Bruin lead in the opening period and making victory sure with four minutes to play. Neil Colville, first-string centre, made the pass for his brother Mac on the Rangers' second socre and Phil Watson, pivot on the other line, helped Byran Hextall to fire the third.

The two Boston goals were scored by centre Milt Schmidt and the only defenceman to get a point all weekend was Captain Dit Clapper, who aided Schmidt in the Bruins' second counter. It was almost as if the rushing dfencemen weren't rushing.

Americans Beaten 5-1

Centres played parts in all six goals when the Maple Leafs defeated New York Americans 5-1 at Toronto Saturday. The Leafs' playmakers had a field night in and around the American defence in the first period to make or complete the plays for four goals by Sweeney Schriner, Gus Marker, Billy Taylor and Pep Kelly.

Centre Murray Armstrong of the Americans and Centre Pete Langelle of the Leafs completed the scoring in the second, though Murph Chamberlain kept setting up plays for his wings through the New York defence till the finish, only to have them blocked repeatedly by Goalie Earl Robertson.

Toronto's goal was filled by Turk Broad, though Phil Stein was to have replaced him. Stein, selected for the second straight night to substitute for the regular goaltender, suffered a four-stitch chin cut in practice before the game. It was the third time the long-time minor-leaguer had been injured just when he seemed ready for the big show.

Swift Skating Game

Broda went on to Detroit and was in the nets last night when the Red Wings upset the Leafs 3-2 before 7,229 persons who revelled in swift skating and heavy checking. In sharp contrast to the 2-2 tie the same teams played in Toronto last Thursday.

It was the only game in which the centres didn't have something to do with every goal. But centres Connie Brown and Ken Kilrea did all the Detroit scoring. Brown grabbed two goals and Kilrea the other, while the Leafs' shots wer made by Lex Chisholm and Red Heron without help from anyone but other wingmen.

The Americans took a second crack at getting out of last place and made it when they subdued the Black Hawks 2-1 at Chicago last night. This time centres did all the scoring. Cully Dahlstrom sent the Hawks ahead in the first period but Tommy Anderson tied the count in the third and Art Chapman shot the winning goals with less than four minutes remaining. As a result the Americans stepped into sixth position, a point behind Detroit, while the idle Montreal Canadiens dropped to the bottom.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—(AP). — Miss Henie and Co. grossed $315,000 in the Garden last week and broke the joint's record for telephone calls—more than 35,000.... That new racing plant near the World's Fair grounds will seat 50,000 and may be finished by fall....Not used to rub it in, but the Yanks were set to go the limit for Paul Trout until Judge Landis got wise to that $25,000 miscue and returned Paul to the Tigers.

Jersey City seems to be the East's last hope for the Galento-Baer fight for the poor Finns....The Baseball Rules committee huddles with Judge Landis at Bellefair, Fla., Feb. 12.... Mike Jacobs planned to send Conn vs. Lesnevich to Detroit to take the edge off Burman vs. Pastor, but was denied dates....Charlie Howard and Bing Crosby are so keen on the South American way they have 10 more horses coming up from down there ad hope there'll be at least one Kayak II, Sorteado or Ligaroti in the car load.

North Dummer Cops Victory From Warsaw

WARSAW, Jan. 22 (ENS). — On Tuesday night in decidedly sub?zero weather, North Dummer visited the Warsaw School team and copped a 4-0 win to put themselves in first place in the local loop. In a very clean, fast set-to the rugged Northerners showed vast improvement over their first appearance and their combination seemed to click a bit better than that of the local lads. Ramsay accounted for three goals for the winners, while E. Payne for the losers did everything but score and was the game's outstanding player. The teams:

School — Goal, Gallagher; defence, H. Dunford and G. Cooper; centre, D .Bell; wings, R. Payne and H. Darling; subs., G. Payne, E. Payne and L. Lonsberry.

Sub-goal, O. Watts.

North Dummer — Goal, B. Payne; defence, L. Crowe and L. Whetung; centre, A. Whetung; wings. W. Ramsay and R. Whetung; subs., O. Edwards, R. Puffer, E. Ivey, and W. Coppaway.

Referee—M. Lonsberry.

Douro Wins.

Friday night saw the venerable Oaks bow to Douro's energetic young team, the count being 4-3. Getting off to a flying start, Douro swarmed all over the old-age pensioners in the first frame and rang the bell four times. The Oaks managed to hold them in check for the balance of the game, however, and led by H. Munro, who did the scoring they were pressing the Irish pretty hard when the gong went to end the game. The teams:

Oaks— Goal, H. Parcels; defence, I Drain and A. Sharpe; centre, P. Hamblin; wings, N. Selkirk and H. Munro; sub., G. Eliot.

Douro — Goal, M. Coughlin; defence, G. Delaney and Joe Hayes; centre, W. Moher; wings, J. Moher and Joe Leahy; subs., John Hayes, B. Delaney, J. Healy, W. Parcels, H. Walsh, F. Moher, F. Bell.

Referee—M. Lonsberry.

Zion, Foxboro Tie Glen Ross Beats Ivanhoe

TWEED. Jan. 22 (ENS). — In the first game of the double-header in the Centre Hastings game on Friday night, Zion and Foxboro played to a two-all tie. Both teams started at top speed and both Guay and Gifford were given a chance to display their wares in netminding as the play raced from end to end. Gifford in the Zion nets has come out of an early season slump and played up to his last year's form in his two most recent starts.

After a scoreless first period with play and checking about even, both teams went after goals in the middle period. Noley scored for Foxboro and T. Bedford got the equalizer.

The pace increased in the final period with the score still all tied up and heavy bodying and high sticks began to appear. The only penalties of the entire game went to Ray Dickey and Spencer when they clinched briefly. Three minutes after the face-off Ketcheson lifted one from centre ice that caught Guay napping and gave the Irish a short-lived lead. Elder got loose for the Foxes, skirted the defence on the most brilliant play of the evening when he tried Gifford twice and succeeded in banging in his own rebound for the tying score. For the remainder of the period, both teams tried frantically to break the tie. This is the second time within a week that these teams have played to a tie. Line-ups:

Foxboro — Goal, Guay; defence, Noley Guay and G. Walt; centre, G. Wright; wings, Spencer and Thompson; subs., Elder, Gough, G. Gay, J. Gay, Helliwell, and Dafoe.

Referee—J. Hulin.

Glen Ross Wins.

In the second game of the double-the Riversides of Glen Ross won 4-1, but were held in close check by the ambitious Stripes from Ivanhoe for two hustling periods. This game was held up on several occasions, as spectators mixed in several mixups between the players on the ice.

Doug Martin tallied the first goal, taking a pass close in from G. Fraser. Six minutes later Kirby tied it up and the game was speeded up considerably. The game was held up when Tomlinson, defenceman of the Ivanhoe team, received a nasty cut over the left eye whn a shot from G. Fraser clipped him. Four clamps were required to close the wound. Just before the end of the period, Doug Martin got his second tally unassisted.

Hagerman played a real game in the Glen Ross nets in the last period and Martin and R. Pyear combined for another counter with the former scoring. G. Pyear got the final goal of the game on a shot from centre ice. The teams:

Ivanhoe — Goal, Delve; defence, Tomlinson and Reid; centre, Dan Cooke; wings. H. Thompson and Kirby; subs., Woods. Murphy, Fleming, Downey, and Tanner.

D.F.A. To Carry On

MONTREAL Jan. 22.—(CP). — Present indications are that the Dominion Football Association will carry on as usual despite the war, Robert Walker, D.F.A. council member for Quebec, told the annual meeting of the Province of Quebec Football Association Saturday.

The Provincial Association's governing body was returned by acclamation and at a subsequent meeting of the Board all officers were re-elected.

"We'll Be Headin' South Soon, Son"

Beaming a proud paternal smile is Charley Keller, rookie sensation with New York Yankees last summer, who probably found more than a little inspiration for his great work, especially in the world series, by "battling for junior," who arrived at the Keller home in July. The whole family, papa, Mrs. Keller and Charley, Jr., will be going south in little more than a month, when spring training gets under way. It's agreed that Keller, Sr., has what it takes on the diamond in large quantities and his second year is expected to be better, if anything, than his excellent rookie season.

Toronto Skaters Capture 3 Major Events

OTTAWA. Jan. 22 — (CP). — Toronto rules the Canadian figure skating firmament for 1940 following the Dominion championships at the Minto Skating Club during the week-end. Norah McCarthy and Ralph McCreath, a formidable team from Toronto Skating Club, glided and whirled to the three major championships on Saturday.

In the greatest upset of the two-day tournament, Miss McCarthy displaced Mary Rose Thacker of Winnipeg as ruling queen of individual Canadian senior women skaters, while Ralph McCreath proved himself a worthy successor to Montgomery (Bud) Wilson of Toronto as senior men's champion.

Made Clean Sweep.

Miss McCarthy and her handsome partner then teamed to capture the senior pairs title for a clean sweep of the major events.

Ottawa won both waltzing pairs events and the junior singles championship for both men and women, while Toronto captured the junior pairs.

Miss Thacker had to be content with second place behind Norah McCarthy. The Winnipeg girl made a brilliant effort in defence of her crown, especially in the compulsory school figures, but her free skating performance was marred by a fall during a difficult jump.

Toronto Pairs First Three.

Ralph McCreath was easily the best in the senior men's singles, with Donald Gilchrist, Toronto, in second place and Wingate Snaith, Montreal, third. Paired with Norah McCarthy, McCreath also figured in the senior pairs event, with Miss O'Meara and Gilchrist second, and another Toronto pair, Christine Newson and Sandy McKechnie, third.

Mrs. Donald Crulkshank and her husband kept the waltzing championship in Ottawa. The 10-step competition, similar to the waltz, was won by Mrs. Elmore Davis and Melville Rogers of Ottawa.

Marmora School Edges Tweed 5-4 Overtime

TWEED, Jan. 22—(ENS) — In the Trent Valley Interscholastic League, Marmora High School won a 5-4 decision over the Tweed High School team on Saturday night at the local arena.

In the first period, Maloney and E. Leonard tallied two goals for Marmora, while Trudeau tallied the lone Tweed counter. Both teams played wide open hockey, and the goalies were kept busy blocking the rubber, particularly J. Wagar in the home team's nets, who was called upon to save close plays on several occasions.

Early in the second period, Tweed tied the count when Courneyea went on a solo to tally, and Langevin put the boys one up on Marmora when he drove a long shot past Prentice on a pass from Gergeron. However quick scoring by Reynolds and E. Leonard soon put the Marmora team went off for the only visiting team went off for the only penalty of the period.

In the third period, Art Courneyea, got the tying counter, which forced the game into overtime, when Reynolds scored the winning goal for Marmora a few seconds after the overtime period commenced.

The lineups:

Marmora H. S.— Goal, W. Prentice; defence, W. Gray, D. Crawford; centre, G. Leonard; wings, E. Reynolds, E. Leonard; subs, D. Naylor, Maloney, E. Gordon.

Exhibition Tilt Played At Warsaw

WARSAW, Jan. 22 (ENS). — At the local rink on Thursday night a big crowd saw a fine display of hockey when Curve Lake visited North Dummer for an exhibition tilt. Curve Lake set a terrific pace for the first two-thirds, pouring a continual rain of rubber at Goalie Watts, but the stalwart Dummer defence kept the attackers away from the goal mouth and most of the sniping was the long range variety. In the final stanza the Northerners got their combination working, while the visitors seemed to have tired some and only turned on the steam occasionally. When the smoke cleared away, the score stood at 3-2 for Curve Lake, and the count just about illustrates the tightness of the battle. There were quite a few minor penalties, but Referee I. Payne kept the game well in hand.

Remember When—

Concluding a hockey tour of Germany in which they met no defeats Canada's Trail Smoke Eaters defeated a picked All-Germany team 7-2 at Garmisch-Partenkirchen one year ago today. Leading 3-2 at the end of the first, the Canadians pushed in four goals in the last period.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to thank all those who helped in any way during my sad bereavement in the death of my wife, Minnie H. Martin, and for the many beautiful expressions of sympathy and the beautiful flowers, and all those who furnished cars; this I appreciate very much, and as well the doctor and Dr. Barr who, with his words of wisdom and sympathy, help to make the trial easier, and all those who in anyway helped, I appreciate more than words can tell. Yours truly, W. J. H. Martin, 344 King street.

Spirited Session Opens Thursday

OTTAWA, Jan. 22—(CP) — The sixth session of the 18th parliament opens Thursday amid expectations of heavy questioning of the Government in regard to Canada's war effort, and, in all probability, some criticism.

For this the Government is prepared and it is expected Prime Minister Mackenzie King will give the picture of Canada's war effort when he speaks in the debate on the address in reply to the speech from the throne.

The Prime Minister follows Conservative leader Manion in this opening debate and the opposition chieftain already has said he would place before the House of Commons complaints regarding soldiers' dependents allowances and charges of patronage in the war effort.

Further criticism is expected from the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation. Party spokesman already have come out against wartime regulations controlling speech and publication as being too severe.

In the matter of complaints the Liberals themselves are expected to lodge a few, centring mainly on delay in proceeding with promised public works for which the money already has been voted.

From the Social Credit group a demand for conscription of manpower and wealth, is anticipated.

Meantime, even before parliament meets, large new war orders are expected to be announced, calling for the building of $20,000,000 worth of anti-submarine boats and coastal craft for salvage and rescue work and 1,000 airplanes.

While the Prime Minister will give the main story of the Canadian war effort, the more intimate details may be expected to come from questions by private members. Nevertheless, the Prime Minister will have plenty of scope for much has occurred since the emergency session of parliament last September.

Airplane services now connect Ethiopia with Egypt and Italy.

"TELL BILL GOODBYE" By Marie Blizard

SYNOPSIS.

THE CHARACTERS:

FABIENNE SEYMOUR, rich, young and beautiful.

NICKY BARTLETT, wealthy and in love with Fabienne.

ELLEN CHAPMAN, yound and capable mistress of Willoughby house.

DR. BILL MALLORY, close friend of Ellen's.

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE

FABIENNE was reminded of Nicky standing at her elbow when he said to Bill, "You look as if you could handle them single handed. There are three trunks and seven pieces of smaller luggage."

"Righto," Bill answered cheerfully. "Go right on up. I'll have them up in a jiffy."

"Make it snappy," ordered Nicky "Miss Seymour wishes to leave shortly."

Fabienne listened to this exchange with dismay. Whatever had got into Nicky to behave this way. Suddenly she knew, and she said apologetically, "Dr. Mallory, meet an old friend of mine from home, Nicky Bartlett."

Nicky's well-bred face showed instant chagrin. He'd taken this great, coatless fellow to be the superintendent. "Sorry, old man," he said, offering a friendly grin with his hand. "Bad light, you know."

"Forget it, "Bill answered, crushing Nicky's hand in his.

Irritated for no good reason, Fabienne said, "Come on upstairs, Nicky. "And when they were up in the apartment and Bill was struggling with a trunk at the turn of the stairs, "Why did you say that I was leaving shortly? I'm not going any place."

"But you promised Mirabel you'd see her later."

"I've got a headache ,Nicky. Tomorrow's Sunday. We can put it off until then. Besides, I must do a lot of unpacking. Please run along.

"I'll be darned! A few hours ago you were delighted to see me. Now it's 'Please run along, Nicky, me lad.' What's come over you lately, Fab?"

"I'm sorry, Nicky. I do behave badly. But I was glad to see you."

"Fab still loves Nicky?"

"Of course Fab still loves Nicky," she said, looking up at him affectionately, laughingly.

Her face was turned up like a flower. He bent over to kiss her on her cheek. But her mouth was red and tempting. He kissed her once and then again, lingeringly. She tried to push him away, hearing a sound at the door.

Bill Mallory stood in the door frame, looking embarrassed and something else that she was too confused to recognize.

He had seen the kiss, but he had not seen her feeble effort to push Nicky away. He had heard her say that she loved Nicky.

He said, "Sorry, folks, but you'll have to get a park bench until we get the trunks in. Two more coming up." He pulled one in with a yank of a powerful arm and went out again without looking at either of them.

Fabienne looked at the door through which he had passed. Then she turned around to Nicky and her cheeks were pink, her eyes hot. "I've changed my mind, darling. I will go back with you. I'd rather do my unpacking tomorrow. Come along."

To Bill, on the landing, she said. "I'm going with Nicky. Thanks for everything, Bill."

"It's nothing at all. Have a good time," he answered with cool politeness.

After the door closed in back of Nicky and Fabienne, and the big car rolled away smoothly, Bill Mallory sat on the landing step and groped for a pack of cigarets. He lit one thoughtfully and said, "That's that, my boy."

In the town car Nicky was saying, "You and Cleopatra and your 'infinitive variety'! There's one thing about you, Fab, that never fails to fascinate me."

"Yes?" she said absently, her thought busy elsewhere.

"Your weather-vane decisions. One minute you will, the next minute you won't, or vice versa. Anyway, I'm glad you decided to come."

"Oh, THAT!" she answered. "I—I decided my headache wasn't too bad after all." Her statement was a long way from being truthful. She had decided that if she found herself alone in the apartment with Bill Mallory she'd find herself bleating that she was not in love with Nicky and the kiss he'd seen didn't mean anything.

And after that little idiotic outburst, she thought, Bill would give her a long look of surprise that plainly said it meant nothing to him and why was she telling him all that.

Oh, no, she didn't intend to let herself in for anything like that.

She must be very careful to see Bill only when Ellen was there. A friendly little threesome.

Nicky took her hand and her instinct was to pull it away. Instead, she said to him, "Nicky, I wish you'd try to be fascinating to me."

Nicky gave her a bemused, puzzled glance.

"My heart and my hand, not to mention a few trifling lares and penates, are yours for the asking, darling."

"I know," she said wearily.

"How do you know? I've never really asked you to marry me."

She laughed. "That's right, but I got the idea somewhere."

"That I'd be waiting around."

She nodded.

"I am," he said dolefully. "But a chap sometimes gets tired of waiting too long. Some other girl might come along and find me a prize."

"If she did, darling, I'd probably snatch you myself."

"The trouble with you, Fab, is that you don't appreciate me."

"Maybe that is my trouble," she agreed, laughing at him. "Is that what you want in a girl?"

"That's what every man wants—appreciation. And when he gets it, it doesn't much matter whether the girl is a beauty like you—or some plain little gal like Ellen Chapman."

"Why don't you go to work, Nicky? Maybe I'd appreciate you then. Your life is such a waste. You can't spend your whole life playing polo, hunting, sailing, flying!"

"Don't you see, Fab—you want me to go to work because you think it's the right thing to do. That hasn't anything to do with me. I'm doing things that are right for me. I don't have to work and you haven't given me any good reason for doing it."

His words remainded her of something Aunt Edna had said:

"Nicky might do it for some girl if he had to work to gain her estimation. Another girl, perhops. But if he'd been going to do it for you, he'd have done it long ago."

Nicky hadn't noticed her silence. He was continuing. "Interesting looking chap, Mallory. Friend of yours?"

Ellen's beau. Didn't I tell you?"

And Bill was telling Ellen: "She's gone."

"What do you mean, Bill? Was she alone? Going to a party?"

"Don't know. She was with a fellow—Nicky Bartlett. Know him?"

"Only from hearing Fabienne talk about him. He comes from Maryland.

"What's he do?"

"Work? Nothing. He's one of the millionaire Bartletts of the tobacco family. He's been trying to marry Fab for the last eight years."

Bill tamped tobacco into his pipe with thoroughness. "Looks as if he wouldn't have to wait much longer."

Ellen laughed. "You don't know Fab. She's very fond of Nicky, but she told me that she loves him like a brother and wouldn't dream marrying him."

Bill's eyes changed from gray to blue. He said, "No?"

Ellen smiled at him, shaking her head. "No, Bill. Clear field and good luck to you!"

"The Authority on Authorities"

PROTECTIVE DOUBLING

SOME contracts cannot be beaten unless the declarer misplays one of his suits. If you are able to do something on the defensive which will make him read your holding incorrectly, you may cause just such a fatal misplay. A double of his high contract, when you have no honor in his suit, nor even any particular length, may lead him to count on you for a threat to the safety of his trumps. By so doing, you may protect a trump honor in your partner's hand, by luring the declarer into a losing finesse.

West opened this deal with 1-Heart, which North doubled, and East, the canny Frederick E. Slater, leaped to 4-Hearts as a shutout. It emphatically failed to work, for South went straight to 6-Diamonds. After Mr. Slater bid 6-Hearts as a sacrifice attempt, North went to 7-Diamonds. West sacrificed at 7-Hearts.

South gave this plenty of study, then decided upon 7-Spades. Having not a solitary apparent chance to take a trick against this, Mr. Slater doubled in the East. He did this, not in spite of his inability to take any tricks, but because of it. He knew the only ghost of a show his side had to beat the contract was to find his partner with some sort of secondary honor, which might win if the declarer tried a finesse because of counting on it being in Mr. Slater's hand.

South ruffed the lead of the heart K, led to the spade K, then led the spade 6. Mr. Slater played the 3 and 4 respectively on the two spade tricks, and the crisis was now at hand. South finally decided Mr. Slater had four trumps to the J, in order to have doubled, so finessed the 10. So the J won and the contract was beaten, purely because of the misleading double.

Confiscation

Berlin, Jan. 22 (AP).

THE official Law Gazette announced to-day that Field-Marshal Hermann Goering, Supreme War Economic authority, had decreed confiscation of the entire property of the former Polish state.

The decree, issued on January 15, is effective immediately as a basis of introduction of the four-year economic program in the reunited Eastern Provinces and in keeping with Adolf Hitler's ordinance of last October 12 installing German administration for the occupied Polish regions.

District agents were ordered to report in detail on the status of properties in their areas within one month. Non-compliance is punishable by imprisonment and and the death penalty may be invoked if "insubordination against political reorganization" is proved.

Finns Play Havoc With Russian Supply Train

Gliding noiselessly over the snow on their skis, Finnish troops are not only spreading death amongst Russian troops, but are also wreaking havoc with vital Russian supply trains. This Soviet supply train was wrecked by the Finns near the Arctic circle. It is by actions such as this that the Finns are cutting large bodies of Red troops off from vital supplies.

Outside Market Is Deserted As Winter's Blas Keeps Farmers And Buyers At Home

Saturday morning's bitterly cold wind just about blew the bottom out of the weekly market which was much the smallest of the winter. The week's steady diet of frigid weather apparently had frightened off the farmers; at all events the outside market was deserted except by a few hardy beings who braved the sting of the breeze and tried to make their slogan "Business as usual," and even in the warm atmosphere of the Market Hall there were many open spaces along the tables.

The outside market was devoted largely to meat and wood. A few of the market gardeners who had more or less heated stalls, offered their wares as usual, but reported business below normal, for it was too cold in the wide open spaces of the market for the customers.

Pleasant View Farm of Bowmanville offered a novelty that seemed singularly appropriate for such a morning. It ansisted of frozen berries, stawberries and raspberries that had been fresh-picked early last summer, frozen immediately in cold storage, and kept there until brought out to sell here on Saturday.

"Just defrost them and they are as good as fresh fruit," said the man in charge of the stall. The frozen berries were offered for 25 cents a pint.

Prices Unchanged.

The Bowmanville fruit men were offering apples at the same prices as a week ago, and were doing some business in spite of the cold. E. Carroll of Port Hope shiveringly declared that prices of vegetables and fruits were unchanged.

Meat prices failed to record any great change and a considerable quantity of both pork and beef was offered. George Mullen & Sons were asking 15 cents for top beef and 13 and 15 cents for pork and those were the prevailing prices.

Warmer on the Hunt.

John Jacobs, Burleigh Falls guide, was offering axe handles for sale, and agreed that it might have been warmer on the wolf hunt than standing around the market on Saturday morning. "They only wanted guides from around Apsley," he explained, as his reason for not being out with the Kingan party.

Fred Stinson quoted the following vegetable prices: Onions, $1 a bushel or 30 cents a peck; carrots, 80 cents a bushel, 25 cents a peck; and parsnips at the same figure.

An unusual offering was a large-sized jack rabbit that a Bailieboro man had displayed for sale. He wanted 60 cents for it.

There was a considerable amount of wood at the usual prices. One man had a nice-looking load of dry birch which he was offering for $6 a cord. "$17 will take the three-cord load," he said.

In the upstairs market the tables in the centre of the hall were fairly well filled, but there were few at the tables at either end. Ald. Herb. McCannan was sizing up the situation as to the opinion of the farmers in regard to the arrangement of the tables, but Saturday was not a good morning in which to do any research work in that direction.

Eggs were plentiful and sold as low as 20 cents a dozen, with the prices ranging up to the 25-cent mark. Butter sold rather consistently at 30 cents a pound. "I have sold it all but that one pound at 30 cents," one woman said.

Chickens, fairly plentiful again, brought 18 and 20 cents a pound, with sales not any too brisk. There was no other fowl in sight when the reporter drifted around the hall.

Two Wives

Pittsburg, Jan. 22 (AP)

WIFE No. 2 buried Harry Jacobs but Wife No. 1 got the jump on claiming his estate.

Two wives didn't know each other existed until the cafe owner dropped dead a week ago. Both claimed the body.

Wife No. 2, who said she married Jacobs three years ago, won out and directed the funeral.

Wife No. 1, claiming she and the cafe operator wed 10 years ago and separated without getting a divorce, obtained control of his $500 estate yesterday by obtaining letters of administration.

CanadianAirmen Lead Parade Wedding Boom

OTTAWA, Jan. 22.—Canada's soldiers seem to be getting married as fast as they join up.

Since war started there has been a tremendous increase in the number of marriages and a definite proportion of this increase can be traced to the armed forces—particularly the air branch.

There is statistical support for the feeling that in this war the Canadian girls are getting their men before their go overseas.

To the troubles of the Dependents' Allowance Board add the new marriages. Every time they seem to be getting caught up on their work their is an epidemic of weddings, with the biggest one yet between Christmas and New Year's.

In September marriages in Canada increased 68½ per cent; in October 58½ per cent; in November 47 per cent. The figures for December are not yet available, but the holiday leaves were put to such good use by the soldiers that the figures, so far as the fighting forces are concerned at any rate, are expected to be up again.

There are more single men in the air force than in the army or navy because of the 25-year limit on new recruits who expect to be pilots. But the way applications for married allowance are coming in the air force is doing its best to change this situation before the men go overseas.

There is an undoubted fascination about that natty aviation blue uniform.

Swedes Helping

Stockholm, Jan. 22 (AP)

HEADQUARTERS of Swedish volunteer forces in Finland reported today that Swedish airmen already had destroyed at least six Russian planes.

The Swedish fliers went into action in operations carried out in co-operation with Finnish infantry.

The Swedes themselves lost two planes which collided in the air, killing two officers and one commissioned officer who survived the crash made his way back to the Finnish lines on skis, headquarters reported.

Wolves Now Free To Wander As Hunters Return

By JACK PETERCON
Examiner Staff Reporter

If any person dares to howl like a wolf today when Charlie Kingan and Herb Mason re-appear in civilized haunts, he'd better be fast on his feet.

It was sad enough to see the doughty pair, along with Jim Wharry who turned up for the last day, come into Apsley late on Saturday afternoon after an all-day search through a snow-storm for a wolf that didn't make his appearance. That was sad enough, but the tale became a Greek tragedy when, as they thawed their fingers about the fire in Brown's store, they were told—gently—that a 14-year-old boy had clubbed a wolf over the head with an axe at the opposite end of the county to capture the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association's bronze-plated medal.

Charlie Kingan took it like a man. True, his face, red from an all-day buffeting by snow and wind, blanched quite a bit and he had to take a firm hold on the counter. But there wasn't a tremor in his voice when he said—and without hesitation— that the coveted medal would go to Ray Barrons, the best wolf hunter in the county.

It was sad news, though, and it wasn't long afterwards that the entire party and attendant reporters and photographers hit the trail for home. Indeed, an hour or so after the party's return you wouldn't have known Apsley had ever heard of a wolf hunt. It was one of those things it's best just to forget.

That death blow struck by Ray Barrons was nothing to laugh about if you had seen the hunters and their guides on their return in the afternoon.

For Saturday had been Der Tag to Charlie Kingan and his companions. They went out to get their wolf in the realization that only by such an ending would their life for the next couple of weeks be bearable. They had come back each day before that and read the scoffings of county councillors, Tom Curvin, and other sit-by-the-firesiders. They had even put up with Dave Silvester's red flannel suggestion. And then, when Saturday arrived, when they were preparing for one last desperate attack, daylight broke cold and with snow whipping across the open fields.

More Grief.

That was enough to make their tribulations complete. They withstood all that: they crouched behind their team, heads well down into their coat collars, and departed for the hunting grounds. Reporters, not so hardy, looked after them with as much pity in their eyes as reporters can show, shuddered, and ran for their hotel.

All day long the hunters patrolled through the driving snow, the only living things with courage enough to be outside. And at the end of it all, worn out, they came back to Apsley to find that with one swing of his axe a 14-year-old boy had delivered a death-blow to their expedition. It couldn't have been worse if his axe had come down on the heads of each member of the party.

But if you don't feel the Grecian tragedy of this ending, if you still feel like giving voice to a wolf-howl when you see these wolfless huntsmen, here's a word of warning. "I never felt better in my life," said Charlie Kingan on the way back. "I've tramped the woods for three whole days and I feel fit as a fiddle. I've lost a good two inches from my waistline." So, stifle that wolf howl unless you're fast on your feet and unless your endurance is good.

Advising Boost For Australia

SYDNEY, N.S.W., Jan. 22—(CP)—H. E. Winterbottom, secretary of the South Australian Chamber of Manfacturers, who recently arrived here after a visit to the United States, is firmly convinced that Australia should spend more money on publicity in North America.

He says: "The American people are interested in Australia and they should be encouraged to visit it. The tourist traffic from both the United States and Canada should be increased."

Another recent arrival, Charles Holmes, general manager of the Australian National Travel Association, says that the expansion of tourist traffic from North America to Australia depends on provision of more shipping facilities. He believes that the present services are inadequate.

In this connection, the Matson Line and its Canadian associates are considering plans for building more steamships for the North America-Australia run, looking forward to the time when there will be a weekly instead of the present monthly service.

Ulster's Linen Stuffs Boom

BELFAST, Jan. 22.—(CP)—Northern Ireland will concentrate on export of linen goods, particularly to Canada and the United States. This will help bring in foreign currency which Britain needs for purchases abroad.

During the past 11 years value of Ulster's line trade with the United States has averaged £2,750,000 ($12,-237,500) annually. The industry employs about onefifth of the working population of Northern Ireland.

The ministry of agriculture hopes to increase flax acreage from 20,000 to 50,000 acres by next spring. Flax is the raw material used in linen making.

Kiwanis Clubs Mark Twenty-fifth Anniversary

DETROIT, Jan. 22. — (CP).— Twenty-five years of Kiwanis will be celebrated here to-night. On Jan. 21, 1915, the Detroit Kiwanis recognized as the first in Kiwanis International, received its charter from the State of Michigan.

Kiwanis was born when a group of Detroiters organized a business men's club. They adopted the name Kiwanis, a coined name whose verbal Indian ancestry suggests self-expression. The motto of this original group was "We Trade,' the organization being made up of tradesmen and merchants. By 1916 this slogan changed to "We "Build" to exemplify the constructive and idealistic character of the organization.

By early 1916 some 20 other American cities wanted similar Kiwanis Clubs, while Canada, at Hamilton, Ont., got its first club in November, 1916. The organization therefore took on its international growth in 1916, and since then has always restricted its clubs to Canada and the United States.

The first convention was held in Cleveland in 1916 with 15 clubs sending delegates and representatives. At that time a constitution was adopted.George F. Hixson, of Rochester, N.Y., became the first president. In 10 years local clubs totalled 1,812 and membership grew to 103,000. During the depression years membership decreased, but today it is close to 105,000. In Canada there are 76 clubs with a membership of 5,000.

After Hamilton other early clubs in eastern Canada were: Montreal, Toronto, Ottawa, Windsor, Brantford, Galt, Kingston, Kitchener-Waterloo, St. Thomas, London and Ingersool.

Winnipeg was the first city in the Western Canada Kiwanis District to have a club. It was organized in May, 1917. Brandon, Regina, Saskatoon, Moose Jaw, Calgary, Edmonton, Port Arthur-Fort William, Swift Current and Prince Albert followed. Vancouver became a unit in the Pacific-Northwest Kiwanis district in January, 1919.

Sydney was the earliest club completed in the Canadian Maritimes, organized in November, 1923. Others are: Yarmouth, Saint John, Halifax, Liverpool, St. Stephen, Truro, St. Andrews and Bridgewater. Two Halifax Kiwanians are past governors of the Ontario-Quebec-Maritime district, Reginald V. Harris, 1939, and Charles A. Fowler, 1932.

Canadian Officers.

Walter P. Zeller of Montreal, Que., is the 1940 governor of the Ontario-Quebec-Maritime district. He has been a member since 1919 and was president of the Montreal club in 1936. Dr. Jesse K. Bigelow, of Lethbridge, Alta., a governor of the Western Canadian Kiwanis district, has been a member since 1929 and was president of tht Lethbridge club in 1933.

ALLIES WARN RUMANIA ON NEW OIL DECREES

Canada Plans 77 Schools For War Birds

Train 35,000 a Year Need 4,000 Planes; Seven Sites Chosen

OTTAWA, Jan. 23.— (CP) — Recruiting of men for training as pilots, air gunners and air observers under the British Commonwealth Air Training plan will begin soon and detailed plans for a nation-wide string of training schools involved in the plan are complete.

Sufficient instructors and staff are available for a start on the training and yesterday Defence Minister Rogers announced the location of seven of the 71 schools from which as many as 35,000 trained flying personnel may be turned out in a single year.

Mr. Rogers outlined progress and plans at a press conference, with him were Transport Minister Howe who is responsible for obtaining the physical property, such as land buildings and aircraft, needed under the scheme and Air Vice-Marshall G. M. Croil, who will be in command.

German Troops Watch Oil Train Crews

BUCHAREST, Jan. 23 — (AP). — The deploying of German troops along a Polish railway leading into Rumania's oil and wheat fields — ostensibly to curb rebellious train crews—is viewed by some diplomats here as a potential means of Nazi pressure on Rumania.

The soldiers were stationed by agreement between Germany and Soviet Russia, Poland's partitioners, because the 200-mile section concerned runs through Russian-occupied area of Poland.

The railway reaches from German Silesia through Lwow and Jaroslaw to Cernauti, in the northern Rumanian province of Bukowina.

Official sources said Russia consented to the policing after Germany complained that shipments of grain and oil to supply her war machine had been delayed and sometimes lost because of rebellious and inefficient crews.

Linked with the Russo-German arrangement, these quarters added, was a provision for German techni-

Miners Are Jittery On Firth Of Forth

EDINBURGH, Scotland, Jan. 23— (CP Cable).—Miners of the Valleyfield Colliery of nearby Dunfermline are jittery due to the proximity of the Firth of Forth Bridge which has been the object of enemy air activity, an official disclosed today. A. K. McNeil, agent for the Fife Coal Company, made this remark during testimony at an inquiry into the colliery disaster of last October 28 which took 35 lives.

Crashes The Line

Washington, Jan. 23 (AP)

The pickets, both Negroes and white persons, protested against the theatre's barring Negroes. "Negro citizens may not see the picture of the great Emancipator," read one of their signs.

The management explained it always had been the practice of theatres here not to admit Negroes.

"I'm sorry I have to go through a picket line," said Mrs. Roosevelt.

War On Germany Barbarity —Gen. Hertzog

CAPE TOWN, Jan. 23.—(CP-Reuters)—General J. B. M. Hertzog, former prime minister, today told the South African parliament and its crowded galleries that "the time has come when the war against Germany should be ended and peace restored" before the world plunges into great slaughter.

General Hertzog who resigned as prime minister last Sept. 6 when beaten in his stand against a declaration of war, offered a resolution favoring peace in the first session of parliament since that in which he relinquished his office to General Jan Smuts.

As a general debate on the war was launched in parliament, government supporters were confident that the Hertzog motion would be defeated.

Replying to General Hertzog, Prime Minister Smuts said the opposition leader's speech sounded like a chapter of Mein Kampf. The sally was greeted with laughter.

The prime minister declared General Hertzog's plea was a distortion. Replying to a question, he said the war was costing South Africa approximately $150,000 a day.

General Hertzog said the most bitter passions were being stirred at

German Surprise Raid Fails On Vosges Front

PARIS, Jan. 23 — (CP-Havas). — Repulse of a strong German raid in the Vosges sector of the Western front and an attack on two German submarines by British warships were announced today.

Well - informed French naval sources reporting the U-boat attacks did not divulge the scene of the engagements. In the absence of positive proof, the British Admiralty has not claimed the submarines were destroyed, it was said.

Sub-zero weather along the Western front paralyzed air operations, but did not prevent continuation of routine overland patrol work. Most activity took place in the Blies River zone, on the western wing of the war theatre, and in the wooded sector immediately to the west of the Vosges foothills.

According to the brief announcement in today's war communique, "an enemy raid to the west of the Vosges was repulsed with losses." Military sources said an unusually

Canadians March To Bands In Battle Dress Turnout

ALDERSHOT, Jan. 23.—(CP Cable)—The parade grounds of the first Canadian Division were astir today with the strains of martial music and brass bands for the first time since the contingent arrived in England.

The departure from the routine of drill and exercises was made to give the Canucks practice in ceremonial turnout, which they may be called upon to perform at an early date.

Also for the first time officers and men of every unit appeared in full battle dress. Hitherto a number of officers have been wearing old style uniforms pending delivery of the dress decreed for the modern mechanized army.

The result of the sudden transformation was that it was difficult to distinguish officers from men.

Later General McNaughton lunched at government house as a guest of Lieut.-General Charles Broad, general officer commanding the Aldershot command. There he met an old friend, Field-Marshal Lord Milne, and a party representing the committee of the Dominion Soldiers' Club

A second group of French journalists visited the camp today. They made a special call on the 22nd Battalion, which has become the most visited unit of the division. The journalists also saw the Toronto Scottish and the Second Field Regiment, Royal Canadian Artillery, going through a stiff drill. They had tea with officers of the Royal Montreal Regiment.

The Frenchmen were given a first hand view of the men's reaction to the arrival of mail from home. The visit coincided with the second heaviest mail from Canada—118 bags of Christmas parcels and 41 bags of letters and newspaper.

Among the letters was one addressed to "Sir" A. McNaughton.

Russia Wants Victory Before Spring

Fear Aid By Allies Push Campaign Regardless Of Cost

By WADE WERNER,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

HELSINGFORS, Jan. 23. —(AP) —Cost what it may, Soviet Russia apparently has determined to crush Finland this winter despite the spring time promise of easier going by land and air.

Impelled by a desire either to save military face, or win before Finland can get great aid from the west, or both, the Russian command is risking costly equipment on mid-winter bombing raids and appears to be pressing to attack in force on the Karelian Isthmus and North of Lake Ladoga.

Although longer daylight hours and better flying weather is just around the corner, such as would serve both land and aerial offensives better than the present bitter cold and short days, Red strategists seem unwilling to sit back and take gradual advantage of Russia's numerical superiority.

(The Leningrad military headquarters last night announced new "reconnoitring flights," general skirmishing by land patrols and, "in a number of areas, artillery fire.)"

Dispatches from Estonia, across the frozen Gulf of Finland from this beleaguered country, also indicate the Russians are straining every nerve to win before winter ends.

New air bases, it was reported, have been built to enable Red bombers to fly to Finland and back several times daily. Russia gained an Estonian base at Baltiski in one of the Baltic treaties that preceded the war with Finland.

Motors Never Stop.

Supplies of aviation gasoline, said to have been imported many months ago from the United States, were reported rushed to the half-finished bases. Because of insufficient hangars, Russian plane motors are left

Step Toward War Says Browder Of 4-Year Term

NEW YORK, Jan. 23 (AP)—The government, pursuing its drive against federal law violations that might have foreign implications, added to its list today the conviction of Earl Browder on passport fraud charges — a conviction the Communist leader said was "but one movement in the drive toward war."

Browder was silent yesterday as he left the courtroom where he had been sentenced to four years in prison and fined $2,000, but he went to Madison Square Garden Lenin memorial rally a few hours later to lash out against the United States government.

Browder, native of Kansas State and head of the American Communist party, heard his verdict after a four-day trial and a 45-minute jury deliberation. He was convicted on each of two counts that might have brought him 10 years in prison.

His bail of $7,500 was continued until tomorrow when he must appear for approval of new bond pending an appeal.

Pole Exiles Name Paderewski New President

PARIS, Jan. 23 (AP)—Ignace Jan Paderewski, world famous pianist, today was unanimously elected president of Poland's National Council—the parliament of the Polish government in exile.

It is Paderewski's first return to politics since he resigned as premier of Poland in 1919 after leading his country's long fight for independence.

In a colorful ceremony in the grand ballroom of the Polish embassy the former premier was acclaimed successively by Polish president Wladyslaw Raczkiewicz, Premier Wladyslaw Sikorski and the council.

In replying the aged musician brought tears to the eyes of his assembled countrymen with a call for Polish freedom.

After the defeat of Poland by Germany last fall, the Poles set up a government in exile at Ang-

No Cooperation By U.S. Shippers Blamed On Delay

LONDON, Jan. 23.—(CP). — A spokesman for the Ministry of Economic Warfare said today that reluctance of American shippers to co-operate in supplying advance information and guarantees concerning their cargoes was responsible for delays in passing United States ships through British contraband control stations.

Referring to complains by the United States Government that American ships were being detained at contraband control points an average of 12½ days—three times as long as Italian vessels—the spokesman said these additional points figured in the situation:

Italian ships for the most part carry bulk cargoes, whereas American cargoes often include as many as 300 items, thus requiring a longer time for examination; American ships usually touch at various ports all around the Mediterranean.

Neutral Outcry Held Causeless

PARIS, Jan. 23 (CP-Havas) — Neutral countries know in their hearts that the Allied fleets and armies are their only protection from Nazi aggression, Pertinax declared in the newspaper L'Ordre today.

The noted foreign affairs writer expressed surprise that neutral countries should have interpreted the speech made Saturday by Winston Churchill as a "pretention to dictate their conduct to secondary states, which have thus far stayed out of the conflict."

"The First Lord of the Admiralty simply said, "Pertinax explained, "that neutrals are in a cruel and difficult position, that their lot would not become more agreeable if they surrendered to Stalin and Hitler; that, if France and Great Britain should give up the fight before conquering, they would be

U.S. Begins To Feel Pinch Of War On Trade As U.K. Arms Buying Cuts Other Imports

NEW YORK, Jan. 23. — (CP)— The New York Times conceded today that the United States "cannot have it both ways in International trade."

Discussing editorially the effect upon United States trade with Great Britain as a result of the war, the Times said the United States is "discovering with a vengence that neutrality and isolation cannot protect us from the dislocation that war inevitably brings."

Pointing out that Britain has suspended imports of American tobacco, a trade worth $70,000,000 annually, has curtailed import of United States apples and pears, worth $15,000,000, and is turning to Empire countries and Argentina for grain and meat supplies, the newspaper added:

"We cannot expect the British to make immense war purchases in this country—the figure of $1,000,000,000 was mentioned yesterday as their possible total—and at the same time demand that Great Britain keep up her peacetime imports unimpaired.

"After all, Great Britain is at

More Light Is Sought In Blackouts

4,133 Been Killed In Four Months Blackouts Blamed

LONDON, Jan. 23. —(CP)— More light to guide pedestrians through black-out streets was sought today in Parliament.

Traffic fatalities far surpassing Great Britain's war death toll were the basis of the blackout debate scheduled for the House of Commons.

At the same time, neutral and British losses of life and property as a result of the war at sea mounted further.

The Greek freighter Ekatontarchos Dracoulis, 5,329 tons, was reported sunk off the Portuguese coast by a German submarine. Six of the crew of 28 were believed killed.

The 1,569-ton Norwegian steamship Maurita was believed lost after a naval vessel picked up two men's bodies from a raft in the North Sea. They were believed to have been Maurita crewmen.

The Admiralty announced the 250-ton naval trawler Valdora was overdue and presumed to be lost with nine men.

The stage was set in the House of Commons for criticism of the blackout. Newspapers joined in the declaration of a "grumble week."

Those who complained against the rigid blackouts said 4,133 persons were killed, mostly on highways during four months of the blackout, compared with 2,466 in the eight months preceding the war blackout. These sources said more than 2,500 British soldiers, sailors and airmen had met death in the war.

Despite the complaints, observers doubted that more light would be permitted in smaller cities, or over London's 150 square miles.

U.S. Minister Arrives At Ottawa Post

OTTAWA, Jan. 23 — (CP). — Smiling, youthful-appearing James R. H. Cromwell, wealthy husband of the richest girl in the world, came to Ottawa to-day to take office as the United States Minister to Canada, a post which, except for three months last summer, has been vacant more than two years.

The new minister was accompanied by his attractive wife, the former Doris Duke. A large group of Legation and Government officials met the Cromwells at the railway station and the concourse was well filled with Ottawa people who warmly cheered the newcomers.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King and members of his staff, Sir Shuldham Redfern, Secretary to Governor-General Lord Tweedsmuir, and John Farr Simmons, Charge d'Affaires of the United States Legation, were among those at the station.

As far as the military authorities were concerned no special expense was involved, Mr. Stanley said.

Japan To Insist U.K. Return Captive Nazis

TOKYO, Jan. 23 — (AP).—Backed by the Japanese Cabinet, Foreign Minister Hachiro Arita said to-day he would "insist' that Germans taken from the liner Asama Maru by a British naval patrol be returned to Japan.

Police blocked an attempt to-day by members of the Rightist political party, Tohokai, to demonstrate in front of the British embassy against removal of the 21 Germans by a British warship.

A delegation, however, presented a resolution demanding a British apology and return of the Germans who were taken from the liner Asama Maru last Saturday 35 miles off Yokohama.

The Japanese government already had protested the incident, reserving the right to demand return of the seamen and requesting a "full, valid explanation." The Japanese foreign office note called the seizure "a serious unfriendly act."

The resolution presented by the Tohokai delegation said the "British warship's action so near Yokohama constituted a maximum insult to the empire of Japan and pollutes the soul of the Japanese people."

Three hundred Tohokai members had assembled at the Yasukuni shrine, burial place of Japanese war dead, intending to march to the British embassy. Police, however, permitted only a small delegation

Watchman Badly Burned In Windsor Fire

WINDSOR, Ont., Jan. 20.—(CP). —Fire early to-day swept through the three-story warehouse of G. G. McKeough, Limited, causing property damage estimated at $200,000. William Aitchison, 69-year-old night watchman, suffered critical burns when trapped on the top floor of the building.

The watchmarf was aflame from head to foot when he finally broke through the wall of fire and dashed out the front door. Two neighbors and a police officer beat out his flaming clothes. Hospital officials said Aitchison's condition was critical. His injuries were described as third-degree burns.

The fire destroyed the building, leaving only four brick walls and a pile of smouldering debris. The warehouse had contained a large stock of hardware, plumbing and mill supplies.

Origin of the fire was not known. It broke out about 3 a.m. EST. Six fire companies answered two alarms and firemen pumped water on the flames at the rate of 2,000

State Anglo-French Wells Output Not For Nazi Army

BUCHAREST, Jan. 23 — (AP). — Great Britain and France today warned the Rumanian Government that any attempt to compel British and French oil companies operating in Rumania to furnish oil for Germany might "lead to grave complications."

The warning followed a Rumanian decree creating a national petroleum commission with authority to control production, refining and export of all Rumanian oil "in conformity with the interests of the state."

The decree gave the commission sweeping powers, including the right to take over companies not submitting to its orders.

In some foreign circles the Rumanian decree was reported due to German pressure to obtain all the oil possible from Rumania.

For several months a German trade commission has been negotiating with Rumania for increased exports, including oil, wheat and other supplies.

Fear 100 Missing From Liner; Spark Fired Oil

GENOA, Italy, Jan. 23.—(AP)— Surviving members of the crew of the Italian liner Orazio said today that the fire which destroyed their ship and imperilled the lives of more than 600 aboard started when a spark from a motor set fire to lubricating oil which in turn caused fuel oil to explode.

An Italian line official said a recheck of those rescued might show as many as 100 were missing since it had been impossible to verify the previous announcement that 561 persons were saved.

Two-thirds of those missing were crew men.

Investigators of the fire said "the engineer on duty at 4 a.m. suddenly heard a series of explosions in the forward part of the port motor, followed by a vast burst of flame which immediately set fire to central parts of the vessel."

Radio operator Perronne said the fire burned so intensely that survivors in lifeboats could see the ship's ribs silhoutted against the red hot sides.

Survivors, declaring many of the missing were lost when a life-boat was swamped or died of exposure, related how a badly burned Peruvian mother leaped into the sea, leaving her baby aboard.

70 P.C. Of Poles Are Starving Says Vatican Broadcast

VATICAN CITY, Jan. 23—(AP) —The Vatican radio station today broadcast in English an account of "horror and inexcusable excesses" inflicted on Poles under German rule.

The speaker, identified as an English Jesuit recently returned from Poland, said 70 per cent of the Polish population was facing starvation and that Poles and Jews were being herded into separate ghettoes while food reserves and tools were stripped from Poland to replenish German stores.

"The crowning iniquity," he said, "is the cynical suppression of all but the merest suggestion of religious worship."

The speaker broadcast the same account in Italian last night and arrangements were made for a broadcast in German later today.

He said conditions in Poland were "an open thrust at the heart of the Pope," and that bad as conditions were in the Soviet-occupied part of Poland, "even more violent and persistent is the assault on elementary justice and decency in that part of prostrate Poland which has fallen to German administration."

The richest part of Poland, he said, "has unceremoniously been stolen" from its rightful proprietors, who are being "packed off in foul-smelling trains."

The broadcaster asserted that "a system of inferior deportation and ignominy is being organized in the depths of one of Europe's severest winters on principles and by methods that can be described only as brutal."

The speaker said "loyalty to fellow Catholics in Poland compels us to draw atention to these things happening in Western Poland."

Then he said the majority of the clergy had been arrested, "the greater number of churches closed."

70 Are Missing, 561 Saved On Burned Liner

At the time of the rescue ships' arrival, the list of missing stood at 70, of which six were believed passengers.

The Italian Line, owner of the Orazio, reported 561 persons had been saved. The French contraband control reported it took 12 Germans off the ship before the fire in the Mediterranean Sunday. The original passenger and crew lists totalled 643.

Representatives of the line and of companies which had insured the Orazio went aboard the rescue vessels to talk to survivors and question Captain Schiano on the cause of the disaster.

Second Sea Rescue.

Enrique Forero, a survivor, disclosed that he and his wife and two children had been rescued from the Netherlands liner Simon Bolivar when it was sunk by a mine in the North Sea last November 18, and expressed joy that their luck still held.

Line officials, still without information on the cause of the fire which enveloped the 11,669-ton Orazio Sunday as it proceeded from Genoa en route to Barcelona and Valparaiso, Chile, were hopeful that survivors aboard the Conte Biancamano could shed some light.

The Orazio's second officer Giorello, among 48 survivors landed at Marseille by a French warship, said the fire followed an engine room explosion.

Garden Filled

The 20,000 capacity Garden was filled to hear the man who served a prison term for draft dodging during the last war and who was his party's presidential candidate in 1936.

After his speech, the rally by a rising vote adopted a resolution declaring his conviction was "a verdict not only against Earl Browder but against all Americans who cherish peace, freedom and well-being."

It pledged, also, an "uncompromising struggle to keep Earl Browder free—free to work for peace, for well-being, for the socialist reorganization of society."

At his trial, the defence offered no witnesses and Browder, calling himself a correspondence-school lawyer, argued his own case.

He was warned several times from the bench to stick to evidence and it was this he referred to when he told his Garden audience that he was "prohibited from speaking except within the limits laid down by the judge. Above all, I was prohibited from discussing the motives of the prosecution."

Drew Suggests Slogan "King Must Go"

HAMILTON, Ont., Jan. 23.—(CP)—Fuel was added to the Ontario government's criticism of the Dominion's war effort today by the declaration of Lieut.-Col. George A. Drew, provincial Conservative Leader, that Canada should not have to "wait until a general election to get rid of" Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

Col. Drew, who last week in the legislature joined Premier Hepburn in a vote criticizing the "so little" war effort of the federal government, suggested to a public meeting here last night that Canada adopt the slogan "King Must Go." He said it would be on the theme of "Asquith Must Go", the cry that led to the resignation of the Prime Minister under whom Great Britain entered the first Great War.

Asquith's resignation was termed the turning point for success in the last struggle by Col. Drew, who said he was hopeful history would repeat itself in the case of Canada and Mr. Mackenzie King.

Fear Loss of Face

LONDON, Jan. 23—(CP)—Loss of "face," rather than a breach of international law inspired the Japanese to protest the removal of 21 German seamen from the liner Asama Maru by a British cruiser Sunday, The Daily Mail said today.

"The fact that the seizure took place only 40 miles from a Japanese naval base has heightened that feeling," The Daily Mail said, "but Japan may be assured that in Western eyes the incident implies no humiliation to anybody, but merely a routine operation of war."

The Times commented: "There would appear to be little valid ground in international law for this protest. Neutral merchant vessels are subject at all times to visit and search by belligerent warships, anywhere except within neutral territorial waters. There is no provision of international law more fully established."

Succession Duty Act Changes Hold Up House

TORONTO, Jan. 23. — (CP) — Silence from the Conservative benches is the chief feature of the throne speech debate as it is carried on these days at Queen's Park.

Conservative leader George Drew spoke for them in the throne speech debate. The result is the Liberals have the forum to themselves.

Under ordinary circumstances, it is probable the debate would have been wound up by now. But there is not sufficient other business to keep it going. As it is the house will recess after amendments to the Succession Duty Act are passed.

Premier Hepburn told the House yesterday it was hoped to have the Amending Bill ready for the house tomorrow or Thursday. When it passes third reading, the house will recess and not resume earlier than is necessary to have an Easter prorogation.

The Allied envoys were understood to have said that while Britain and France did not dispute Rumania's right to regulate the oil industry they would not tolerate forced production by British and French-owned companies for German war use.

There was a feeling in many quarters that the decree was intended to implement the Government's recent invitation to foreign oil companies to participate in a big national defence loan.

The foreign companies joined in an offer to take 500,000,000 lei (about $3,500,000) in the loan bonds, each firm sharing in proportion to its part of the total volume of business.

Finance Minister Mititza Constantinescu was reported to have refused the offer, saying the foreign companies should subscribe a full 1,000,000,000 lei (about $7,000,000).

The companies countered with an offer to take 750,000,000 lei (about $4,750,000).

A German Denial.

BERLIN, Jan. 23 — (AP). — German spokesmen today denied Rumanian reports that German troops and railwaymen were deployed along the rail line through Russian-occupied Poland to the Rumanian frontier. They said Russia was administering this section of Poland alone.

Great Britain was accused by the Germans of spreading reports that the Reich was pressing Rumania because of an oil shortage and that the Polish oil fields were about to be taken over by Germany.

This was termed "a build-up for Churchill's speech," which the First Lord of the Admiralty made last Saturday.

"One has only to read Churchill's speech to see it was necessary to sow uneasiness among neutrals in order to make the speech effective."

This, he said, was leading to Armageddon, and although the civilized world was asking why the war existed, a satisfactory answer was lacking.

"Responsible people must feel that this dishonorable state of international lunacy should be ended," he said.

South Africa, he went on, was involved only because Great Britain declared war, and not because of any injustice to the union by Germany.

To continue the war, for which he declared there was no justification, would be "proof of our barbarity and a crime against all civilized people."

The British position that the war was justified on the ground Adolf Hitler sought world domination was not based on truth, General Hertzog declared, adding:

"I emphasized to Britain in 1935 and 1937 how unfounded and unjust that accusation was in view of the effort of the head of the German state to restore the German unity of territory and authority so scandalously destroyed by the Treaty of Versailles. The war against Germany and the German people is nothing other than crime by international murder and robbery."

General Hertzog concluded that the declaration of war was the "greatest blunder ever committed by South African statesmen and made the Union sink to the level of a vassal state of Europe."

"The northern countries will not renounce their free right of self-determination," the paper said. "They refuse to anyone the right to dictate their conduct. There is little ground to invoke the obligations of the League of Nations pact, since in the past the great powers were the first to forget its high ideal."

LONDON—(CP).—The Ministry of Food has declined to provide ration cards for dogs—they will have to reply on butchers' scarps or horseflesh.

Eggs Twice Week As Canadian Troops Train

OTTAWA, Jan. 23 — (CP). — Canadian soldiers, a segment of the greatest egg-eating nation in the world, will get eggs twice a week while training in Canada, under new ration regulations to be made public in detail next week.

Failure to include eggs in the earlier regulations caused a flood of complaints to the Agriculture Department from egg producers and those connected with the industry on the grounds it reduced the domestic egg market.

The list of rations used in the British Army was the basis on which the Canadian list was started at the beginning of the war. It caused considerable complaint because, since Canadians normally do not follow the same diet as people in the United Kingdom, the sudden change in the diet of thousands of men here upset the processes of domestic marketing.

First complaints came from the apple growers. Men who as civilians ate several apples each day, didn't get any in the Army and the growers protested.

Apples then were added to rations of the Canadian Active Service Force. In the face of one complaint after another, the whole question of rations was handed over whereas the Italians are going only to Italy.

The American objection applied especially to the Mediterranean area and the Gibraltar control point.

Cordell Hull, United States Secretary of State, in a diplomatic communication addressed to the British Ambassador, the Marquess of Lothian, last Saturday objected to "discriminatory" treatment of United States ships in the Mediterranean. Mr. Hull expressed his government's "serious concern" over the situation.

Cites 2 Cases

Today the British spokesman cited the cases of two American ships. He said the Examalia arrived at Gibraltar Sunday without any advance information on the cargo having been submitted and added that none had been received up to today.

Similarly, said the spokesman, the ministry of economic warfare had not received a "hold back" guarantee—a guarantee by the shipper to hold the cargo at the destination until it has been examined by British agents or until assurance has been given that it is not going to Germany.

The United States liner Washington, on the other hand, arrived at Gibraltar, Saturday, and sailed in 12 hours as a result of a "hold back" arranged through agents the day before her arrival, the spokesman said.

ers, France.

Paderewski was prominently mentioned for the presidency, but was believed to have declined nomination for that post because of his health. He is 79. He recently journeyed to Paris from his home in Switzerland to take a more active part in the government in exile.

A heart attack cut short the famed pianist's last North American tour last May and he sailed for home shortly afterward.

Pledge To Freedom.

Paderewski assumed the presidency of Poland's National Council —the Polish Parliament in exile— with a ringing pledge to deliver Poland from "captivity" and "raise her from the ruins."

Paderewski's hands trembled as a secretary helped him to his feet after his unanimous election as council president, but in a strong voice he moved his hearers to tears with the declaration:

"Poland is immortal. We will deliver her from captivity and will raise her from the ruins. We take this engagement before God!"

Paderewski thanked the Polish population of America "to whose generosity we owe a great deal of our power to aid the Polish refugees and population in distress."

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Jan. 23 — (CP). — Moderate weakness on outside markets offset the firming influence of an improved export demand for Canadian wheat, and drove wheat futures prices to lower levels on Winnipeg Grain Exchange to-day. Closing quotations were ½ to ¾ cent down, May at 86¼, July 86⅞ and October 87⅞ cents.

Moderate demand for the lower grades of cash wheat continued, but buyers were reluctant to improve their prices spreads and little wheat changed hands. In the coarse grain pit export interests were credited with buying oats, presumably against sales to the United Kingdom.

The Green Room, where twenty-five tables of bridge were in play, was aglow with softly shaded lights that added to the friendly, cheerful atmosphere which greeted guests on their arrival. Receiving were Mrs. F. L. Robinson, regent, Mrs. B. Jackson, first vice-regent, Mrs. G. A. Borland, second vice-regent.

In charge of bridge tables were Mrs. W. Comstock, convener. Mrs. G. A. Borland, Mrs. A. E. Edmonds. Attractive tally cards of red and white were designed and donated by Mrs. B. W. Harvey. Prizes of a cup and saucer in artistic wrappings of I. O. D. E. colors, red, white and blue, were donated by the regent, Mrs. Robinson, to the high score holder at each table.

Social conveners were Mrs. A. E. Dryland, Mrs. W. A. Davern and Mrs. D. E. Bell. Delicious refreshments served at the bridge tables included baskets of candies in dainty spring-like colours.

Bible Class Discusses Plans For New Year

An inspirational opening to the new year meeting of the Young Ladies' Bible Class of St. James' United Church was the reading of the 23rd Psalm and a poem, "Ring out the Old, Ring in the New," presented by Miss Ella Callan. Mrs. W. Beavis led in prayer, and a new year poem was read by Miss Ethel Monks.

During the business discussion, plans were made for an Irish tea and program on March 15, and a financial objective set for 1940.

Three contests were enjoyed and refreshments served by the hostess, Miss Helen Howarth, at the close of the evening. Miss Ruth Hutchinson will be hostess for the next meeting, to be held the first Thursday in February.

Spring Flowers Deck Tables At Annual Dinner

The Evening Branch of St. John's W. A. held its annual dinner in the drawing room of the Parish Hall, Monday evening. Special guests were Rev. and Mrs. W. F. Robertson and Rev. and Mrs. R. T. F. Brain. Tulips and daffodils were used on the banquet tables, which were lit by candles in green and silver holders. The dinner arrangements were in charge of Miss E. Clementi, assisted by Miss A. Foote, Miss A. Stout and Mrs. B. Ottewell.

A delightful feature of the evening took place when a birthday cake lit with pink candles was placed in front of Mrs. W. E. Conway, honorary president, whose birthday it was. A presentation was also made by Mrs. W. J. Downer, president, who spoke appreciately of the love and esteem in which Mrs. Conway is held by members of the auxiliary. Canon Robertson also spoke briefly in tribute of Mrs. Conway's service in connection with the group and mentioned his pleasure in attending the monthly meetings of the Auxiliary ,and of the harmonious and industrious atmosphere that always prevailed.

Mrs. Conway thanked the members for their kind thoughfulness and their gift of a Prayer book, and the group joined in singing "For She's a jolly Good Fellow." A pleasant friendly hour, in which some of the members quilted or knitted, followed. Three quilt tops made by Mrs. W. Wheeler were on display. Each quilt contained over 800 different pieces.

Recital Is Given On New Organ Of St. James' Church

Commemorationg the installation of new organ in St. James United Church an outstanding program of music was presented on Monday night, when Charles Franklin Legge, concert organist of Toronto, and the church choir gave a splendid recital of organ and vocal numbers with Cecil E. Lapp, the organist, directing.

The large audience joined with the choir in the opening doxology which was followed with the invocation offered by the pastor, Rev. Fred W. Craik, who also introduced the guest artist, emphasizing the thought, God's voice may speak to us in music.

Bringing out the beautiful tonal quality of the new Austin organ, Mr. Legge played for his first group, the Choral prelude "Jesus, Joy of Man's Desiring," Coccato and Fugue in "D" minor (J. S. Bach) and 3, Overture to the Magic Flute (Mozart). Soft muted strains were heard in the opening number of the second group in Cantilene Postorale (Quilmont) and was followed by Intermezzo (Rheinberger), 3rd, Harmonies du Soir, (Keug Elert) played with much depth of feeling and fine effect, introducing the melodious chimes. Mr. Legge delighted the audience with "The Angelus" (Victor Herbert) and two of Tschaikowsky's compositions in brilliant vein. Andante Contendresse" and Dance of the Reed Flutes."

An organ recital of such high classic order, played with grace and buoyancy and the performers exquisite technique as revealed in these widely varied groups could not but satisfy the congregation of St. James' with the possibilities of their new organ.

Supplementing this fine organ program, St. James' Choir sang in chorus from the Twelfth Mass, the beautiful gloria in Excelsis from Mozart, while the soloists for the ocassion included Mrs. H. F. Doig, whose magnificent soprano voice did full justice to "Ave Maria" (Bac--Gound), "How Lovely are Thy Dwellings," (Samuel Liddle) was sung with lyrical ease with violin obligato by Mrs. R. C. Searles accompanist by Mr. Searles with violin. In charming harmony the quartette "Keep a Lot of Sunshine All the Way" was sung with much feeling by Mesdames J. Monks, E. McKinstry, J. Robinson and E. Kitney.

As a fitting finale to this successful recital the full choir sang the National Anthem, Standford Air, and the benediction was pronounced by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Craik.

Home and School Association News

Of much interest were lantern slides shown by Mr. P. D. Windrim of the Prince of Wales School, and Mr. A. J. Noftall. The pictures showed the many educational uses lanterns have in school work.

Delightful vocal solos, "Deep in the Quiet Hill" and "Annie Laurie" were sung by Miss Isobel Duthie, with Mrs. G. Wallace at the piano. Mrs. E. Estlick played an enjoyable piano number.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Wednesday, January 24.

According to the lunar and mutual aspects, this should be a very busy day. There may be man tenacious obstacles, probably delays and disappointments. These may best be side-stepped by diligence and determination, and the use of tact or subtlety in handling dangerous and difficult opposition. This applies especially to deals with employers, superiors, or those in power. The dubious situations may have reactions on the personal life where something is likely to "split open" suddenly. Be guided by intuitions and read papers cautiously.

Those whose birthday it is may be ready for a lively and challenging year, with much of a stubborn or thwarting nature to stimulate hard work and good judgment. Keen impressions or intuitions might serve better than orthodox promptings. Also be cautious with papers. The dubious conditions also react in private affairs.

A child born on this day although deep, studious, reserved, secretive, and mistrustful, may succeed through its native intuitions or possibly "psychic hunches." A training in strict integrity would not be amiss.

DOROTHY DIX

When Marriage Seems To Grow Cold, It Is Time For The Husband And Wife To Take a Vacation From Each Other For a Brief Time—This Usually Cures Many Imagined Ills.

DEAR MISS DIX—My husband is 55. I am ten years younger. We have been married for nearly twenty years and have two boys. I have been a good and helpful wife, but for the last two years I have been sick and nervous and lacking self-control; at times have gone to pieces and cried out to him: "I hate you. I wish I had never seen you." But he knew I loved him and didn't mean it. Now out of a clear sky he tells me that his love for me is dead and his attitude toward me and the children has changed completely. He only comes home to eat and sleep and spends the balance of his time at his office. Is neglectful, cold and indifferent. Doesn't talk to me about his business or let me have the key to our bank box in which I am supposed to have some stock. He says there is no other woman. Do you think my lack of self-control killed my husband's love? Is he stalling for time in order to find out his own feelings? What policy shall I pursue?—DISTRACTED WIFE.

ANSWER:

Your policy should be to play a waiting game. Hold yourself steady. Don't add fuel to the flames of your husband's resentment at whatever it is about you that has got upon his nerves by arguments and recriminations. Don't go about with the air of a martyr and make your home such a dismal place that he will dread to come back to it. Don't tell your best friends of your troubles. And, above all, don't do anything drastic like consulting a lawyer about divorce, because that will make it the harder for him to come back to you when he gets over his mad.

If there was another woman in the case you would have reason to fear the worst, but so long as all that ails him is just being tired of domesticity you need not mourn as one without hope. Generally all that is needed to cure husbands who suffer from a hallucination that they want to be bachelors again is just to let them try it for a while.

Just why men who have been docile and domesticated and thoroughly housebroken for twenty years or so suddenly kick over the traces when they reach the dangerous age nobody knows. Maybe it is because they suddenly realize that they are getting old and they hear the last call to the dining car. Maybe it is just because they are fed up with wives and children and eating the same things every day, looking at the same faces across the table and listening to the eternal family squabbles.

Maybe it is because the wife has been hard to live with. Maybe it is because the wife has been a tyrant. Maybe it is just because all of the little nagging troubles of domesticity have simply accumulated and accumulated through the years until they make a burden too heavy to be borne any longer.

Any of these may make a man lose his love for his wife, or think he does, but, fortunately, love is a habit and wives are a habit, and if the wives are wise enough to just let their husbands go away for a while and get rested up they will generally come home like Mary's little lamb.

DEAR MISS DIX—I am 20 years old and very much in love with a boy of the same age to whom my parents strongly object. He betrayed a girl and goes on sprees sometimes for days at a time and has been out of work for months. But I feel that he has sown his wild oats and will settle down and be a true husband, and I think I can make a man of him. My mother says it is my duty to try to persuade him to marry the girl he wronged and give their baby a name. What do you think about it?—MAUD.

ANSWER:

I think that you are an incurable optimist if you think you can make a good husband out of that sort of a young man. You couldn't build a strong bridge out of rotten planks, and no more can you make a strong and steadfast man out of a weak and unprincipled character.

What makes you think that a man who is dastardly enough to betray a young girl has the qualities that would make him a desirable husband? What makes you think that a drunkard is a good man to tie to? What makes you think that you would insure your happiness and well-being by marrying a man who has no way of supporting a family, who hasn't even a job? I should say that any one of the three counts would make him highly ineligible and that put together they would make marrying him equivalent to deliberately committing suicide.

And what reason have you to suppose that he has sown his wild oats? It is true that he has put in a pretty big crop for one so young, but I see no indication that he has finished the job. And, anyway, why do you want to take upon yourself the burden of having to help him harvest the nettles and tares that he has sown?

Don't kid yourself into thinking that you can make a man out of such poor stuff. You can't. If a man won't go straight because his own self-respect demands it of him; if he won't keep sober because he can't control his appetites; if he isn't a man because of his own manhood, no woman can supply his deficiencies. No woman can make a lazy man work or inject a backbone into a jellyfish.

Your mother is right. If you have any influence with this boy try to get him to marry the girl he has wronged and give his nameless child a name. Thereby you may help her, and you will certainly save yourself a lot of misery.

DEAR MISS DIX—My husband is a good, kind man and we get along fine. The only fault I can find with him is that he will not take care of his clothes. He will do any kind of dirty job in his best suit. This worries me to death, as we haven't much money and can't afford many clothes. He gets mad when I speak to him about it. What shall I do?—MRS. A. B. C.

ANSWER:

If that was the only fault I had to find with my husband I would just buy a bottle of cleaning fluid and get busy with the spots and a pressing iron and say nothing to him about it. Don't let your marriage go on the rocks for such a little thing as that.

Common Sense About Constipation

A doctor would tell you that the best thing to do with any ailment is to get at its cause. If you're constipated, don't fiddle with makeshift remedies. Find out what's giving you the trouble!

Chances are you won't have to look very far if you eat just the things most people do. Most likely you don't get enough "bulk" in your diet. And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It means the kind of food that isn't largely consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass which helps a bowel movement.

If this is your trouble, Kellogg's All-Bran, a ready-to-eat cereal, is probably just what you need to keep you "regular." It supplies the "bulk" you need, plus the intestinal tonic vitamin B1.

Eat All-Bran every day, drink plenty of water, and join the "regulars"! Made by Kellogg's in London, Canada. Sold by every grocer in two convenient sizes.

Women To Be Active In Community Must Devote Half Time To It

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 23. — (ENS).—A woman to be termed active in community life must devote at least fifty per cent of her time to it. That was the contention of Mrs. Bruce Grills, leader of the negative side in a debate which was staged as principal feature of the monthly meeting of the Seymour West Women's Institute. Subject of the debate, "Resolved, that a woman who takes an active part in community life is happier than one who doesn't," had been gathering increasing interest among members of the Institute as the date for this item on the program drew near and the large number of members present gave every evidence that they anticipated a lively discussion. Nor were they disappointed since the four debaters, all of whom were ex-school teachers, contributed a brilliant argument on the subject which had evidently been well prepared. Chief argument of the affirmative side headed by Miss Winnifred Hay was that life for a woman who did nothing but look after her husband, children and home was filled with dire monotony and dulled the outlook. Mrs. Fred McCulloch was the second speaker on the negative and Mrs. H. T. Scott supported the affirmative, which won by a margin of only a single point, according to the report of the judges, Mrs. Gordon McCulloch, Mrs. James Waters and Mrs. Reg. McCulloch.

Valentine Social.

During the business part of the meeting for which the president Mrs. Fred McCulloch presided it was arranged to hold a Valentine social at Connelly's school on February 16th. Mrs. Fred McCulloch and Mrs. Roy McCulloch were named to head the committee in charge of arrangements for the affair.

More than a dozen pairs of sox knitted for the Red Cross Society were turned in at the meeting along with a quilt which had been previously quilted.

Other items on the program included an interesting talk on her trip to the New York World's Fair by Miss Jean Hendy who was one of the successful contestants in a campaign conducted by the Examiner. Mrs. Ward Archer contributed a piano solo as the concluding number.

Question: You sometimes put "Individual Fruit Salads" in your Dinners of the Week. I never serve these because I do not know what kind of dressing to serve with them. Would you suggest a good one or more—my family will have to be educated into liking them so select it with this in mind—one containing oil would not do.

I always read the Dinners of the Week—and plan my meals with them as a guide. Thanks for your constant help, Marie.

Answer: Thanks for your letter.

Sweet Salad Dressing No. 1.

Three tablespoons lemon juice, ¾ cup powdered sugar, 1 egg white beaten, ¼ teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons cream whipped. Boil together for 5 minutes the lemon juice, sugar, then pour into the beaten white beating constantly with rotary beater. Beat 3 minutes. Add salt and cool. Just before serving fold in the whipped cream and beat 1 minute.

Sweet Salad Dressing No. 2

One-quarter cup each lemon juice, orange juice, pineapple, 2 eggs beaten, ½ cup sugar, ½ cup cream whipped. Heat fruit juices in double boiler. Beat sugar into eggs and add to hot liquid and cook until mixture coats a metal spoon—about 3 minutes. Set upperhalf of double boiler in dish of cold water, beat mixture until cold—about 5 minutes. Just before serving fold in whipped cream—any other acid fruit juices may be used. This is delicious if mixed sparingly with a combination of orange sections, pineapple cubes, dates and bananas.

Let's Stop Aiding Russia

A correspondent of the Examiner asked some of his friends if they were in favor of Canada supplying 1,000,000 bushels of wheat to Russia. The answer in each case was—No. There was no doubt about it; they all said the same thing in their own way. If one were to continue that sort of questioning in any community we believe the result would be the same. The people of Canada do not want to sell wheat to Russia, and the reason is that Russia is attacking Finland.

The argument has been reviewed in these columns before. We are at the moment supposed to be on friendly terms with Russia. That is, there has been no open break between the Empire and Moscow, and no break between Canada and Moscow. That is the official standing at the moment. As far as the struggle between Russia and Finland is concerned we are in a position which can officially be labelled neutral.

And we don't like it. We detest it. So what?

Is it not a fact that wheat takes to itself a different classification and standing during war years than it does during the years when there is no war.

The sinews of war cover a wide range. We think at once of iron and steel, cotton, fats, leather, copper, brass, zinc, wool, and all manner of material, and at once we say they are war materials which we must guard.

There must be no door left open by which they could fall into the hands of the enemy. The price which the enemy might be willing to pay would make no difference to us. Everything of that nature must go exclusively to our own troops or to our allies.

But an army depends on more than that. Men in uniform have to eat, and probably they need more and better food than those who are not in the army. A large army will consume a tremendous total of bread, and wheat-flour makes bread. Therefore wheat is a necessity of war, and a nation would hesitate about going to war if it did not know where its supply of wheat was coming from.

If we find it necessary—and we do—to confine our supplies of iron, steel, nickel and all such to the forces of the Empire and of France, is it not reasonable and right to put our wheat in the same category?

We may have a good crop next year, but we cannot guarantee it. We may find as we have in other years that our crop will be thinned out materially, whereas our desire is that there shall be a reserve for the Allies—and we ourselves are numbered with the Allies.

Even if we are, according to diplomatic usage, on a friendly basis with Russia, does that mean we have to sell our wheat to that country.

Could we not say plainly that we regard our wheat as part of war supplies, and therefore we have none for sale?

If the strong desire of our people means anything in the councils of our nation and our Empire, then we would quickly change our policy and inform Russia that she will have to look elsewhere for her wheat.

The League of Nations, of which Canada is a member, has approved aid for Finland and has kicked Russia out. We do not know whether it could be well proved that selling wheat to Russia is spoiling the chances of Finland, but we cannot readily free ourselves from the belief that such is the case.

But argue as you will, and the tracks all lead back to the same conclusion — the people of Canada do not want to sell their wheat to Russia. The reason is that all our sympathy and active desire is with Finland, and we would be a collection of poor prunes were it otherwise.

We realize it may be difficult to argue the case on all points and at the same time have due and proper regard for all the chapters and clauses of diplomatic passages. But it is plain as a pikestaff that Canadians want Ottawa to take a hand and quit shipping our wheat to Russia. And our individual and national conscience will not feel clean and free from guilt until that is done.

A Boy With An Axe

It was the young man David who years ago placed some stones of his own selection in a sling and slew Goliath of Gath, the giant fighter of the Philistines, described as being in height six cubits and a span. Measuring in cubits is difficult work because the Egyptians, Hebrews and Romans all had that measure and none of them agreed. But this Goliath person was at least ten feet in height. And young David went forth and brought him down.

It would not be well to make the Bible story run along on all fours with a modern wolf-hunting expedition, but the suggestion is strongly entrenched in what has been happening within our own bailiwick, right here in Peterborough County.

The Peterborough Wolf Club was bent on the hunt, and by using the word bent we do not mean crippled or any such thing; just that they were headed in that direction. They had rifles, warm clothing, snow shoes, a bob sleigh and team of horses, guides, headquarters, reporters and camera men, and a couple of bottles of cold tea. Also a medal to be hung (or hanged if you prefer it that way) on the chest or lapel of the individual who first brought down a wolf. Lupus (we believe that is Latin for wolf) was on the spot. And that is where he stayed. The tactics of Lupus were admirable. He just disappeared and did not even put up a notice that he would be back in 15 minutes.

Meanwhile there was a wolf looking over the sheep near the barn of Murray Barrons, just outside Cordova, a good forty miles or so from the scene of the wolf hunt. Mr. Barrons looked out of the window and saw the wolf; he called upon his brother Jim and they gathered their artillery and went over the top. There was 100 yards to be covered in the shooting and when Lupus disappeared over the hill it was felt he had been injured and had retired to the dressing station in the rear.

Same time Ray Barrons, a nephew, of 14 years, was down at the waterhole on Jim Spry's farm, and he had with him an axe. He saw Lupus across the field, and started in pursuit. He came upon the animal and struck it with the axe. Struck it twice we believe. Then he shouldered the wolf and started home. Just like that. No rifle, no guide, no camera men. Just a stout lad of 14 and an axe.

So perhaps we are not far wrong when we likened it to the day when young David went forth with a sling and laid low Goliath of Gath.

Making a County Pay

Simcoe County Council is asking the Attorney-General to move in the direction of preventing excessive costs being placed upon counties for what may be termed administration of justice. The case in point was inquiry into the death of Mr. and Mrs. Warren G. Bell at Wasaga Beach last summer. Mrs. Bell was Miss Small, a sister of the late Ambrose Small, and had been married only a short time before her death.

There was evidence at the time of the tragedy that the husband had been drinking, and he was driving on a night when visibility was none too good. That's how he went into the water and that's how the two people happened to be drowned.

Immediately there were charges made by a sister that Mrs. Bell had been drugged and foul play was broadly hinted at. So there were experts called and lawyers and an extra coroner, and in the end it was found there had been nothing more to it than was known at the beginning.

But Simcoe County gets a bill of $900 for the inquest and inquiry, and $525 of that was for witness fees; one expert received $70.

But Simcoe County had made no demand for all these added witnesses and experts. And yet Simcoe County has to pay because other parties made the demand.

The case is interesting not on account of anything which came out during the hearing of evidence, but because the same thing might take place in any county, and at the moment counties appear to be helpless to defend themselves.

Counties are ready to see justice done, but counties are not ready to pay gladly when interested parties desire to have something in the nature of a show staged under the guise of an inquest. Counties in general could well come to the support of what Simcoe County is trying to do.

Those "Lesser Bits Of News"

Almost any day in the week there is enough small stuff in the day's news to provide material for comment, but as a rule it is left aside in favor of what appears to be larger issues. By way of illustration:

The general manager of a gas and fuel company at Hamilton says cold weather and high winds have created a problem. There are several communities where natural gas is used for heating purposes, and it seems it is not possible to turn on a greater supply in cold weather. It works the other way; the amount of gas available appears to diminish somewhat. On top of that we have the manager's claim that "the cold wind seems to have blown the heat right out of the houses." There's room for a scientific study of something or other.

There are 43 people scattered pretty much all over the Dominion who are expecting to receive something from the estate of the late Mary M. Conway of West Lorne in Elgin Co. She died in 1932 and the estate is now being what they call "wound up." Nor are 42 people going to be neglected, although they may be surprised and perhaps disappointed. There is about $1,000 left, and "after legal costs are paid" each will receive about $20.

Then there is the case of Neil Parker who came from Alabama to join the Canadian army at London, Ont. He was born in Winnipeg 36 years ago and admits he likes to go fighting. In 1927 he was with the forces of General Chiang Kai-Shek in China and stayed quite a while. Then he drifted back to Alabama and worked in a garage. When the war started in Spain he packed up and left to help Franco. He has a right arm which is badly scarred, and he explains he sewed the wounds up himself because there wasn't any other person in sight to attend to it. When things became quiet in Spain he went back to Alabama and fixing cars. That was in August of last year and when he heard about Canada declaring war he said he got restless and decided it was time to start north. Now he is with the 12th Battery.

Not what one could call a big item in the three cases, but just the lesser things which one sees every day. People with strange problems, experiences and ideas walking through the news columns.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Woman in Oakland, Cal., explained she runs her car on an allowance of 50 cents per week for gas. Our guess is that she has neither sons nor daughters.

Prime Minister King has at least been well prepared for anything which Conservative members may launch at him in the coming session.

Wasn't there a time when Mr. Hepburn used to deliver addresses saying how happy we would be when there was a Liberal government at Ottawa and in all the provinces.

Two wives who did not know of each other's existence, are trying to settle the affairs of a mutual husband who died in Pittsburgh. At the end of the first round there was no decision, probably because court officials were afraid to get close enough to see who was winning.

Not long ago a Scot on the staff of the St. Thomas Times-Journal wrote that he spent the first 20 years of his life in Scotland and never heard a word of Gaelic. On the broadcast at Aldershot where Canadian troops talked to the folk at home Private David McIntyre told of visiting his birthplace in Scotland on his first leave. There he watched Highland troops drilling and all commands were given in Gaelic because they could not understand English.

WEAKENING

¶ I like my country best of all, don't change when snow begins to fall, and it starts in to freeze; I love it in the winter time, when cold winds smite me on the spine, and nibble at my knees.

¶ That feeling's planted deep in me, I even love each naked tree, where branches strain and swing; and I look forward to the time, when growing things begin to climb, for then it will be spring.

¶ But lots of friends have gone away, they figure for three months they'll stay, down South where things are green; they cannot stand the cold no more, not strong like what they were before, that's easy to be seen.

¶ And they keep sending cards to me, where they sit 'neath some giant palm tree, no mufflers on their throat; and not like what it is at home, they have straw hats upon their dome, and wear no overcoat.

¶ And they send pictures of the flowers, and where they pass their happy hours, at me I think they laugh; for every now and then they ask, if I have finished up the task, of cleaning out my path.

¶ Perhaps I start to weaken some, I don't know how it could be done, but I think you'll agree; be fine if we could have some spot, where in the winter 'twould be hot—so we'd sit 'neath a tree.

Driving One Of The Enormous Road Trucks

A WRITER in the Christian Science Monitor gives an intimate account of the life and habits of men who drive the super-trucks on the highways; how they keep clear of traffic offences, and what it means to guide one of those monsters along the road.

DRIVERS count on the camaraderie natural to their clan to protect them from the spasmodic campaigns which some small-town constables wage against highway freighters. If a driver is pulled in for not carrying three red lanterns on the tail gate, he knows it is useless to point to the six electric lights emblazoning the rear end. The local law requires three kerosene lanterns with red globes. So the driver pleads guilty, takes his suspended sentence and pays the "court's" costs, rather than delay his "overnight delivery"—trucking's big selling point. Many small-town justices of the peace receive a share of the "costs" in lieu of salaries.

The "victim" stops at the next truck station to tell the proprietor they're checking kerosene tail lights down at Millville. The word goes up and down the "grapevine," and pretty soon the perplexed constable is scratching his head. The trucks all seem to be showing red lanterns tonight.

Going over to Chicago with Arthur Adams one night early in December, I got a good idea how the grapevine flourishes. Adams drives for the Great Central Transport Corporation of Detroit. He has been pushing trucks over the highways ever since the chain-drive, hard-rubber days. Snugged down in the cab of his old square-nosed tarp-top, with the heater humming and the windshield wiper swooshing aside the heavy slush of a Lake Michigan norther, he explained the system in leisurely detail.

IT IS SURPRISING to see how quickly the slightest grade can kill the momentum of a big tractor-trailer truck rolling along at 40 miles with an average load of 24,000 pounds aboard. An ordinary motor freighter is geared to at least five speeds ahead, some of them have as many as ten.

The idea is to keep her rolling at a safe uniform speed. The moment you see the speedometer needle waver, even before you feel the truck slacken, you drop into the next lowest speed. If you delay, the truck loses way so fast that the next lowest gear may not keep her rolling. You go down another gear, and another, and another, and long before you've hit the top the truck is grinding away in "creeper," which is the low gear lower than low. In that gear you settle back and watch the snails tear by.

Passing another vehicle has an element of risk for the driver of an outfit that measure some 30-odd feet on its wheel base. The idea is to get back into the right-hand lane as quickly as the tail end of the trailer will safely clear the overtaken vehicle. At night it is especially hard to gauge a safe clearance. One of the unwritten rules of the road requires a driver to flash his lights as soon as the overtaking truck has room enough to cut back into line. Nor does the stranger in the darkness ahead ever neglect to say "thank you" with a wink of the tail lights.

Driving the average tractor-trailer truck on icy going calls for cool coordination of head and hand. Rolling down hill at 40 miles an hour and suddenly discovering that the dumbbell trying to pass you is no other than your own trailer demands hair-trigger thinking to keep from doing the instinctive thing—slamming on the brakes. An experienced truck driver knows that locking all the wheels would increase the momentum of the trailer, since most of the weight is over the rear axles.

Actually the driver turns the air-brake lever on the steering post which locks only the trailer wheels, and at the same time he gives her the gun. Stepping on the accelerator with the trailer wheels locked enables the tractor to overtake the trailer and yank it back into line. The trick is reminiscent of the schooldays game called "Snapping the Whip."

In the case of a breakdown in the road a driver may count on help from a truck belonging to the same line, or he may telephone for aid; anything to get along as soon as possible. If he has "popped" a tire he may change it himself. When one goes, usually the twin pops under the double load. Juggling spares weighing close to 200 pounds apiece isn't exactly child's play, nor is pumping 110 pounds of pressure into each one, assuming you were to undertake it with an ordinary tire pump. The enormous weight of a truck tire helps to explain why a complete set of rubber for the average ten-wheeled trailer job can spoil a $1,000 bill.

A SPIRITED OASIS

Finland may be defeated, but in the hearts of inspired men Finland can never die. For in this sad era in man's history, when people after people have accepted willingly a life of slavery under the heel of vicious despotism, Finland stands out, a spiritual oasis, a beacon of decency, a hope for regeneration.

• The Questions On Exam Papers

THE WAR has made a difference in the general knowledge paper set at Christmas for the boys of King William's College, Isle of Man. Not that it is any shorter than usual, for there are still 180 questions, in 18 sections of 10 questions each. The difference is in the questions themselves—one whole section about wars in general and another about medals, the presence of Polish statesmen in the "Who Is?" group, and finally a hidden reference to the Prime Minister's umbrella which has obviously inspired a whole section of questions about umbrellas.

Of wars, the paper asks what war was started by the throwing of magistrates from the window, and in what war was "my boy George" shot by "damned troopers." A group of questions on safety begins nobly with "Who said 'Out of this nettle, danger, we pluck this flower, safety'?" and descends to "Who invented the safety razor?" asking also "Where are the Islands of Safety?"

The "Who is?" group includes the Russian President and the British First Sea Lord, which is a rather subtle trap. "What line or lines?" is the heading of the next section, and in it are included "the Mason and Dixon line," and the line which "was of exiguous carmine." A section all about snakes asks, "Who performed an infantile feat of boa-constriction?" and "What snake found the bellrope fatal?" Then the paper asks to whom the following nicknames apply: Schwammerl, Cleopatra, Duessa, Afternoon, Dickon, Caliban, Salamander, Florizel, Trimmer, Candle-ends.

The question about medals include, "Who first awarded medals for conduct in battle?" and "What medal was so unattractive that it had to be replaced?" A section on famous rides asks, "Who 'rode there so late, through night so wild'?" and "Who rode to the Ukraine bound to a wild horse?" Touching poet laureates, the paper inquires which of them was called "Our beloved Versificator" and "What Poet Laureate's 'long trick' is not yet over?" Then there are 10 questions about grandmothers, among them, "Who told his grandmother that he did not know what fear was?" and, "What grandmother made her apology in 27 verses?"

Of umbrellas, it is asked, "Who were the 'Lords of the Umbrella'?" and "Whose umbrella seemed not one umbrella but fifty?" Finally, the closing section of questions, headed "In 1939," asks, "What Bogey man finished his course?" and "What orange-blossom has budded?"—London Times.

• What Mr. Hepburn Really Said

WE HAVE had occasion to comment several times recently upon the inadequancy of the reporting in Canadian newspapers of the utterances of public men. Premier Mitchell Hepburn registered a specific complaint, though in a very mild and amiable manner, at the War Loan dinner in Toronto last week. When a man attains the rank of a prominent politician in Canada it is a fairly safe assumption that he is either something of a wit, or something of an orator, or something of a statesman; and when his utterances are rewritten for him by a reporter who is neither a wit nor an orator nor a statesman, the consequences are seldom entirely beneficial. We have no faith whatever in the doctrine sedulously propagated by a large part of the daily press, that reporters always improve the utterances of politicians.

Mr. Hepburn, concerning whom we are always in doubt as to whether he has only two of the above characteristics or all three, made a remark in the legislature on Wednesday, which was quite definitely a witticism, but which, as he mildly observed on Thursday, did not sound like very much after it had passed through the crucible of the mind of the Globe and Mail gallery reporter, who recorded him, in the first person and in quotation marks (a device known to the learned as oratio recta) as follows: "So far as the leader of the Canadian government is concerned, I have not yet been able to provoke him into an open quarrel, although I have tried to do so with great dexterity on frequent occasions."

What Mr. Hepburn really said, as he repeated it on Thursday night, and as nearly as we can recall it, was very different and a great deal better. He was making the point of the entirely pacific personal character of the leading statesmen of the allied nations, in contrast with the bellicosity of the German rulers. Nobody, he said, could regard Mr. Chamberlain, whose favorite and customary weapon was the umbrella, as a sabre-rattler. "As for the leader of the Canadian government, so profound in his addiction to peace that I myself have never been able to provoke him into the slightest demonstration of hostility, though I have tried my best to do so on frequent occasions." We may not ourselves be doing perfect justice to the premier's phraseology, but we were not taking notes at the time.

The political life of this country would be on a much higher plane of both intelligence and ethics if the channel between the utterances of the people's representatives in the legislative bodies and the mind of the people at large were not impeded and cluttered up, and often completely dammed, by the newspapers which are the sole medium through which the citizen can learn what his representatives are saying and doing. The legislatures have no Hansard, and that of the House of Commons is read only by a few hundred addicts of politics.—Toronto Saturday Night.

WANTS TO PAY MORE

THERE is a place in the annals of these strange times for Rev. W. Arthur Routhier, pastor of St. Ann's Catholic Church at Hartford, Connecticut.

St. Ann's Corporation wants to buy from the city an abandoned school, and offered $24,000 for it. City council countered with a proposal that the church pay only a dollar for the old school. Then came the astonishing development. Father Routhier said he appreciated the official courtesy, but he could not accept the building unless permitted to pay the full price. "You are dealing," he wrote, "with your city property which belongs to all of the citizens, and no group should be given any advantage over any other group."

It is a point of view of which too often we are inclined to lose sight. If one citizen or group of citizens secures an advantage from public funds, any concession which is not common to all, is at the expense of all others.—Ottawa Journal.

PAY-AS-YOU-GO WAR

WHAT the Canadians propose is almost a pay-as-you-go war. They are borrowing as little as possible; and what they borrow they will pay back early out of funds which they will begin to set aside, presumably, very soon. Those who fight the present war will finance it. The Dominion thus hopes to find itself at the end of hostilities ready for a peace relatively unburdened by debt—or, indeed, and more grimly, all the stronger for any necessary later fighting. Aside from the novelty of a serialized war bond issue, there are interesting implications in the stipulated payment dates. The Finance Ministry seems to wager, in brief, that the present war will be over in eight years; at least that the country will be able to liquidate this much of the war debt in twelve years. It is an assumption for whose accuracy everyone will hope.—Baltimore Sun.

AFTER ALL, MR. HOOVER

WHEN a G-man gets his man doubtless he likes him to be a really No. 1 specimen of public enemy. Just as a hunter would rather shoot moose than rabbits, but J. Edgar Hoover impresses us as giving an exaggerated build-up to his Christian Front plotters.

"It took only 23 men to overthrow Russia," said the chief of the F. B.I., ominously. And by the same logic, since 23 were enough for big Russia, then the 17 now in custody should have been an ample number for the United States.

This wasn't a nice plot, and it had elements of mortal personal danger, elements inherent in its dumbness. We wouldn't discount it. But Mr. Hoover is using poor judgment to flatter these misguided human absurdities by suggesting the remotest possibility that their plot to overthrow the Government could have gotten to first base. — New York World Telegram.

FOR EASIER TAXES

(Vancouver Province)

The city treasurer thinks it would assist people of small means if it were made possible for them to pay their tax bills monthly, just as they pay their light or telephone bills and as tenants must pay their rent. No doubt this is true. It is to be hoped he will succeed in working out a scheme.

THE BEST STEAKS

Chicago livestock statistics show that streamlined steers make the best steaks. For whereas the grand champion carload lot of fat steers averaged 1,437 pounds per animal some thirty years ago, the best there is in heavy beef today comes from steers averaging only 1,025 pounds.

NECESSITY OF RATIONS

(London Spectator)

Rationing admittedly complicates life, but so do, and must, many other expedients necessary in war-time. But it helps to stabilize prices, and what is quite as important, where imported commodities like frozen and chilled meat are concerned, it stabilizes the demand on tonnage. The importance of that is insufficiently realized.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

Beware lest any man spoil you through philosophy and vain deceit, after the tradition of men, after the rudiments of the world, and not after Christ. For in him dwelleth all the fulness of the Godhead bodily. And ye are complete in him, which is the head of all principality and power....

Wherefore if ye be dead with Christ from the rudiments of the world, why, as though living in the world are ye subject to ordinances, (Touch not; taste not; handle not; which all are to perish with the using;) after the commandments and doctrines of men?

If ye then be risen with Christ, seek those things which are above, where Christ sitteth on the right hand of God. Set your affection on things above, not on things on earth. For ye are dead, and your life is hid with Christ in God.—Col. ii, 8-10, 20-22; iii, 1-3.

To The Editor

WHEAT FOR RUSSIA

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—While there is much to deplore in connection with the recent political "exhibition" staged in the Ontario Legislature, this farm reader heartily concurs in the following sentiments expressed by Col. Drew, as reported in your news columns of January 17: "We are fighting to preserve democracy and democracy begins at home.... Only if those things are said in public which are being said today on all sides in private, will there be ...." etc.

I am not interested in the personal political feud as between one group of political leaders and another, but am ready to fight again "to preserve democracy." On the other hand, Mr. Editor, I think it is the duty of every Canadian to express himself (or herself) on the principle of selling wheat to Russia.

On a recent trip to town I took the opportunity of canvassing the opinions of a group of friends and acquaintances. I thought urban readers would appreciate the following cross-section of Canadian thought "down on the farm":

A.E.R.—"If it isn't trading with the enemy, it looks like trading with the enemy's friend."

G.T.—"Someone should do something about it. Are we with the Finns or the Russians?"

J.B.N.—"By the shipment of a million bushels from Canada, at least our Soviet friends will have an equivalent bushelage in the West available for Germany, if needed."

E.M.—

"While to the Fund for Finland went
Our contributions on the spot,
On every bushel Russia bought
Some trader made a half-a-cent."

Will Ottawa please note what their masters (?), the people, think of this Russian "deal".

1914-18.

A Bit of Nonsense

What's In A Name?

The policeman had stopped a motorist who was breaking a rule of the road.

"Now, let's have your name," he said.

"Demetrius Aloysius Hebblethwaite," said the motorist.

"None o' that, now," said the policeman, severely. "It's your name I want, not your family motto!"

Discrimination On U.S. Ships Charged To U.K.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23. — (AP) —United States' protests to Great Britain over wartime measures increased today with an objection against what was termed "discriminatory" treatment of American ships in the Mediterranean and disclosure of an unpublished note on commerce with the neutrals.

State Secretary Cordell Hull said in an aide memoire handed to the Marquess of Lothian, the British ambassador, that the United States Government "feels constrained to express its serious concern at the treatment by the British authority of American shipping in the Mediterranean area, and particularly at Gibraltar."

The note claimed ther had been discrimination against American ships at Gibraltar in that they were held an average of 12.4 days, more than three times the average period of detention of Italian vessels, and that their cargoes were given less favorable consideration than similar Italian cargoes.

Ask Correction.

"This Government must expect that the British Government will at least take suitable and prompt measures to bring about an immediate correction of this situation," Hull's aide memoire said. "It will appreciate receiving advices that the situation has been corrected."

(An aide memoire is a formal diplomatic communication).

The document revealed the fact the United States had addressed a note to Britain on November 20, questioning the legality of interference by the British Government with cargoes moving from one neutral country to another.

No further information about that note could be obtained at the State Department. It had been presented to the British Forign Office by the United States Ambassador, Joseph P. Kennedy.

In addition to these communications, there have been notes to Britain protesting against the British blockade of German exports, contraband examination of American mails, and diversion of American ships into contraband control ports.

Radio "Spy" Scares Just Bed Pads, Razors

TORONTO, Jan. 23. — (CP) — Electric bed-pads and electric razors are causing most of the radio "spy" suspicions in Toronto, according to S. J. Ellis, radio inspector.

Usually it is the man going out for the evening who gives his chin a fast once-over with the electric razor who causes the suspicious signals that people decide must be a secret radio station in communication with the enemy. This is usually just at the time of news broadcasts.

"Often these buzzes from the break-off switch of the razor or bedpad will carry four, five, six or more blocks," Mr. Ellis said.

Omemee Society Had Good Year

OMEMEE, Jan. 23.—(Special.)—The initial year of Omemee and District Horticultural Society was reviewed with satisfaction at the annual meeting held recently. Attaining a membership of one hundred and ten, the local organiation has been able to manifest its ability to beautify the neighborhood in a manner that appealed to everyone, from the most enthusiastic to the not-so-interested layman.

Under the leadership of Mrs. W. K. Kettle, the Omemee and District Horticultural Society came into being last spring and immediately a goodly number of those with the horticultural urge rallied to the cause.

Throughout the year there were thirteen meetings at which the members might learn of ways and means of obtaining better results from efforts made, also hear of what is going on elsewhere, not to mention hearing voices of experience from speakers from near and far.

That the influence of the society is genuine may be inferred from the labor that members have expended in fruitful efforts to plant evergreens around the Coronation Hall and to beautify the approaches to the bridge. The profusion of bloom along the latter throughout the summer was indeed gratifying. A good deal of tree - trimming was sponsored by the society which endeavor has considerably improved the appearance of the streets.

The crowning event of the year was the annual flower show held in Coronation Hall. It became a rendezvous of beauty as the lovely blooms of amateur horticulturists were arrayed in their respective classes to present a difficult task as to judging. Many prizes were donated by many firms and everyone's effort contributed to a gratifying conclusion. This annual flower show is a function possessing potentialities which time will undoubtedly develop.

So the curtain falls on the first year's effort with the satisfaction of something attempted and something done, and a hope for greater things in the future. The financial statement shows a balance on hand of $92.05 wth which to proceed to those greater things. The officers elected for 1940 were as follows:

President, Mrs. S. H. Moyer; 1st Vice-Pres., Rev. J. M. Young; 2nd Vice-Pres., H. Lamb; Secretary, Horce W. Hill; Treas., Miss I. Clemett; Directors, Miss L. Clemett, Mrs. W. R. Robinson, Mr. L. M. Curtis, Mr. R. J. Moon, Miss C. A. A. McQuade, Mrs. E. A. Cornell, Mrs. W. K. Kettle, Mr. F. Parsons, Mrs. N. Fee, Mrs. Geo. Magee.

Ring Eclipse Coming In South U.S. April 7

NEW YORK, Jan. 23—(AP)—An annular, or ring, eclipse of the sun will sweep across the southern United States April 7 from West Texas to Florida, travelling eastward.

It will shadow part of the United States up to the Alaskan southern border. In Canada, the part-shadow will reach the Arctic Circle. Exact positions have not been predicted.

An annular eclipse is so named because the rim of the sun will show in a narrow ring of light all around the dark moon. This is due to the fact the moon is a little too far away for its bulk to cover the sun completely.

While astronomers can make only a few studies in this kind of eclipse, the spectacle for the public is something that comes to most persons only once in a lifetime. This eclipse lasts six minutes, much longer than most total eclipses. During that time, the moon will cover 93 percent of the sun's surface.

Japs Hold Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23—(AP)—Joseph C. Grew, United States Ambassador to Japan, cabled the State Department today that James Young, Tokyo correspondent of the International News Service, was detained yesterday by Japanese police for examination.

The police, Grew said, refused to divulge the charges or to indicate the possible date of a release.

Mount Pleasant W.I. Honors Annie Graham

MOUNT PLEASANT, Jan. 23. — (ENS).—Mrs. W. H. Lowes was hostess for the initial meeting of the new year, of the Women's Association of the United church held at her home on Wednesday afternoon, and owing to the extreme low temperature the attendance was not as large as usual.

The president, Mrs. Thomas Graham, presided. Prayer was offered by Mrs. W. H. Lowes, Mrs. H. Jamieson, Mrs. Brenton and the president.

The devotional was taken by Mrs. Ira Lowe, whose chose as her topic, a portion of the Scripture which was read, "Oh how great is thy goodness which thou hast laid up for them that fear thee!" and also from the book of Job, "I have heard of Thee by the hearing of the ear, but now mine eyes seeth Thee." Mrs. L. McConkey read the lesson leaflet.

Mrs. H. Jamieson extended an invitation to meet at her home for the February meeting and it was decided to have a "pot luck" dinner at that meeting. Yarn for knitting Red Cross supplies was distributed.

Mrs. N. Fee and Mrs. Brenton were a committee appointed in charge of the program for the next meeting.

A special feature of the meeting was a presentation to Miss Annie Graham, who was asked to come forward when Mrs. N. Gee read an address in appreciation of her services as organist, and Mrs. L. McKonkey presented her with a sum of money.

Miss Graham thanked the ladies for their gift in a few well chosen words, stating that it was a pleasure to help in whatever way she could.

The singing of the hymn "What a Friend we have in Jesus," followed by the Mizpah benediction, closed the meeting. The hostess served a dainty luncheon, when a social half-hour was enjoyed over the tea cups.

Trent Skating Party Draws Over Fifty

TRENT RIVER, Jan. 23—(ENS).—Notwithstanding the inclement weather the skating party at the rink proved a successful event Friday night.

Mr. N. Garneau, manager of the rink, had the ice in splendid condition and a good fire in the rest room, for the occasion, and over fifty young people enjoyed skating for two hours, after which they repaired to the church dining hall, where a number of members of the Ladies' Aid served hot coffee and sandwiches. A fee of 15 cents was made for skating and lunch resulting in a total of $7.35.

After paying for the use of the rink, the members realized over $5.00.

Mr. Magee was an active and successful farmer for many years and upon retiring conducted the elevator business at Janetville station and later entered into insurance which he carried on until about a year ago when failing health compelled him to discontinue his activities in this connection.

He was an active and faithful member of the Janetville United Church, and was referred to by pastor and people as one of the main pillars of the church.

He was superintendant of the Sunday School for 23 years resigning recently owing to ill health. Had he lived another month he was to have been presented at the annual congregational meeting with a tangible token of appreciation for these long years of faithful service. Two brothers, Albert and Edward predeceassed Mr. Magee, the latter having been buried at Emily cemetery Ommee two years ago to the day of Mr. Magee's funeral.

A private service was held at the residence on Saturday, January 13 and later a public service at the Janetville United Church when despite cold weather and icy roads, large numbers gathered to pay their last respects.

The service was conducted by his pastor, Rev. Mervin Bury assisted by Rev. E. R. Kennedy, pastor of the local Presbyterian church and a beloved former pastor, Rev. R. M. Patterson of Trinity United church, Omemee.

Floral tributes were many and beautiful.

25 Canadians Held By Nazis, 400 Huns Here

OTTAWA, Jan. 23.—(CP).—Repatriation of the small group of Canadian nationals trapped in Germany by the outbreak of the war is occupying the Department of External Affairs, but no definite conclusions are expected for some time.

Detailed information has not been made public on the number of Canadian citizens now in Germany, but it is believed the total is about twenty-five.

All Canadian Government workers were evacuated safely from Germany and any Canadians remaining there are private citizens. In Canada it is estimated some 400 German citizens are interned and the question of exchange should be comparatively simple once a formula has been worked out.

There are two channels through which exchange of civilian prisoners is effected, either through the internatational section of the Red Cross Society or through a neutral Government which acts as a liaison between the warring countries.

In the case of Canada and Germany, the United States lends its diplomatic offices to facilitate necessary negotiations.

It is understood that Germany is asking Canada for an exchange in categories rather than a straight person-for-person trade, and it might mean that to get one Canadian repatriated a number of German prisoners of war must be sent home.

Presumbaly there would be little objection to exchanging German prisoners who are of an age or category which would render them of no military or technical value in prosecution of the war, if their release would bring freedom for Canadians held in Germany.

Wounding An Officer Costs Youth 2 Years

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 23—(CP). —Donald Fleming, 19, of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., was sentenced to two years in Kingston penitentiary by Mr. Justice J. G. Kelly in Supreme Court to-day for shooting Sergeant Percy Last, of the city police Nov. 20, 1939. He was tried on an attempted murder charge last week, the jury finding him guilty on the lesser count of "wounding."

The father identified several petitions from Sault Ste. Marie asking clemency for the youth.

Defence counsel, Sam Lerner, said "It would be unfortunate to place this boy in an institution where he would come in contact with hardened criminals, as this has been his first contact with the police."

"Fleming is very fortunate that he did not face a murder charge," said Crown Attorney Norman Newton. "Only the alertness of Sergeant Last in self-defence saved that. I don't concur in the suggestion he should not be sent to penitentiary. It was a deliberate shooting and the public must be protected against such wanton use of firearms.

"I have worried over your case," Justice Kelly addressed the youth. "But the shooting of an officer is a very serious offense and you have only yourself to blame if you think the sentence is harsh. I must send you to Kingston penitentiary and I sentence you to a term of two years."

Bancroft Lumberman Buys Limit In Haliburton–Employs 60 Men

BANCROFT, Jan. 23—(ENS). — Gordon W. Jones of Bancroft has purchased a limit of timber in Bruton township in Haliburton County. C. J. Avey, who has taken the contract for jobbing for Mr. Jones, has in operation three camps which employ between sixty and seventy men. These camps are situated 24 miles northwest of Bancroft and 11 miles from the highway.

Mr. Jones has a contract of supplying the Castanea Paper Co. of Johnsonberg, Pa., with 10,000 cords of pulpwood, which he expects to fulfil to the amount of five or six thousand cords this season. The Castanea Paper Company, which is one of the largest paper companies in America, turns its full production of paper over to the publishers of The Saturday Evening Post and The Ladies' Home Journal.

The work constitutes the trucking out of dry pulp which was cut last summer and also green pulp which is now in the process of cutting. The dry pulp is being trucked out to the railway north of Lake St. Peter on the C.N.R. while the green pulp is being trucked to Boulder Lake and dumped on ice. This summer this green pulp will be then peeled and made ready for future shipment.

At present there are six trucks on the pulp job which constitutes from 10 to 12 miles of a haul.

Mr. Jones has been in the pulp business for 25 years in this district and has been a valuable asset to the village in providing employment to quite a number of men.

The recent snow which fell last week-end has draped the camp site and bush to almost an unbroken whiteness and has retarded operation somewhat in respect to cutting and hauling. Several of the men at present are engaged in levelling the roadbed for smoother and efficient haul.

Bridge and Euchre

The Badminton club of the village held its annual bridge, euchre and dance in the Community Hall last Wednesday evening. The hall was gayly decorated with streamers and baloons. Music was furnished by the Troubador orchestra. The added features of noise-makers, serpentine ribbons and balloons created an atmosphere of merriment among the young crowd.

A slight accident occurred on the Coe Hill road Saturday, when a gasoline trick, driven by P. J. Stringer of Bancroft collided with a car driven by Reg. Wiggins, service station attendant of Bancroft. Slippery roads were attributed to the accident, resulting in slight damage to the Wiggins car.

The sever snowstorm and high wind which swept the province particularly in the Napanee-Belleville district missed Bancroft altogether.

A PARISH PRIEST declared from his pulpit he would go on sponsoring public games in his church in the face of police opposition, even if they should "arrest them every Wednesday from now until primary elections."

Rev. Ambrose J. Sullivan, pastor of Holy Rosary Roman Catholic Church, said yesterday his church had held "wow" games—which he described as a variation of "bingo" — weekly to raise money to pay off its building debt, but cancelled last Wednesday's play when several police squads appeared.

Farmers Advised To Get Seed Now

TORONTO, Jan. 23.—(CP)—Ontario farmers were urged today by the Provincial Minister of Agriculture to make arrangements immediately to obtain spring seed.

"The result of a provincial seed survey just completed," said a statement made public by the minister, Hon. P. M. Dewan, "shows there is plenty of good quality seed to meet the needs of Ontario farmers for spring planting. But this is contingent on farmers arranging for their needs right away or at the earliest possible moment as there also is a keen demand for seed outside the province.

"Farmers, in my opinion, would be well advised to get in touch with their agricultural representative, chairman of their field crop association or manager of seed cleaning plant to learn the nearest and best source of supply. If we are to increase production we must use better seed and, as a result of this survey, we know where this better seed is."

Warsaw Busy Bees Entertain Mothers

WARSAW, Jan. 23 — (ENS). — A most enjoyable time was spent on Friday afternoon when the girls of the Busy Bee Club closed the activities of their project "The Club Girl Entertains" by entertaining the mothers and a large number of friends at afternoon tea held in the basement of the United Church.

The girls divided into groups and took their turn in the receiving line at serving and acting as hostess. The table looked charming centred with yellow daffodils in a silver basket, yellow tapers in silver holders and silver service.

A great deal of credit is due the leader, Mrs. G. Weller for the success of the course and as a token of appreciation the girls presented her with a beautiful boquet of cut flowers. Mrs. Weller thanked the girls and expressed her delight that each member had taken such an interest in the work and hoped that some time in the future there would be other projects.

Mrs. Wilkinson in behalf of the guests thanked the leader and girls for a very enjoyable time. During the afternoon several of the girls gave musical selections which were appreciated.

RCAF Recruiting Unit Tours Ottawa Valley

OTTAWA, Jan. 23 — (CP). — A mobile recruiting unit of the Royal Canadian Air Force today began a tour of the Ottawa Valley extending south to the St. Lawrence to provide enlistment facilities for outlying towns and rural districts.

The National Defence Department said 20 R.C.A.F. recruiting centres have been established in key cities throughout Canada but there is no desire to confine applications to comissions or enlistment to urban centres. If the mobile recruiting unit is satisfactory, it is likely similar units will be organized to tour the country.

The Defence Department said: "with the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan being geared to a higher ratio, every opportunity is being extended to those Canadians who may feel an urge to serve their country in the R.C.A.F. Although many applications have been received, this should not discourage others from coming forward."

Not Worth Any More

BOSTON, Jan. 23.—(AP)—A woman's insistence upon returning a $2.50 pay boost because she believed she wasn't "worthy any more" than a $10-a-week salary provided federal wage-hour officials here with a puzzle today. Officials who reported the case said the woman had been employed by a textile firm for 25 years.

Children's Coughs Quickly Relieved

It is hard to keep the children from taking cold; they will run out of doors not properly clad; have on too much clothing and get overheated and cool off too suddenly; they get their feet wet; kick off the bed clothes at night. The mother cannot watch them all the time, so what is she going to do?

Mothers should never neglect the child's cough or cold, but on its inception should procure a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. It is so pleasant to the taste the youngsters take it without any fuss.

Soap Maker Tops Hollywood's Best Salaries

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23—(AP)—A soap manufacturer shoved aside all the fabulously-paid motion picture colony to rank as the highest paid corporation employee in 1938 in the United States.

The $469,713 salary and bonus of F. A. Countway, president of Lever Brothers Company in Massachusetts, topped all others in the year's corporate income tax returns.

Under a new law the treasury made public today the names of those who received more than $75,000, instead of $15,000 as in past years. This change cut the list from 50,000 to an even 400. But the list was not a "400" of the wealthiest people, because it excluded income from dividends or other sources not called "compensation." Thus names like Henry Ford and John D. Rockefeller, Jr., do not appear at all.

Thomas J. Watson, head of International Business Machines Corporation, ranked second with $453,440, and not until sixth place did actress Claudette Colbert's $301,944 appear as the best that Hollywood could do.

An unexplained technicality excluded from the list all the wealthy executives and artists of Loew's Incorporated and its subsidiary, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer pictures. Louis B. Mayer, M-G-M head who led all others on the 1937 salary list with $1,161,753, was not shown for 1938, nor were celebrities like Clark Gable, Myrna Loy, Bette Davis, Paul Muni, and Greta Garbo. Some of these names may appear later on a supplemental list.

The film pay cheques listed included: Warner Baxter, $279,807; Producer Darryl F. Zanuck, $265,000; Bing Crosby, $260,000; Jack Benny, $250,000 (from Paramount Pictures alone); Shirley Temple, $114,848; Leslie Howard, $141,249; Loretta Young, $181,615; Fred MacMurray, $183,333; Henry Fonda, $105,000; George Raft, $186,964; Garry Cooper, $140,129; John Barrymore, $105,833; Bob Burns, $155,952; Joel McCrea, $152,000; Marlene Dietrich, $130,000; Charles Boyer, $161,000; Frederic March, $136,311; Tyronne Power, $140,750; Director Roy Del Ruth, $216,741; Samuel Goldwyn, $156,000.

gallons a minute. Flames leaped 50 feet in the air and sparks and pieces of burning wood shot above the flames as the roof and two floors collapsed.

A Jewish school, Talmud Torah, and several surrounding frame houses were threatened for a time by sparks and leaping flames.

First arrivals at the scene said they found the flames centered in the south-west corner of the first floor. Company officials said that portion of the building was occupied by the boiler room as the warehouse had no basement.

Trio Save Watchman.

Bert Jones, Don Ruckle and Constable Tancred Renaud were credited with saving Aitchison's life. Shoeless and clad only in his underwear, Jones ran from his house across the street to meet the night watchman as he dashed from the building.

Jones, aided by Ruckle and the police officer, threw the flaming watchman into a snow bank and tore the burning clothes off his back with their bare hands.

Ruckle, describing Aitchison's condition, said: "I touched his head and his singled hair came off on my hand."

Constable Jim MacLaughlin, who was with Renaud, rushed to the firebox as the others attended the watchamn. He turned in a first alarm. Less than three minutes later firemen arrived and found the flames out of control. The entire first two floors were enveloped in fire and the firemen were unable to enter the building to combat the flames.

Thousands of gallons of paint stored in the second storey added fuel to the blaze, several muffled explosions being noted as the drums became ignited.

New Zealand Governments, administered by the Canadian Government. Air Force recruits from the United Kingdom and the other two Dominions will come to Canada for the more advanced stages of their training.

About 200 men of various ranks and grades are expected from the United Kingdom shortly to form part of the instructional and technical staffs.

With an initial training school now being set up at the Eglinton Hunt Club, Toronto, the selection of sites for elementary flying schools and air observer schools gives an outline for the first stage of the plan. It will come into operation by sections according to a definite time table to be announced later.

The elementary flying schools announced by Mr. Rogers will be at Malton, Ont., London, Ont., the head of the lakes and Windsor Mills, Que. There youths selected for pilot training out of the first class at Eglinton Hunt will receive their first flying experience and instruction.

Earlier plans called for 13 large elementary schools but to spread the scheme over as great a territory as possible and at the same time permit the use of smaller fields and reduce the amount of new construction needed, it was decided to operate 26 schools, half the size of those originally planned.

Equally Distributed

"The intention was to secure as fair and equitable a distribution across canada and between the different provinces as possible," said Mr. Rogers.

Air observer schools at Malton and Edmonton will be ready to take those of the first Englinton Hunt class who may be assigned to that branch of the work. Wireless schools, soon to be set up in Ontario and Quebec will provide air gunners with instruction in one of their two trades. They must operate the wireless as well as the machine guns in the air.

Later still bombing and gunnery schools to which all three groups must go during training will be announced, as well as the air navigation schools in which the air observers will finish their training.

In addition to the 71 schools actually required for production of new airmen, there will be six schools for training of instructors.

The training plan has been divided into two commands responsible to Air Vice-Marshal Croll. The western air command will be under Air Commodore A. E. Godfrey with headquarters at Victoria. Air Commodore N. R. Anderson will head the eastern command with headquarters at Halifax.

For training purposes the plan has been divided into four groups, No. 1 comprising Central Ontario; No. 2 Eastern Ontario, Quebec and the Maritime Provinces; No. 3 British Columbia and Alberta; and No. 4 Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Northwestern Ontario. No. 1 training command will be commanded by Air Commodore A. A. L. Cuffe, of Toronto.

Need 4,000 Planes

Speaking from the standpoint of the War Supply Board Mr. Howe said more than 4,000 aircraft required for the operation of the plan, have been ordered.

Sites for flying fields and schools are being selected by the civil aviation branch and the War Supply Board must have them ready as the Air Force requires them.

Each of three wireless schools, Mr. Rogers said, will accommodate about 1,000 recruits and the course will be 16 weeks long. Location of two, one in Quebec and one in Ontario will be announced soon and later on the third will be set up in Western Canada.

Marshal Croil said he anticipated general recruiting for overseas service would begin soon. Ground staff men are being taken on strength at the rate of 300 a day and, he added, a recent check of applications showed 25,000 Canadian youths seek to join the force.

Under the training program recruits for air crews will enlist as airmen and after their initial four weeks' course be segragated for instruction as pilots, air observers and air gunners. That completed, they will be listed in the pool, ready for overseas service, some of them gaining commissions on the basis of their training effort.

Observers calculate the cost of the bombs as about equal to the property loss Finland suffered — probably $1,000,000 at the outside. But the Russians are said to have lost 36 bombers, that is, two for each civilian reported killed. Moreover, the Finns say that in the same week Russia lost 108 airmen.

vinced authorities the blackout must remain.

Calling this "Grumble Week" in Parliament, the Daily Mirror said: "Let us be thankful we still are allowed this ancient British sport. We must grumble or die."

Other newspapers continued to discuss Winston Churchill's speech of last Saturday in which he called upon menaced neutrals to unite in resistance to aggression.

The Times said that "the British attitude has been explained in many private conversations with responsible representatives of neutral states and clear in the work of the Ministry of Economic Warfare which has already reached war trade agreements with some neutral countries and is reaching agreement with others.

"In both sets of conversations, diplomatic and economic, the imputation of the desire to 'widen the battle front' is clearly refuted," the paper says.

"The neutral dilemma is well understood here. The low countries certainly were resolute against danger 10 days ago. Swedes are fighting in Finland, but it is true of most neutrals that after a period of robust warfare they have turned conspicuously to build a quiet and civilized way of life which does not at all times lie parallel to the way of preparedness.

"War might destroy much of their handiwork. Submission to tyranny would certainly destroy it. Shrinking from both prospects, most neutrals cling to the hope that the storm will pass by them.

"Probably much of their future attitude will depend on what they see in Finland, and on whether really effective help to the defenders may be given. In the meantime Allied speakers are fully entitled to dwell on the lesson of the past few years, that the only way to salvation lies in collective resolution to resist."

Neutrals Resent Warning

The Daily Mail said that neutral countries resent the warning "that only by joining with Britain and France can they hope to resist aggression."

"Of course they are mortally afraid of Germany and their fear is understandable. What is not understandable is that they should still seek by words to placate the implacable Hitler, while they refuse to support the Allies, upon whom they should rely to save them from destruction."

The Daily Herald warned neutrals to stand together against aggressors "if the collective system, had not been temporarily destroyed, Europe would probabaly never have been brought to war."

The News Chronicle said: "The truth is that while the old men who govern this country alternate between dragging complacency and timid caution, we shall suffer militarily and psychologically. And, if we are lucky, the neutrals will remain neutral.

"How can anyone in the British Empire, in neutral countries or in Germany, feel confident about a peace that would be made by men whose record in China, Abyssinia, and Spain showed so small an understanding of the influence and power of an ideal on the common people."

Drafting of a budget now is impossible, said the Premier. Adverse exchange rates on Provincial obligations that are payable in Canadian, United States or sterling funds are a complicating factor. It is also to be seen what effect Federal action may have on Provincial revenues.

Leopold Macaulay (Con. York South) asked the Premier if he knew when the report of the commission on Dominion-Provincial relations would be presented at Ottawa.

"What will the mechanics be," asked Mr. Macaulay. "Will if be filed at Ottawa and then sent to the Provinces. Will it be kept at Ottawa and legislation based on it and then the Provinces informed of the legislation?"

"I know as little as my honorable friend does regarding the procedure to be adopted," said Premier Hepburn.

Challies Alarmed.

The House heard yesterday from George Challies (Con., Grenville-Dundas) an expression of alarm over reports that the contemplated Canada-United States agreement on the St. Lawrence seaway contemplates a single-stage development. Earlier draft treaties were for a two-stage development.

Mr. Challies said inundating of an additional 20,000 acres of land at historic spots in Eastern Ontario would be required by the single-stage development.

Premier Hepburn said he could not answer questions while agreements were in the process of being drafted. He expressed confidence that Dr. T. H. Hogg, chairman of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission, would look after the engineering problems from Ontario's viewpoint.

Setting up of a board in Ontario to regulate hours, wages and tariffs in the highway transport industry, both freight and passenger, was urged on the Minister of Highways by Ian Strachan (Liberal, Toronto-St. George).

"One of the chief difficulties in the present set-up is that there is no control whatsoever of rates, which works a hardship, not only on the legitimate, reputable transport operators, but also on the railroads which, goodness knows, need every support they can get to maintain their existence," said Mr. Strachan.

"I would urge upon the Minister of Highways that every consideration be given to the recommendation of the Chevrier report to set up a transport board in Ontario with powers, duties and jurisdiction with reference to transportation by trucks and buses, similar to those of the present Board of Transport Commission for Canada.

"This board should have power to deal with applications for the issue, renewal and transfer of licences to public commercial vehicle operators and particularly to establish reasonable hours of labor and rates of pay and also to set a tariff of freight rates for this very important industry."

Some Way of Appeal

Mr. Strachan suggested some method of appeal be set up for brokers and securities salesmen whose licences are suspended by the Securities Commission. Giving to one man of power to take away another's livelihood was undemocratic. The same criticism could be made of the Insurance Department, though the act here provided for an appeal to the courts but didn't bind the insurance superintendent to accept the court's verdict.

J. Frank Kelly (Lib., Muskoka-Ontario), urged Ontario undertake a drive to bring tourists from the United States. The increased tourist influx to be expected from the cutting off of European travel for Ontario states citizens, would demonstrate fully the wisdom of keepinug the Dionne quintuplets at home instead of letting them go to the New York World's Fair.

A rumor that Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Lands and Forests, may be appointed a Senator, was mentioned by Mr. Kelly. No one was more deserving of the distinction.

"He has notably served the province and the Dominion long and well," he said. "Perhaps his greatest single achievement has been his tireless campaign in an out of season, often in adversity, for the establishment of proper old age pensions, for those whose life-work has been the common task of increasing the stature of our Dominion."

Drew Suggests

"If an organization is not succeeding in its effort, one man must accept the responsibility and he is the man at the top," the Conservative leader declared. "If present conditions justify action, then the place to start is at the top. I do not suggest a Dominion general election, although I think one should be held in the near future."

Col. Drew defended the Legislature's right to take a lively interest in prosecution of the war, charging that "one would think that this was a private war and that only King and a few selected friends should take part, and that the only place it could be discussed properly is in the House of Commons."

"The paramount thing before us is the winning of the war," he said, "and some would have you believe that Premier Hepburn and I had no right to discuss the prosecution of war. When I think Mr. Hepburn is on the right track I am with him, and I shall be against him when he is on the wrong track.

"I have no intention of playing politics. It's time for patriotism Liberals in Ontario are no less Liberals because of the fact they expressed disapproval of the misconduct of our war."

No Wheat For Reds

HAMILTON, Jan. 23 — (CP). — Board of Control to-day went on record against the shipment of wheat to Russia. A resolution will be drawn up and forwarded to the Government at Ottawa.

"It is just like stabbing our boys in the back," remarked Controller A. H. Frame.

Mayor Morrison stated that while the wheat might not go through Russia to Germany, it would release a lot of Russian wheat for use in Germany.

"Push Or Pull" Warplanes For Allies Comply With Neutral Laws

The first airplanes built in the United States for the British government to be delivered in Canada, since the lifting of the arms embargo, were towed across the Canadian border after being flown to a little town in Montana on the international border. The planes taxied to within a few feet of the international boundary and then their American pilots stepped out and they were pulled across the border by representatives of the British government. According to a United States law, flight of these armed planes into a belligerent country is banned as an "armed expedition." Dozens of towns along the border are now planning to build "push-or-pull" airports to handle the hundreds of war planes now being built for the Allies in the United States.

Swiss Take No Chances Despite Neutrality

With The Boy Scouts

Our deepest sympathy goes out to Mrs. Rose, Scouter Art Rose, Rover Scout Bernard Rose and their family in the passing of Arthur Rose, Senior, on Saturday last. Mr. Rose was for some time on the troop committee at All Saints. We pause in Scout silence to his memory.

Mark Street

Another pack has been opened along the scout trail when Mark Street Troop held its initial ceremony on Friday night last.

Scouter Ralph Hendren took his post and in an impressive ceremony during which he was assisted by Scouter Ingham of St. Andrew's and Troop Committeeman Charlie English, Keith Alton and Craig Eason were invested into the world wide brotherhood of scouts. We wish them good scouting.

Rev. Mr. Rowland gave a brief address on the scout movement. It was decided to hold the next meeting on Friday, January 26, at which a few more boys will be invited.

Murray Street.

The Cubs held their meeting on Friday instead of Thursday last week.

The openning grand howl was followed by inspection. Games of Rodeo Race, Train Relay, Snake Race and Leap Frog Relay were played, after which several boys passed knot tying and time telling for their first star.

Black and white faces were found around the Red Flower when "Jack's Alive", and Find the Penny were stunts put on. "Jack" being a smouldering cork and the penny hidden in a bowl of flour.

Norm Nisbett of the Salvation Army pack was a visitor for the evening and led the closing ceremonies.

At St. John's—Thanks Badge Presented.

The St. John's Rover Crew held its annual banquet on Tuesday last with 25 officers, visitors, rovers and rover squires present.

A note of welcome was voiced by the skipper. Bob Crocker acted as song leader for the evening.

Rev. Canon Roberston gave a short address, and Frank Pammett gave a talk on "Scouting in England during Wartime," which was both amusing and instructive. The main event of the evening was the presentation to Mr. Leslie R. Groombridge for the work and assistance he has given to the crew in providing them with quarters for their den.

District Commisisoner John T. Hornsby made the presentation on behalf of the Chief Scout, the Dominion Scout Association, the Local Association, and the St. John's Rover Crew, as a token of our esteem for the pleasures which we have enjoyed. In passing, Mr. Hornsby said, "You cannot fully realize the amount of good you have done in providing a place in which we can keep these young men together.

The Troop.

A brisk workout of P.T. gave the scouts some pep with which they went into the instruction periods that followed. Jim Brown gave tenderfoot instruction; Ken Brown, signalling, and Scouter Lord continued his talk of last week on mapping, giving instruction on the uses of the prismatic compass.

Lawrence Shannon passed his compass points.

The Cubs.

One of the main events of the pack meeting was the investiture of Cub James Swanston as sixer of the Brown Wolves; from now on Jimmy will be known as Brown Tip, and on his arm you will see the stripes denoting his office.

The cubs rehearsed many of their skits for the coming concert and also learned a new cub song.

Concert practice will be held on Wednesday as usual at 6.45 p.m. All cubs are reminded to bring their progress charts to the meeting on Wednesday or on Friday evening.

Mothers' Auxiliary

St. John's Mothers' Auxiliary will held the monthly meeting on Friday next, January 26, at 3 p.m. All parents of cubs, scouts or rovers are invited to attend.

At Sacred Heart

During the evening instruction on knots, signalling and Union Jack were taken up with Jim Daley, a former cub, helping out. The cubs wish all the newly invested scouts of the Sacred Heart Troop, Good Scouting."

Rover Council Annual Meeting

IN Christie Street Hospital.

We regret to announce that Norm Patterson, member of the local association and past troop committeeman of the 11th troop is now confined to bed in Christie Street Hospital in Toronto. We all wish him a speedy recovery to full health. Mr. Patterson is an old Coronation scout; visiting England as a representative of Peterborough scouts way back in 1910-11.

MARMORA, Jan. 23.—(ENS)—The annual vestry meeting of St. Paul's church was held in the parish hall on Monday evening with Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell, rector, presiding.

After the opening of meeting with prayer, R. G. Winters was asked to act as clerk for the meeting.

The financial statement given by the rector showed receipts to be in excess of $3,400. The rectory debt was reduced so that it now stands at $500.

The Missions Fund report presented by the rector showed that $82 had been raised and expended for that purpose. Rural Dean Caldwell also gave the report of the rectory fund.

The gratifying report of the Ladies Guild was given by the retiring secretary-treasurer, Mrs. S. C. Boyd. Over $800 was raised with almost $700 going to parochial funds.

The Sunday School

Rural Dean Caldwell followed with the financial statement of the Sunday School. Of receipts totalling $92.02, the mission funds of the church benefitted to the extent of $23.72 and the largest percentage of expenditures went for Sunday School supplies.

W. J. Cottrell, secretary-treasurer of St. Paul's Laymen's Association reported receipts as $92.82 and the expenditures headed with $66.25 to the rectory fund debt.

The last organization to report was the A.Y.P.A., this being given by the rector.

The rector's report was as follows: Services: Morning Prayer 53, average attendance 39; Evening Prayer 43, average attendance 32; mid-day celebrations 14, average attendance 31; early celebrations 6, average attendance 20; midweek services 19, average attendance 22; Easter communicants 101; private celebrations 4; baptisms 12; confirmed 70; marriages 5; burials 12.

At the conclusion of this report, S. B. Wright moved and Mrs. P. Gray seconded, a hearty vote of thanks of Rural Dean and Mrs. A. B. Caldwell for their work in the parish in the past year.

The rector reported that the list of subscribers to the Diocesan Chronicle for 1940 has been increased to 103. He also took the opportunity to welcome Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Winters who had taken up residence in the parish since the last vestry meeting.

Church Officers

The naming of church wardens was next on the agenda. The rector reappointed H. R. Pearce as rector's warden. The appointment of people's warden through no election was left in the hands of the rector. W. J. Cottrell, retiring lay delegate to Synod, was re-elected for three years. The other lay delegates are H. R. Pearce, 2 years and C. H. Briskard 1 year. The following were elected as members of the parochial council. Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell, H. R. Pearce, C. H. Briskard, L. R. Rundle, R. E. Bonter, A. Burridge, R. G. Winters, Mesdames A. B. Caldwell, P. Gray and S. B. Wright with the people's warden elect.

Upon motion of W. J. Cottrell, seconded by A. Burridge the Ladies' Guild was tendered a hearty vote of thanks for the splendid financial help given the parish during the past year. A vote of thanks was also tendered Mrs. L. R. Rundle as organist and the choir after the rector had expressed his personal appreciation of their services. The rector having briefly referred to the use of the duplex envelope this year the meeting then adjourned.

Old Boys And Girls Again Return To Central School As Eightieth Anniversary Marked

The handing over of the Union School by the Building Committee of 1860 to the chairman of the Board of School Trustees of that pioneer year in Peterborough's history was re-enacted by a distinguished cast on Monday night as a major feature of the celebration of the 80th anniversary of the building of what is now Central School. Many old boys and girls, graduates of Central, were among the hundreds of citizens who gathered for the celebration, and the crowd included grandsons of two of the members of the 1860 committee, B. D. Hall, grandson of the late James Hall, who was the building committee chairman, and Mark Burnham, grandson of the late Rev. Mark Burnham.

The oldest alumnus of Central in the gathering was Marcello M. Mowry, 568 Charlotte Street, who first attended Central School as far back as 1861, one year after the school was opened and six years before Confederation. Mr. Mowry, 84 years of age and still hale and hearty, played the part of the late James Stevenson in the historical sketch that featured the program.

E. A. Peck, K.C., and R. G. Kingan, both of whom dated their conection with Central School back to 1869, a mere matter of 71 years ago, were next in line, and close behind them were former City Treasurer Frank Adams, who first attended Central in 1871, and Mrs. Mary J. Graham, widow of Ald. James Graham, who registered at the old school in the same year, as did Dr. W. D. Scott. Not far behind was R. J. Kidd, 1875.

These were the oldest graduates of Central on hand, but there were many more whose association with the school went back a long way, including the present Mayor of Peterborough, James Hamilton, and one of his predecessors in office, Roland Denne.

Old Pupils Welcomed.

Robert J. Bolton, Central's principal, was chairman during the interesting ceremony, and in his opening address welcomed the old boys and girls back to school, hoping that their visit would be as pleasant as their memories of the old place. Mr. Bolton called attention to the fact that one of the desks used for stage dressing, had been in the school when it was first opened eighty years ago. "I am going to wave a magi cwand," he said, "and take you back from 1940 to 1860."

Mayor Hamilton, introduced as Mayor Augustus Sawers, who was at the head of affairs in Peterborough eighty years ago, then took charge of the proceedings. His address stressed the expansion that had taken place in Peterborough in the ten years since the incorporation of the town. He took pride in the fact that the population had increased to 3,800, and that the assessment was well over the $1,000,000 mark. He also called attention to some of the town's flourishing industries, including the factory of James Hamilton, the flour mills of J. N. Benson and R. D. Rogers, the Auburn Mills, and other plants.

Chairman Introduced.

"Mayor Sawers" then introduced James Hall, chairman of the Building Committee, who turned out to be E. A. Peck, K.C. Mr. Peck, in his role as the 1860 chairman, told of the difficulty that had been encountered in deciding upon a site and then reviewed the work of the committee which had succeeded in completing the work at a cost of $16,256, only a little above the estimated $16,000. The architect, he said, was Sheard of Toronto.

Then the key of the school was formally turned over by "James Hall" to the chairman of the Board of School Trustees, W. S. Conger, whose part was played by David G. H. Melton, the present chairman of the Board of Education.

In accepting the key, attention was drawn by Mr. Melton to a report on educational conditions prepared by Elias Burnham of Peterborough as supervisor of education in the Colborne district in 1844 in which there was criticism of some features of the educational system of the day. In his role of 1860 chairman, Mr. Melton expressed words of congratulation at the improvement that had been effected in the sixteen years following the issuance of that report. He then introduced the principal of the new Union School, John King, grandfather of Dr. D. C. King, the role being played by Principal Bolton.

Others who took part in the most enjoyable sketch were B. D. Hall as "William H. Clexton," R. J. Kidd as "Thomas Fortye," Marcello Mowry as "James Stevenson," R. G. Kingan as "Fred Ferguson," and Frank Adams as "Rev. Mark Burnham," all members of the original building committee.

An Old-time Class.

There were other features of the program. One was the representation of an old-time class room in which a number of the present day pupils of Central clad in the costumes of eighty years ago were grouped for a study period. The effect of the garb of other days was striking.

The school staff had arranged, too, a demonstration of the work that is being done every day as part of the 1940 school program. This included an opportunity to see a manual training class at work, the household arts class carrying out its usual routine, the school orchestra practising, moving pictures of physical training, folk dancing, a first-aid class demonstration, and a radio play "Oliver Twist." All the class rooms in the main building and the annex were open for the occasion, and many of the former pupils wandered through the well-remembered halls, feeding their memory on events of long ago.

Members of the Board of Education and other well known citizens attended the celebration, which was a striking success, especially in view of the fact that it was launched almost at the last moment and with little time for program preparation.

As In The Olden, Golden Days

Pupils of the 1940 Central School, dressed in the garb of eighty years ago, portray an 1860 class at the celebration in the school Monday night. This portion of the program was in charge of Miss Lillian Esplen of the Central staff.

Mrs. M. H. Jamieson Dies In 74th Year

A daughter of one of the oldest families of Peterborough, Mrs. Matthew H. Jamieson, died early this morning at her home, 252 London Street, after an illness of about a week.

Mrs. Jamieson was in her seventy-fourth year. Her parents were the late George Barrie and his wife, Jane Spencley, who was a daughter of Joseph Spencley, the builder of the Court House of Peterborough county and also the old Montgomery Hotel on Simcoe Street, indicating the family's long connection with this community. Originally both families represented by Margaret Francis Jamieson had come from England to settle in this country.

Mrs. Jamieson is survived by her husband and one son, T. G. Melville Jamieson, uptown agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway in this city; also by her brothers, Joseph Barrie of Toronto and William Barrie of Peterborough, and three sisters: Mrs. Elizabeth Couch of Toronto, Mrs. Jane Bosworth of Toronto, and Mrs. Lily Williams of Mossup, Conn.

Mrs. Jamieson was a member of George Street United Church. The funeral will take place Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the funeral home of A. Comstock and Sons, 305 Water Street, to the Little Lake Cemetery. The service will be conducted by Rev. M. C. Parr.

War 25 Years Ago

(By The Canadian Press.)

Jan. 23, 1915 — British forces occupied La Bassee, south-west of Lille. Bitter fighting at Nieuport, Belgium, where Allies' artillery stopped threatened German advance. Heavy snowstorm in Carpathian Mountains held up operations on Eastern Front.

Report Surplus At All Saints'

The annual vestry meeting of All Saints' Church was held on Monday evening with the rector presiding. The report showed the considerable surplus for the year, so that the liabilities were reduced by over $500. During the year the whole of the church building was tuck-pointed and the stone work is now in good condition for a long period to come. The churchwardens, John Edgar and Harry Collingwood, were reappointed, the latter having a unanimous vote of the congregation. Lay delegates to the Synod are T. H. Boddy, John Edgar, G. H. Cutmore, C. Lacheur, and T. P. Hooper. The auditors were re-elected. Representatives elected were: Nicholls Hospital Trust, C. Lacheur for a term of three years; Anson House, Mrs. Runnett; Bible Society, Mrs. Connally and T. H. Boddy. S. T. Harris was re-elected vestry clerk.

It was announced that at the forthcoming ordinations to be held in May, the Reverend J. Douglas Paterson will be advanced to the priesthood and William T. Boddy will be made deacon. Mr. Boddy is the son of T. H. Boddy, who is a lay reader in the parish. Arthur Privett will also be set apart as an officer in the Canadian Church Army, probably in the fall.

The rector announced that a parochial mission would be held during the last ten days of Lent. Col. Talbot Hindley who visited the parish four weeks ago will return to conduct the mission.

The rector asked that all officers and workers in the parish should attend the service on Sunday morning next, when the churchwardens are installed in office.

Grader Kept Busy Trimming Streets

Employees of the Board of Works gave most of the streets in the down town area a thorough grooming during the night with the weather backing up to the zero mark by midnight and retreating to eleven below.

The city has acquired a habit of trimness that leaves everybody restless until the snow has been skimmed off close to the pavement, and the job goes on in spite of cold dips.

One of those mornings in the last frigid drop there was a story going around that one of the truck drivers when he reached home in the morning after a night's street work when the thermometer fell off to nineteen below was so benumbed that he had to crawl into the house on his hands and knees.

The information was that the Board of Works usually has to hire extra trucks to keep up the grader and the ground crew. Probably there may be an expansive touch to that story of having to crawl into the house on hands and knees, a comic predicament at that, but it wouldn't be surprising after running a truck all night through 19-below weather.

Rennet Shortage

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 23. — (ENS).—In a circular sent out recently the Dominion Department of Agriculture has this to say about the rennet supply: "The manufacturers of extract have depended on the European supply of rennet for their raw material but that supply has now been cut off by the war. There is some danger of a real shortage, a contingency which would be disastrous to the cheese making industry. There is no reason, however, why Canada's needs in this respect cannot be supplied locally if farmers, butchers, and packing houses save all the stomachs of the calves which are slaughtered at the right age."

NAZIS RATION ANIMALS

BERLIN—(CP)—German domestic animals are now on feed rationing cards. Horses get 330 pounds of mixed feed a month, cows 165 pounds and pigs 65 pounds.

Aged Resident Of House Of Refuge Missed Attending Church Twice In Past 10 Years

LAKEFIELD, Jan 23 (ENS). — Missing church attendance only twice in ten years is the proud record of William Stockoff, aged 74 years, and an inmate of the County House of Refuge for the past eleven years.

There are fourteen men and two women residents of the home at the present time. To these old people the many donations which were sent to the home at Christmas were received as a very friendly gesture by all those who remembered them. It is their wish that the public know how much they appreciate these remembrances at the Christmas season.

2,977,251 Pounds Of Cheese Made In Northumberland In Past Year

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 23. — (ENS)—Reports sent out by the Department of Agriculture show that the thirty-five cheese manufacturing counties in the province of Ontario made during the year 1939 a total of 87,212,341 pounds of cheese. Northumberland made 2,977,251 pounds. Factory reports from these factories situated in Seymour township alone show a total make of 1,626,798 pounds and a total bonus received of $10,035.00.

The total bonuses paid in the Dominion of Canada shown in figures released at the Dairymen's Association of Western Ontario was $566,677.41 so that while the makers and patrons of Seymour factories may not have been well satisfied with what they were able to accomplish last year the above would seem to indicate they got a fair share.

Gordon K. Fraser Discusses Finland

Gordon K. Fraser was the speaker at the regular luncheon of the Peterborough Rotary Club at the Empress Hotel on Monday, his subject being "Finland."

Mr. Fraser recently addressed the Kinsmen's Club on the same subject and the Rotarians asked him to repeat the address for their benefit, Mr. Fraser, who is a member of the Kiwanis Club kindly acceding to the request.

His talk on Finland dealt with the geographical characteristics of the country which is so much in the limelight at the present time, its natural resources and the qualities of its courageous people who are making such a game fight against great odds in defending their country against the Red army, its hordes of men and wealth of mechanical equipment.

The Rambling REPORTERS

BOY BITES DOG

The old newspaper saying that when a man bites a dog it's news, has actually happened. A three-year-old Stewart street boy is the central figure in the story and the other main actor was the lad's pet dog, a little spaniel. The canine has been acting in the role of guardian to the boy and has been in the habit of grabbing at his clothing with his teeth and towing him back whenever he thought his master was getting into a dangerous position. Not long ago he was engaged in this protective gesture when the boy suddenly leaned down and deliberately bit the spaniel on the leg, with the result that the dog ran off howling.—C.

HERE'S A COINCIDENCE

Some of our students in the realm of higher mathematics might find it interesting to investigate the odds against such a coincidence as is reported by Constable Archie Menzies of the Peterborough police department. Monday he saw parked opposite each other on McDonnel street two automobiles with exactly the same license numbers, one of last year's registry, the other being of the 1940 brand.—C.

Souvenir Hunters Given Plates, Tableware By Hastings Regiment On Trip To Sea Coast

HASTINGS, Jan. 23 — (ENS). — First letter to reach Hastings from the troops in Aldershot, England, arrived here yesterday, when Mr. and Mrs. Owen Phillips received a lengthy letter from their son, Vernon, who is with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment. Dated January 4, the letter read in part:

"We had a wonderful trip across Canada...We were met by large crowds at every station. They were looking for souvenir buttons or badges and we gave them all our plates and table-ware...We landed at the seaport and went straight into our boat where we stayed for two days before sailing. We had smooth sailing nearly all the way over until we ran into one very serious storm. We had good meals on board. We saw two whales and a few other small fish.

"We were escorted by about seven battleships. We received word that submarines were reported in the area and had to wear life-belts for two days. One of the escort ships dropped a depth charge right behind us and the explosion rattled our boat and nearly shook us out of bed. We reached Scotland on December 30 and then entrained for England. The scenery here was wonderful. Food on the train was 'swell'...The trains are all very small and you could put about four of their coaches into ours. We are getting mixed up with the English money but will learn it in time... Tonight we were in our first blackout and it certainly was dark. We got lost just going to the canteen. We spent Christmas on the boat and had a turkey dinner with Christmas pudding and also had a sing-song so we didn't have a bad time at all....

"I haven't been to any dances yet but I am going roller skating here tomorrow night and ice skating in London this week-end."

Victoria County Voted $19,000 For War Fund

Victoria county council last week voted $19,000, equivalent to one mill in this year's tax rate, to be spent for patriotic purposes. "Let the rest of the country know that Victoria county is solidly behind the prosecution of this war," said Reeve Chas. Logan, of Verulam, in moving the motion. A committee was appointed to distribute the money among the patriotic funds. Other grants by the council were: Canadian National Institute for the Blind $160, Salvation Army $100, Ross Memorial Hospital $3,000, Horticultural Societies $160, Women's Institutes $50, Public Libraries $1,500; Lindsay Exhibition $800, Bobcaygeon $200, Kinmount $200, Mariposa $150, Fenelon Falls $108, Omee $72. A grant of $150 was made to the Victoria Plowmen's Association.

Man Attempted To Cut Throat Of Wife

That her husband had attacked her with a table knife and that in protecting her throat from being cut she had been slashed on the hand was the story told in police court this morning by Mrs. Joseph LaPointe after the husband had pleaded guilty to a charge of assaulting his wife, ocasioning actual bodily harm.

LaPointe was defended by W. J. Arthur Fair and after the charge had been read announced that he would plead guilty. Mr. Fair asked for suspended sentence, declaring that it was the first time the accused had gotten into trouble.

Crown Attorney McElderry, K.C., told the court that the accused had threatened to cut his wife's throat and that in protecting herself her hand had been cut.

Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., shook his head when he heard the crown attorney's statement.

"Under those circumstances suspended sentence would not be justifiable," he said.

Mrs. LaPointe was called to tell about the assault and said there had been an argument over financial matters whereupon her husband had come around the end of the table to the side where she was and tried to slash her with a table knife. She had put her hand up to protect herself, and received a cut on the hand.

"Are you afraid of him?"

"I am," was the reply.

Magistrate Langley sentenced the accused to twenty days imprisonment in the county jail.

Australia To Reduce Canadian Imports

By J. E. HOLDSWORTH
Canadian Press Correspondent

SYDNEY, Australia, Jan. 23. — (CP Cable.)—The bulk of Canada's export trade to Australia is likely to be reduced drastically by the end of January in order further to conserve the Commonwealth's dollar exchange, it was learned authoritatively to-day.

Though the quantity of these exports has probably been cut since the outbreak of the war, the total value is much the same because of the rise in prices. For instance Canadian lumber landed in Australia is now valued 60 per cent above 1939 levels.

Imports of car chassis, it is believed, will be cut 30 per cent. after May 1.

Salmon, a large item in Canadian trade, possibly will be banned entirely. Timber also is likely to be reduced.

The Customs Department at present is reviewing these imports in the light of the expiration of current licenses Jan. 31.

Old Teachers Are Unable To Attend

Messages at their inability to be present at Monday's 80th anniversary celebration at Central School were received from a number of citizens formerly connected with the institution. Among them was Miss M. A. Nicholls, McDonnel street, undoubtedly the oldest living former teacher of the school. Mrs. Smith, widow of the late William Smith, for many years principal of Central also sent her regrets as did Mrs. Smith, Charlotte Street, formerly Miss Hall and an ex-member of Central staff and school Inspector R. F. Downey, a former principal.

Former teachers who attended included K. S. Wightman, F. E. Kerr, O. M. Steer, E. Frost, P. Windrim, Mrs. E. Birch (formerly Miss Rutherford), Mrs. Mark Burnham, (formerly Miss Mary Erskine) and Miss E. Tomlinson.

Vestry Meeting Reports Overdraft Less

A successful year's activity was indicated in the reports presented at the annual vestry meeting of St. John's Church, held in the Parish House Monday night.

The financial statement showed that there had been a substantial increase in general offerings, and with expenses kept as low as possible it had been found feasible to effect a small reduction of the bank overdraft. On the debit side, the statement showed, there had been a falling off in the income from rentals of glebe lands and Synod investments.

During the year the church mortgage had been reduced by $300, the Church Women's Association making a very substantial contribution toward that end by paying off $300 in 1939.

The church's allotment for extra parochial objects had been paid 100 per cent. Grants of $361.89 to the diocesan mission, $390.14 to the diocesan pension fund, $12.76 to the students' fund, $1,099.02 to the M.S. C.C. and Jews, $89.25 to the general board of religious education and $84.14 to the council for special service were reported.

The general financial statement showed that last year had opened with an overdraft of $1,548.93, and that the receipts for the year had totalled $9,394.15 against expenditures of $10,600.49 leaving a bank overdraft and loan on current account on December 31 of $1,236.34.

John Comstock was elected warden in place of Fred Hills who resigned. The other warden is D. G. H. Melton.

Frank Leach, Bert Graham and F. M. DelaFosse were added to the advisory board.

William Ashby was thanked for the services rendered by him as convener of sidesmen during the year.

Fred Hills will represent St. John's on the William Hall Poor Trust, filling the vacancy caused by the death of the late Alex Gibson, and Mrs. Vera Bell was appointed as representative on the board of Anson House.

F. D. Kerr, K.C., C. E. Coleman, W. R. Thompson, C. E. Graham and Dr. G. S. Cameron were named as lay delegates to the Synod with Lieut. Col. A. Stevenson, W. B. Ottewell, W. C. Ackerman, Bert Graham and Lieut. Col. R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne as alternatives.

Many of the church bodies presented encouraging reports, among them the Church Women's Association represented by Mrs. G. H. Melton, the Women's Friendly Bible Class by Mrs. Chase and the Sunday School department by Arthur Bacon.

Norwood Squad Gains Win In Tight Tilt

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 23 — (ENS)—With only 20 seconds to play Norwood snatched a 7 to 6 victory from Campbellford Suncos in a fast T.V.L. tussle here Monday. The Sunocos gave their best exhibition of the season, forcing the pace at nearly every stage with every man giving a starry performance. Norwood opened the scoring for the evening half way through the first period and were two up before Robinson tallied. The Hornets gave their best display in this period but the locals were camped on McMaster's doorstep much of the time and he was called upon to turn aside thrusts from all angles and did some showy work in the net.

In the second the Sunocos went on a scoring spree to take a five to two lead before the frame was half over. The visitors lead by Brady, Puffer and Webb fought hard to cut down the lead and got their chance when Robinson was sent to the hoosegow for tripping and Brady rapped one into the rigging from close range. Hendy and Puffer were sent to the cooler for threatening to stage a private battle and Rothwell managed to slip through Sunocos weakened rearguard to cut Campbellford's lead to 5-4. The heavy body checking to which the lighter Sunocos were being subjected was what started the trouble and though Referee Innes sent Aboud and Rogers off in the first period for spilling the locals the whole game was featured by heavy body checking and when Hendy was sent off early in the second for colliding with Brady then took a pass at him as he was leaving the ice the feud was really on.

In the melee which preceded the major penalties handed out to Puffer and Hendy fists flew in all directions and half a dozen players were down on the ice. The fans however kept their seats as they no doubt recalled the speed with which five policemen headed by three provincials plus the local force of two appeared to clear the ice during the game with Marmora on Friday. At opening of the final stanza the Hornets fought hard to get the equalizer but the locals lead by Robinson, Blake and Wilkes kept the play at centre ice and hung on grimly to their one goal margin. Aboud was chased for boarding Hendy and Richardson went off for repairs when he was caught on the head by a high stick at the Campbellford end of the rink. Blake swooped in on McMaster, carrying the puck from his own blue line. He paused long enough in front to draw out the Norwood net minder, then potted the disc for the neatest goal of the game. The visitors stormed in and Hill passed out to Puffer who cashed in an easy one which Jewell should have saved but the light flashed and the Sunocos lead was cut to 6-5. Brady notched the tying counter with less than two minutes to play and just when the fans were prepared to see the game go into overtime. Puffer slapped one in on a neat pass from Rogers to give Norwood the winning marker.

The loss marked Campbellford's second reverse of the season and the fact that the win for Norwood would still leave the locals riding in first position accounted for Manager Perry's decision to bench Donald for the evening. The locals will play games in Tweed and Madoc before returning for their next home game when Tweed play their return bout here on January 31st.

Kapphan 'Finds' Real Comer In Harry Bobo

PITTSBURG, Jan. 23—(AP)—The little fellow who one fought the great Joe Gans to a standstill has tried just about everything since.

Fighter, violinist, dog fancier manager of fighters and promoter of everything from prize fights to amusement parks — that's Eddie Kapphan. And just for good measure, he's half owner of a Pittsburg piano store.

A fight manager at the moment, Eddie admits that he has "something good." The prize package is, Eddie tells without too much persuasion, a negro heavyweight named Harry Bobo who's practically playing hookey from high school.

"He's a good boy," says Kapphan, "and he'll kayo anyone he can hit —anyone who will stand up and fight with him. He's a comer. It won't be long before he's fighting for the championship."

Bobo meets Henry Cooper, of Brooklyn, next Thursday night and Eddie confidently predicts a knock-out "if Harry's hands are in shape."

Our remarks last week about so-called ski babes were not aimed at anyone in particular but we were glad to notice that so many of the girls really got out and worked on their turns over the week-end. It did some good at that. Keep it up, girls.

Omemee Hawks Winners Over Eagles 6-5

Omemee Black Hawks continued to fly high in the Omemee District Hockey League last night with a 6-5 victory over the Lock Company Eagles in Omemee. The homesters came from behind a 3-0 score early in the second to carry a 5-2 margin on the frame and have the teams deadlocked at 5-all going into the third. They scored the lone tally of the final frame.

It was a good, fast and exciting tussle on fine ice, with a fair-sized crowd witnessing the tilt, rough in spots. There was very little difference between the clubs on the night's play. Eagles had an edge in the first period, but the ganging O's shaded them through the middle heat. Both teams were flying in the third with Giardino, really a defenceman, going fine in the visitors' net. Next game is Wednesday at Omemee between Lindsay and the Eagles.

Tripp Gets Two.

Tripp got two of the Hawks' counters, with Brooks, F. Parsons, Brockley, and Ellis having one each; Gilbert, Watkins, White, Burke and Cournyea scored one each for the losers. Penalties went to Ccurnyea 2, Williamson 2, Prete and Brockley. Outstanding for the O's were Tripp, F. Parsons, Brockley and Ellis; while Gilbert, Burke, Mortimer, Cournyea, and Giardino all looked good for the Eagles.

The teams:

Eagles — Goal, Giardino; defence, Cournyea and Prete; centre, Burke; wings, Watkins and Gilbert; alternates, A. White, Mortimer, Johnson and Watson.

Omemee — Goal, Fisher; defence, T. Parsons and J. Williamson; centre, Brockley; wings, H. Ellis and Brocks; alternates, Tripp, Deyell, Hunt, F. Parsons and Jamieson.

Referee—A. Williamson.

Hastings Players Get Plenty Tough

HASTINGS, Jan. 23.—(ENS)—In a double-header hockey tilt at Riverside arena last night the Cubs and Cats each captured wins in two rough tussles. In the first game, Cubs defeated the Tigers 4 to 2 and the second game saw the Cats pull out from a narrow margin to win over Roseneath by the score of 6 to 3. Both games were also featured by several minor fights. Roseneath was greatly reinforced by the addition of Tucker to their players' list. He did the hat trick for the visitors by scoring all three goals for his team. A fair turnout of fans witnessed the bang-ups.

Cubs, in the first period, counted two goals by Hill and Radford assisted by Boyle, Radford and Hill. A fight between Goalie I. Bonds and Reg. Scriver added spice to the second frame before any scoring was done. Hill and Edwards added to the count of the Cubs in this period while Wilson for the Tigers opened their scoring. Going into the third with the score 4 to 1, Faux for the Tigers banged in the final goal of the game. The teams:

By far the rougher of the two games, their was much stiff body-checking in the Roseneath-Cats game which followed immediately. McCoy, for the Cats, did a solo flight against the stout defence of Tucker and Arber to count opening goal of the game for the locals. McKee and McCoy for the Cats added two more goals for the Cats in the second period with an assist to Edwards. Brownell, Edwards and Washburn each tallied for Cats in the third, while Tucker for Roseneath scored three times. The teams:

MURRAY ARMSTRONG
N.Y. Americans

(By Central Press Canadian)

Not eligible for the Calder trophy as the season's outstanding rookie in the N.H.L. because of participation in a few league games before this year, Murray Armstrong would catch a large share of votes for rookie-of-the-year on a broader basis. Playing his first full major league campaign, he holds down a centre berth with Red Dutton's five. 10 and 15 year Americans, after having previously been a champion commuter between Toronto Maple Leafs and their Syracuse farm. Even now he is still Leaf property, playing with the Amerks on option, becoming their property on payment of $7,500 at the end of the season. With the Leafs he was a hard-luck kid, going to training camp with the team three years in a row and suffering an injury that side-tracked him every time. Paradoxically he has never been seriously hurt during a regular season. Born at Manor, Sask., grew up in Regina, where he is a part-owner of a couple of billiard halls. Played with Regina Pats for a few years, including the team that was beaten in the Memorial Cup finals against Newmarket seven years ago. Was a recruit at Lester Patrick's first Winnipeg school, and although not accepted then, later was worked into the Patrick organization, from which the Leafs plucked him in the draft through a Ranger oversight.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

Tonight at 7.30 in the "Y" an open meeting for those interested in re-organizing amateur boxing here will be held. Reports of committees—working under Ontario Athletic Commission sanction—will be made and the new club lined up. Officers elected, plans outlined and so on. With a new deal in sight for the youthful followers of the "manly art of self-defence"—as it once was called—this thriving sports centre can surely back a good boxing club. Lionel Conacher's instructions to Percy Bond were quite clear, and the Commish chairman stated that boxing must be run for the public and the boxers, not the promoters, managers or chiselers. The game is being cleaned up and re-organized and the Peterborough branch gets started tonight.

This note in the Kingston Whig speaks for itself: "Referees in the O.H.A. next week will probably have to be equipped with a tape measure and a rule as the rule against over-size sticks will go into effect, which means strict enforcement of the rule limiting the length of a stick and the width of a blade. The rule is as follows: Hockey sticks shall not exceed 53 inches from the heel to the end of the shaft and 14¾ inches from the heel to the end of the blade. The blade of the stick shall not exceed three inches in height, except in the case of the goalkeeper's stick, which shall not exceed 3½ inches."

About Ye Referees

Speaking of O.H.A. referees, we note that a lot of 'em have one of two faults—and sometimes both. We don't like to see a ref. miss too much or let too much go, nor on the other mitt can he blow the whistle continuously for minor accidental slips. But the faults we refer to are (a) the "homer" and (b) the guy who puts a man from each team off together when any mixup occurs. The first type plays to the home crowd and the second takes the easy way out when often only one guy was guilty. At the pay O.H.A. arbiters get, they should be competent and fearless.

A thousand fans at the Brock St. ice house last p.m. saw a swell exhibition of hockey with the Ontario senior "A" champions, Toronto Goodyears, copping a 7-1 win o'er the intermediate "A" Petes. As the Falls and Galt teams of senior "A" competition can't do any better, the Petes can puff out their chests; they made an excellent showing 'gainst a classy squad. The husky, speedy and smooth Torontos — picked from 750,000 population to our 25,000—didn't rough it up or go all the way out, yet they were trying all the time to tote home a respectable margin. No laying back at all. And the Petes, after a stage-struck first frame, gave 'em a good scrap.

They Were Smart

Goodyears showed the Buckaroos a few things, one being their fast rink-length passing to a guy and not a blind spot. The other was the way a bird always parked in front of the net when play was in the Petes' area. And they shot four and five up on the attack whenever their forwards were carrying the disc. They had size, speed and oodles of puck savvy — just like the old senior squads when the senior Petes were in there. Yet the Petes made a fine showing in an interesting and clean tilt. The locals' old front line of Tompkins, Kingdon and Starr were re-united—and will be kept that way for a spell—and practically held their own with Goodyears. Blewett went best of the second line, we thought, with Crowe strong on defence, and Harding okay in goal. All the Goodyears looked classy. Yep, it was a good game and handled fine (if generously) by Referee Gord Kerr of Toronto.

Oshawa Bees made it two straight over the local Colts last night on the big Motor City sheet of frozen aqua, the tally this time being 7-3. At that the Colts made a better showing than 'gainst the buzzing Bees here. Reports indicate that it was a speedy, exciting game with plenty of shinny tossed in. Colts led 1-0 in the first period while the count was 2-1 for Oshawa to end the second. The real action came in the third, including a free-for-all fight between the rival players, Fraser and Craig tangling to draw major penalties. Big Fraser—No. 3 on defence—drew a major and four minors during the duel. Wade, Foster and Pammett all played a good game for the losers, with the others working hard, too. Hewson, Jackson, Reid and Peters showed up best for the winners.

Hawks And Eagles

Out at Omemee last twilight, the Hawks swooped off with a 6-5 nod over the Lock Co. Eagles. It was an excellent showing by the new entry against the powerful Omemee outfit. A fair-sized crowd viewed a fast tussle on good ice, play being a bit rough in spots but nobody getting hurt. Gilbert, Burke, Mortimer, Cournyea and Giardino all stood out for the local contingent; while Tripp, F. Parsons, Brockley and Ellis sparkled in the Hawks' win. Next game will be Wednesday eve when Eagles play the Lindsay Battery on Omemee ice.

Four lively tilts in the Church Puck Loop last e'en at All Saints' rink. Mark St. Juniors trimmed All Saints 5-3, Park St. Juniors edged George St. 3-2, Trinity Juveniles kept on top with a 4-1 win o'er George St., and Knox Bantams nursed an early lead till it grew up into a 2-1 victory over All Saints. Some squads have asked for postponements due to exams, but the loop is behind 13 games now and only certain hours at the rink are available, hence it's unlikely these delays can be granted. After all, one hour a week for hockey can't hurt exams much. All Saints Juniors miss Gord Smith, player-coach, who is recovering from an appendicitis operation. Future games run to the schedule.

Park St. Juniors Grab 3-2 Victory

Park St. Juniors nosed out a 3-2 win over George St. in a neat Church League fray last night at All Saints' rink. Cox scored from Hodson in the first and the latter counted in the second for a 2-0 edge. In the third, Harold Campbell got the third counter, but Henry and Woodgate both bulged the hemp near the finish as George St. crowded. It was the first Park St. win and the other squad's first loss. Routley kept off the score list but was the fastest man there, with J. Ainslie and Jobe good for Park St. The Campbell brothers and Henry went good defensively. The teams:

Hiller 'Bad Boy' of Patrick's Scrappy Angels

(By The Canadian Press.)

One of the most amazing things about New York Rangers' drive to the National Hockey League lead has been the way they have overcome the disadvantage of a terrific toll of penalties.

The Rangers defend their hold on the top in a game with the Americans at New York tonight with a record behind them of 316 minutes in penalties, or an hour and 35 minutes more than any other club and two hours more than that the average. Toronto Maple Leafs are second in total minutes with 221.

Included in the big total are many misconduct sentences, which allow the playing of a substitute for a penalized player, but still the Rangers have gone short-handed considerably longer than any other team.

Dutch Hiller of Lester Patrick's angels with dirty faces leads the league in penalties with 24 minutes, while Captain Art Coulter of the same collection is tied for second place with Captain Red Horner of Toronto at 45 minutes.

Goal Getting Idea.

The brilliant forechacking system devised by Patrick and Coach Frank Boucher to kill off penalties has been largely responsible for meeting the menace. Actually, it has brought them more goals than it has cost them.

When short-handed, the Rangers first get the puck from their own territory and then send every man but goalie Dave Kerr down the ice. Usually the tactics leave the opposition milling about aimlessly around its own goal.

The night's other game involves the second-place Bruins and the third-place Maple Leafs at Boston, where manager Conny Smythe of Toronto will be conspicuous for his absence. Smythe challenged the Hub fans to "come out and see a real team" in a newspaper advertisement the last time he took his Leafs to Boston and the league governors censured him for doing it. So Smythe has gone to New York, to await the club there, feeling there is no welcome for him in Boston.

Mark St. Puckists Beat All Saints

Mark Street Juniors of the Church Loop took a 5-3 win over All Saints last night at All Saints' Rink, showing more speed for 3-1, 4-1, and 5-3 margins by periods. Scriver got two and Agnew and Hill one each in the first frame. Scriver repeated in the second. All Saints got two fast in the third with Agnew off, Reid and Deering tallying. Eason made sure of the win later. Eason's speed, Curtis' plugging and Scriver's play-making were features. Spooner went good in goal for All Saints, as the on individual star. The teams:

All Saints — Goal, Spooner; defence, Lacheur, Prout; centre, Deering; wings, L. Abraham, D. Abraham; subs., Reid, Morley, Hill, and Smith.

CURLING

By HERB MARTIN

It took Tommy Holyman's rink from 9 to 11.45 last night to force Ross Downey's rink out of the money, and at that it went into an extra end. Although Holyman's rink only scored four of the eleven ends played, yet their points were sufficient to pull out a victory. Such is curling.

Again ice No. 4 held its charm. The game between Bacon and Day's played on that charmed ice was decided as usual, with the last stone. Tied coming home Darcy missed with his last rock and Ray's quartette won out 9-8.

All curlers are welcome at the Greens' home to-night. It will be open night. The Green brothers batted 100 per cent. in last night's schedule games.

By defeating Tom McArthur 8-6, Norm Hamley's rink still leads his group.

By to-night it looks as if we will have to refuse any more entries for the big 'spiel to-morrow. A full quota is now possible.

We have been informed that a number of ladies' rinks from Bobcaygeon is visiting our club on Friday afternoon.

The bonspiel committee would appreciate the closest co-operation all during to-morrow's games.

Salad Days Gone Till Dizzy Shows The Goods

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—(AP)—The salad days are over for the once-mighty Dizzy Dean until he can prove on the pitching mound that he isn't just another has-been.

Phil Wrigley, who signs the cheques of the Chicago Cubs, made this clear yesterday on receipt of Dean's unsigned contract for the second time. Accompanying the document was a long letter which attempted to explain to some extent Dean's ineffectiveness in 1939.

"We aren't paying out anymore on past performances," said Wrigley. "We're paying Dean for what we expect in the future."

Dean collected $41,000 for winning 13 games the past two years—seven in 1938 and six in 1939. The big right-hander asserted in Dallas recently that the Cubs had offered him $10,000 for 1940.

Wrigley wanted it understood that there was no bitterness in the club's negotiations with Dean.

"Dean's letter was swell," Wrigley said. "He gave me several reasons why he though he would be okay this year."

Trinity Takes Win Over George Street

Trinity Juveniles defeated George St. 4-1 in a Church Loop game at All Saints' rink last night. Burnham got the only one in the first as Welbourne fanned on a long drifter. McBain and Fowler scored in the second. McBain and Henry made it 4-1 in the last heat. Size and speed gave Trinity the margin over younger rivals to practically assure themselves of a playoff spot. There were no stars. The teams:

George St.: Goal, Carter; defence, Armstrong, Smith; centre, Wellwood; wings, Burnham, McCurrach; subs.: Morrow, Powell.

Referees: L. Abraham, R. Gordon.

Knox Bantams Win

In a Bantam Church Hockey League tussle at All Saints' rink last evening, Knox nosed out a 2-1 nod over All Saints'. Darling got two for Knox in the first few minutes of play, his linemates aiding. All Saints' had the edge the rest of the way but could only score once. Chambers netting the rubber in the second as Knox played tight defensive hockey and had five goal-tending. Jones was the main threat for the losers. The teams:

Knox: Goal, Parnell; defence, Gertley, Braund; centre, Darling; wings, Covert, Slaughter; subs.: Pine, Seabrooke, Craig, Batley, Haines.

Referee, G. Beauclerc.

Bees Take Win By 7 To 3 In Home Arena

OSHAWA, Jan 23. —Peterborough Colts went down to their second successive defeat here last night when forced to bow to the undefeated motor city "Bees" by a score of 7 to 3.

The first home game of the Lakeshore loop, failed to live up to the expectation of the fans as both the visitors and homesters turned in a game that rated little higher than glorified shinny.

The hockey was of the wide-open variety and both teams flashed plenty of speed but team play was noticeable by its absence. The Colts popped the only goal of the first period and on their margin of play deserved more. Wade took a pass from Foster and all in the clear, took his time, made no mistake, to beat Phillips cold for the opening tally. Wade, Pammett and Craig were all in close in the period but "blew" their chances.

Oshawa tied it up early in the second and then got one more to go out in front. They were never headed.

Hectic Third.

The majority of goals came in the hectic third period. Forty seconds after the face-off, "Fritz" Fraser scored on Reid's nice setup and after that it was never in doubt. The Liftlock City lads tried desperately to stay in the running but their biggest weakness was lack of finish inside the Oshawa blue line. The "Bees' worked in close for most of their successful scoring plays, with Hewson, Jackson, Reid and Peters grabbing the big portions of glory. Wade, Craig, Foster and Pammett were the pick of the visitors.

A free-for-all in the third period provided the biggest excitement of the night. Morris and Macdonak tangled in the corner and before Referee Miller could break it up, Fraser and Craig had joined the fray. Fists flew for a few moments major sentences to the two latter and four penalties were handed out, major sentences to the two latter culprits.

The teams:

Peterborough: Goal, Courneya, defence, Mason and Beggs; centre, Rochetta. wings, Vitarelli and Craig. Subs, Foster, Wade, Pammett, Parnell, Nicholls and Macdonald. .

Oshawa: Goal, Phillips; defence, Fraser and Morris; centre, Hewson; wings, Jackson and Barker; subs, Wilson, Peters, Reid, McBrien and McMullen.

Referee: T. Miller of Peterborough.

TORONTO GOODYEARS BEAT PETES BY 7 TO 1 IN EXHIBITION TILT

Senior "A" Champions Show Class In Trouncing Local Crew In Fast, Clean Hockey Tussle

Toronto Goodyears took a 7-1 victory over the Petes here last night in an exhibition hockey game before about a thousand fans. The senior "A" champions proved too fast and classy for the local intermediate "A" squad in a neat exhibition.

It was fast, clean hockey all the way and the crowd saw a fine display of the sport, with the locals not at all disgraced in their showing against extra classy opposition. They were bashful of the noted Goodyears in the first frame and were blanked 4-0, but came back to hold their own in a 1-1 second chapter, and the ganging. Goodyears, only edged them 2-0 in the third period.

The visitors dished up some real speed and nifty passing to clearly outshadow the Petes, but the latter gang began to use their speed after the first period and gave the Goodyears a good battle from then on. The Toronto team was without King, a scoring ace, and did not try to rough it or press extra hard—but they were trying all the way and at no time laid down to let the locals push them. The Petes made as good a showing against them as Galt and Niagara Falls in the senior "A" division have been doing this season, the locals' first line especially making it interesting for goalie Mortimer.

First Line Strong.

Tompkins, Kingdom and Starr — back on the same line—turned in a good game, almost matching the speed of the other team and testing the goal-tender frequently. The former especially was effective, with Bun and Eddie almost as good. Honey got the lone goal of the Petes' score in the second on a pass from Bun. Of the second line, Blewett went best, while Crowe showed more blocking ability than the other defencemen. Harding looked good in goal all the way. Laurent, Robinson, Cooper and Imlach went best for the visitors.

Almost from the start, the Goodyears began shooting four and five men up and skating fast with some clicking passes to press in close. Draper scored early on Imlach's pass from a faceoff in the Petes' area, and Ezeard came back a minute later to give Harding no chance on his hard corner drive. They kept attacking and holding most of the play and finally made it 3-0 when Laurent took Draper's pass at the goal-mouth and banged it home. Blewett made a nice try on Mortimer and Harding blocked off a couple of hot ones. Coughlin tore in close as play speeded up and was more even. The locals' first line drove the goalie to his knees twice and then Goodyears came back to tally with Robinson batting home Turney's rebound. Tompkins and Starr tried hard for a counter just before the bell.

Tight In Second.

The Petes made it much tighter in the second, attacking at least 50 per cent of the time and both sides scoring but once. Kingdon and Tompkins pulled a fine effort early in the clean, hot session as the fans yelled. Goodyears ganged up and kept a man parked in front of the net to hold an edge for a time, and later J. Jopling, Coughlin and Heal wormed in for a nice try. Then, Tompkins scored for the Petes, on a pass from Kingdon inside defence, a fine play that drew cheers. The locals kept pestering the goalie of Goodyears for over a minute. Cooper was gated for boarding and Goodyears shot down the ice to relieve pressure. When Drummond also was chased for tripping—Cooper returning in a few seconds— the Petes' first line did everything but score in a hot session. But, with one off, the Toronto team tallied, Inglis taking Cooper's pass in close in a semi-breakaway. Heal came close before the bell sounded.

Goodyears' ganged up most of the third frame, four and five men being on the attack a good part of the frame. They tallied early when O'Flaherty took Laurent's pass and picked the narrow side of the cage in close on an angle drive. It was fast and flirty tight, though the visitors were getting more shots on net with some smart passing the width of the rink and extra speed. Gardner and Kingdon pulled a good rush and later Blewett and Coughlin tested Mortimer hard. Play was hot, fast and exciting for a spell, with Starr and Tompkins getting right through defence but being blocked. Goodyears kept pressing later and Imlach was thefted by Harding. Later, Inglis got right in close on Laurent's pass to blast it home for the final goal. Blewett was waved away for tripping and the Goodyears pressed hard but the Petes managed to stave them off. Coughlin and Starr nearly tallied on a breakaway a minute before the final gong.

The teams:

Goodyears: Goal, Mortimer; defence, Drummond and Draper; centre, Imlach; wings, Laurent and O'Flaherty; alternates, Inglis, Turney, Ezeard, Robinson, Cooper, Sutcliffe and Bowman.

Petes: Goal, Harding; defence, Burton and Gardner; centre, Kingdon; wings, Tompkins and Starr; alternates, F. Jopling, Crowe, J. Jopling, Blewett, Coughlin and Heal.

Referee, Gord Kerr of Toronto.

Albions Blank Elgins By 2-0

HAVELOCK, Jan. 23. —(ENS) — The Havelock "Albions" won their initial start in the E. P. R. L. schedule Monday evening at the Norwood arena when they blanked the Elgin squad by 2 to 0 count. Joe Peters in the local nets, chalked up an easy shutout, with less than a dozen shots to handle throught the entire session. Some poor marksmenship on the part of the winners, and some nice blocking by Lobb in the Elgin goal, saved the latter team from a far worse trimming.

Although Havelock were clearly superior on the night's play, the short-handed Elgin squad battled gamely to the very last moment. Both teams lacked both in condition and practice, which produced rather a spotty session of hockey. The game was clean ,with three of the five penalties being handed out to the Albions.

Hagerman opened the scoring for Havelock, following a series of scrambles near the Elgin net. His counter came at the four-minute mark in the first period, on a pass from Watson. Lochheed of the losers went off for cross-checking, and a short while later Hoffman and Lade of the locals drew successive penalties for slashing and boarding. As the period ended, Hoffman drew a major for cutting down an Elgin player as he coasted in on goal.

Havelock continued to carry the play in the third, and after eight minutes of play Hoffman notched their second goal on a nice solo effort, beginning at his own net and ending with a hard rive to the top right corner of the Elgin cage.

Pollock, Brunton, Hagerman, Hoffman and Whitney were most effective members of the local lineup, while Rusaw, Metcalfe, Sheppard and J. Preston went best for Elgin.

The teams:

Elgin: Goal, Lobb; defense; Sheppard, J. Preston; centre, Longhurst; wings, Lochheed; Rusaw; alternates, G. Richardson, E. Preston, C. Metcalfe.

Havelock: Goal, Peters; defense, H. Hamilton, Whitney; centre, E. Ellis; wings, F. Ellis; McMullen; alternates, Brunton, Watson, Hoffman, Hagerman, Lade, Pollock.

Referee: G. Rothwell, Norwood.

Sailors Wallop Galt 7 to 4; Hamilton Wins

(By The Canadian Press.)

Port Colborne Sailors advanced to within one game of the leading Toronto club by defeating Galt 7-4 in one half of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior "A" double presentation last night. In the other contest Hamilton practically squelched playoff hopes of Niagara Falls by defeating the Cataracts 6-2.

After leading 2-1 at the end of the first period at Galt the Sailors found a first class hockey rebellion on their hands when the home club threatened to break its string of 21 consecutive defeats. Hogan, Johnson and Cassidy scored in that order to give their team a 4-3 margin to start the final session.

Costly penalties proved Galt's undoing, however, in the last period and the Ports rammed in four goals from the sticks of Leitch, McKelvie Thompson and Fitzgerald.

Loucks and Thompson notched the Sailor counters in the first period while Liscombe sliced in Galt's first marker. Runions hammered home Ports second period counter.

Ambers Chooses Armstrong To Retain Title

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(AP)—On the theory that the way to find out who will win the Henry Armstrong-Pedro Montanez welterweight championship at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night is to ask a fellow who has fought them both, Lou Ambers is hereby given the floor.

Lou holds the lightweight championship, which he lost to Armstrong, 1938, and won back from him a year later. He also has tackled the Puerto Rican puncher twice, losing a non-title bout in 1937 but winning when the crown was at stake.

Ambers picks Henry the Hammer to retain his title. There are a lot of other opinions floating around, including some that Armstrong is slipping and that he never has had a really tough fight in defence of his 147-pound crown even though he'll be putting it on the block for the 15th time in tomorrow's 15-round scrap. But the lightweight champion agrees with odds-layers who have made Hank a 1-3 favorite.

"I figure the first four or five rounds wil go to Montanez," says Lou. "He almost had me out in the first. Then Armstrong will come on and Montanez will lose heart. Armstrong doesn't get discouraged and he has the strength to keep coming."

Westwood Nips Trent River 2-1

HAVELOCK, Jan. 23.—(ENS). — In a fast and rugged tilt between two evenly matched teams, Westwood managed to cop a 2 to 1 win over Trent River in the second half of an East Peterboro Rural League double-header, held last evening at the Norwood arena. Westwood grabbed a one-goal lead in the initial stanza, increased it to two in the second and were able to stave off all but one of the valiant attempts made by the Trent River crew to even the count in the final session.

Westwood dominated the play in the early part of the first period, a goal by Mortlock being called back on an offside. A penalty to A. Brown for boarding Gill led to their first counter, Buck nabbing a pass from Green to edge one past Hill from a difficult angle. Trent River drew another penalty this period when R. Hamilton got the gate for boarding Sargent.

The middle session was exceptionally rough, Coughlin going off for tripping shortly after it had started. At the seven minute mark, Gill took a pass from Green, and scored neatly after faking Hill out of position. The Trent River line of Jamieson, Hamilton and Parcells practically stormed around their opponents' net for the next few minutes, but their efforts were in vain. Hamilton of Trent River and Shearer of Westwood both made trips to the cooler before the end of this frame, the latter still being there as the third period began.

Fighting hard Trent river kept the play pretty much in Westwood territory during the final session. Chaplin poked one in during a pile-up in front of the latter's net, but the referee's whistle had already blown to stop the play. A few minutes later, however, their efforts were finally rewarded when Jim Brown combined with brother George for their first and final goal of the game, Seconds later, Brown came within an ace of tieing it on a nice solo attempt.

The teams:

Westwood—Goal Richardson, defence, Holmes, W. Graham; centre, Gill; wings, Buck, Green; alternates, Chaplin, J. Graham, Coughlin, Sargent, Warr, Shearer, Mortlock.

Referee—G. Rothwell, Norwood.

GUSTARD. — In fond and loving memory of my dear son, Henry Gustard, who died January 23, 1937.

Peaceful be thy sleep, dear son;
It is sweet to breathe thy name.
In life we loved you dearly,
In death we do the same.
Oft we think of you, dear son,
And our hearts are sad with pain.
Oh, this would be a Heaven
Could we hear your voice again.
You are gone but not forgotten,
Never shall your memory fade.
Sweetest thoughts shall ever linger
Around the grave where you are laid.

—Sadly missed by Mother.

GUSTARD.—In loving memory of my dear brother, Henry Gustard, who departed this life, January 23, 1937.

In our hearts his memory lingers,
Sweetly, tender, fond and true;
There is not a day, dear brother,
That we do not think of you.

Leamington Player Scores For Enemy

CHATHAM, Ont., Jan. 23.—(CP)—Basketball's equivalent of Roy Riegels, who ran the wrong way in football, is Bob Smith of the Leamington high school juvenile team.

Playing against Chatham Vocational here, Smith got the ball in a scramble beneath his own basket, pivoted and tossed the ball perfectly through the hoop for two Chatham points.

"I just forgot myself, it was so hot in there," he explained. The basket scarcely mattered in the end for Smith's team was beaten 23-11.

Expect Air Spies

LONDON, Jan. 23—(CP Cable).—Working on the theory that you can't be too careful in war, Britain's coastal defenders are keeping a close watch for Nazi Parachute spies.

Despite the fact enemy planes cannot even approach the coast without being engaged, certain sections of the British press believe it possible the enemy may attempt to land spies and saboteurs under cover of darkness on the lonely moorland wastes of Yorkshire, Northumberland and Scotland.

"TELL-BILL GOODBYE"

By Marie Blizard

SYNOPSIS

The Characters:
FABIENNE SEYMOUR, rich, young and beautiful.
NICKY BARTLETT, wealthy and in love with Fabienne.
ELLEN CHAPMAN, young and capable mistress of Willoughby house.
DR. BILL MALLORY, close friend of Ellen's.
YESTERDAY: Again Nicky asks Fabienne to marry him. She refuses to commit herself, urges him to get a job.

CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO

FOR NEARLY a fortnight the ring of hammers had resounded through the halls of Willoughby house. A small army of workmen trailed their dusty footsteps from the front door to the third floor, where walls fell beneath their tools and new ones (in what had once been four small rooms and were now one) were smoothed beneath the plasterer's hands.

Busy with the tasks assigned to her, Fabienne listened to the activity above with the thrill of a creator.

The theatre—her theatre—was being made.

On her desk lay the plans, the blueprints and the water color sketches. In her file were letters from friends on whom she had called for help. A letter from Miquel Latrobe, the young artist whose show was a sensation a few months before. Miquel promised to do two figures—tragedy and comedy—at either side of the stage. And a letter from Nicky saying that he'd gladly pay for the stage curtains. There was also a letter from Andrew Hardy offering an additional thousand dollars for Fabienne's project.

She opened her telephone book and ran her finger down the page of B's. There it was, Benson and Halloway. Geoffrey Benson, stage director of three of the season's hits, was one of her mother's satalites. If Geoffrey would offer to direct one play, she could draw other influential people of the theatre down to Willoughby house. Who knew but some day Rose Riccio's dream might come true; that Fabienne Seymour's first gesture of sacrifice might blossom into full flower? Rose had said that prizefighters and great artists had got their start in classes at the settlement house.

At that point Fabienne envisioned the Hayes and the Cornells of tomorrow coming out of this new hobby of hers.

For the theatre was her hobby—and her escape. She worked tirelessly to get others to help, to perfect the plans. No detail, be it the width of the movable seats or the hue and texture of the red velvet curtain, or the gold letters: THE WILLOUGHBY PLAYERS PRESENT—was too small for her to debate, consider, decide upon.

Ellen, directress of Willoughby house, sensing without knowing the need of responsibility in her most indefatigable worker, gave her full rein. The theatre was entirely Fabienne's project.

It was good to have that work, and all the extra work involved, during those two weeks after Nicky went home. It was good to be so tired that a yawn was not forced, that her "I must get to bed; I'm dead tired," was true when Bill and Ellen and she were gathered in the living room of Ellen's apartment.

For she scarcely ever gave herself more time with them than politeness required. She lived with Ellen, but she would not intrude upon her.

On those occasions when she pleaded fatigue as an excuse to get away, Bill nodded sagely and said that was the right thing to do.

Bill saw the thinning of her cheeks, the fading of her glow, the darkness that often encircled her eyes. It was Bill, the physician, who spoke, but she didn't know that.

And so she avoided seeing him at the apartment, and arranged her hours at the settlement house so that she saw him seldom there.

Then one afternoon when Ken had hastily summoned her to the third floor to see the progress that had been made, Bill came looking for her.

The stage was up!

Ken stood in its exact centre with one foot on a box and mournfully intoned, "To be or not to be? That is the question. When you put on 'Hamlet,' how about my doing the Great Dane?'

"Great idea, Ken, but you'll have to play it in the dog house."

"Lousy joke," Ken retorted.

"Best I can do," she answered, bending her head over the plans in her lap. "Think I have a cold coming on. Look, darling, I can't find the sketches of the units Paul is going to do."

Ken cleared the place where footlights would soon be fixed and came to her side, looking over her shoulder. "I just remembered. They aren't there. Paul hadn't finished them. I told him we'd meet him somewhere for dinner tonight and we can get them then."

Bill spoke from the doorway. "Not tonight," he said pleasantly. "I have other plans for Miss Seymour."

Both Fabienne and Ken stared at him—for different reasons.

Fabienne said, "Come in Doctor. You know Mr. Heminway?" They nodded to each other. "I want to show you something. Look, the stage!"

Bill walked in, gazed with polite intent at the rude wooden platform, and nodded as if he were deeply impressed.

"Of course that's just the beginning. It's going to be like all proper stages, with footlights and a handsome curtain and beautiful glass chandeliers at each side. Oh, can't you see it!" She turned her face toward it. He studied it more intently than he had studied the sage.

It was lovely with animation, but it was not at its loveliness that Bill Mallory looked. He was looking at her bright eyes, at the high color that came and went in her cheeks where the skin was thinly drawn over fine bones; at her nervous hands that twirled first a pencil and then a cigaret and were never still.

"I see," he said. "You're doing a great job."

Pooh! Wait till you see what we're going to do! We're going to have fine plays and—"

Ken looked at his watch, whistled and said that he'd have to leave for another appointment.

"What time shall I pick you up?" he asked Fab.

"I won't be through here until seven. Better make it eight.

Quietly, Bill said, "Not tonight, Miss Seymour. You're not having a date tonight."

No one had ever told Miss Seymour what she could or couldn't do. Without so much as looking at Bill, she got off her perch on the stepladder and went to the door with Ken. "I'll expect you at eight," she told him loud enough so that she could be heard by Bill.

Bill was standing where she had left him when she went back with her eyes blazing.

Before she could say the things she meant to say, she saw the Bill's anger matched her own.

His voice was not cold, it was hot and angry and firm, "You heard me, Fabienne," he began at once. Stop acting like a child and listen to someone who knows more than you do about yourself. If you haven't got sense enough to realize what you're heading for, I have. You're a sick girl! You ought to be in bed, and I order you to go home right and go to bed. Any girl with an ounce of common sense would know that she can't work twelve hours a day, play all night, and not pay for it. But not you!"

"I'll thank you, Dr. Mallory, to give your professional advice when it's asked for! she said shakily. She'd meant to make her voice cold, but it hadn't come off. She turned smartly on her heel.

"Tell me what to do indeed!" she said to herself, getting into a black net dress to wear to dinner with Ken.

A three o'clock in the morning Ellen called Dr. Mallory at his rooms and said, "I hate to disturb you, Bill, but you're needed at once. Fabienne had a chill earlier and now she've feverish. Dreadfully feverish."

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

GET OUT OF THE WAY

WHEN YOU are making a short-suit lead against No Trump, from a three-card holding that contains two honors, it will nearly always pay you to lead one of the high cards, ordinarily the middle card. If you lead the bottom card, you are likely to find that you have blocked the suit, which otherwise your partner might establish and run. By beginning to get out of his way early, you avoid making interference for the enemy—to borrow a football term.

	♠A K 10 6 ♥K 7 3 ♦J 8 ♣A Q 9 4

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

South began this deal with 1-Club in a rubber game of fair players. North responded with 1-Diamond, South bid 1-Spade, North 2-Clubs as a mere preference, and South 3-No Trumps.

Not liking to lead any of the three suits called by his opponents, West chose a heart, especially since the bidding indicated it might be his partner's long suit and also since his partner appeared likely to have a few honors as side entries for it. But he unfortunately chose the particular card recommended by most of the books which are still current but are unsound on this point. He led the 6.

The 10 went up in dummy, the J in the East and South took with the K. Seeing that he couldn't get nine tricks without some in diamonds, and hoping the hearts were only four cards long, he led diamonds at once. East won with the A and returned a heart to West's two honors, but then the show was over, as the suit was blocked, so South made 4-No Trumps.

If West had led the heart Q, the contract would have been set, regardless of whether South won that trick or not. Figure all variations of declarer's effort after that, and you will see he could not prevent his adversaries from getting four tricks in that suit, plus the diamond A.

Skier Gashes Leg

ORILLIA, Ont., Jan. 23 — (CP). —Suffering from a badly gashed ligament in his leg, Allan Boyle, member of the Orillia Ski Club, was pulled two miles to the highway on a toboggan by comrades. He was brought into town by motor car.

Boyle injured his legt when running on a bush trail. He could not walk. It was impossible to carry him through the rough brush country. The snow was too deep for a horse and cutter, so skiers borrowed a toboggan.

More Marriages

GARDNER, Mass, Jan. 23—(AP). —A considerate mayor, who had but 15 cents when he returned from his own honeymoon, wasn't spoofing when he told unemployed men of this community that if they married he would see that they were supported "even if you have to go on public welfare."

"It's high time for reformers to stop 'monkeying' with natural laws," Mayor Fred E. Perry, father of two boys and two girls, said in an interview.

"Because a number of people have been frightened by the drivel they have heard during the past decade about economic collapse, they have refrained from marrying and the result is an increasing number of bachelors and old maids and a falling birth rate."

Bethany Congregation Introduced To New Rector At Church Banquet

BETHANY, Jan. 23 — (ENS). — On Thursday evening, members of St. Paul's W. A. and St. Mary's Women's Guild, sponsored a parish social evening in the Town Hall to meet and welcome their new rector, Rev. Mr. Mason and Mrs. Mason to the Manvers Parish.

Owing to inclemency of weather, bad roads and much prevalent illness, there were many absent. However, approximately 75 people sat down to a banquet prepared by the ladies of the two congregations. Arch Deacon and Mrs. Simpson of Millbrook, Rev. Clarence and Mrs. Ferguson of the United Church, with Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Mason, were guests of honor at the head table, which presented a very delightful appearance, centred with silver candelabra with pale blue candles and other dainty appointments, in blue and white color scheme which also prevail at three other long tables the full length of the large hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Porter of Trinity church were invited guests of the evening with others of Bethany United Church.

Mr. W. L. Hannah, master of ceremonies welcomed the visitors and held community singing, led by Mr. Roy Jarvis, with Robert Sisson at the piano. This was followed by a duet piano and cornet by Ben Page and Robert Sisson.

The program proper opened with a toast to the King, singing of National Anthem and O Canada, followed by chairman's address.

Musical numbers were given by R. Sisson and Ben Page; solos by Laura Morton were also a high light while community singing was intermittently given throughout the evening's entertainment.

New Pastor Introduced.

Rev. Arch Deacon Simpson, was chief speaker choosing for his theme the Church, dwelling on its varied calls, also introducing Rev. Mr. Mason and Mrs. Mason.

The audience rose to sing "The Church's One Foundation."

Mr. Mason made reply in most earnest and impressive words, desirous of faithful service in humble attitude, to do the work to which he was called for the Master.

Rev. Clarence Ferguson in his genial manner, expressed pleasure for himself and Mrs. Ferguson to be present on the very happy ocassion to meet with a gentleman who bore the names of Mason, which could mean only a builder in a community.

Mrs. Simpson spoke for the W. A. and her words were keenly enjoyed by all.

Mrs. Vance of St. Mary's spoke of the work of the Women's Guild.

Robert Morton, people's warden of St. Paul's was called upon and responded very graciously.

Mrs. Walter Rowan gave fitting tribute on Sunday School work, making a strong appeal for the children's education for the better knowledge of God's holy word and worship.

Mr. H. and Mrs. Muckle spoke for his office of warden and Lauro Morton paid tribute to the work of the Girls' Guild.

Lawrence Staples of St. Mary's based his address on the longevity of both churches, and aged members who were still a desirous example to be emulated by those who are now carrying on in a much more feeble way, failing to attend sabbath worship faithfully, letting indifference creep steathily in churh loyalty.

Ben Page, a past president of St. Mary's A. Y. P. A. gave a splendid short talk for the young peoples activities, after which all joined singing the theme song most heartily, "Marhing On."

Leonard Porter, spoke words of gretings from Trinity.

Mr. Padgham St. Paul's treasurer proposed a hearty vote of thanks to all who had helped in any way to assist in the success of a happy and profitable evening.

Closing with the National Anthem. Rev. Arch Deacon Simpson pronounced the closing prayer after which social greetings were exchanged before departure to the home fires.

Getting Peeved

Copenhagen, Jan. 23 (AP).

AN ANNOUNCER on the Moscow wave-length broadcast a threat in the Finnish language early yesterday that Russia would declare war on the Finns unless they returned weapons "stolen" from Red Army troops at Suomussalmi.

The "stolen" weapons apparently were guns and tanks captured by the Finns after the alleged destruction of the Red Army's 163rd and 44th Divisions.

The Russian invasion was launched without a formal declaration of war, and the Soviet Government has since declared that it is not at war with Finland inasmuch as it recognizes only the Communist-sponsored Terijoki "People's" Government.

Canadian Legion War Services Plans To Ask Citizens For $5,000 In Its Canadian-Wide Drive In February

"We must remember that our Canadian soldiers are essentially civilians loaned to the army for the period of the war," said Rev. J. Max Allan, senior personal officer of the Canadian Legion War Services, Incorporated, in his outline of the purposes and plans of this auxiliary war service at a meeting of the local branch of the Legion last night.

Rev. Mr. Allan's explanation of the practical idealism of the Legion's undertaking in co-operation with the Auxiliary Services of the Canadian Department of National Defense was amplified in details by O. S. Boase of Toronto, assistant organizer, with special reference to the campaign for funds which is being made by the Legion throughout Canada during the week of February 12. The quota assigned to the Peterborough branch is expected to be $5,000, although it has not yet been definitely set, Max R. Sloan reported. George Gimblett, Fire Chief, president, said that every effort would be put forth to raise the sum allotted to this community.

Maintaining Morale.

Th scope of the contribution by the Canadian Legion War Services, Incorporated, a non-profit making organization, embraces such activities as education, entertainment, recreation and personal problems. This auxiliary work was assumed by the Canadian Legion because the experience of its members during the last war enabled them to visualize and understand the reactions of the men of the new army in the radical changes of life from the freedom of civilian way sto the discipline and routine of the army.

Both speakers declared that the Legion's program was largely directed at the maintaining of the morale of the new young troops, at preparing them while in arms for their return to civil life again, two phases of the experience ahead of them that were of utmost importance, requiring the peculiar assistance which the Legion was able to supply.

Desire To Service

When war was declared, the Canadian Legion desired to take an active part, Rev. Mr. Allan said, but on account of their age and disabilities that had developed since the last war few of them have been accepted for active service. And so the Canadian Legion War Services, Inc., came into being as an auxiliary to the army. "We feel that with our experience we can lend a helping hand to the young soldiers of today in their hour of trial. We know something of the value of morale. Without a high morale victory cannot be achieved."

Rev. Mr. Allen spoke of the problems of two stages of transition of the new army, their leaving civilian life and their return to it. The Legion knew from its own experience that the army would eventually be demobilized, and that men would have to be helped to take their place again in the ordinary life of Canada, approximately half a million men in the last army, 60,000 had been killed. The others had to find their way back into the ways of peace.

Prepare For Peace

An important part of the Legion's auxiliary service is to keep the soldiers thinking of that day of returning peace and preparing for it. To that end the education program will follow the soldiers from the time of their enlistment close to the front lines.

"No other organization in this country is so well equipped to perform that service as is the Canadian Legion," Rev. Mr. Allan declared. This work has already begun. The Legion has the active support of all the universities in this country, and has enlisted the valuable help of the Canadian Association for Adult Education. Boys have already begun the study of conversational French and German, geography, the principles of democracy, academic, and social subjects.

"Already in our own military district No. 3 many men have registered in different phases of this work," Mr. Allan stated. Accommodation has been provided in the cities where there are universities, and in Great Britain and France there will be other facilities amplified by the army huts which other auxiliary services have undertaken to provide. English libraries will be provided, with escorted tours on leave, a friendly hand will be extended to guide the young men to the places which they ought to visit.

The importance of the educational department of the Legion's service was stressed especially for its merit in sustaining morale, increasing the initiative of the young Canadians, and in assisting them to take their place again without the chaos of demobilization and the disillusion through which the Canadian Expeditionary Force of 1914-18 passed on their return to Canada.

Personal Service.

Every person would understand the value of recreation and entertainment for the soldiers, Rev. Mr. Allan said, but only the men of the Legion would appreciate the aid of the new personal service which was being undertaken. Problems relating to members of their families back home, intimate affairs that needed friendly attention but were a worry to the men at the front, these were another feature of assistance which the Legion was able to extend. Men were about to be appointed wearing distinctive details of uniform who would be with the army through all its progress up to the front areas, and their job was to give the personal help which the men of the Legion understood as a great need.

"In life," said Mr. Boase, "the sympathy that comes from a person who has been through the same experience as your own reaches most deeply into your own feelings. That is one of the helps we can give, because we have been through it. In regard to our educational program we have two main objectives, to keep the young soldier's mind on civilian thoughts because he is coming back, and to keep training him for the time when he does come home again, and has a better chance than the men of the old army to become rehabilitated.

Co-operative Services

Mr. Boase explained that the Auxiliary Services of the army included the Red Cross Society, the I.O.D.E., Y.M.C.A., Canadian Army Huts, Salvation Army, Canadian Legion, all given definite spheres of helpfulness, and dove-tailing together.

"Our whole scheme of the Legion is absolutely free to the soldiers. They may choose any courses they wish," Mr. Boase said. Books, stationery, personnel and other costs will have to be met out of the voluntary contribution of the Canadian people to the newly organized Canadian Legion War Services, Incorporated. Not a cent of that money goes into the funds of the Canadian Legion, and any surplus at the close of the war will be used exclusively for the benefit of the soldiers and their families.

Rev. Mr. Allan spoke at the close of the meeting of the uses of the Legion hut at Barriefield. Protestant and Catholic services were held in one of its rooms last Sunday, and another room is designed as a "quiet room" for reading, writing and study. He said the Legion had never asked for public support in this country until the present time, and it did so now in the confidence that its personnel was conspicuously equipped for the work which it was assuming. Mr. Allan read the list of officers of the Legion War Services from Major-General John A. Gunn through its Vice-Presidents and directors from all the provinces, its general manager, Lt.-Col. Ralph H. Webb, Lt. Col. Wilfrid Bovey, national chairman of the education branch with Walter S. Woods, deputy chairman; Captain B. W. Allen, director of entertainment, Captain M. W. Plunkett, supervisor of soldier concert parties which are to be encouraged from talent in the ranks.

U.S. Must Help

New York, Jan. 23 (AP)

THE UNITED STATES must help Finland if the Scandinavian countries are to be saved from conquest, European agents of the Carnegie endowment for international peace assert.

Excerpts from a confidential report were made public Sunday by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of the endowment.

"It is felt in Europe," said the report "that since America is so far away and not immediately concerned in the dispute between Great Britain, France and Germany she might help Finland more effectively than any other nation. If America decides to do nothing, however, then the expectation is that the Scandinavian countries will go down one by one."

Felt Nervous, Rundown Couldn't Sleep and Was Full of Aches and Pains

Describes How Syntona Medicine Brought Him Grand Relief.

Often Common Results of Faulty Assimilation and Elimination.

MR. WILLIAM A. ALMAS.

"For years I was troubled with stomach gas and indigestion," said Mr. William Almas, 28 Barton Street East, Hamilton, recently.

"After eating, I would get a burning feeling in my stomach and hot, sour liquids would rise in my throat. I would fill up with gas and get awful dizzy feelings. Little spots floated before my eyes and my tongue was always coated. Frequently I used to get sharp pains in my shoulders and back. I felt very nervous, run-down, and couldn't sleep well.

"A friend told me about how Syntona had helped him, so I decided to try it, and it has given me great relief. Now I can eat well without all that stomach distress, the pains in my back and shoulders are relieved, my nerves are more relaxed and I sleep better. Syntona has been a wonderful medicine for me and I am glad to recommend it to any person who suffers as I did."

Syntona produces these results without the aid of harmful drugs. It is made only from pure herbal juices that have long been known for their medicinal value. Many who have taken it say that in only a few days their whole systems take on a feeling of new energy and vigor.

Local men and women can get Syntona in Peterborough at Elliott's Drug Store. Remember the name and avoid disappointment. Ask about the special introductory offer. —(Advt.)

KING GEORGE INSPECTS HIS CANADIAN TROOPS
DESTROYER EXMOUTH SUNK WITH ALL HANDS

Fear 200 Men Victims In Tragedy

Other Tuesday Losses Include British, 3 Neutral Steamers

LONDON, Jan. 24—(CP).—Sinking of the destroyer Exmouth by a torpedo or mine in the North Sea apparently with the loss of all hands—close to 200 men—was reported by the Admiralty on the 25th anniversary of the Battle of Dogger Bank in the First Great War.

It was the fifth destroyer sunk since the war with Germany began September 3.

In many homes of the Exmouth's crew, the news came as the men's arrival on leave was expected. The families had received letters only Monday.

One woman stayed up all last night, awaiting her husband's return early today. Instead she received the Admiralty's notice that he was believed dead.

The Exmouth normally carried 175 men, but wartime crews usually are increased about 10 per cent. A 1,475-ton vessel, built in 1934, the Exmouth was a flotilla leader, carrying five 4.7-inch guns, seven smaller guns, and eight 21-inch torpedo tubes.

The Exmouth was the same class as the Grenville, destroyer which sank Saturday with a loss of 81 lives.

Other destroyer losses were the Blanche and Gipsy, which struck mines last November, and the Duchess, which sank in a collision with another warship December 13.

Skipper Just Decorated.

The Exmouth's commander, Captain R. S. Benson, received the Distinguished Service Order last month for "successful action against enemy submarines."

Biggest individual British naval losses to date have been the 22,500-ton aircraft carrier Courageous, torpedoed September 18 in the English Channel; the 29,150-ton battleship Royal Oak, torpedoed November 14 at Scapa Flow; and the 16,697-ton armed merchant cruiser Rawalpindi sunk by the German pocket battleship Deutschland November 25, near Iceland.

Germany has acknowledged the loss only of the 10,000-ton pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee Dec. 17, two 400-ton patrol boats and a few submarines, although Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, declares the German losses have been much greater.

A Hitler Pledge

Paris, Jan. 24 (CP-Havas)

THE newspaper Le Petit Parisien said today that Fuehrer Hitler personally has assured Premier Mussolini that any attempt by the Soviet Union to violate the zones of interest of Italy and Hungary in southeastern Europe would meet with German resistance.

A memorandum sent by the Fuehrer to Il Duce on Jan. 17 contained a formal guarantee to this effect, the papers said.

Italian interests would be safeguarded, the memorandum was reported to have said, even if the the necessities of war led to "certain actions in the Balkans for purposes of security and prevention."

U.S. Experts Dubious Of Spring Offensive By Either Side On Western Front; Believe Bombers To Supply Major Action

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24—(AP).—Spring may bring new aerial warfare over Europe and intensified war at sea, but it is difficult to find a military expert in the United States who will predict a "spring offensive" on the Western front.

Military tacticians, analyzing every scrap of information from Europe, report that they "can't see" how either the Allies or Germany can launch an offensive, regardless of weather conditions, with reasonable chances of breaking through the Maginot or Westwall lines.

Good weather and good roads enable quicker movement of troops, but both the Allies and Germany apparently have almost evenly-balanced forces manning their lines. Transportation—except of reserves to meet an attack—is not a problem on the Western front.

Intensified and bigger raids may be made with more favorable temperatures, but the stalemate on the Western front (on the ground) will continue, most experts believe, even when spring sunshine melts the snow and ice.

Frost Criticizes Conduct Of Tax Sales

TORONTO, Jan. 24. —(CP) —A quiet day or so is ahead of the Ontario Legislature. The throne speech debate wound up yesterday without recorded division, A. H. Acres (Con. Carleton) being the last speaker.

Mr. Acres twitted the Premier about the failure of his Attorney-General to draft a lawyer-proof Succession Duty Act. But Premier Mitchell Hepburn told Mr. Acres that despite the failure of the investigatory sections of the Act to be operative in the face of an injunction, he had collected $25,000,000 in Succession Duties, $5,000,000 more than he estimated.

While civilians looked anxiously to the skies, military sources indicated that with moderation of subzero weather Soviet Russia had opened a big push against Finland's main south-eastern defences, concentrating on the Mannerheim Line on the Karelian Isthmus and north of Lake Ladoga.

$14,000 In Furs Hijacked On St. Thomas Road In Daring Daylight Raid

WINDSOR, Ont., Jan. 24 (CP)—Police spread a wide net today in their search for four armed men who commandeered a truck loaded with 70 furs in a daring daylight hold-up near St. Thomas yesterday.

The truck was abandoned last night near Amherstburg and the driver was left, bound and gagged, in the rear of it. The furs, valued at $14,000, were missing when he was found and freed by Provincial Constable E. L. Harris and Police Chief J. G. Taylor of Amherstburg.

Richard Ward, 33, of Toronto, driver of the truck, described to them how he was robbed of his load. A salesman for the Hudson Fur Manufacturing Company, Toronto, he was taking the coats to a Windsor store when the men waylaid him near St. Thomas.

Ward said that he was accosted by the hold-up men while about four miles west of St. Thomas, travelling about 55 miles an hour. A car caught up to him and a fellow in the front seat waved to Ward to pull over, the car starting to crowd the truck at the same time.

Crash or Stop.

For Ward he said it was a case either of crashing into the ditch or stopping on the shoulder, so he choose the latter. The car pulled up and one of the occupants with a revolver in his hand ran over to the truck.

"Get into the back," he ordered Ward. The gunman followed Ward into the back, tied him up and gagged him, the truck starting to roll at the same time. Ward said he was kicked repeatedly in the side, but was not injured. His wrists and legs were swollen when he was finally freed, having been bound for four hours.

Ward said he did not have the slightest idea where the truck was headed during a 120-mile trip, After a stop when he presumed they loaded the furs into the car, Ward said they continued a few miles in the truck before finally leaving him.

It was only a matter of minutes from the time the men left him until the police found him, Ward said, adding that he made weekly trips to Western Ontario from the Toronto warehouse for the last four years and it was the first time he was troubled.

Naval And Air Orders Run To 30 Million

Will Tax All Canada's Plane Plants, Shipyards To Limit

OTTAWA, Jan. 24 — (CP). — A broad purchasing program of naval units and aircraft involving well over $30,000,000 and taxing Canadian shipyards and aircraft manufacturers to their capacity, was outlined to-day by Transport Minister Howe on behalf of the War Supply Board.

Orders have been or are being placed for 46 steel anti-submarine boats of the "whale-catcher" design used in the Royal Navy, 26 mine-sweepers for which tenders will be opened next February 8, and a large fleet of small aircraft salvage motor boats, lighters and loaders.

For the British Commonwealth air training scheme in Canada, the parts for about 4,000 craft have been ordered in Canada, Great Britain, and the United States.

It was estimated the 46 anti-submarine boats would cost about $25,000,000, but no figures were given for the other boats or the aircraft.

8 Cutters Go Out On Fake SOS; Drunk Arrested

BOSTON, Jan. 24—(AP). — State Police announced today that Byron Brown, 48, retired United States army captain who coast guard officers said relayed to them last night the reported SOS of a ship supposedly sinking off Cape Cod, had been confined in the Edgartown jail on intoxication charges.

The coast guard, when apprised of Brown's arrest shortly after 5 a.m. EST, immediately called off half a dozen vessels searching for signs of the reportedly distressed ship with 146 persons aboard. They had been patrolling the sea between Martha's Vineyard and Nantucket Islands more than eight hours.

Soldiers' Needy Mothers Will Get Aid

OTTAWA, Jan. 24.—(CP)—Needy mothers of enlisted men may be provided with an allowance of $20 a month after this, regardless of whether the son was able to contribute to their support before enlisting.

Up to now, to qualify for an allowance a mother had to show that the enlisted man had maintained her for six months prior to enlistment. This left the mother of an unemployed man dependent on relief even after her son enlisted.

Under changes in the regulations announced last night by Defence Minister Rogers the dependents' allowance board now make a special grant where it is convinced an enlisted man would have maintained his mother, "if he had not been prevented by circumstances beyond his control."

Dominion Blocks Reds Getting Canadian Wheat

OTTAWA, Jan. 24. —(CP) —All the weight of Federal law empowering the Government to restrict exports to neutral countries by means of licences bore down today to halt shipment of Canadian wheat to Russia.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced the arming of the Government with this power last night after the passage of two orders-in-council.

The action followed closely on the buying of $1,000,000 worth of Canadian wheat in the open market at Winnipeg for Soviet account, a sale that aroused considerable criticism from various quarters.

Resentment was based on the Soviet attack on Finland, a country Canada already has aided by establishment of credit, together with the fact the wheat, once in Russia, might easily reach Germany because of close Russo-German ties.

Britain Pledged To Aid Belgium If Invaded, Chamberlain States

LONDON, Jan. 24—(CP).—Prime Minister Chamberlain enumerated in the House of Commons today treaties and declarations from 1925 to August, 1939, in which Great Britain undertook "to go to the immediate assistance of Belgium in the event of unprovoked aggression by Germany."

Mr. Chamberlain added that the question of how the guarantees could be implemented if the need arose was receiving the full attention of the government, which he said must retain the right to decide what constituted aggression or threatened attack.

Many phases of Britain's foreign relations were touched upon in today's session of Parliament.

Mr. Chamberlain, asked if Britain would break off relations with Russia, replied such a move "would require most careful consideration in all its aspects."

Sir Alfred Knox, Conservative, asked whether, in view of Russia's invasion of Finland, Britain would break off relations with Moscow.

Such a decision, the Prime Minister said, "is not one to be dealt with satisfactorily in questions and answers."

The Prime Minister did not answer Sir Alfred's further question:

Snow, Ice Worst In Generation Hit South Paralyze Alabama, Louisiana, Georgia

ATLANTA, Jan. 24.—(AP). — Falling temperatures brought added hazards and discomforts to-day to a snow-blanketed mid-south section of the United States.

The snowfall, deepest of a generation in many areas, turned to a coat of paralyzing ice in subfreezing weather and created hazardous conditions on highways and city streets.

Ranging from a depth of two to 20 inches, the snow covered an area from Southern Georgia westward through mid-Alabama, Mississippi, Arkansas and Louisiana to Texas. It extended northward to Tennessee, the Carolinas and Virginia.

Monarch Walks Over 5 Miles Among Men During 50-Mile Tour Of Aldershot; Chats With Ranks Of Hastings Regiment

Dines With Officers; Bitter Cold Fails To Hurry Trip

By SAM ROBERTS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

ALDERSHOT, England, Jan. 24.—(CP Cable.)—The King to-day inspected his Canadian troops.

Throughout this chilling English winter day he drove for more than 50 miles about the Aldershot command and left his car frequently to reveiw or walk past thousands of Canadians who are finishing their training before moving "Over There."

His Majesty was constantly on the move for three hours during the morning, stopping scores of times to ask soldiers in the ranks about their well-being and to chat with officers.

After lunching with Major-General A. G. L. McNaughton, officer commanding the Canadian Active Service Force and senior officers of the staff and the various units of the Canadian First Division at the Officers' Club, the King spent another hour and a half completing his inspection.

It was Canada's Day and there was much to remind the King of the Dominion which he visited with the Queen last summer when the world was at peace.

Men of the First Canadian Provost Company — Royal Canadian Mounted Policemen who had changed their scarlet for battle dress khaki—patrolled all roads used by the King and the accompanying official party.

New Standard Flutters

The standard of the First Canadian Division, combining the Union Jack with the Maple Leaf and the Fleur de Lys, fluttered from the staff at headquarters.

Each unit doffed caps and gave His Majesty three cheers in rousing Canadian style. Even the wintry weather seemed distinctively Canadian.

When the King, wearing the uniform of a field marshal, drove up to divisional headquarters General McNaughton and members of his staff and officers of the Canadian military headquarters stood on one side of the drive. With them in civvies was Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian High Commissioner.

The opposite side of the drive was lined by off-duty members of the divisional headquarters substaff.

HALIFAX, Jan. 24—(CP). — The story of a valiant attempt to tow a badly-damaged ship to a haven here—an attempt thwarted when she foundered when only 17 miles off shore, was told today in a matter-of-fact towing company's report made public for the first time.

The ship was the 2,942-ton British freighter Chancellor, damaged in a collision with the tanker Athelchief off the Nova Scotia coast early in December. The report was that of Captain Reginald Featherstone, marine superintendent of Foundation Maritime, Limited, whose salvage vessel Foundation Franklin attempted the tow.

The Franklin sighted the stricken freighter about 80 miles out and found her "deserted and abandoned." The Athelchief's bow had torn through the Chancellor's starboard side and deck plating up to the hatch combing. No. 2 hatch, No. 3 bunker and the engine-room were flooded.

A lifeboat crew from the Franklin boarded the freighter, surveyed the damage and decided to attempt the tough pull to port, towing her stern first. Lines were set up and the party returned to the Franklin.

Boat Crew Has Tough Time.

"A life-boat drew alongside 'Foundation Franklin' but at this time the sea and wind was increasing and with the 'Foundation Franklin' having tow line attached, she was unable to allow a lee side for her lifeboat, consequently in returning lifeboat to the 'Foundation Franklin's' davits in the rough sea the boat sustained damage," the report says.

"At times the life-boat was swept as high as the bridge deck and then fell in the trough of the sea under 'Foundation Franklin's' bilge. However, the life-boat eventually was placed on board without any injuries to the salvage crew, except for a drenching. The wind was increasing to strong southerly with heavy rain and increasing seas."

After towing the Chancellor about four hours at an average speed of four knots, it became evident her No. 1 hold was filling from the terrific beating she was taking. Heavy sea was crashing over the forecastle head and pounding on the fore deck.

By afternoon—the Franklin was only 17 miles away from land then—it was apparent the Chancellor was sinking by the bow. Reluctantly the Franklin prepared to pick up what she could of her tow lines.

Little by little her bow dipped farther under and her stern arose. Just before she plunged under her stern was almost perpendicular to the sea.

Apple Industry In Niagara, Essex Hinted Doomed By Codling Moth

HAMILTON, Jan. 24. — (CP) — So extensive have the depredations of the codling moth—the insect that causes wormy apples—become in the Niagara Peninsula and some parts of Essex County, where temperatures are relatively higher than elsewhere in Ontario, that growers would be well advised "to think twice" before planting any more apple acreage.

This is considered opinion of W. A. Ross, head of the Dominion Entomological Laboratory, Vineland Station. The man whose job it has been to find ways and means of combating this voracious fruit pest. He has found that the most satisfactory spray schedule so far developed is one in which a summer or white oil is applied.

"The codling moth is becoming increasingly troublesome and difficult to control," he told delegates to the 80th annual convention of the Ontario Fruit Growers Association today.

"The degree of infestation is determined primarily by temperature conditions, leaving control and sanitary conditions out of consideration. That explains why in hot areas the codling moth is more difficult to control and why it is most destructive of all in the Niagara district and some parts of Essex county.

"For that reason," Mr. Ross stated, "the cost of control in the Niagara tender fruit belt and in these sections of Essex county may be unduly high and any grower living in these districts would be well advised to think twice before he plants any more apples in these warmer districts. The codling moth can be controlled but the cost may be too high."

Rome Press Blames French Search For Loss Of Life In Liner Fire

ROME, Jan. 24 (AP).—Il Popolo d'Italia, Premier Mussolini's Milan newspaper, today published a Genoa dispatch blaming the French for the loss of life aboard the Italian liner Orazio because the French navy halted the ship four hours to remove 12 German passengers.

The despatch called the delay "fatal," asserting that otherwise the Orazio "would have been able to reach Barcelona and save all her passengers." The Orazio was en route to South America via Barcelona. The fire broke out several hours after the French examination had been completed.

At Least 52 Missing.

GENOA, Jan. 24. — (AP).— A check-up on the number of survivors from the burned Italian liner Orazio left at elast 53 persons unaccounted for to-day, and Italian Line officials expressed fear the total might reach 100.

The unknown number of survivors taken to Marseille by French rescue boats before the Italian liners Conte Biancamano and Colombo arrived here yesterday with more than 500 others, led to uncertainty over the exact loss of life.

The Orazio's original passenger and crew lists totalled 643, but 12 German passengers had been taken off by a French patrol ship late last Saturday, the day before a fuel oil blast turned the Orazio into a blazing hulk off the French Mediterranean coast.

OTTAWA, Jan. 24—(CP).—Honorary Air Marshal William Avery Bishop, greatest of Allied aces in the First Great War, returned to active service today as an air recruiting chief.

Announcement of his appointment came last night from Defence Minister Rogers, who named the 45-year-old Victoria Cross winner as Director of Recruiting for the Royal Canadian Air Force in connection with the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan.

Air Vice-Marshal G. M. Croil, Chief of the Air Force and head of the training plan, recommended the appointment.

Bishop, victor over 72 German fliers in the last war, previously has influenced recruiting. Back in 1917 this ace from Owen Sound, Ont., interrupted his dare-devil sky-riding schedule long enough to make a short visit to Canada. His presence alone was sufficient to bring

The second order adopted adds a list of commodities which might serve a war purpose to the list of direct implements of war that need a permit for export.

War Secretary Oliver Stanley said it was an exceptional case resulting from an invitation from General Gamelin, commander-in-chief of the Allied armies, for young Ironside to see his father decorated with the Grand Cross of the Legion of Honor Jan. 8.

Asked if the same facilities would be accorded to children irrespective of their father's rank, Mr. Stanley said it was not likely that children would visit the war zone in the future.

Rajah Deprives Heir Of Title

SINGAPORE, Jan. 24—(CP)—The Rajah of Sarawak, Sir Charles Vyner Brooke, by proclamation today deprived his nephew and heir, Anthony Walter Daybell Brooke, of his title and authority as Rajah Muda (Crown Prince).

Despite the damp and coldness that chilled to the bone, the King's progress was unhurried. He walked more than five miles through the khaki ranks.

The procedure was for General McNaughton to present the respective brigadiers to His Majesty as each brigade was reached. Then the brigadiers presented the officers commanding individual units making up the brigade.

All ranks from General McNaughton down wore the new battle dress—the first time the entire division has been clad in the so-called "ski suit" at a ceremony.

The Toronto Scottish was the first regiment through which the King passed. The Scots were drawn up on either side of the highway immediately outside the driveway fronting divisional headquarters.

Colonel C. C. Thompson walked the length of the ranks by the King's side. Then he ordered: "Remove headdress; present three cheers for His Majesty the King."

A thunderous roar rang out for the Sovereign, and he was given the same informal soldierly salute wherever he went.

Drawn up alongside the Toronto Scottish were the Saskatoon Light Infantry under Lieut.-Colonel A. E. Potts, and the First Division Signals, Royal Canadian Corps of Signals under Lieut.-Colonel G. E. Genet.

Inspects Artillery.

After passing through these ranks His Majesty drove to Stanhope Parade where he reviewed two units of the Royal Canadian Artillery. While the band played the Artillery March the Sovereign walked up and down the ranks with Brigadier J. C. Stewart at his side.

Drawn up were the Third Field Regiment of the R.C.A., under Lieut.-Colonel R. A. Wayman; the First Anti-Tank Regiment, R.C.A., under Lieut.-Colonel G. W. F. Johnson.

The King then drove to Wellesley House General Mess outside which stands the great statue of the Duke of Wellington.

He visited briefly at Twesedown, seat of the famous Officers' Training School and then went to another parade of the R.C.A. There he reviewed the First Field Regiment, R.C.A., Lieut.-Colonel J. H. Roberts in command, and the Second Field Regiment, under command of Lieut.-Colonel A. E. D. Tremain.

Meets Medical Corps.

Then the King walked along a highway flanked by units of the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps. Officers presented to him at this point of the inspection were: Colonel J. A. Linton, Assistant Director of Medical Services; Lieut.-Colonel E. A. McCusker, Deputy-Assistant Director of Medical Services; Lieut.-Colonel G. M. Elder, of the Ninth Field Ambulance; Lt.-Colonel G. R. D. Farmer, of the Fifth Field Ambulance; Lieut.-Colonel G. E. McCarteney, of the Fourth Field Ambulance; Major W. G. Trelford, Canadian Dental Corps, First Divisional Dental Company, and Captain M. H. Brown, of the Second Field Hygiene Service.

En route to the town of Cove to review the Royal 22nd Regiment, His Majesty walked along the ranks of the Second Infantry Brigade, commanded by Brigadier G. R. Pearkes, V.C.

Visits Princess Pats.

He saw the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry under command of Lieut.-Colonel W. G. Colquhoun; the Seaforth Highlanders under Lieut.-Colonel J. D. Stevenson, and the Edmonton Regiment under Lieut.-Colonel W. G. Stillman.

Afterwards he passed the Third Infantry Brigade commanded by Brigadier C. B. Price, and including the Carleton and York Regiment under Lieut.-Colonel H. L. Ganong and the West Nova Scotias under Lieut.-Colonel G. M. Bullock.

Then came the piece de resistance of the pre-lunch tour, the inspection of the Royale Vingt Deuxieme on Guillemont parade.

The famous French - Canadian outfit, the only one carrying arms today, snapped to the "present" as His Majesty approached. The Royal Standard was broken from the staff by a garrison sergeant-major of the Gordon Highlanders and the band played the National Anthem.

Then the inspection was broken while the King lunched at the officers' club, Aldershot. Seated with him were all officers of the division ranking as Lieutenant-Colonels or above.

After lunch the King resumed his busy inspection by reviewing the Royal Canadian Engineers drawn up on the wind-combed Stanhope parade under Lieut.-Colonel C. S. Hertzberg.

Visits Hastings' Ranks

Another long drive to unvisited sections of the far-flung encampment followed. During this the King passed through the first brigade commanded by Brigadier Armand A. Smith. There he saw the Royal Canadian Regiment, Lieut.-Colonel V. N. Hodson-Hastings; the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, Lieut.-Colonel W. Young; and the 48th Highlanders, Lieut.-Colonel E. W. Haldenby.

A further drive brought the King to the Royal Montreal Regiment, Lieut.-Colonel J. E. Siesser, and finally to the division unit, Royal Canadian Army Service Corps.

Miller Convicted; 4 Acquitted Face New Counts

WINDSOR, Ont., Jan. 24—(CP)—Acquitted yesterday on charges of conspiring with Sam Miller, Windsor restaurateur, to smuggle alcohol across the international border from the United States, four former Canadian customs officers will appear to-day on similar charges of conspiracy with Rocco Perri of Hamilton and Anne Newman, his housekeeper.

The four, Norman DePain, Wilfred Fletcher, Edsel J. Mansell, and Carl Gough, were acquitted of three conspiracy charges, while Miller was convicted of two of the charges.

Miller was convicted of conspiracy to commit a indictable offence contrary to the Customs Act and of conspiracy to evade payment of lawful duties on such articles as tanks, pipes, steam boilers and gambling equipment. He was acquitted of a charge of offering bribes in connection with Customs Act evasions.

The trial was the first of a series in connection with 10 arrests made by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police last summer.

The charges to be aired to-day link the four men with Rocco Perri, who once called himself "King of the Bootleggers," and his housekeeper. They are charged with conspiracy to defraud the Customs Department and conspiracy to offer the minister said, included the manufacture of a large number of machine gun carriers, a motorized vehicle with caterpillar wheels carrying machine guns, ammunition and crews for speedy action in the field. It was not indicated where these would be made but the minister said they would be "quite expensive."

The minister also said a large, privately-owned gun factory in Sorel, Que., would soon enter upon production of a British order for cannon of the 25-pounder class.

For the air training program the following machines and parts have been ordered in the United Kingdom: 845 Fairey battle planes, complete; 1,622 Anson fuselages without wings, for which wings will be built and added in Canada; 227 Rolls Royce Merlin engines; 227 air screws (propellers); 823 Cheetah engines and 509 de Haviland Gypsy major engines.

The following orders for aircraft for the training scheme have been placed in Canada: 404 Fleet trainers; 404 de Havilland Tiger Moths trainers and 100 Noordyn North American Harvard trainers.

In the United States orders for the air training scheme call for 509 Kinner engines and 517 Harvard trainers on which production has started and deliveries are expected shortly.

In addition to these air training scheeme orders, placed in collaboration with the British government which, as its share in the scheme, provides the machines, the war supply board has ordered for the normal use of the Royal Canadian Air Force in Canadian defence operations, $10,000,000 worth of bombers and other types, of which about 75 per cent will be spent within Canada.

All Motors Imported.

In connection with the plane orders, Mr. Howe emphasized that no motors are manufactured in Canada and all are being ordered either in England or the United States.

The minister said also that these orders were all that could be efficiently accepted at the moment and that once production caught up with demand they would be increased. This was particularly true of the order for 100 Harvard trainers.

Mr. Howe described operations of the supply board in other directions. The Quebec arsenal, he said, has been greatly enlarged and is working to full capacity.

The Ingils plant in Toronto which has an order for 12,000 Bren machine guns for the British and Canadian governments is about three months ahead of production schedule and will start deliveries in April instead of July as called for in the contract, Mr. Howe said.

Considerable orders had been placed for both the United Kingdom and Canada for cartridge cases, fuses and primers and Mr. Howe said the government looked for a large development in the fanufacture of explosives.

Because the British government had a large pre-war supply of ammunition and casings and because there had been little wastage so far in the war, orders for type of munitions had not been heavy but they could be produced on short notice when needed.

Reviewing the operations of the Defence Purchasing Board and its successor, the War Supply Board, the minister said orders placed by both, from July 14, 1939, when the Defence Purchasing Board started operations, to Jan. 22, 1940, amounted to about $60,000,000.

No Small Orders Listed.

The Defence Purchasing Board was transformed into the War Supply Board, under chairmanship of Wallace R. Campbell, last November 1. The total figures for the former organization were $41,000,000 and for the War Supply Board up to January 22, $19,000,000, but these figures do not take into account numerous orders under $5,000.

In addition there had been authorization since January 1 of $13,400,000. Orders for the 46 steel anti-submarine boats are being given progressively on the basis of an established price.

Mr. Howe said the question of building ships for war purposes was being worked out but he had no comment on the possibility of merchant vessels being built in Canadian yards. Canada would build what she was best equipped to handle; the others would be built in Great Britain.

Deliveries on the 46 anti-submarine boats would start late in the fall and be completed in 1941, the Minister said. For the air service two ammunition lighters are now under construction, one for the Atlantic and the other for Pacific coast stations.

Two provision lighters are being built for the east coast and five refuelling scows for the west coast. In addition there will be eight 38-foot wooden motor "crash" boats for aircraft salvage operations, five for the Pacific and three for the Atlantic coasts.

Other units of this small boat fleet for which tenders are out include seven 18-foot aircraft tenders, six for the west coast and one for the east and 17 small boats of 18 feet to be used in loading bombs on seaplanes on both coasts. Total cost of these small boats for the air service is estimated at $300,000.

How Orders Were Filled

The minister gave some indication of the speed with which manufacturers have been able to fill orders for personal equipment in the following figures showing type of equipment, quantity ordered and quantity so far relivered:

Battle dress trousers, 100,000 ordered and 46,356 delivered; battle dress blouses, 100,000 and 48,100; blankets, 235,000 and 195,596; ankle boots, 120,000 and 113,236; suspenders, 89,500 and 83,784; button sets, 109,500, delivered in full; toothbrushes, 109,500 and 94,000; caps (comforter) 84,500, all delivered; field service caps, 73,000 and 42,500; British warms (overcoats) 675, all delivered; grey drab coats, 5,000 ordered and all delivered, and 15,000 subsequently ordered; combs, 109,500 and 94,000; field dressings, 42,000 and 35,000; holdalls, 99,000 and 50,600; housewives (clothes repair kit), 118,000 and 42,000; kit bags, 59,500 and 32,000 knife, fork and spoon sets, 139,000 all delivered; razors, 74,500, all delivered; razor blades, 465,000, all delivered; khaki wool shirts, 95,000 and 24,600; socks, 205,000 and 176,500; towels, 139,000 and 130,000, and underwear suits, 163,600 and 168,000.

US Bomber Crash Kills Four, 'Chutes Save 2

MARCH FIELD, Calif., Jan. 24—(AP).—Four men died in the crash of a United States army bomber, trapped but a few minutes away from the safety of its base by a raging storm which played havoc with mass army air manoeuvres.

Two crewmen aboard the big bomber escaped in parachutes as the machine went into a spin and crashed into a hillside seven miles from here yesterday.

"We were flying high — about 9,000 feet, I guess—when the motors missed and the ship went into a spin, and all were ordered out," said Sergeant Frank Carroll, one of the survivors.

"Something apparently was wrong with the emergency door. Only two of us were able to get out."

Army records listed the victims as Lieut. Raymond Sumi, pilot; Lieut. Benjamin Holloway, pilot; Lieut. ald Wilcox, and Private Leonard Riley.

2 More U-Boats Attacked-Sunk?

PARIS, Jan. 24 — (CP-Havas).—Repulse of a German attempt to cross the Lauter River east of Wissembourg was announced to-day as French naval authorities reported the possible destruction of two more German submarines.

The morning communique merely said: "One of our posts on the Lauter repulsed enemy units which had made contact."

Military sources revealed that a strong German patrol, crossing the Lauter, attempted a surprise attack on a French outpost to the east of Wissembourg, where the river marks the Franco-German border. The enemy was quickly driven back to his own side of the river, however, leaving on the path of retreat a number of dead.

French naval circles disclosed one German U-boat was attacked yesterday by British naval units and another by the French. The same quarters divulged on Tuesday that two other submarines had been attacked by British warships in the past several days.

Scene Not Divulged.

No information was given as to the scene of the engagement.

Military sources said the French outpost succeeded in capturing one prisoner before the Germans retreated from their unsuccessful raid to the east of Wissembourg. The sector is slightly to the west of the Lauterbourg "hinge," where the border swings sharply to the west after following a north-eastern course along the Rhine.

The Germans also failed in an attempt to ambush a French patrol early to-day on the Lorraine front. Stiff fighting took place in the semi-darkness of dawn and the French unit escaped without losing a prisoner.

Near-zero weather continued to grip the fighting front, with fog and cold curtaining air operations. One German plane was sent out over Northern France and another over the eastern zone. No engagements were reported.

Probe Jury Racket

TORONTO, Jan. 24 — (CP). — Attorney-General Gordon Conant to-day directed Dr. Smirle Lawson, supervision coroner for Ontario, to investigate a charge that coroners' juries are developing into a "racket." The charge was made by Alderman Percy Quinn at a City Council meeting when he moved for stricter supervision over selection of coroners' juries.

Brennan Returned To Havelock Hydro

HAVELOCK, Jan. 24—(ENS).—D. R. Brennan received an acclamation to the Havelock Hydro Commission for a two-year term, when he was the only nominee for that office at the nomination meeting held Monday night. Phillip Greenley and Gerald Whitney were nominated for the two trustee vacancies on the Public School Board, and will also be acclaimed if they qualify before 9 o'clock this evening. Brennan signed up directly after the nominations had closed.

STOLEN CAR FOUND.

An automobile belonging to Mrs. Madeline Overend, 314 London Street, was stolen from Simcoe Street shortly after 9 o'clock Tuesday night. Some time later police found the stolen machine abandoned on Park Hill Road near Jackson Park.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

We Can Stop Now

It will not make pleasant reading for people in United States to learn that fuel for the Russian planes bombarding Finland was purchased months ago in United States.

Russia is using her recently-gained control of Estonia for the purpose of placing flying fields there, giving her a shorter distance to reach and bombard Finland.

Possibly people in United States who now find their gasoline being burned to kill residents of Finland and to blast their homes to pieces would gladly recall the shipments. But they cannot do a thing about it.

People in Canada felt something the same about selling our wheat to Russia. In some way we felt it was going to be used to help break down Finland.

United States cannot undo the mischief which has been done, but Ottawa has decided that our wheat shall not be sold to the Russians. Sound decision, and the only one which Canadians would approve.

Rather Overdone

Col. George Drew seems to have been gripped with the belief that the best way to conduct this war is by making speeches about Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King. He was in Hamilton and fought another fistic round with Mr. King. Admittedly it was what diplomats refer to as somewhat unilateral because there was but one fighter present.

Mr. Drew says Mr. King must go, and the day of his departure need not wait until there is a general election. He wants him to get out right now; he would not have him wait to attend the opening of the forthcoming session of the Federal House.

Mr. Drew ought to know how it was that Mr. King came to be in his present office at Ottawa. In this country we have elections, and people from Atlantic to Pacific go out and vote. That is a democratic way of doing business and we have not yet discovered anything better.

As the result of the voting day effort it was found that the number of Liberals was much in excess of the strength of any other party; they had more members than all the other parties combined, and for that reason the Liberals were in power, and Mr. King, being leader of the Liberal party, became the Prime Minister.

It comes this way: The majority vote of the people of the Dominion put Mr. Mackenzie King where he is today, and for that reason we consider Col. Drew is asking a great deal when he tells Mr. King to get out. The proper way to get rid of Mr. King is to vote him out and place some person else in his place, and we suggest that Col. Drew should know that. There is almost a Gilbert and Sullivan touch to a situation where one man rises in our midst and points to the Prime Minister of the Dominion with the demand that he get out. Sounds too much as though he were trying to usurp the function of the majority of voters in the Dominion.

The Old "Pork-Barrel"

A staff article from Ottawa written for the Globe and Mail makes this opening statement:

"Agitation is growing to drive the Public Works pork-barrel from politics—at least for the duration of the war."

After which it is explained there will be no appropriations for public buildings and it is also stated the Government is inquiring into the status of contracts which have been let but on which work has not been started.

That phrase "pork-barrel" is an old fellow. We have heard it being bandied about for years, and seen it many times in print. For the meaning of the hyphenated word it is necessary to rely on usage because it has not yet won for itself a place in the dictionaries. The political pork-barrel referred to in the Ottawa despatch to the Globe and Mail is one way of saying that a Government is trying to win favor in certain ridings by erecting public buildings, or it is trying to corrupt the people with their own money.

We recall having heard several old-time politicians admit they had yet to learn of a riding which had been won by the expenditure of money on a public building, and reference was being made particularly to post offices. One admission was this: "When you say that having erected a post office helps you get re-elected you do not know the facts. Post Offices have defeated more candidates than they ever elected."

The explanation? Simply this: When tenders are called a number of political friends are bound to submit figures, and in the end only one in each line of business gets the work, and all the others are apt to feel the sitting member might have turned the thing their way if he had cared to do so.

It was claimed that the post office when completed was fair game for the opposition in the next election. Opposition speakers could tear it to pieces and picture it as a place where an enormous amount of public money had been sunk. The gentlemen who discussed the matter had seen a good many election contests come and go, and they agreed they would not care to trust the erection of a new public building in their riding to bring them back with a majority.

An architect informed the Examiner only recently that his experience with public buildings convinced him there was stricter adherence to original estimates than in other work, and he has to keep within his figures and maintain under inspection the quality of workmanship and material. So there may not be so much in that old "pork-barrel" business as a good many people seem to believe, although admittedly it is a fair good phrase to bring out when an election is in the offing.

Selected a Good Man

Ontario is once more to have a Director of Publicity, and Douglas R. Oliver is it. He has been in the Press Gallery of the Ontario Legislature for 15 years, during which stretch he several times shuttled between the Globe and Mail and Empire, as though finding it difficult to herd his affections exclusively in either place, but when the papers were wedded Douglas Oliver was included in the bridal party.

Good, thorough-going newspaper man he is, and possibly being so long in the Press Gallery at Toronto has convinced him that the more glorious places are outside its environs. Ontario needs a Director of Publicity because Ontario needs the tourist trade. It is something which is a big item in the Trent Valley and Kawartha Lakes district where we have all the natural advantages which appeal to tourists. Possibly that is why the Examiner is delighted to see Douglas Oliver stepping into public service. We believe he will do well.

Britain Is At War

The New York Times says, and rather sensibly we think, that United States cannot be an isolationist, a neutral, and also have her export trade of normal times added to the war trade.

Britain used to buy $70,000,000 worth of tobacco from United States; she is nowing doing her purchasing from Turkey for diplomatic reasons.

United States used to sell in Britain $15,000,000 of apples and pears, and large quantities of meat. The purchasing is being done elsewhere now, and empire countries supply the meat.

Britain has placed about $1,000,000,000 in war supply orders in United States, and it would be out of bounds to expect that the volume of peace-time trade would not be cut.

The Times says plainly Britain is at war, and must operate her trade on that basis. Britain is buying vast quantities of material today for the direct purpose of keeping it from going to Germany. There is no secret about that. It is all part of the war and if United States were at war it would be doing the same thing.

That U.S. House In Ottawa

There was a continued spell of sub-zero weather by way of Ottawa's welcome to United States Minister Cromwell and his wife. As a rule these folk have spent the winter in Hawaii, where the man of the house would not have to worry much about touching up the kitchen fire or keeping the cellar free of an accumulation of ashes.

In a despatch from Ottawa we read the Minister and his wife will live at "Lornado," a ten-acre Rockcliffe estate. Since the property was purchased five years ago something like $60,000 has been spent in what is termed improvements, but we are assured "the house is not a large one. There are thirteen bedrooms on the second and third floors, with bathrooms between each two rooms. Downstairs a square reception hall, a large drawing room, a smallish library, and a dining room where 24 can be seated."

Admittedly one has to be careful in making comparisons, and possibly not many people are capable of saying when a house is or is not large. But looking back to the days on the Tenth Concession one is inclined to indulge in the harmless gesture of at least raising an eyebrow when mention is made of 13 bedrooms and yet seeing the qualifying statement that the house is not a large one. There were four bedrooms on Lot Four on the Tenth, and this time of year there would be a fair chance for a little heat in only one of them which was above the combined kitchen and dining room. The stove pipe from the kitchen range ran through there. To get heat in the spare room it would be necessary to put on a fire in the parlor stove.

But a house with thirteen bedrooms still appeals to us as being something like a whopper in size. The Monday wash in such a place would call for a tremendous amount of suds and exertion and a fair portion of the ten acres would have to be set aside for clothes lines.

Perhaps too a dining room which will seat only 24 is also a relatively small place, but the table on the Tenth could seat only a dozen; and at times that was accomplished by bringing out the organ stool for the squeeze seat on the north-east corner.

Nor can we see exactly how they are going to have a bathroom between two bedrooms and make it come out even when there are thirteen such rooms. Of course they may have a way of doing and reckoning things at Ottawa about which we know nothing at all. Life was a trifle primitive on the Tenth and we never had to count bathrooms in the house because there were none.

We hope the Cromwell folk find themselves happily situated in Ottawa; hope they are not too much cramped in the house which is described as not being a large one; hope too they enjoy the cold weather for we seem to have a fairly good supply of that this winter.

Using The Highways

The last unit of a transport outfit consisting of a tractor and three trailers came loose on the road near Hamilton, crashed a hydrant, fence and two trees and then hit a house which was considerably damaged. Meantime the rest of the outfit went on down the road.

It is probably the truth that no person had any idea that such contraptions would come upon our roads when we first started to build improved highways in our province. We had in mind passenger cars; it would be easier for people to get about and more convenient for farmers who sought to bring their produce to market.

But these big three-unit carriers found the highways much to their liking; they could take the business from the railroads without having to build tracks or fix up stations. In winter time the government snow plows would keep their roadway open for them while the railways would have to look after their own snow cleaning. And pay for it too. The highways were never built to compete with railways, but that is what they are doing today.

NOTE AND COMMENT

An Order-in-Council says it is permitted to criticize the government, provided the criticizing is done in good faith. In this case the order merely recognizes something which is being widely done.

We read where the old-timer says that 70 years ago snow came in earnest on October 12 and remained until well on in May, by which time the bucksaw was worn down so fine that it looked like a nail file.

Dr. Hindman, of Columbia, Mo., was knocked down by a taxi. He got up and apologized to the driver for having been in the way. This may be the first step in the new civilization which is to bring peace to the world.

With photographers able to fly in planes over enemy positions and return with pictures which show everything, there is not much chance for the old-time secrets retaining their secrecy. And if they lose their secrecy of what use are they?

WEE ANGUS

(By A.R.K.)

¶ Wee Angus' pockets are not deep, and yet they seem to hold a heap, he emptied them last night; and all the stuff that they contained, if it could be put down and named, might cause a bit of fright.

¶ For there were holes in them he said, they could be fixed when he's in bed, the holes were rather great; and by the time the patching quit, there wasn't time to rest and sit, for it was rather late.

¶ I sorted o'er the stuff he had, it seemed to interest the lad, no value there at all; three pencils and some picture cards, of string at least a dozen yards, some chalk with which to scrawl.

¶ A last year's dog tag and a string, a key to fit not anything, three nails an inch or so; strap buckle and a piece of gum, a hand-made top not too well done, a watch that doesn't go.

¶ Bicycle tape in quite a chunk, I gazed a while at all that junk, and wondered what it meant; two broken blades a jack knife had, so wrecked the thing looked rather sad, it wasn't worth a cent.

¶ I'd tell Wee Angus come next day, he better throw the stuff away, I valued not his store; but when he saw his treasures there, found pockets all patched up with care—he stowed it back once more.

Our Wolf Hunt Sets Writers Into Action

GLOBE AND MAIL

PAMPERED and petted out of Algoma, a protesting wolf sought the more rigorous life provided by older Ontario, close to the perils of Peterborough.

Life had been good in Algoma until the wolf began to receive unwanted newspaper publicity. The wolf is not a social animal, certainly not a social climber, and he was nauseated by columns of personal matter in the press, even to prolonged discussion of his dietary preferences.

Like an utterly bored human, this wolf decided to get away from it all; away from the glare of publicity in Algoma to seclusion in the forest fastnesses of the Peterboro' district, into which the foolish libel that a wolf wouldn't eat a man had not penetrated. Safety first; and the wild, free life that used to go with it in the Algoma forest; safety of the days when only hunters annoyed and the press knew its place.

This may be only a theory; but who will prove it false? Not the gaudily garbed and grim gunners who invaded the wolf's new sanctuary; not they, because their presence in battle array testified to belief that, somewhere in the forbidding forest about the Village of Apsley, there lurked a lone and hungry wolf. They would not cry "Wolf! Wolf!" knowing there was no wolf. There was a wolf up there; and he came from Algoma. Contention proved.

If recent proceedings in the bush around Apsley—which, incidentally, has had its great day with the hunters—cast reflection on any living thing it is not the wolf. All he had to do was keep out of the way of tramping feet. Hobnailed boots hurt; and it would be humiliating news back in Algoma that, while slumbering, a venturesome pioneering wolf had met death by being stepped on; and the whole sorry business would have been in the papers again, likely with pictures of the lethal brogan that did the foul deed.

But, alas and alack! the end was humiliating, after all. Even an ingenious wolf has his mental lapses. Encouraged by success against armed forces, and probably hungry, this nomadic creatures ventured into a convenient barnyard, where a boy killed it—with an axe.

However, well-balanced individuals, who like to give wild life a chance, will smile exultantly over the failure of as fierce-looking an armed gang as ever posed for a photographer. Even rabbits and squirrels of the district rejoice in this assurance of safety.

TORONTO TELEGRAM

THE WOLF HUNTERS in Peterborough County are having just the luck that might have been expected—they haven't seen a wolf to date. The expedition to a wolf-ridden region recalls the fruitless hunt promoted by Editor Jim Curran of the Soo Star about a dozen years ago, when a gang of armed men tramped over the landscape, hoping that some confiding member of the lupine family would present himself as a target.

There is not one chance in a thousand of wolves venturing within gunshot of a hunter—though it has happened. The wolf is so wiley that he often rejects the most tempting of poisoned baits, or promptly disgorges the poison, and his scent is so keen that he detects the human aroma from afar.

Dogs are of little use in hunting wolves, for the average canine dreads his wild brother—and with good reason. A wolf can slash the average dog to shreds. Years ago old Chief Big Canoe of Georgina Island, Lake Simcoe, told me that once when he was hunting, his two young dogs came rushing out of the bush pursued by wolves. He saved the dogs but they would never venture into the woods again. "Hunter George" Ross, a once famous guide of Beaver Lake, Parry Sound, told me that he had seen a wolf kill his dog—bite it through the kidneys.

While deer hunting on Georgian Bay north of French River in the fall of 1922, a small hound belonging to our party was badly bitten by wolves. One evening the snarling, howling pack attacked him close to camp, and we heard the animal shriek as they caught him. A rifle shot and our shouts chased the wolves away. Strange to say the hound recovered and next year was all right for hunting.

Naturalists assert that there is no authenticated case of a North American wolf ever having killed an adult human being. Replying to a letter I once sent him on the subject, a Soviet scientist stated that despite of tales to the contrary, Russian and Siberian wolves were not man-killers. But an India Year Book I picked up in the Reference Library, Toronto, announced that among the approximately 23,000 natives killed by snakes and wild animals during the preceding 12 months, some 166 had been slain by wolves. The late Rev. Dr. John Wilkie, Toronto Presbyterian missionary, long resident in India, told me that this was so, but that the victims were mostly feeble old folks, invalids and children.

WAR BRINGS NO PEACE

It is stated that the Finns are thinking of arranging for evacuated school children to be sent home-work by post. Surely a gratuitous aggravation of the horrors of war. But a striking testimony, all the same, to the thoroughness of Finland in all departments of life.—London Spectator.

THAT'S FINE

"I put this easy one up only for my very special customers, Mr. Peashot."

—Humorist.

• Toronto Does Not Run Ontario

IN AN ARTICLE in Toronto Saturday Night, Lou Golden expresses alarm at the decrease in the number of daily newspapers in Canada and the fact that they are in control of a fewer number of men than 20 or 40 years ago. He points out that under the democratic system it is dangerous to permit too much power in the hands of a small group.

But even with the number reduced to 97 dailies (there were 119 in 1899) and considering the fact there are 984 weekly, semi-weekly and tri-weekly newspapers (the existence of which Mr. Golden ignores entirely) there does not seem to be much cause for uneasiness. And in spite of all that Mr. Golden says, claims the Owen Sound Sun-Times, there never was a time when the press of Canada was quite so free and frank in expressing itself as at present.

Here in Ontario Mr. Golden sees a special danger. He seems to think that the newspapers may "gang up" in trying to control public opinion and sees a danger that the provincial press simply follows the lead of the Toronto papers. He says:

"Thirty-three publishers control the formation of public opinion in Ontario through the daily press. In actuality the number is much less than that, for most of the small dailies take their lead from the metropolitan papers. So the situation may arise that if Mr. Joseph Atkinson of the Toronto Star, Mr. C. O. Knowles of the Toronto Evening Telegram and Mr. C. George McCullagh of the Toronto Globe and Mail got together on some particular issue their view would be the one that the province as a whole can be made to accept."

Mr. Golden is entirely mistaken in his sizing up of the daily newspapers of Ontario. Any one who follows the editorial columns of these newspapers can tell him that the opinions expressed are usually at wide variance with their Toronto contemporaries. At no time have the Ontario newspapers been so independent and outspoken as they are today. The custom of following the lead of the Toronto press may have existed in the good old days to which Mr. Golden refers when most cities were served by two dailies (One Liberal and the other Conservative). Then there may have been a tendency for a Liberal paper to follow in the paths of The Globe and a Conservative paper to swing along with the Mail and Empire. But party paper is a thing of the past, and with it has passed the condition Mr. Golden fears. And what is true of the daily newspapers also goes for the weeklies of the province, which express themselves independently and frankly and without any idea of accepting Toronto leadership.

• When People Live In Fear

NOTHING very definite emerged yesterday from behind the heavy fog of rumor and foreboding that rolled out from the Dutch-Belgian border over the week-end. The Low Countries are officially reassuring in spite of their heavy precautions; the French are inclined to dismiss the idea of an immediate German assault, though maintaining that German troop concentrations are always held ready to make one at any moment; the Germans disdainfully put it down to just "another fear epidemic based on false reports"—the latter apparently spread by war-mongering French and British governments trying to get the Low Countries into trouble.

That this latter explanation can be seriously advanced is another strange tribute to the Nazi method and the Nazi mentality, says New York Herald Tribune. "Fear epidemics" have become a common-place of the Continent, thanks to a totalitarian advance which again and again has proved the fears well founded.

Time after time the little countries have listened to rumors and nervously thought of their defenses; time after time Berlin or Moscow or Rome has laughed at their timidity or resened their insulting credulity—and time after time the blow has fallen exactly as every one feared it might.

Those little countries are dead now, most of them, and fear has fastened itself upon Europe.

Always to expect the worst has become the first rule of foreign policy; because of nothing more substantial than rumor, nations are bankrupting their treasuries and keeping their citizens by the hundreds of thousands idly under arms; the Dutch and Belgians know that the Germans may keep their word, if it suits them, but they know also that no consideration of law, treaties, decency or humanity would prevent its being broken in a moment if that seemed expedient.

No one dares to trust the Nazi intentions, and the "fear epidemic" is simply practical politics. But it is an odd achievement for the Nazis to boast of.

Perhaps there is nothing in the scare this time. Wether conditions would seem to be adverse, and if the Germans were at the bottom of the excitement perhaps it was only as a means of putting pressure on the Low Countries to be less acquiescent under the British blockade, or of giving pause to the Scandinavian neutrals, who are now talking very boldly to Moscow.

But the fear is there and there it will remain. Because of it the Dutch and Belgians have already rendered a true blitzkrieg on the Polish model impossible—that calls for air attack before mobilization—but as long as the road through Holland and Belgium continues to offer the Germans the maximum promise of military gains for the blood expended, fear and rumor will continue to rule Dutch and Belgian policy. That is the kind of Europe which Hitler has created.

SIGNIFICANT INCIDENT

A TORONTO newspaper one day last week carried a picture of more than ordinary significance at this time. It depicted Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn with his arm about the shoulder of his former Cabinet Minister, Hon. David A. Croll, who was in the kilt uniform of the Essex Scottish Regiment, of which he is now a member. It was significant in two ways. Judging by their smiling countenances, both have forgotten the rift of a few years ago when the then Minister of Public Welfare resigned over the C.I.O. issue. At least all traces of ill-will had been banished.

Of even greater significance was the fact that the Premier of Ontario, often considered a dictator in his own right, was seen demonstrating his esteem and admiration for a young Jewish man who had sacrificed his career to join the colors of his adopted country. Contrast that picture with one of Hitler, the dictator par excellence, as he consigns thousands of Jews to the Nazi concentration camps, where torture and death are the daily bill-of-fare. Such is the difference between democracy and totalitarianism. It illustrates clearly the distinction between the modes of life in Germany and in countries of the British Empire. It is to maintain those principles of toleration and individual freedom that we are today fighting against the most ruthless despots of all time. —Simcoe Reformer.

"JUST LIKE HIM"

A TALL MAN wearing a rusty suit and a thoughtful, kindly expression was walking along a street in Washington when he came upon a little girl weeping by a high iron gate. Gently he inquired, "What's the matter, little girl?"

The child explained that she was going on a journey, and that no one had come for her trunk, and she feared she would miss her train.

"How large is the trunk?" he asked.

When he saw the trunk, he lifted it upon his shoulder, and strode down the street toward the railroad station, the little girl trotting along behind him.

When the friends of the accommodating gentleman learned of this incident, they exclaimed, "That's just like him."

SOLDIERS' UNIFORMS

IT IS ONLY comparatively recently that designers of military uniforms gave any thought at all to the comfort of the wearer. A uniform was supposed, first and foremost to look nice, and if it happened to be uncomfortable to wear, that was just the soldier's hard luck.

The uniforms of a century ago, with high, stiff collars, much lace, towering hats, and great constricting belts—how did their wearers ever march and fight at all? — Guelph Mercury.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God....In him was life; and the life was the light of men.—John 1, 1, 4.

To The Editor

MR. HEPBURN AND MR. KING

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—The vote of censure of last Thursday in the provincial legislature, of Mr. King and supported by Mr. Hepburn has reached a stage when it must be taken notice of. Canada is at war and in a war the end of which no man can foresee. As Mr. Manion truly said this is no time for party politics. The government of Canada must receive support. This support will in all probability extend to the approaching general election.

What the people of Canada are most concerned with is support of the British government and so loyally and skilfully has Mr. King done it so far that the British government has repeatedly expressed its gratitude to him. It is therefore the British government which Mr. Hepburn is censuring.

If Mr. Hepburn and the British government are at opposite ends in their estimation of Mr. King, Mr. Hepburn is opposing the British government and his conduct will need explaining. Unless there is some at present unrevealed cause of sufficient weight to turn the popular vote that vote must be, as the British government has plainly intimated, in favor of Mr. King on the war issue. Again I venture to say that this business has become serious.

MEANT THE WATERWAY

WHEN Rt. Hon. Senator Arthur Meighen introduced Hon. James L. Ralston at the National War Loan banquet in Toronto last week, he implored the Canadian Finance Minister not to approve any major undertaking not directly connected with the war effort.

Chairman Mitchell F. Hepburn, Premier of Ontario, applauded the Leader of the Senate loud and long.

Apparently Mr. Hepburn didn't realize that Mr. Meighen was refering as directly and deliberately as he could, to the St. Lawrence waterway scheme which the Ontario Premier is currently sponsoring to aid his province's power problem.—Financial Post.

Constant Hunger For News Played Major Part In Development Of Canada Businessmen Are Told

It's a far cry from the early smoke signals of the North American Indians to the modern newspaper of today but both catered to one of the most dominant factors in everyone's make-up, namely, the constant hunger for news, a factor that has played a major role in the history of this country and which today makes the daily newspaper the most effective and economical advertising medium known to man. Around this proven statement T. G. Vatcher, of the Canadian Daily Newspaper Association's Advertising Bureau gave a most interesting and educational address to members of the Peterborough Business Men's Association at the Empress Hotel last evening.

Al Sharpe, president of the Association, who occupied the chair welcomed the one hundred and twenty men, all business men and factory executives, and he voiced thanks to H. L. Garner, manager of the Peterborough Examiner, who was host to the gathering and who introduced the speaker of the evening. Following the dinner meeting a business meeting of the Association executive was held.

Mr. Vatcher used a large, profusely illustrated book entitled the "Keys To Every Town" to emphasize his statement. He traced the history of news gathering from earliest times when wisps of white smoke floating skyward from hilltops brought news to the scattered Indian tribes, then he mentioned the town criers, the pony express and so down through the centuries to the present day when high speed presses turn out as many as 40,000 newspapers an hour. He said that as the world has grown smaller, the individual's world has grown larger and today each of us is intimately affected by events in faraway places as well as those nearby. News is more vital today than ever before.

News Affects Our Lives

The news of the day intimately affects the lives of every small town family, to the people in the city news is an everyday necessity, the great mass of wage earners everywhere need the news every day and although the lives of people in rural sections differ from those in the city, they too must have the news every day. One thing all these different people have in common—the hunger for the news.

But people turn to the newspapers for more than the news of the day—they turn to the newspaper for interpretation of the news, they turn to them to see the news pictured, for advice, entertainment, and instruction in almost every field of special interest. They turn to the newspapers to see life as it is today with all its glamour, hope, humor and tragedy. Only the local newspaper satisfies the constant desire for local news.

People need the news and this is proven by the fact that the average daily circulation of newspapers in the United States and Canada totals 41,800,000 on weekdays and 30,900,000 on Sundays. To read the newspapers the people of the two countries pay annually the staggering sum of more than $416,000,000, an average of more than $8,000,000 a week. During the past 15 years the average daily circulation of weekday newspapers in both countries increased 26 per cent while the population increased only 17 per cent.

Newspaper circulation goes up sharply on days that big news breaks, for instance when Premier Chamberlain flew to Munich to confer with Hitler and later when the leaders at Munich debated Europe's peace there were substantial increases in the sale of newspapers. Later when war was declared street sales and customer circulation soared to high levels. Further evidence that people need the newspaper is indicated by the fact that they write more than fifty million letters a year to editors seeking help and advice on a thousand different subjects.

Shopping Days Differ

Canada is not one market but a collection of markets, differing widely in living and buying habits. There is a difference in shopping days. For instance the biggest downtown shopping day in Houston, Texas is Monday, in Washington, D.C., it is Friday and in Peterborough it is Saturday.

In dealing with the problems of national advertisers, Mr. Vatcher explained that there is a wide variety in market acceptance and as illustions he remarked that in the city of Pittsburg, 88 per cent of the home use tea, while in Evansville only 51 per cent use it. In San Francisco 67 per cent homes use mayonnaise but in Akron, Ohio, the survey showed only 4.6 per cent. There is a marked difference in points of purchase, for instance Fort Worth, Texas department stores sell 48 per cent of the cosmetics while at San Diego, Cal., they only sell 20.0 per cent. He explained that national advertisers can give their efforts a local touch, and can vary their programs to suit the climate, the habits, new developments and changing conditions.

People Read The Ads

The speaker said one of the most common questions asked by advertisers was "Do people read the ads." In answering he quoted results obtained by C. E. Hooper, Inc. research bureau on actual reader surveys on chosen ads that on an average 45 per cent of the women questioned admitted reading the ad and a survey of men readers on another type of ad revealed a percentage of 55 per cent. Hooper's conclusion as submitted in the survey was that "careful study of reader behavior can lead to but one conclusion, namely: that newspaper space has high potential attention value and this can be increased by the use made of the advertising space," in other words the more attractive an ad the more it will be read. Actual scientific studies on advertising prove that newspaper space when used well will deliver actual reader impressions at lower cost than any other medium.

Above all other advantages newspaper advertising sells goods quivkly and economically. Department stores depend on this type of advertising for their huge daily business. The department stores of the United States and Canada invested $133,600,00 in newspaper advertising in 1938 and their sales for the year totalled $4,028,000,000. Grocers spent $32,500,000 in newspaper advertising using this medium more than any other.

Sold Many Used Cars

Automobile dealers took a larger volume of newspaper advertising than any other medium spending over $23,000,000 and the newspapers have played a major part in the development of the automobile industry. Nothing in North America can match the classified page as a meeting place for buyers and sellers of special merchandise and special services. In 1938 $104,500,000 worth of classified advertising was bought and an interesting feature on this particular type of advertising is related by A. Holmes, president of Mallon Suburban Motors, Irvington, New Jersey, who sold $119,759.00 worth of used cars through classified ads in four months, spending a total sum of $2,217.99 or an actual advertising cost per unit of $4.07. This means that 1.85 per cent of his gross sales was used for advertising purposes.

Macy's Department Store in New York, the largest in the world spend ninety per cent of their advertising appropriation for newspaper advertising and their turnover in a year amounts to $91,000,000. Among the various stores which rely on newspapers and which were mentioned by the speaker was Simpson's in Toronto and he read a statement from the advertising manager which announced that nine out of every ten dollars for advertising go to the local newspapers.

In conclusion the speaker summed up by stating that the newspaper is the basic advertising medium, and a proven one. It gives more sales, quick results, economy and builds reputation and is within the reach of every man in business today.

Fred Overend, of the Peterborough Lumber Company, spoke in tribute to the speaker for the fine address and voiced his thanks to Mr. Garner and the Examiner for the fine banquet. Jim Wharry of the Quaker Oats Company, in seconding the vote of thanks, expressed the hope that the speaker might be obtained at a later date to give another talk on a recent survey which is now nearing completion. One of the large books used in the talk is being kept at the Examiner office and is available to any of the advertisers and other business men who wish to look at it.

For Money Making, Sonja Henie Tops 'Em All

Gentlemen, take off those money-making hats, Sonja Henie's the new high-salaried athletic champion. The famous woman skater and movie actress has been drawing in the shekels at the box office on her personal appearance tour at a rate to make the most famous of all sports money-makers, including Babe Ruth, Ty Cobb, Jack Dempsey, Earl Sande, Gene Tunney, Bill Tilden and Eddie Shore, take on the appearance of panhandlers. Sonja's reported to be getting something like $500,000 for 12 weeks' skating and this is her third such tour. And that doesn't take into account her pictures, for which she is said to receive $250,000 apiece. Ruth didn't get as much for 20 years of baseball as Sonja gets in three short tours. Cobb didn't earn as much in 25 years. Tunney's and Dempsey's millions must give way to Sonja's. Earl Sande, the greatest jockey of 'em all, sometimes made as much as $100,000 a year. Tilden pounded the tennis courts for 20 years and came nowhere near making as much as Sonja does for a few whirls about the ice. Shore, top-salaried hockey star, would have to play 30 years to make as much as Sonja makes in 30 days.

England's R E Lee Perks Up On Rest and Oats

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—(AP)—The letter accompanying the scrawny little gelding from London explained "he runs better than he looks." Major Tom McCreery, who's been training the good ones and the bad ones for 37 years, was willing to believe it.

No horse, he figured, could even get to the post, much less run and win, looking like the thin little fellow they unloaded from the boat last fall. And certainly not this one—for he's Robert E. Lee, the undefeated two-year-old champion of England in 1939.

The letter came along with the youngster from Fred Darling, England's No. 1 trainer, who has saddled five derby winners. So that gave Major Tom all the more reason to tell himself there surely was nothing wrong with the horse that a bag or two of oats and some rest wouldn't fix.

That's what Major Tom did. Now Master Bob, although still a little fellow as three years old go, is in winter training at Belmont Park with a view to taking a crack at the Kentucky and American Derby.

Ald. Gordon Proposes Government Level Site Of Proposed Building For Parking Lot

Notice of two forthcoming motions, one formal and the other bluntly informal, was announced at last night's meeting of the Legal Committee by Alderman Gordon and Alderman Stocker.

Alderman Gordon showed the Examiner a copy of his motion requesting the Federal Government to level and clear the area bought on the south side of Charlotte Street as the site of a combined customs and post office, permitting the Council to have control of the property without charge for use as a parking area for automobiles until it is required for building construction; and that a copy of this motion be sent to the Hon. J. A. Cardin, Minister of Public Works, and J. J. Duffus, M.P., asking for his support.

Presumably Alderman Gordon's motion is anticipating the possible decision of the Government to suspend the Peterborough undertaking until after the war.

Alderman Gordon's notice of motion was written to be placed on the Council's file, but Alderman Stocker's was oral and spontaneous.

Some motion was made of drafting a salary schedule for the guidance of the Council, it was said, and at the mere mention of salaries Alderman Stocker said: "I'll move that there be no salary increases except perhaps for one or two juniors. There's nobody suffering that I know of."

Open Golf Title Means Big Money

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—(AP)—Waste no sympathy on Ralph Guldahl as another golf ex-champion. He is doing all right for himself.

Guldahl won the National Open in 1937 and repeated in 1938. Yet in 1939—the year he lost the championship—he made more money than ever before. And he's in the West now on the annual winter circuit, trying to make 1940 even bigger.

"A National Open championship," Guldahl says, "ought to be worth from $23,000 to $25,000 a year for the succeeding five or six years, and a smart champion should cash in on his prestige for the next 10 or 15 years, provided he can keep himself in the limelight."

No Mirrors

It isn't done with mirrors, Guldahl explains. "The profit comes from exhibitions, endorsements, and salaries from equipment manufacturers. "For the last four years I have averaged close to $9,000 a year in prize money. My expenses, travelling and otherwise, ran almost that much. The gravy comes from the sidelines."

The slope-shouldered Mr. Guldahl had no sooner lost his title than he hit the money trail again, striking while the iron was still hot. On a tour that took him through nine states from Ohio to Texas, he gave 45 exhibitions in 50 days.

Playing Both Ends

All the while he was gathering material for another money-making sideline—a handbook on golf. He lectured for 45 minutes before each exhibition, answering questions shot at him by average golfers. He carefully jotted down these questions and answers for future reference. After the tour he used the material in a 30,000-word book.

The handbook, entitled "Groove Your Golf" is unique. In it Guldahl explains, in language as nontechnical as possible, the mechanics of the swing for each of 14 clubs. Hundreds of pictures are so arranged that by rifling the pages the reader may see a "moving-picture" illustration of the stroke. Guldahl, naturally, collects royalties on the book.

NEW PETERBOROUGH BOXING CLUB IS ORGANIZED AT MEETING

Officers Named For Club And Plans Made

The Peterborough Boxing Club was organized, under sponsorship of the Ontario Athletic Commission, at an enthusiastic meeting held last night in the Y. M. C. A. Percy Bond, as chairman, conducted the well-attended session and the groundwork for club organization was laid.

A list of prominent local men was compiled as club patrons and the active executive named. G. H. Roper of the "Y" offered to co-operate with the club until a boxing gym could be chosen within the next few weeks, boxers meantime using the gym in class for physical conditioning. Another meeting of the club will be held next Monday night at seven in the Y. M. C. A..

Mr. Bond reported that a suitable boxing gym had not yet been lined up, but several suggestions were made by the meetng and these will be acted upon by the officers at once. A boxing program may be arranged within two months to permit the club to raise necessary finances for equipment, rent, etc. It was emphasized that the club would give younger boxers every opportunity in the game, and a big turnout is expected when training begins.

Patrons Named.

Patrons passed by the meeting were: Mayor James Hamilton, J. J. Duffus, M. P.; Alex Elliott, M. P. P.; Gordon Matthews, Ross Dobbin, H. A. Morrow, Col. Charles Ackerman, C. A. Salmonsen, J. H. Vernor, Hugh Campbell, Vern Dawson, D. H. Melton, R. E. Cutting, W. R. Breyfogle, J. H. Marshall, Robert Abbott, Chas. Westbrooke, Fred Overend, Gordon Fraser, Dr. F. C. Clark, Dr. R. K. Magee, G. N. Gordon, Judge Smoke, Chief Newhall, Chief Gimblett, Dr. H. R. H. Kenner and Wes Champ. C. M. Richardson. Honorary president is Percy Bond and honorary vice-president is Chris Graham.

Norm Bowler was elected president of the club, with Gord Chapman vice-president, and Pete Gordon secretary-treasurer. The executive includes: Jerry Coughlin, Ted Williams, Bob Merrett, Reg. Lesurf, Harry Low and Art Hunter. This is the working committee.

There was considerable discussion on various details pertaining to the new amateur mitt setup here, with various plans talked over. Many of the details were left over for the officers and executive to decide upon, and these will be reported later when the gym is arranged for and the boxers begin training for their first show. The meeting was quite enthusiastic and definite progress was made.

Louis, Godoy Sign For Madison Square Fiesta

Jacobs Jitters Till Henry Inside Ropes

NEW YORK, Jan. 24. —(AP) — Mike Jacobs, the mayor of Broadways mittville, usually can promote a prize fight without being bothered by a nervous breakdown—but for the last 24 hours he's been as shaky as a hula dancer. All on account of Henry Armstrong.

Henry, with only a single crown left of the three he once had balanced on his head, is going to battle Pedro Montanez in Madison Square Garden tonight in a 15-pound defence of his welterweight title — if something doesn't happen to him beforehand.

The negro champion has a faculty of getting into a mess just before he is supposd to climb into a ring. For example, Jacobs recalls, he dislocated his Sarco-Iliac the day before the Cefferina Garcia match. Then he caught a bad cold before the Lou Ambers bout. And once he hurt his hands in training and couldn't go through with another scheduled scrap.

"I never feel certain that I'm putting on a fight with Armstrong in it until I see him crawl through the ropes," Mike said to day. "That's why I had to threaten to close the box office if he went through a planned training routine today. He'd have probably been hit by a falling crossbeam.

"Yes sir, soon's I see Henry climb into the ring, I walk outside and take a good long drink."

The bookies have made Henry the 1-3 shot to make a successful defence of his title.

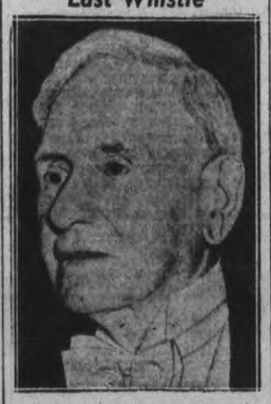
Last Whistle



The last whistle has blown in his beloved football sport for President John DeGruchy, 79, veteran leader of the Ontario Football Union. He died last night in Toronto after being ill for seven weeks.

Canadian Sport Mourns John DeGruchy

TORONTO, Jan. 24 — (CP). — Canadian sport to-day mourned the death of one of the most-loved figures in sport history of the nation—John DeGruchy.

From all parts of the Dominion, sportsmen paid glowing tribute to the 79-year-old leader they knew as "the grand old man of Canadian sport" who died last night.

Interested in all sport activities, football was Mr. DeGruchy's first love. He was president of the Ontario Rugby Football Union and second vice-president of the Canadian Rugby Union.

Funeral services will be held on Friday and the venerable sportsman will be buried in Toronto, the city he adopted as his home since coming to Canada from the Channel Islands as a boy of 17.

Death ended his hopes of seeing the publication of a book on which he was working which traced the origin of football back to Athenian Greece in 200 B.C.

At the helm of the O.R.F.U. for a quarter of a century, Mr. DeGruchy was always boosting the game and endeavoring to better it. But he also succeeded in his business career, devoting 63 years of his life to a manufacturing firm of which he was secretary-treasurer.

Ill Seven Weeks

Mr. DeGruchy had been in ill health for seven weeks and his death was hastened by a tumorous growth on the lower part of the abdomen. He was taken ill while visiting a daughter in Cleveland but returned to Toronto when he gained sufficient strength.

He died with a record unbroken of never missing a Christmas at home. Two days between Christmas this year he was allowed to leave his hospital bed to spend the holiday with his family.

Besides his widow, he is survived by one son, Hal, referee and former football star, and one daughter, Mrs. Gerald Clark of Cleveland, wife of a clergyman there.

To perpetuate the memory of his other son, Reginald, also a former football star, who died a few years ago, Mr. DeGruchy donated the Reg DeGruchy Memorial Trophy, to be competed for by Toronto teams in a pre-season series.

Actively connected with a score of sports organizations at his death, Mr. DeGruchy starred at lacrosse in the '80's. During the First Great War he organized sports for the soldiers, and he was starting similar plans for the current conflict when he became ill.

Officials Regret Death Of Grid President

Local rugby officials today expressed deep regret in the death yesterday in Toronto of the veteran O.R.F.U. president, John DeGruchy. President H. A Cranfield and Manager Walter Jackson of the senior Orfuns agreed that Mr DeGruchy's passing was a great loss to the game. "He was instrumental in getting Peterborough into the senior series," they said, "and he was always a big help to us in football matters. We will miss him at future games and meetings as he had a strong and pleasant personality, and was in love with football."

Lou Brooks, former club president and an O.R.F.U. representative for several years in Central Ontario, termed John DeGruchy "a fine old gentleman whose heart and soul was in this game above all others." He added that he knew the veteran sportsman six years and found him peaceable and gentlemanly at all times. "He straightened out many rugby arguments in a gentle way," Mr. Brooks stated.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

Like colds in the head, Big Six grid rumors are always with us. Both Ted Reeve and Baz O'Meara—ace scribes who may have dipped their pens into a pot of wishful thinking—come up now with the practically guaranteed prediction that 1940 will see but one senior football team in Montreal. Apart, of course, from McGill in the coilitch loop. They claim peace has been made betwixt the warring factions of the Quebec metropolis, the O.R.F.U. team and the Big Four entry. With Porter & Co. of the O.R.F.U. Westmounts pretty much in the saddle. But the hint is there—as big as a war debt—that Mister Porter and his henchmen will take over the Big Four. Whether that means then that Beaches and Imps will be drawn into a Big Six setup, leaving the local gridders to hunt up an intermediate grouping, we dunno—but we have our suspicions. But the setup may flop as it did a year ago.

Industrial Hockey League triple-header tomorrow e'en in the Brock like this: Packers vs. Quakers at 7.30, Brintons vs. Marines at 8.30 and Watercraft vs. Westclox at 9.30. All player lists must be ready at this time. At present, Quakers, Westclox and Marines are atop the heap with two wins and no losses apiece, the others being winless to date. Three lively games are expected again, and the Brintons inform us they'll bust out in a rash of counters or bust a ligament trying! Coach Jim McMartin, with Art Holden the manager, will ice this team: Goal, Corrigan—not One-Way Corrigan, either; defence, Watson and Deadey; centre, Jones; wings, Robinson and Lackey; alternates, Agnew, Henthorne, Scott, Leether and Downer.

Ye T.V.L. Hockey

Manager Alex Kempt relays the info, via dog-sled and carrier pigeon, that Marmora plays the Hornets in Norwood this Friday in a four-point T.V.L. fixture. Minus home ice, the Marmora huskies play all games on the road—that is, in rinks on the road. And they sell at four points apiece, worth as much (in the standing) as two tilts. Alex doesn't know who the heck wished the monicker Hornets on his club, but says the name has stuck. And it's okay with him so long as the gang keeps winnings. Several Peterborough puckists are going okay with the hot Hornets, Archie Weir, Dude Brady, Ike O'Leary and Finnigan Hill.

Belleville Redmen, with the team shaken up like a deck of cards—in fact, they've shuffled Manager Eddie Thomas right into the discard—come here Friday to clash with the Petes in an O.H.A. intermediate "A" fixture. The last appearance of the boys of Greater Belleville this semester in Ashburnham's suburb. With the Jackson boys and Honey Tompkins carrying on an old Deseronto feud, and Ellis rather angry at Storms for slicing his ankle—and Crowe and a few more having a few pet grudges—this farewell fray betwixt the clubs may yet resemble the undeclared war between Soviet Russia and the Finns. Should be quite a tilt, anyway.

Fliers Just So-So

Ken Colling of Belleville says: "After watching Monday's 6-3 win over the rejuvenated Redmen, Toots Holway had better charter one of those large Air Force bombers and streak for all points of the compass, seeking additional playing strength, that is if the Fliers hope to triumph over the Petes in the group finals. True enough, the birdmen are now tied with the Petes, but their play this game failed to impress this corner. For the greater part of the evening, the Redmen were the aggressors and not only carried the play but with any amount of average luck might have emerged winners, Coach St. Louis having the locals in fighting mood. At times the game resembled shinny, despite the fact some good efforts at defensive hockey were seen, too."

Girls' cage schedule for Friday at the Y.W. has been re-arranged somewhat, with a classy men's exhibition game added. This is the setup for this week-end: "Y" Gym vs. St. John's at 6.30, Orfuns vs. Quaker Debs at 7.30, Westclox vs. Quaker Aces at 8.15, and at 9.15 St. Paul's men vs. St. John's lads. Both these latter teams were in Ontario church basketball playdowns last winter, St. Paul's winning the provincial title. St. John's girls will try hard to upset the Gym damsels in order to keep pace with the Aces. Orfuns should beat Debs in a neat scrap, while the Aces-Westclox joust is gonna be hotter than two jilted Judys! The Armour Hill misses need a win to stay in the playoff picture. Sounds like a tasty hoop dish.

Boxing Club Started

Local boxing club was organized last night at a good meeting in the "Y", Percy Bond being in charge. As soon as a suitable mitt gym is located, the boys will get started to train—in the meantime, they were given permish by the "Y" to condition themselves there a few weeks till the training quarters are lined up. Looks like a fine setup and things will start to roll shortly again around these parts in the glove game. Active cssfers elected—apart from patrons and honorary officials—are: President, Norm Bowler; vice-prexy, Gord Chapman; secretary-treasurer, Pete Gordon; committee, Jerry Coughlin, Ted Williams, Bob Merrett, Reg. Lesurf, Harry Low and Art Hunter. A good bunch of workers, keenly interested in the new square deal for boxing (backed by the Ontario Athletic Commish) here. Next meeting will be at seven Monday e'en in the "Y".

John DeGruchy, veteran president of the O.R.F.U., died in Toronto yesterday, and the grid game will miss him muchly. Though interested in many sports, rugby was his passion and the old gentleman sure loved the game. A gentle, kindly man, Mr. DeGruchy—whom we've known five or six years—believed firmly in amateurism, sportsmanship and goodwill toward all. H. A. Cranfield, Walter Jackson and Lou Brooks of this city knew him well and all have expressed regrets at his passing. He aided football to get going here and was instrumental in letting Peterborough get into the senior O.R.F.U. two years ago. Mr. DeGruchy was in this city frequently from time to time in connection with his favorite game, a life-time hobby. Yes, he'll be missed a lot.

Shore In Tangle Over Playing In Road Games

BOSTON, Jan. 24.—(CP)—An unexpected hockey clash developed today when Eddie Shore, National Hockey League all-star defenceman, reported he had been threatened with drastic International-American League action if he fails to play in road games with his Springfield Indians.

Shore notified the Bruins management, which has loaned him for home games with the Indians, that President Nathan Podoleff of the International-American Hockey League, had warned him the Pittsburg club intended to protest last Saturday's Springfield-Providence overtime tie and every future home game he plays in if he failed to participate in tonight's game in that city.

"Shore is the property of the Boston Bruins and has permission to play only in his Springfield club's home game," the Boston management said. "If he plays anywhere outside of Springfield, except for Boston Bruins, we will be forced to take drastic action against him."

Under Shore's agreement with the Bruins, he can be called upon to play for the Bruins in emergencies.

The veteran, who has invested much of his hockey earnings in the Springfield club, played in his first International-American League regulation game on Saturday.

Glen Ross Edges Zion Hill 2-1; Foxes Triumph

TWEED, Jan. 24 (ENS).—In the first game of the double-header of the Centre Hastings League the husky Glen Ross Riversides, who have yet to be trimmed this year, had to hustle to hold their record as the "Fighting Irish" from Zion Hill held them to a slim 2-1 margin on Monday night in a game that could have been anyone's all the way. After a scoreless first period, Martin got the first tally in the second with Armstrong assistin_.

After three minutes of the final period, Brough clicked for the tying goal, assisted by Dickey and Tummon. Midway through the final period Pyear scored the winning goal on a pass from Martin. Playing with only one sub the winners had plenty of strength in the regular lines, with Martin, Armstrong, Pyear and Fraser looking the best. Hagerman played one of his best games of the year in the Glen Ross nets. For the "Irish," Brough, Dickey, Ketcheson, and Bedford were the stalwarts with Simms starring as netminder.

The line-ups:

Glen Ross — Goal, Hagerman; defence, Brown and Fraser; centre, Doug Martin; wings, Armstrong and G. Pyear; subs., Brooks.

Zion Hill — Goal, Simms; defence, Bedford and Dickey; centre, Brough; wings, Tummon and Ketcheson; sub., Ray.

The summary:

First Period.

No score.

Second Period.

1—Glen Ross, Martin (Armstrong).

Third Period.

2—Zion Hill, Brough (Dickey, Martin).

3—Glen Ross, G. Pyear (Martin).

Foxes Blank Ivanhoe.

In the second tilt the Foxes from Foxboro downed Ivanhoe 4-0, with the latter team being short the services of two of their best men, Kirby and Cook. Less than two minutes after the faceoff, C. Thompson scored for the Southerners, and within five minutes Elder rapped home two more to put them three in front. Spencer got the final goal of the game early in the second period. There was no score in the final period which found the weakened Ivanhoe squad pressing all the way.

Ivanhoe have yet to click for a win, with a tie being their best showing to date.

The lineups:

Ivanhoe. — Goal, Delve; defence Reid, Tomilson; centre, Wright; wings, Thompson, Woods; subs., Fleming, Downey.

Foxboro — Goal, N. Guay; defence, N. Guay and G. Walt; centre, Elder; wings, Thompson, Spencer; subs., Wright, Brough, J. Guay, G. Gay, and Dafoe.

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, Jan. 24 — (AP) — Henry Armstrong, who may fight him soon, will personally scout Maine's Paul Junior against Chalky Wright at Portland next week.... Pennsylvania has denied Al Ettore, the old heavyweight, a licence for an attempted come-back. . . Larry Macphail thinks Brooklyn Dodgers have the inside track for Bennie McCoy and Roy Cullenbine, cream of the footloose and fancy free Detroit farm hands.... Madison Square Garden has cut hockey prices. Some of the three buck pews now go for $2.25.

Providence Reds of the International-American hockey League are flying 2,000 miles on a four-game road trip. . . They collected $600 at a benefit for Jimmy Calleran, Piedmont League umpire, whose eyes were injured when a fanatic hit him with a pop bottle last season.

Remember the New Orleans sports writer who quit to become a preacher? .... Well, just to even matters, Rev. Gilbert Rogers, pastor of Kasson's Methodist church, has signed up with the Dodge County (Minn) Republican—as sports editor.

Personals: Old Ted Galigan, one of the best loved golf pros in the country, is beginning his 40th year in the business. Now headquartering at Charlestown, W. Va .... Alan Gould, former A.P. sports editor, was pretty badly shaken up when his automobile tried to get a decision over a truck .... That old feeling has caught up with Pop Foster (who used to managed Jimmy McLarnin) and he has come out of retirement at 66 to handle a young heavy on the coast.

Kitchener Kids Score Three As Boston Wins

(By The Canadian Press.)

Mervyn (Red) Dutton may or may not be a student of Shakespeare but, all in all, it certainly would be an appropriate time for the valiant warrior to burst forth on behalf of National Hockey League fellow-managers with the following paraphrase of a line by the Bard of Avon...

"Double, double, toil and trouble who will burst the Ranger bubble."

For the fifth time this season Dutton's New York Americans proved unable last night to topple their intra-city rivals, the Rangers, as the Blue Shirts sped to a 5-3 victory. But Dutton can find some consolation in the fact that Detroit Red Wings and Boston Bruins still have to gain a victory this season over the Patrickmen although the Bruins found it comparatively simple to defeat Toronto Maple Leafs 4-1 last night.

Bryan Hextall

Victory kept the Rangers in first place in the standing two points ahead of the Bruins.

Featuring the Rangers' attack was Manager Patrick's son, Lynn, and his linemates Clint Smith and Kilby Macdonald. Lynn plugged home three goals, Smith had a goal and two assists, and Macdonald aided in two of Lynn's scores and the tally by Smith. The remaining goal went to Bryan Hextall and made him, with 16, the top goal-getter in the league.

The victory also meant possession for the Rangers of the Macbeth Trophy and the New York city title. The clubs play eight scheduled games against each other and in the five contests to date Rangers have won four and one was drawn.

Murray Armstrong and Buzz Boll paced the Americans attack with a goal and an assist each. Harvey Jackson got the other score for Americans.

The Kraut Line of Milt Schmidt, Bobby Bauer and Woody Dumart had all the say in Boston's triumph over the Leafs. The Bruins, although weakened by injuries and forced to send out Bill (Flash) Hollett for duty both on defence and up on the front line, came through with a powerful third period surge for three goals.

Gus Marker

Toronto's only goal went to Gus Marker. The score coming in the second period, wiped out Bauer's first period tally on a play with Schmidt. But the Bruins really rolled in the last frame as Art Jackson, Dumart and Bauer found openings to beat Goalie Turk Broda.

Last Night's Stars

By The Canadian Press.

Lynn Patrick, Rangers, found the net for three goals in a 5-3 victory over Americans.

Cline Smith and Kilby Macdonald, Rangers, linemates of Patrick's who contributed six scoring points to their team's cause with Smith getting a goal and two assists and Macdonald three assists.

Milt Schmidt, Woody Dumart and Bobby Bauer, Boston, featured a 4-1 victory over Toronto by combining for seven scoring points.

Indians Absorb 6-4 Beating From Ramblers

(By The Canadian Press.)

The present would seem to be as good a time as any for Eddie Shore good a time as any for Eddie Shore to turn loose some of his inspiration on his Springfield Indians of the International-American Hockey League.

The Indians haven't been faring very well of late and look as though they could use some of Owner Eddie's brawn on the defence and inspiration up front. By absorbing a 6-4 beating by Philadelphia Ramblers last night Springfield came dangerously close to dropping to the bottom of the league's Eastern Division.

Shore, who has been granted permission to play for his club, was not in the lineup as the Indians got off to a bad start and they fell short in a third period comeback.

In another game last night, the close Western Division race became even closer as Hershey Bears moved from a last place tie to a second place tie by beating the Cleveland Barons 3-1.

Tail-enders in the Eastern Section, the Ramblers moved to within four points of Springfield and still have two games in hand. They took a 2-1 lead in the first period and increased it to 5-1 early in the third before the Indians started to roll.

US Wheat Loans To Prove Good Investment

CHICAGO, Jan. 24 — (AP). — Wheat worth more than $150,000,000 put up as security by farmers getting United States Government loans loomed today as a bulky asset on the books of thousands of farm producers and as a intricate puzzle to many dealers and processors in the grain trade.

The Government wants its money back, and grain men think they will get it, with interest. But what's to become of the collateral thus "thawed"? they ask. Loans may be called at the end of the next two or three months.

At present there's a profit for all concerned, owing to the war and crop damage in Argentina and the domestic southwest—factors which have lifted wheat prices to around $1 a bushel.

At one time farmers had approximately 166,000,000 bushels of wheat "pawned," obtaining four per cent interest loans from the Government or banks in their communities. Inasmuch as these loans were based at an average rate of about 61 cents, the price rise more than takes care of interest and carrying charges, grain men said.

They estimated that producers have redeemed perhaps 4,000,000 bushels in the past few weeks. There were more than 161,000,000 bushels under loan on January 1.

No Extensions

The Community Credit Corporation announced loans on 3,500,000 bushels of 1938 wheat would not be extended beyond March 31 and that it does not contemplate extending any loans on 1939 grain maturing April 30 except 23,000,000 bushels on farms in the spring wheat zone. Grain men said that if this plan were not changed, approximately 17 per cent of the 1939 crop which has been held off the market to stabilize prices would be "freed" a few weeks prior to the 1940 harvest.

They assumed that if present paper profits are not seriously reduced by lower prices farmers would elect to redeem wheat rather than turn it over to the government in default of loans. This would not necessarily mean that the redeemed wheat would be put on the market, because it could be held or even pledged as collateral again on private loans, they said.

Frost Criticizes

The Premier announced that the bill for an act to amend the clauses in the Act that have been attacked in the courts, would be brought in Friday. The members could study it over the week-end and second reading debate, with no limits on it, could start Monday. As soon as this bill is passed the House will recess while the budget is prepared.

Criticism that Ontario was not represented on the Federal Bacon Board was offered by Mr. Acres. Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Minister of Agriculture, had gone to Saskatchewan for the chairman when the chairman should have been either Hon. P. M. Dewan, Ontario Agriculture Minister, or his deputy.

Ontario Big Contributor.

Ontario would pay 48 to 50 per cent of war costs, said Mr. Acres, and Premier Hepburn and Lt.-Col. George Drew, Conservative leader, were well justified in criticising the Federal effort. The Allies were fighting for justice but Ontario hadn't had justice from the Federal Government.

Liberals who left the chamber rather than vote for or against Premier Hepburn's motion condemning the Federal Government for its "so little effort" in prosecuting the war, were twitted by Mr. Acres. Ninety per cent of the Liberals owed their seat to their leader.

"Twenty or more Liberals jumped up and rushed out like a lot of boys at recess," afid Mr. Acres. Those Liberals voted against Premier Hepburn on his motion "should hang their heads in shame."

"How are you going back to your constituencies and tell the people you ran out," demanded Mr. Acres.

Not Big Enough For Job?

As for Attorney-General Conant, Mr. Acres said he didn't appear to be a big enough man for the job. The legislature had been called into special session last fall to pass a new succession duty act. Now it was found the act was no good. Mr. Conant at the time had twitted Col. Drew about "barnyard law."

"But what kind of law did Mr. Conant put on the books," asked Mr. Acres.

Premier Hepburn denied Mr. Acres suggestion that only Liberal lawyers were consulted in drafting the act. One was a Conservative and the other had no known politics.

James Cooper, Liberal-Sudbury, urged that some body be set up to study farm mortgages in Northern Ontario, mortgages owing to the Province of Ontario on loans issued by the former agricultural development board. There was no use chasing a man off a farm unless somebody else was going to use the land, said Mr. Cooper. It meant only that a farmer settler was added to city relief rolls.

"The government will take a licking on these mortgages," he said. "There's no doubt of that." He estimated $13,000,000 were owing in Northern Ontario on the government mortgages.

The northerner cautioned against neglect of highways and roads even in war time. Ontario couldn't attract tourists if her highways were not maintained properly. He praised the appointment of Douglas Oliver as director of tourist and government publicity and urged that Oliver should be given enough funds to make the department a going concern.

Frost Hits Tax Sales.

Leslie Frost (Con. Victoria) criticized the conduct of tax sales in some Ontario municipalities. While not opposing passage of a bill to confirm tax sales, Mr. Frost said the Legislature might be making itself "a rubber stamp for inefficiency, if not dishonesty."

Mr. Frost told of cases brought to his attention in which tax sales had been entered in the name of the wrong person. Tax sales should not be validated until three years after the expiration of the redemption period, he thought.

Before orders of the day were taken up, Lord Marley, Deputy-Speaker of the House of Lords and Chief Labor Whip in it, spoke to the members. He told them if non-military objectives are attacked by German planes, Britain and France will not hesitate to bomb German industrial centres.

The British peer voiced appreciation of Canada's war effort. He said the training of Air Force pilots will turn out "perhaps to be the greatest contribution to the eventual, successful conclusion of military operations." A great factor in Canada's after-war industrial expansion would be the industrial development brought about by war.

Attorney-General Conant announced that his officers were investigating a pamphlet titled "Soviet Russia and Finland," compiled by a Communist Party committee under the chairmanship of William Lawson, Toronto school trustee. The pamphlet was brought to the notice of the House by Col. Drew.

persons were said to have been killed as they huddled in an air raid shelter. Many were wounded.

The Finns said rescue work was delayed as Soviet aviators followed up the bombing with machine-gun fire. Among the victims, Finns said, were seven nurses and one doctor from a nearby hospital.

Four hospitals were reported damaged in yesterday's raids over Finland.

Military experts feared the raids would be extended on a larger scale with the coming of longer days, giving the Red fliers more light and better flying weather.

(The Leningrad military headquarters of the Russian forces reported artillery fire and scout activity yesterday on the Karelian Isthmus and said "Soviet aviation made reconnoitring and fighting flights.")

In announcing Bishop's appointment to the press the Defence Minisited touched also on other matters pertaining to the air scheme and said the government bought the Eglinton Hunt Club in Toronto for use as an initial training school with a competitive bid of $55,000.

Answering a suggestion from Premier Hepburn that purchase of the club was made to help the Eglinton Hunt out of financial difficulties, the defence minister said: "Our interest was solely in the acquisition of that property for an initial training school."

"Happy Purchase"

The Acting Deputy Minister of Defence, Col. K. S. MacLachlan, termed it "one of the happiest things we have hit upon." He said buildings and grounds are worth about $500,000.

Mr. Rogers also said the Technical Training School now in operation at St. Thomas, Ont., Mental Hospital building is progressing satisfactorily. Here, too, he was replying to criticism from Premier Hepburn.

"To suggest the training school at St. Thomas has failed to meet expectations because it is not at full strength is a mistaken conception," sid Mr. Rogers.

When questioned about whether the offer of the Ontario Government to turn over the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph, Ont., to the Federal Government for use as an air training centre would be accepted, Mr. Rogers said the site is being considered along with several others, and no decision has been reached yet.

It was recalled to the minister that Mr. Hepburn had said Ontario was not particularly anxious to hand over O.A.C. until more adequate use was made of the St. Thomas property.

Mr. Rogers said: "The Ontario Government and goverments of other provinces have undertaken to co-operate in the development of the air training plan as well as in other features of the war effort of the country."

Stevens Charges Patronage In War Orders

EDMONTON, Jan. 24 — (CP). — Hon. H. H. Stevens, Conservative member of Parliament for Kootenay East, charged in addressing Edmonton Conservatives here last night that "political patronage has dominated the Liberal Party in Canada" in the administration of war measures.

"Judging by personal observations and information from unimpeachable sources, in my home city of Vancouver for example, practically everywhere purchases of supplies and other war moves taken by the Canadian Government have been dominated by a desire to fortify the Liberal Party," he told the meeting, sponsored by the Edmonton Central Executive Council of Conservative Associations.

"The taxpayers should not have to lose thousands of dollars because the party in power is fortifying its position," he said. "But that is what is happening.

"When we (Conservative members) know of certain things such as patronage contracts and ask for the papers and records in Parliament, however, we probably will be faced with the governmental reply that it is not in the public interest to disclose the information publicly at this time.

"Whether we turn to the war effort or the internal problems, this Government deserves the condemnation of the country for crass dereliction of duty."

Several thousands of cases of dependent mothers remain to be considered and all such applications will be reviewed in the light of the broadened provisions, according to Arthur MacNamara, chairman of the new board. Investigations will be made by extending the use of existing machinery of the soldier settlement and pensions boards, rather than by setting up a large new staff.

In his statement, Mr. Rogers said a survey by the board showed allowances are being paid to 23,000 family units dependent on soldiers in the Canadian Active Service Force and 7,000 in the Royal Canadian Air Force and that total expenditures up to Dec. 31, 1939, on allowances alone were $4,150,000, not including soldiers' pay, assigned or otherwise.

The navy has its own pay and allowance and further adjustments there must be made by the board, the minister said.

Mr. Rogers said every assistance would be given the board to dispose of the applications of dependent mothers and other relatives (exclusive of wives and children) still to be handled.

Adjustments will be retroactive to the date of the new provisions, Jan. 1, 1940.

Robust Health For Young People

What a common sight it is to see a young person whose bloodless face and feeble frame are evidence of poor circulation and weakness where bounding health and rosy cheeks should reign.

Young people in such a condition are generally of an anæmic nature and require a preparation containing iron to help improve the blood content.

Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills meet this requirement, as they contain three concentrated forms of iron of an easily assimilated nature together with other valuable ingredients indicated for building up the system, strengthening the nerves, and adding to your physical attraction.

Canadian Flax Growers Warned Against Speculative Production

OTTAWA, Jan. 24 — (CP). — A warning to Canadian flax growers to avoid "hectic stimulation" of production and to watch costs closely came today from the Agricultural Supplies committee in a review of the wartime flax situation.

"While there is certain to be an outlet in Great Britain and Northern Ireland for all of the suitable flax fibre and seed which can be produced during the period of the war, there is nothing in the situation to justify belief that such supplies will be required regardless of price," the committee said.

It noted measures being adopted in the United Kingdom and Ireland to expand production there and suggested that shortly after the end of the war cheap fibre, tow and fibre seed from European sources will again be available to the linen industry and Northern Ireland.

"It is important therefore that in wartime expansion or production in Canada, the closest attention should be paid to costs and that hectic stimulation on a speculative basis should be discouraged," the committee said.

The fact that the committee was authorized to take control of fibre flax seed available from 1939 to ensure maximum 1940 production of both seed and fibre, had been interpreted in some quarters as an indication a boom in flax was imminent, the review stated.

Not Too Profitable

It pointed out that Belgium, Holland and Denmark had large supplies available for Northern Ireland. It also was emphasized that fibre flax production for seed alone was not profitable even at warttime prices.

On the cost angle, the committee said maximum production meant most of the 1940 crop would have to be planted in Eastern Canada where labor-saving machinery and milling facilities were available. Production in the West compared unfavorably because of lack of moisture. Costs would also be raised by lack of adequate market for green tow.

"In such circumstances it would be difficult to justify investment in the modern machinery required to pull, deseed and scutch line fibre and tossed flax in view of the fact that the minimum investment for machinery and working capital per unit of 1,000 acres would be at least $45,000."

Ennismore

A most enjoyable social evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. T. Crough on Friday evening, when they entertained the members of the euchre club. The gent's prize was won by John F. Young; the ladies' prize was a tie between Julia Marie Hickson and Margaret O'Donoghue.

Her many friends regret to learn of Mrs. John Shannon's serious illness in St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough. Owing to their mother's illness, Mrs. J. Shine of Jersey City, Mrs. William Sheridan and the Misses Mary, Reg.N.; Eleanor, Reg. N., Regene, and Messrs. Dan. and John Shannon, Jr., all of Buffalo, and Margaret of Lindsay have been called home.

Mrs. Margaret Brick is at present in St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough, having sustained a fractured hip. Mrs. Brick is one of Ennismore's oldest residents.

Mr. and Mrs. John P. Flood, Mr. and Mrs. James S. Harrington and Mr. Eugene Murphy, Jr., attended the funeral of the late Mrs. Michael Ross of Otonabee on Monday morning.

Another one of Ennismore's former residents to pass away, and whose death is generally mourned throughout this community was Mrs. Michael Ross of Otonabee, who died in St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough, recently. Mrs. Ross (formerly Ann Flood) spent all her life in Ennismore prior to her marriage, and during those years was one of the most popular residents. Possessed of a most amiable disposition, the late Mrs. Ross made hosts of friends in the place of her birth, and continued to make many friends during her married life in Otonabee. The most sincere sympathy of this community is extended to Mr. Ross and his sons, also to the deceased brothers and sisters, two of whom, Mr. John P. Flood and Mrs. Mrs. Eugene Murphy, Sr., reside in Ennismore.

Canadian Timber To Fill Britain's Needs

OTTAWA, Jan. 24—(CP)—Great Britain will become increasingly dependent upon Canada for wood requirements as the war progresses and shipping difficulties incident to wartime will open up other markets to Canadian woods, Roland Craig today told the annual convention of the Canadian Society of Forestry Engineers.

Analysing the industry in wartime, Mr. Craig, Chief Forest Economist of the Dominion government said:

"The blockade of the Baltic Sea and the high freight and insurance rates resulting from the indiscriminate submarine and mine warfare conducted by Germany has so dislocated the export trade of northern European countries that Canadian lumber, pulp and paper will be sought to replace in part, at least, the supplies formerly secured from these important wood producing countries."

Canadian timber will be of increasing importance to Britain, he forecast, not only for airplane and other military construction but the civilian uses such as pitprops for mining will be maintained.

Britain will find it difficult to get anything like the volume of timber formerly obtained in the Scandinavian countries because of war hazards. Just what Britain will require from Canada was impossible to ascertain at present, said Mr. Craig.

Request Report On Road Work Done In County

"They are pretty reasonable fellows except that they have told us who to appoint on the Suburban Area Commission. I hope they don't keep it up, and start picking our committees for us."

This was Alderman Gordon's reference to the County Council last night, and especially to the report of the resolution requesting that M. H. Gainey be reappointed to the commission for a period of five years.

The Legal committee, with Alderman Gordon presiding, appointed a committee of five members to consult with a similar committee of the county in determining the apportionment between the two groups of the cost of administration of justice and the upkeep of the court house and jail for the next five years.

Alderman Bradburn moved, seconded by Alderman Ovens, that the committee be composed of Mayor Hamilton, Aldermen Gordon and Dutton, City Clerk Armstrong and City Solicitor Huycke.

Commission Report.

Alderman Gordon said that the County Council last week had decided to appropriate $10,000 to the suburban Area Commission for this year's work. The city was required to contribute an equal sum, and the Department of Highways will pay as much as these two amounts, or $20,000. The expenditure last year was slightly in excess of $40,000.

"I think we should ask our representative on the commission to give us from time to time a report on what money has been expended and where it was spent," Alderman Gordon suggested.

Mayor Hamilton said that Mr. Gainey used to "come here faithfully every year and give a report to the Board of Works of the money spent by the commission, but he got so little encouragement and attention that I think that is why he quit."

Alderman Dutton said the request was a reasonable one.

"I think Mr. Gainey would like to come here," Mayor Hamilton said.

"If he would send us a report that would be enough," Alderman Dutton remarked.

The council has not yet appointed its commissioner for the next five years.

Mayor Hamilton moved, seconded by Alderman Dutton ,that the city's representative on the Suburban Area Commission be requested to provide the council with a report on the committee's work and expenditure twice a year, not later than June 30 and November 30. The resolution is to be sent on to the council.

Watches Costs

OTTAWA, Jan. 24 — (CP) — B. J. Roberts, former Assistant Deputy Finance Minister, has taken over the duties of supervising expenditures in connection with the British Commonwealth air training plan, Defence Ministers Rogers announced yesterday. The three-year $600,000,000 project is expected to entail expenditures of $90,000,000 by September.

His selection followed consultation with the United Kingdom, Australian and New Zealand Governments who participate in financing the undertaking.

Reduced European shipments have increased a demand in Mexico for drugs from the United States.

Board Of Education Asks Council For $265,976 For Year While Estimates Reduced $5,266

The Board of Education's demand upon city council to finance the educational requirements of the city during 1940 will be $265,976, it was decided at a special meeting of the Board Tuesday night at which the revised estimates of the finance committee were adopted.

The sum is slightly in excess of last year's demand, $1,126 more to be exact but the board is actually planning to spend less money than last year, $4,360 les son public schools and $906 on Collegiate and Vocational School, the increase being due to the fact that government grants will be less and that in 1939 the board had the advantage of a substantial surplus carried over from 1938.

This year's demand is made up of $174,140 for public schools and $91,836 for the Collegiate Institute and Vocational School.

The total as finally agreed upon over $10,000 less than the original estimates as presented by G. Wilson Craw, chairman of the finance committee. Mr. Craw in presenting his report, however, made it clear that the committee had not approved of two items in the Collegiate and Vocational School estmates, one of $9,700 for general expenses including equipment and supplies for the vocational school and the other of $9,550 for repairs and furniture which included rewiring old section of Collegiate and was passing the two on to the whole board for consideration.

Estimates Are Pared.

A valient attempt by Alex. Sollitt who with finance chairman Craw had gone over the estimates with a fine-toothed comb, almost reduced the total to last year's figure. After the report of the finance committee had been given Mr. Sollitt went over the various items and proposed a number of reductions, the total of which he said would cut the demand by roughly $13,000.

He pointed out that the estimates of salaries were more than the actual expenditure on salaries last year and proposed that item should be reduced by lopping $1,200 off the public school salaries and $2,600 off the Collegiate salaries item. He also proposed that the fuel account should be cut $500 and the general expense account by $1,354.

The biggest saving advocated by Mr. Sollitt was in connection with the proposed re-wiring of the older part of the Collegiate Institute to provide better lighting.

"I agree that the lighting in that part of the Collegiate is deplorable," said Mr. Sollitt "but this new development of fluorescent lighting by which much less power is required should be investigated before we are committed to a large expenditure on lighting. No new wring would be required for that system."

H. G. Walker pointed out that the Board had secured the advice of probably the most capable electrical man in the province in connection with the re-wiring plans.

A New Development.

D. G. H. Melton, chairman of the Board, said that it was no reflection on this expert that he had said nothing about florescent lighting in his report made early last year because it was a new development.

The Board agreed with Mr. Sollitt that the new type of lighting should be taken into consideration and that it would be a mistake to go ahead with the suggested program in the meantime. As a result it was possible to slash $7,250 off the estimates at one swoop.

The majority were opposed to taking any chances in view of the general situation in regard to the fuel supply and the item was left as originally drawn. The general expense account however was reduced by $1,354 and the vocational committee will be notified accordingly, the decision as to what shall be cut off the list being left to the committee and staff to decide.

After the discussion finance chairman Craw moved the adoption of the estimates as follows and the motion carried unanimously.

Before the estimates were passed reports were presented from the supervision committee, the vocational committee, and the property committee.

Reporting for the supervision committee Dr. C. M. Scott recommended a vote of $750 for supplementary reading in the Public Schools, $800 for manual training and home economic centres as approved by the Department of Education, $70 for filing accommodation for Inspector K. S. Wightman, grants of $300 for the Collegiate library, $300 for scientific apparatus and $100 for art supplies as recommended by Dr. H. R. H. Kenner, and $500 for additional locker accommodation. The committee also outlined a policy in regard to the purchase of equipment and recommended against increased dental service.

The report was adopted.

Reports Presented.

H. G. Walker, chairman of the property committee, submitted the report of that committee, recommending the expenditure of $9,550 for repairs to the Collegiate Institute and to the lighting system, and $8,444 for Public School repairs and furniture.

The report of the vocational advisory committee was presented by T. J. Carley, K.C. It recommended among other things a vote of $3,200 for equipment and supplies for the vocational school and the giving of authority to F. E. Johnston to appoint a teacher to take over the work of W. E. Jackson, who is recovering from an operation.

When the vocational school estimates were under consideration Dr. Kenner remarked that the machine shop at the present time was the most important part of the school. "We cannot train boys fast enough for the manufacturers," he told the Board.

Mr. Carley also stressed the desirability, in view of the fact that Canada is at war, of keeping equipment as up to the mark as possible.

Present at the meeting were D. G. H. Melton, chairman, D. T. Diplock, Mark Burnham, V. J. McElderry, K.C., G. W. Craw, Dr. C. M. Scott, Alex. Sollitt, H. G. Walker, and T. J. Carley, K.C. In the absence through illness of Secretary-treasurer John Huggins, Inspector K. S. Wightman acted as secretary.

Some Aldermen Afraid Of Being Criticized Alderman Stocker Tells Legal Committee

"Some of you are afraid of getting criticism," was the transparent comment of Alderman Stocker at last night's meeting of the Legal Committee. It might have seemed a generality, but actually it was sharply pointed, and flavored with the salt of recent acerbity.

Alderman Stocker took his cue from a remark by Alderman McCannan "that we might be criticized for it."

And that remark related to renewal of the city's public liability insurance.

Alderman Gordon said A. E. Wilson & Company of Toronto, representing Lloyds of England had quoted a certain premium, but Mayor Hamilton advised against immediate acceptance of that company's offer, recalling that V. M. Eastwood had objected to the manner in which the last insurance contract was let.

Mayor Hamilton advised that an opportunity should be given to Mr. Eastwood to put in a bid for this insurance, and at that point of the discussion Alderman McCannan expressed his opinion that tenders for the insurance should be invited by advertisement, giving everybody a chance.

"Otherwise we might be criticized for it," Alderman McCannan observed. And that gave Alderman Stocker an opening which evidently had little or no reference to the subject of insurance. At any rate, the insurance question was left for some other disposition.

Two committees of the council Tuesday night got the 1940 budget-making in motion with a joint increase of $200.

Alderman Gordon's legal committee predicted less activity this year on the social and reception front, and reduced their requisitions from $3,700 to $3,300.

Members of the manufacturers' committee on the other hand persuaded Alderman Bradburn to put down $3,000 instead of the $2,400 allotted last year wth an actual expenditure of $1,661.

In the face of war conditions and its industrial disturbance, Alderman Bradburn said he felt $3,000 was a moderate sum for the purposes of the committee. He advocated a special effort to try to attract industries from the United States and Britain and also to renew advertising of the Kawartha Lakes district, especially to remove any doubts among Americans about spending their holidays in a war time Canada.

Alderman Dutton said the motto of the Kawartha towns should be one for all and all for one, that the tourist business should bring all these municipalities together in a joint publicity effort, that all these places, shared in the business and that individual effort was simply using small shot.

Mayor Hamilton replied that some of the other communities in the Kawartha district wanted to go their own tourist way, that they were jealous and suspicious of anything emanating from Peterborough, and there wasn't much hope of getting their co-operation.

"I should like to give them the chance of refusing," Alderman Dutton said.

In regard to local industries, Alderman Bradburn said he intended to call on them to enlist their support and also to find out whether there was anything the council could do for their benefit.

The estimated of these two committees amount to $6,300 as against $6,100 last year.

Failed To Signal, Driver Is Fined

Entering a written plea of guilty to a charge of failing to signal his intention of making a left hand turn, Scott Wildman, mail man, was fined $5 and 75 cents costs by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in traffic court this morning.

The charge arose out of a traffic accident on Water Street near Argyle Street last week when Wildman's mail truck and a wood truck owned by Charles Young met in collision.

George Dwyer of Haliburton, who pleaded guilty to a charge of speeding, was fined $5 and $3 costs.

Another adjournment was ordered in the charge against Nelson McConnell, Ida, of careless driving. This charge originated from an accident in November at the intersection of Charlotte and Aylmer Streets when Charles Farnham, elderly employee of the Whitaker firm, was injured.

Ralph Standish appeared for McConnel this morning and stated that his client had understood that Mr. Farnham would be unable to appear today and that another adjournment would therefore be necessary.

Reg. J. Chandler was present in the interest of Mr. Farnham, Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry intimated that the charge might possibly be withdrawn because of failure to find any eye-witnesses of the affair.

However the case was finally adjourned until Monday, February 5.

HERE'S TO MORE CHIC!

By ALICE ALDEN

ONCE in a while holidays come and go and, of all outrages, a girl doesn't get a compact. It's then her privilege to indulge in the kind she would adore having as a separate for evening. Choice is unlimited but, considering this little article as jewelry, it should be beautiful. We're showing one of the latest, large enough to hold lots of powder but not a burden in the brocade or beaded bag: gold, rhinestone and amber in a seal-crested motif on a gold square. The slippers of kid-skin have the new transparent plastic heels, pretty on the dance floor yet not too dressy for dinner gowns. They have the heel support many of us demand and conservative cut-outs at the toes.

Chic Costume Jewelry You Can Easily Make

A Bracelet from Safety Pins

So smart and colorful—yet you can easily make this bracelet at home from safety pins and sealing wax!

You need 96 safety pins, half of them large, half small, and one stick of sealing wax in each of these colors: rose, ivory, canary yellow, apple green, royal blue and geranium red.

To apply wax, hold a stick over the flame of an alcohol burner, melt end, and cover closed catch end of pin. Then dip pin in cold water and lay on glass.

To vary colors cleverly, do in each color 8 of the large pins and 8 of the small.

Next string pins on elastic cord—1-16 inch thick and long enough to tie and knot around wrist, plus 2 inches. Finish ends with a drop of wax.

You can make a dainty rose clip from sealing wax too. And now would you like to make a flowerpot necklace of wool and thimbles—or a smart pearl clip from buttons? You can easily!

Complete directions for these and many other pieces of costume jewelry are given in our 32-page booklet. Tells how to turn inexpensive materials into stunning belts, clips, boutonnieres, necklaces, bracelets.

Send 15c in coins or stamps for your copy of COSTUME JEWELLERY YOU CAN EASILY MAKE to Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

Welfare League Has Aided Many Families

A review of Junior Welfare League work in the city indicated a busy year for members during 1939. Many families have been helped—food, clothing, boots and shoes, milk and cod-liver oil having been supplied. The visiting committee located families and investigated their needs; sick children as well as adults were driven by the transportation committee for examination and treatment; dental treatment was given to many children, including children from the Shelter who were transported by the committee to the dentist.

At each meeting Junior Leaguers mend garments that are sent or brought in; make baby layettes; children's pyjamas, and other articles of clothing. Knitting is another form of work done by members, who make sweaters and bonnets in addition to work for the Red Cross. Cutting out material for Red Cross sewing at the Public Library every Wednesday morning is also included in the activities of league members.

The members in turn visit the ladies at Anson House, and each week the Milk and Cod-liver Oil Committee has been busy sending milk and taking cod-liver oil to the underprivileged and undernourished children. At Christmas forty stockings were provided for children in whom the League is interested, each stocking packed with fruit, candy and nuts, and a toy or suitable gift. The Children's Shelter Committee helps the Shelter and Children's Aid Society in many ways and children look forward eargerly to the fortnightly visit on Tuesdays, when members read them bed-time stories.

Arrangements are being made by the Entertainment Committee for the annual dance, which is to be held in the Champlain Hotel on Monday, January 29.

DOROTHY DIX

The Husband Who Puts Up With a Constant Barrage Of Henpecking Does So Either Because He Has No Backbone Or Because He Is a Good Sport In a Bad Bargain.

A BACHELOR who, on account of his unmarried state, admits that the ways of husbands and wives are a mystery which he cannot fathom wants to know why so many men are afraid of their wives.

He says "I used to think, when I heard a man saying 'yes ma'am' to his wife and saw him jumping when she spoke to him, that he was a poor, weak creature who lacked both brains and backbone. But I have known too many brilliant men and too many brave ones not to have found out that that is not true, and that the fact that a man let his wife boss him out of his life is no indication of his character or his conduct outside of the domestic fold.

"Now take my partner, for instance. Jim is a highly intelligent man. Graduated with honor at college. Has travelled and seen much of the world. Great reader. Fine talker, with broad and well-considered opinions, whom every one is glad to listen to. Sound judgment on every subject. You would think a man like that would be the head of his house, wouldn't you? That he would settle the domestic problems about where they would live, how much money they could afford to spend; that he would decide about how the children should be brought up and how they should be educated, and so on.

"But does he? Not a bit of it. He has a little nitwit, half-portion-sized wife with about as much brains as a hysterical hen, and she has Jim so completely cowed that he doesn't dare raise his voice in his own house. She keeps his nose to the grindstone with her extravagance. She is raising the children up to be brats and that is breaking his heart, but he hasn't the nerve to even try to save them. You would think Jim was a softie whom anybody could run over, but he isn't. In business he is a little on the cocky side and a stern disciplinarian with our employes.

"And there is Tom. A war hero with enough medals for bravery to cover his chest. Head of a big business where he manages a thousand men. Yet an abject slave to his wife. How she contrived to get the upper hand of him so completely, nobody knows, but from the day they were married she has been a dictator that makes Hitler look like a benevolent grandpa. The wife tells Tom what to eat, what to wear, whom to associate with, and he wouldn't dream of doing anything so daring as staying downtown to dinner with an old friend, or smoking a cigarette because she disapproves of tobacco.

"I could name a dozen other men I know who haven't a bit more personal liberty than a dog on a leash. They have to eat the namby-pamby food that their wives concoct for them. They have to give up all of their old friends because their wives don't like them. They have to go to the places their wives want to go. Some of them are not even allowed to invite their own families to their houses. Yet these men hold their own in the outside world. They are neither fools nor cowards. And what I would like to know is how their wives manage to break their spirits so completely that they do not even put up a fight for their rights."

I think the explanation of why husbands submit to being henpecked is because of the fear they have of women's tongues. They would rather stand up before a firing squad than before a nagging wife. It is easier to give in to Maria and let her have her way than it is to fight with her over it. They would rather drink weak coffee for breakfast than listen to a harangue every morning of their lives over how bad coffee is for their stomachs. They would rather punch the home time-clock on the dot than endure a curtain lecture about their unpunctuality. And some men suffer a myrtyrdom from tyrannical wives because they are too good sports to welch on a bad bargain.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX — My fiance finds only one fault with me, and that is that I am not a woman's woman. He says that women run the community and that a girl should have friends of her own sex, but I have none, not even among the girls with whom I have grown up. I am quiet during the course of conversation when a lot of women are talking, but I have plenty to say to men. I am not a good mixer with women, but feel at ease with men. If women invite me to places,

Year Of Great Activity Reported By United Church Presbyterial At Twelfth WMS Annual Meeting

A great company of missionary minded women convened in St. Andrew's United Church Tuesday for the twelfth annual meeting of Peterborough Presbyterial of the W. M. S. United Church of Canada, to measure up and weigh the results of the past year's efforts in their many undertakings.

Thwarted by war clouds early in the year and later being compelled to face the great menace of war, not only in the mission fields, China and Japan but a war into which Canada has been called to participate, 1939 has been one of the most trying years. However, the W. M. S. united watchwords still stand as the fortress in times of trouble or distress, "The World for Christ."

do it." "Not by might nor by Power, but by my Spirit, saith the Lord of Hosts."

Long before ten o'clock the hour for opening, a crowd of W. M. S. women had gathered eager 'to be about their Master's business." The busy executive staff had been foresighted in holding a pre-convention session to get business well in hand for a good start.

Since all the detail work of the society devolves upon the executive members, the nominating committee was first to be called and to get its onerous duties settled at once.

With Mrs. R. G. Bird and Mrs. (Dr). C. B Waite as hospitable registrars, delegates were warmly greeted and welcomed to St. Andrew's.

Graciously presiding throughout the sessions of the day, Mrs. W. H. Morton, Presbyterial President, carried out her long program with precision and tack.

"Stewardship' is becoming more and more a standard of W. M. S. service and ran as the theme through the whole day's meeting, which was opened in its service of afternoon and evening worship by Trinity Auxiliaries with "The Stewardship of Prayer," taken with Mrs. Pierce, the president presiding, Miss Myrtle Sargent prayer, Mrs. S. Carver devotional reading and Mrs. D. Huffman, the theme prayer.

The delegates and vistors were officially welcomed in cordial words by the president of St. Andrew's Auxiliary, Mrs. Alan Pilling and on behalf of the delegates, Miss Estelle Hetherington of Millbrook Auxiliary graciously responded.

Very concise and interesting were the minutes of last year as condensed by Mrs. B. W. McClennan.

Business, Courtesy and Resolution Committess were appointed as follows:—Courtesy Committee, Mrs. H. F. Doig of St. James' and Mrs. Basil Tucker of Norwood.

Resolution Committee, Mrs. C. M. Scott and Mrs. A. I. Brown.

Nominating Committee, Mrs. A. Pilling and Mrs. H. Rehill.

A touching tribute of the morning service was the loving tribute paid to the memory of the late Mrs. William Stevens, a former member of the executive staff of Peterborough Presbyterial by Mrs. C.M. Scott, who spoke warmly of her work and influence in the missionary cause. A basket of eight beautiful American Beauty roses, in token of her eight years of faithful service on Peterborough Presbyterial was the gift of her co-workers of Konx United Auxiliary.

Sincere greetings from the Bay of Quinte Conference Branch were read from a letter from the president, Miss Eliza Dunoon, of Lindsay.

The convention was honored with the presence of two members of the W. M. S. Dominion Board, Miss Winnifred Thomas, the General Secretary and Mrs. S. W. Hastings, Community Friendship Secretary, who were invited to the platform by the president and introduced to the convention, with the promise of hearing both these distinguished missionary workers, later on the program.

Officers' Reports.

The reports of officers and department secretaries heard in the interval before noon resulted in an intensely interesting and informative session.

Mrs. H. Alton, as chairman, brought in the report of the nominating committee which was later accepted by the convention.

The department of Christian Stewardship and Finance was presented in a splendid report by Mrs. J. R. Trumpour, the secretary, who summarized encouraging features as increased responsibility for all forms of stewardship. An increase in the number taking part at each meeting and in the number giving systematically by envelope. She also brought greetings from the branch secretary of Christian Stewardship, Mrs. W. L. Smyth of Pembroke.

While the report of the treasurer, Mrs. Howard Clegg, was not so favorable as hoped for, it showed much intensive work on the part of local societies, and due to the new five-year system promises brighter outlook for the future. Earnest prayer in dedication was offered by Mrs. M. I. Robinson of Norwood.

Giving much detail work and the inner workings of the society in a carefully prepared resume, Mrs. R. C. Hanbidge salad: "As we weave together the story of the past year we are grateful to God for the enthusiasm and support of the women of such a great organization."

Five thriving Baby Bands were reported by their enthusiastic secretary, Mrs. H. Alton, who spoke of the splendid work done in preparing bales and through the gift boxes.

The junior group reports were all given in this session, the next being the Mission Band, over which Miss Helen Bannister presides as secretary She reported the organization of three new bands, bringing the total up to fifteen, with a membership of 632, an increase of twenty.

Certificates of award were presented for the first time to St. James', Knox, Springville, Norwood and Lakefield Bands, while stars were added to the certificates of George Street, St. Andrew's and Trinity Bands.

In an interesting report Mrs. A. P. Huffman told the story of affiliated C.G.I.T. work which includes 129 members who contribut $45.00 yearly.

As the energetic Literature secretary, Mrs. Harold Murduff had a fine display of books and leaflets on sale and gave the report showing much activity during the past year.

Four afternoon and one evening auxiliary entered the reading contest sponsored by the Presbyterial, with a total of 628 books read and prizes awarded Fairmount and St. Andrew's.

Covering the seven Mission Circles, Miss Constance Wagar reported much fine work, with "worship" and "study" emphasized at all meetings. The Circle rally in September was an outstanding event at which six Circles were represented.

The Press stressed one or two problems, especially the one arising from the editor's viewpoint re the standard programs with their resulting repetitions.

The scrap book contest, sponsored by this department was won by Mrs. J. A. Porter of Lakefield, a contestant who was highly commended last year.

The quiet half hour of consecration and inspiration conducted by Mrs. A. Hunter of Springville, whose theme was "Beginning Again," was an impressive message of hope for the New Year; after which the guests were invited into the dining hall, where St. Andrew's well-known reputation for hospitality was once more enjoyed.

Stewardship of Talents was the intriguing theme of the afternoon service of worship and conducted in a most convincing way by members of Westwood Auxiliary with Miss Jessie Davidson and Mrs. Clydesdale taking part.

Unique Program

An unique feature of this program was "Treasure Trails," led by Mrs. H. T. Rehill, assisted by vice-presidents and several department heads including Mesdames R. F. McIndoo, W. W. Leonard, J. H. Rowe, A. E. Metcalfe, A. J. Throop, J. Hunter, R. Pakenham, C. M. Scott, and A. I. Brown.

By means of a pseudo radio broadcast, using questions and answers, interesting features of the Supply, Associate Helpers, Community Friendship, Missionary Monthly, Temperance and Candidate work were brought out.

An open forum has always a special interest for W.M.S. workers on the outlook for new and helpful ideas and the opportunity to have their problems solved by one with such authoritative ability to give all the right answers. Miss Winnifred Thomas, general secretary of the W.M.S. Dominion Board, very kindly and graciously performed this difficult task to the satisfaction of every one interested. Some of the puzzling questions included: "The Five-Year Plan," "Methods for Winning New Members," and some practical solutions for problems of routine Auxiliary work.

In response to the roll call a good representative membership stood in their respective groups from every sections of the Presbyterial.

"Community Friendship" was given in an intimate and very appealing close-up by Mrs. S. W. Hastings, Dominion Board Secretary of this department, who won the hearts of her hearers at once.

"There can be no better ideal for national unity and world fellowship, than friendship in communities as carried out by 2,648 strangers' secretaries across Canada.

Speaking of the broadening out of this department, which now functions for the good of the whole communnity, Mrs. Hastings gave vivid word pictures of community friendship in action.

Claiming that human contact counts most, she deplored the loss of that spirit of neighborliness which characterized our pioneer forefathers.

"Until we forget racial prejudices we cannot get far along the friendship road. Friendliness should not be a Sunday formality but a living reality of love and helpfulness. Considering the types of service to be rendered we must be very wise in our selection of secretaries, for personality counts largely. In closing Mrs. Hastings declared: "Only when community friendship is firmly established can we ever hope to have that greater world-wide fellowship for which we are striving today."

The delightful duet, "For A Little Bit of Love," by Mrs. Deck and Mrs. Butcher of Lakefield, was a very pleasing interlude and an appropriate conclusion to the foregoing address.

Taking charge of the election of the large executive staff of officers, Miss Winnifred Thomas officiated in a most capable and pleasing manner and in her charge to the newly-elected officers brought to them a keen sense of responsibility of service and the need of co-operation on the part of the lay members. The slate brought in by the nominating committee and accepted by the convention from the chairman, Mrs. Alton, and duly elected included:

Honorary presidents, Mrs. A. F. Bookhout, Mrs. R. G. Lawlor, B A., Mrs. A. I. Brown; past president, Mrs. C. M. Scott; president, Mrs. W. H. Morton; first vice-president, Mrs. A. Pilling; second vice-president, Mrs. R. F. McIndoo; third vice-president, Mrs. W. W. Leonard; 4th vice president, Mrs. B. Tucker; rec. secretary, Mrs. R. G. Bird; corresponding secretary, Mrs. R. C. Hanbidge; treasurer, Mrs. Howard Clegg; secretary of Christian Stewardship and Finance, Mrs. J. R. Trumpour; secretary of Mission Circles, Miss Constance E. Wagar; secretary of C.G.I.T groups, Mrs. A. P. Huffman; secretary of Mission Bands, Miss Helen Bannister; secretary Baby Bands, Mrs. H. Alton; secretary Associate Helpers(Mrs. J. Hunter; secretary Community Friendship, Mrs. A. J. Throop; secretary Literature, Mrs. Harold Murduff; secretary Missionary Monthly, Miss Estelle Hetherington; secretary Temperance and Christian Citizenship, Mrs. J. H. Rowe; press secretary, Mrs. E. J. Wagar; supply secretary, Mrs. H. T. Rehill; advisory candidate secretary, Mrs. C. M. Scott.

New business and resolutions were next in order and included the appointment of delegates to the school for missionary leaders, Mrs. W. Frise, with Mrs. H. T. Rehill as alternate.

An invitation for the 1941 Presbyterial was extended by St. James' United Auxiliary and accepted on motion of Mrs. C. M. Scott.

Announcement was made of the World's Day of Prayer to be held Friday, Feb. 9 in the Salvation Army Temple, as well as a broadcast service to be conducted by Mrs. G. E. Forbes on February at 4:15 p.m.

The sincere appreciation of the Presbyterian was expressed to Walter Morrow who capably presided at the organ for morning and afternoon sessions.

The resolutions committee, including Miss Helen Bannister and Mrs. E. J. Wagar presented the following:

Resolution which was sent up to the branch for confirmation from this twelfth annual meeting of Peterborough Pesbyterial now assembled. Resolution Temperance: Believing that the liquor traffic, or its use in any way, is not in harmony with God's will for our lives, we, as members of Peterborough W.M.S., hereby reaffirm our stand in opposing this national menace.

Memorial Service.

As a fitting closing to the afternoon session, honor was shown to the beloved members who have been called from their duties here, into higher service during the year. Led by Mrs. A. J. Throop, who paid tribute to the missionary zeal of these departed members she placed a red rose in their remembrance, while Mrs. W. L. Hepburn sang the beautiful solo, "In Summer Land."

The list of deceased members included: Mrs. L. H. Ray, Millbrook; Mrs. J. Carlisle, George Street Church; Mrs. Walton, George Street Church; Mrs. Huffman, George Street Church; Mrs. Stewart, Knox Church; Miss Alice Dawson, Knox Church; Mrs. K. Denoon, Knox Church; Mrs. William Stevens, Knox Church; Mrs. F. Kerr, St. Andrew's United; Mrs. J. Elliott, Trinity United; Mrs. W. Walters, Trinity United; Mrs. Mary Manley, Westwood.

The St. Andrew's ladies were again hostesses at the supper hour, when the greetings of Peterborough Presbytery were extended to the ladies of the Presbyterial by Rev. A. L. Sisco, who commended them upon their splendid efforts.

Mrs. H. F. Doig submitted the report of the courtesy committee, thanking all who had contributed in any way to the success of this twelfth annual meeting.

The new standard of work was outlined and explained by Mrs. A. I. Brown, and all societies urged to subscribe to the ideals being promoted.

Immediately following the supper hour, the "stewardship retreat" was conducted by Mrs. J. R. Trumpour, while conferences of the various departments were also in progress to the mutual benefit of all.

Evening Service.

At the largely attended evening session, Rev. Dr. E. W. Young presided and led the opening service of worship. Fine musical selections were contributed by St. Andrew's choir who sang for their anthem "Hear My Prayer," and by Mrs. Ross Williamson, whose beautiful solo number was "Hark, hark, my Soul," with R. B. Harle, the organist, at the organ.

Again stressing the theme of the day was the interesting playette, "Waked Up," given by the following girls of Knox Mission Circle, Mrs. H. Murduff, Mrs. V. Smith, Misses Eunice Thexton, Jean Hair, Helen Ward, and Irma Darling.

A fitting climax to the inspiration of the day was the challenging and compelling address on the timely subject, "Missions and World Peace" by Miss Winnifred Thomas.

"In this time of terrible suffering and stark tragedy, our faith in good and great causes is being tested. Yet if we look out on the world and see the fruits of foreign missions, they are so outstanding and far-reaching that we cannot but take courage."

In support of this statement Miss Thomas advanced three main proofs which brought conviction. First, as a result of foreign missions, for the first time in history the Christian Church is established in every country in the world. This is not only a geographical fact, but it means that Christ has won followers from every class, race and nationality on the face of the globe. Must not world peace rest ultimately on some such spiritual foundation as the Christian church? In the second place, foreign missions have given amazing proof of Christ's present-day power to transform human lives so that we may overcome bitterness and hatred for other people. Lastly, it is largely through foreign missions that the Christians of the world are drawing closer together in fellowship at such conferences as Oxford, Edinburgh, Madras and Amsterdam. Such a fellowship is a basis for world peace. Only as Christ's spirit controls our individual lives can we achieve a Christian world order and a lasting peace. If we dedicate ourselves anew to these great purposes, we will enable God to achieve world evangelism and world peace.

One of the most successful Presbyterials from an inspirational viewpoint as well as from that of missionary education closed last night on a high note of hope and encouragement when Rev. Dr. Young dismissed the large assembly with the benediction.

Anxious To Fly

So anxious to fly is Miss Paddie Naismith, of England, that she has travelled to New York in the hope she may qualify for a U.S. license as an aerial navigator. Because she lacks a few inches and pounds she failed to come up to the standards required for entrance into the British Air Force auxiliary.

New Ice Age Coming Ocean Mud Indicates –But Its Thousands Of Years Off Yet

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24 — (A P). — The approach of another ice age was forecast to-day by Wilmot H. Bradley of the United States geological survey. Its thousands of years off, however, and has nothing to do with the current cold spell.

Mud from the ocean bottom has shown a fairly regular sequence of hot and cold "spells" in the earth's history, Bradley wrote in the Scientific Monthly, and the world is now in one of its summers of existence.

Dr. Charles Piggot, geophysicist of the Carnegie Institution of Washington, provided Bradley with cores of ocean mud, from two to six feet long, obtained by shooting a steel pipe into the ocean floor at various places of the Atlantic coast.

By analyzing the mud, washed down through countless centuries from the rivers and the melting glaciers which once covered much of the northern Western Hemisphere. Bradley traced the climate record for millions of years.

During the periods of the great glaciers, when life was possible only in areas near the Equator, little sediment was washed into the oceans. When the ice melted, however, huge deposits of mud were swept down by floods.

From this succession of alternate dry and cold, and wet and warm periods, Bradley pieced together the world's weather history. The record indicated that 40,000 to 50,000 years ago the latest age ended, and the glaciers retreated toward the Poles.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, January 25.

While this may be a day of excellent promise, with major interests moving at high pressure, there also are signs of sudden disruptions and upsets of devastating force. The outcome will depend upon the restraint, sagacity, and acumen brought to bear on critical situations in which high objectives and interests are at stake. Through carelessness, impetuosity and overenthusiasm there might be sharp reversals, with domestic reactions.

Those whose birthday it is, although promised a year of excellent opportunity for high attainments and fulfilled ambitions, are also likely to defeat such favorable auguries by rash, over-zealous or too strenuous modes of attack, thus precipitating drastic reversals. These may have devastating effect on the private relations. Make changes with due consideration.

A child born on this day may be efficient, energetic, and ambitious, but restless or erratic tendencies may provoke its defeat, as its fine qualities may rate but mediocre success.

Dorothy Dix

I usually make an excuse and decline. Because I have no women friends my fiance fears that after we are married I will be lonesome. Can you tell me what I must do to make friends with women and get closer to them and to be able to stand up for myself with them and make them like me?—ISOBEL.

ANSWER:

Your fiance is quite right in stressing the importance of a woman having women friends. It is the women who make the wheels go around socially, and any one who does not have some feminine connection is very likely to have a pretty thin time of it.

Especially after marriage when a girl is removed from the camaraderie of the office to her own house where her husband is about the only man she sees, when there are no more beaux, very few parties, not much running around at night, is she sunk if she has no girl friends to go about with, no women's clubs to interest her, no bridge foursomes to belong to, no hen luncheons to go to.

Evidently you are one of the women who have never thought it worth while to cultivate their own sex, so you have a hard job before you. But you can make friends with women by being friendly, showing you are interested in them, and taking as much trouble to please them as if they were men.

Judge's Order Unseats Woman Trustee

Judge Smoke declared vacant on Tuesday afternoon the seat on the Board of Trustees of School Section No. 2 North Monaghan to which Mrs. Ernest Ainslie, King George street, was elected at the annual meeting of the ratepayers during the last week in December.

S. S. No. 2 comprises Mays' and Confederation schools in the suburban area of the township.

Judge Smoke found that Mrs. Ainslie was not a ratepayer of the section. Her name was not listed in the collector's roll which designated her husband as owner of the dwelling and property on King George street although it was stated that she is a joint owner by title.

J. F. Strickland, K. C., who was present at the hearing on behalf of Mrs. Ainslie, requested His Honor to direct that her name be added to the list thereby enabling her to qualify for renomination. Judge Smoke replied that he had no authority to give such an order. Mr. Strickland remarked that his client was being prevented from accepting nomination by the negligence of some official, and that the will of the ratepayers was being obstructed.

In his judgment, Judge Smoke declined to allow costs.

Section of the Act.

The complaint against Mrs. Ainslie's election was made b ytwo ratepayers, J. Arthur Holden and Harry Welch who is one of the three trustees. Mrs. Ainslie was elected for three years as successor to Arthur Pitchford.

The action was taken under subsection three of section 63 of the Public Schools Act.

"The persons qualified to be elected trustees shall be any person who is a British subject, of the full age of twenty-one years, not disqualified under this Act and who is:—

(a) a resident ratepayer whose taxes for school purposes are neither overdue nor unpaid; or

(b) the husband, wife, son or daughter of a person assessed as the owner of a farm if resident on the farm with the assessed owner, provided that all taxes for school purposes payable with respect to such farm are neither overdue nor unpaid;

And no person not so qualified shall be elected or competent to act as trustees."

Subsection four affirms that "for the purpose of subsection three, "farm" shall mean not less than twenty acres of land in the actual occupation of the owner thereof.

According to the evidence, Judge Smoke found that Mrs. Ainslie was not a ratepayer, and it also was shown that her husband is not the owner of a farm of twenty acres. The extent of his property was said to be slightly more than one-eighth of an acre.

Mr. Strickland said that Mrs. Ainslie's name was included in the voters' list of North Monaghan for 1940, and that she and her husband were joint owners of their property.

"And being on the voters list she must be a ratepayer," Mr. Strickland added. "Is the will of the ratepayers to be flouted because of a negligent official? If a person's name is on the voters list, and he offers himself as a candidate for school trustee or councillor or reeve must he trace back to see whether the assessor has carried out his duties?"

"To be a ratepayer Mrs. Ainslie must be assessed. If you agree with me then we would soon settle this matter," Judge Smoke said.

Tax Roll Examined.

Harold Baptie, tax collector, produced the tax roll for 1939, showing that Ernest Ainslie wa sassessed as the owner of his property on King George street, assessed for $800, with $48.57 taxes, all paid.

"We admit that the taxes were not all paid at the time of the nominations for trustees," Mr. Strickland said. "I can say that Mrs. Ainslie's name is not on this roll of 1939, but she has showed me the title to the property as joint owner with her husband."

Mr. Baptie said he had received the roll from the township clerk, Bruce Johnston.

Witness said that the two other trustees are Harry Welch and Walter Bannon.

Each owns less than an acre of land. All Mr. Bannon's taxes for year were registered as paid, but some of Mr. Welch's was not paid. Arthur Pitchford owned one-eighth of an acre with all taxes paid.

"There is no question in my mind," Mr. Strickland said "that my client can be disqualified on non-payment of taxes, but there has been sufficient evidence to indicate some desire on the part of the Board to disregard the will of the electors."

"We are here to deal only with the legal features?" Judge Smoke remarked.

Mr. Strickland then asked His Honor that in view of the fact that the taxes were now paid, and Mrs. Ainslie having purged herself of that element of disqualification, could not an order be given to correct the omission of Mrs. Ainslie's name from the tax roll showing that she was a ratepayer. It was due to the negligence of some township official that her name was not there, Mr. Strickland declared.

"I can't find any authority for that," Judge Smoke replied.

"With a new election to be held, it seems apparent to me that the error should be corrected," Mr. Strickland urged, and that Mrs. Ainslie should be given the opportunity "to again contest the seat."

"I am afraid she will have to wait another year," Judge Smoke answered.

Just as a parenthesis it was afterwards remarked that North Monaghan now follows the same course as the city, prepares in 1939 the assessment roll for 1940 and the roll for 1941 will be prepared this year. On the strength of that practice it was suggested that Mrs. Ainslie might not be qualified for nomination until December 1941.

Judge Smoke stated that he had no authority to direct that Mrs. Ainslie's name be added to the tax roll as a property owner. "Unless I had some definite authority before me to do something for her I don't think I could."

Mr. Strickland said the disqualification was caused by a technicality.

Judge Smoke summed up the case saying that Mrs. Ainslie was not assessed and was not a ratepayer; the fact that her husband was not assessed for twenty acres of farm land made her ineligible to hold a seat. "There may be some action to remove somebody else, but that will have to be only when it arrives."

"I have to declare the seat vacant," His Honor concluded.

"Until such time as Mrs. Ainslie can get on the assessment roll," Mr. Strickland suggested.

Judge Smoke answered that a new election would have to be held forthwith. "I have no opinion as to whether a lady should sit on the school board or not, but I don't see how it could be possible for Mrs. Ainslie to qualify this year. There is nothing in the Assessment Act that allows for any rectification. I must declare the seat vacant, and that is as far as I can go. And there will be no costs."

"TELL BILL GOODBYE"

By Marie Blizard

SYNOPSIS.

THE CHARACTERS:
FABIENNE SEYMOUR, rich, young and beautiful.
NICKY BARTLETT, wealthy and in love with Fabienne.
ELLEN CHAPMAN, young and capable mistres sof Willoughby house.
DR. BILL MALLORY, close friend of Ellen's.

YESTERDAY: Largely as a result of overwork at the settlement house, Fabienne has an attack of influenza. She become Bill's patient.

CHAPTER TWENTY-THREE.

PRUNELLA, the bulk of her filling the doorway to Fabienne's bedroom, looked at the girl on the bed, her great round, black face watchful and affectionate. Over one arm she carried a soft pink blanket, the other balanced a tray that contained a foaming glass of egg-nog and a smaller glass with two capsules in it.

Fabienne opened one eye, looked at the tray and promptly closed it.

A smile that was like sunshine in brown clouds broke out on Prunella's face. She said, "Miz Fabienne, you cain't fool me. You ain't bin asleep."

Fabienne smiled ruefully. "Am I a baby that I have to sleep all day and drink things I don't want to drink?"

"Yas, ma'am, you sho is. You gotta sleep all the time like the doctor sez so's you can git well and strong again."

Fabienne sat up and punched her pillows to show how strong she was after the attack of influenza that had missed becoming pneumonia only by quick and skillful care a fortnight before.

"What time is it?" Fabienne demanded, looking at the long shadows stealing through the window.

"'Bout time for the doctor to come, Miss Fabienne," Prunella told her, advancing with the tray.

Color came and went swiftly these days in Fabienne's transparent cheeks. It came now briefly with embarrassment because Prunella had read her thoughts.

"I got a nice fire in the living room for yo', chile, and yo' couch is all fixed up. Drink this chere egg-nog. Put some fat on yo' bones. Gennelmens like a little fat," she said, laughing her wild, infectious laughter.

Fabienne gave her a crushing glance, but she drank the liqud and swallowed her medicine without offering any rebuke for Prunella's observations.

"Ping or blue today, chile?"

"Pink. And don't forget the ribbon." Pink gave her more animation, made her look prettier.

Prunelle adjusted a soft pink robe, brushed her silken hair and tied a pink hair ribbon to keep it from falling over the girl's face. Illness had washed it of old expressions; it looked young and unprotected; a little girl's face.

Fabienne said, "I can walk in by myself, Prunella. You might make tea for the doctor. He's looking rather tired these days and it's frightfully cold out, I think. What a miserable winter!"

"No wonder he looks tired, Miz Fabienne. Night after night when you wuz so sick, he sat up with yo' lak it meant an awful lot to make you well," Prunella told her, fussing with the pink blanket, tucking it in, making Fabienne comfortable and pretty before the fire.

Fabienne frowned to discourage further revelations. "Go along and make tea, Prunella. How soon did Miss Chapman say she'd be here?"

"She said she don't know. Maybe six, maybe sebben. But yo' is to have yo' supper and git back to bed before she comes."

Fabienne caught her underlip between her teeth. She wished that Ellen were coming now, because deep in her heart she knew that she was treasuring these afternoons alone with Bill. Afternoons that were so hard because they slipped by quickly, deliciously on the wings of conversation that was an hour old before she remembered to talk about Ellen. Always talk about Ellen, she reminded herself, how sweet, how fine Ellen was whenever she found herself and Bill on the precious road of intimacy.

The little things they said to each other that were so meaningless! And yet they were spoken in a little space of time that enclosed only the two of them, building up something between them that other people had not shared.

She knew about Bill now. About the farmhouse where he'd spent his boyhood, the dream of becoming a surgeon; the sacrifices he had had to make to get through medical school and his dreams of the future, working in research with an older friend at a laboratory in Colorado, tracking down the dread germ of paralysis. That was an impossible dream at the present; he had work to do to pay his debts. But some day—

And she told Bill things he didn't know about herself, about her childhood, the gilt on the pattern by which she had lived these years up to a few month before.

They talked of books about which Bill knew nothing and of music which was a passion with him.

He brought her his little phonograph and his books of symphonies. And once he brought her a Persian kitten.

Fabienne put the silky ball of mewing sweetness into Ellen's hands, saying, "Bill brought it to US, Ellen."

Ellen had stroked the soft little head and put it back in Fabienne's eager hands. "I'll be it's aunt," she told her, smiling her serene and undisturbed smile.

Bill christened it "The Sergeant," because it was such a silly name for it.

It greeted him at the door that February afternoon. "Hya, feller?" he said, picking it up gently.

Fabienne laughed at the tableau. "If you mean that raging tiger, he's okay. If you mean me, the same goes. I'm going back to work next week.

He gave Prunella his great coat and came across the room to pick up Fabienne's blue-veined wrist in a cool, professional grasp.

"Anything interesting?" she asked when he held it longer than usual.

He dropped it at once: "You're doing fine. Another week in bed, then a couple of weeks in the south with plenty of sun and you'll be the same old girl—bold, foolish, reckless and—and sweet."

She shook her head stubbornly. "I've got to get back to work. How's my theatre doing?"

"Tough, aren't you?" he said, tickling the kitten's ear, but talking to her. "You can forget that theatre for a little while. We'll talk about that later.

"I want to talk about it now."

"You're not going to," he told her, striding into Prunella's kitchen. He came back a minute later and informed her that he preferred her invalid's food to his own. "I'm staying to supper with you. You can't get away with a whole roast chicken yourself. After that we'll have a little music and then into bed you go."

Oh, this was lovely, listening to immortal music, watching the firelight shadows play over the planes of Bill's listening face, being content, peaceful. Yes, Bill was her friend and that was good.

At half-past seven he got up and came over to her, lifting her easily and carried her into the bedroom.

Prunella put her to bed and Bill came to the door to look at her for a moment, to frown at her severely so that she would not see the delight in his eyes.

And then he was gone.

Prunella opened the window, straightened the things on the dressing table, hung up the pink robe. "Go to sleep, honey," she said. "You know, Miz Fabienne, I knowed that doctor was yo' boy fren' the fust time I seen him come in."

"Nonsense, Prunella! Don't ever say anything like that again! Fabienne said sharply.

"He thinks a mightly lot of you'," Prunella continued, unabashed by Fabienne's outbreak. "I got second sight that way, Miz Fabienne. I knows he loves yo' honey. I kin tell. And yo' ain't so far from loving him neither. You got it writ all over you, chile."

Fabienne looked at her with horror in her big round eyes.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

GET IN THE FIRST LICK

WHEN YOU have two suits worth showing, it generally will pay you to call one of them at your earliest opportunity, so that your next bid will enable your partner to know about both of them. That is especially important in third hand position, after your partner has passed and you know therefore that the side possesses little of value except distribution. By following that policy, you will get into many a profitable contract and also will put your side in position to make a valuable sacrifice bid if your partner fits one of the suits with length in an otherwise worthless hand.

(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

This deal proved important in a team-of-four match. At one table the first three players passed, West opening with 2-No Trumps. After East overcalled with 3-Clubs, South did not dare come in with one of his suits, so passed. West then bid 3-Spades, East 4-Hearts, West 4-No Trumps (Blackwood), East, of course, 5-Clubs, showing no aces; West 5-No Trumps (Blackwood), East 6-Spades, showing three kings, then West 7-Clubs. It was made easily, the West hand being set up by ruffing two diamonds and a spade.

South opened at the other table with 1-Heart because of his two suits in about an average hand. West doubled, East bid 2-Clubs, South 2-Diamonds, and then followed about the same bidding as at the other table, until East and West reached 7-Clubs. At that stage North opened his mouth for the first time, bidding 7-Diamonds as a sacrifice, since he knew about his partner's two suits. West doubled, and it was set six tricks, giving East and West 1,100 points. This was great, though, for North-South, as the grand slam made by their team mates at the other table produced a 1,500 bonus, 500 for game and 140 for tricks—total, 2,140 points. Thus the opening bid by South proved to be worth a net of 1,040 points to the side.

Slipping A Bit

Humboldt, Ia., Jan. 24 (AP)

AS A PANCAKE consumer, Charley Sharp is slipping, but he is still among the best. Sharp, 71-year-old retired farmer, consumed 52 cakes and 29 cups of coffee to win a Pancake Day festival contest here. Last year he ate 55 cakes and drank 33 cups of coffee to take top honors.

Old Pork Barrel

Toronto, Jan. 24 (CP)

PREMIER Mitchell Hepburn disclosed today that the provincial government had offered the facilities of the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph to the Federal government for use as an air training centre, but he added that the Ontario government is "not overly disposed to turn them over after the farce the Dominion government made out of the air force training school at St. Thomas."

Premier Hepburn denounced the purchase of the Eglinton Hunt Club property at Toronto by the defence department for air force purposes as "the rankest sort of political patronage." He suggested the purchase was made to help the club out of financial difficulties and added, "Just the old pork barrel in its most unadulterated form."

Sleigh-riding Party.

The pupils of the Public School enjoyed a sleigh-riding party on Friday evening on the South Gravel Hill, after which return was made to the school for lunch and a social hour. Principal B. B. Dawson had the entire event under his auspices.

An unfortunate incident was the injury sustained to his left arm by Teddy McDowell, in a collision when he had the bone cracked and the flesh torn, necessitating medical attention.

Teddy Stinson was with Teddy when the accident occurred, a parked car well on the roadway, with a team and sleigh approaching from the oposite direction, being responsible for the collision. Teddy Stinson had one leg somewhat injured, and Teddy McDowell was taken at once to the Clinic at Peterborough by the attending physician, Dr. M. E. Hobbs, for an X-ray to determine the extent of his injuries. He was able to go back to school on Monday, but his arm will be carried in a sling for some time.

Footprints Give Clue To Arrest

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 24—(AP)—Footprints in the snow and a hat dropped by a suspect in flight from police bullets led last night to the arrest of a young man, charged with attempting to extort $5,000 from a dyeing company president.

James Howell, unemployed and the father of an infant son, was arrested at the home of his mother and police said he admitted threatening to blow up the plant of William J. Gibbons and kidnap his children.

"I was tired of being poor," the detective quoted him.

Police said Howell told them that when he eluded police Saturday night after they tossed him a bag full of stage money, he felt a bullet whistle between his arm and side. He was not hit.

The footprints were traced to within three blocks of Howell's home. The hat bore the label of a store in the neighborhood.

"Pick Your Target Carefully—"

Fliers of Finland's small, but choice air corps, pick out their targets on a map before taking off on bombing expedition. Men like these played hob with Russian communications—in particular, that lone rail line to Murmansk. Disruption of that link by air raids and ski patrols, has given rise to reports that the Soviet might abandon the northern campaign.

Peterborough District Fall Wheat Reported Among Finest To Be Found In Ontario

"We have in this district the finest lot of Dawson's "Golden Chaff" fall wheat that you'll find anywhere in this province," Frank C. Paterson, agricultural representative, remarked to The Examiner this morning, and he added accents of emphasis to the statement.

Mr. Paterson was telling about the information he has for farmers who need spring grain, for example Renfrew has a hundred cars, and so on down a recently compiled list.

Then he said that Peterborough district did not stand out in that picture, but turn the page to fall wheat and you hear Mr. Paterson sing a song of what has been accomplished by Peterborough district farmers.

"You remember what Art Runions and the Quaker Oats started some years ago. Well, we've got the harvest of that effort today. There is one large section especially, in Cavan, South Monaghan, Otonabee, North Monaghan and Smith, and I doubt very much if it is duplicated in the uniform quality of its fields of Dawson's 'Golden Chaff' anywhere else in Ontario.

"We've got grain growers all around us, and they've done a fine job with fall wheat, but right now we are more interested in spring grains. During the last few weeks the agricultural representatives have prepared a list of the names of farmers who have seed grain for sale, oats and barley particularly. We know where this grain is, and we are advising farmers who want some of it to come in and look over the list and get their supply early."

Erban, Cartier, Vanguard and Alaska varieties of oats have been found from many experiments to be well adapted to this district. Early maturing oats have become popular in the area.

Two More Mills

Toronto, Jan. 24 (CP)

A TWO-MILL INCREASE on the tax rate, establishing the mill rate at over 36 mills—an all-time record—was indicated by Mayor Ralph Day today.

"Unfavorable factors aggregate an almost two-mill increase," the mayor declared. "There are certain offsetting favorable features such as reduction in debt charges of more than $600,000.

"It is nevertheless true that the unfavorable balances are much in excess of the favorable factors. Board of control and council, therefore, have a real task ahead of them."

CAMPBELLFORD

Increase Shown In Membership Of St. Andrew's

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 24. — (ENS).—Even though the losses by death and removal were reported as being extremely heavy, clerk of the session W. J. Harold Dunk indicated the membership of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church had increased from the preceding year. Mr. Dunk delivered the report of the session at the anual congregational meeting which was well attended.

At the opening Rev. B. Simpson Black conducted a brief devotional period after which Ray McCulloch was duly elected chairman and Andrew Milne secretary.

Reports of the Sunday schools at St. Andrew's and in Seymour West were given by A. C. Connor and Ray McCulloch respectively. Both organizations were shown to be in a healthy condition from the point of attendance and finance. Mrs. B. Frederick, treasurer of the choir, reported that all costs had been met and a balance carried forward. Report of the W.M.S. secretary, Mrs. P. B. Nelson and of the treasurer, Mrs. Fred Adamson, indicated that an increasing interest was being taken in this work with a decided improvement over 1939 being shown. All of the funds had been raised by voluntary contribution and had exceeded the allocation.

That the Ladies' Aid Society had contributed substantially towards the re-decorating fund for the church was shown by the statement of the treasurer, Mrs. B. Frederick. Mrs. Chas. Fraser gave the secretary's report. Mrs. H. Greenshield was appointed corresponding secretary in accordance with the request from the society that one should be appointed. The secretary's report of the Young People's Society was presented by Miss Muriel Milne and the treasurer's by Mrs. Chas. Fraser. Both indicated interest in the work had been well maintained and the activities of the Society quite above the average. Miss Muriel Milne, secretary of the Young Women's Mission Circle and Mrs. B. Frederick, the treasurer of the group, read their statements showing a membership of 44. It was emphasized the activities of the organization ran solely along the line of missionary work.

Secretary's report of the Mission Band was presented by Miss Ruth McEachern and treasurer's report by Francis DeCarroll. Total membership was 60. It was indicated that the Band gave liberally toward the general work of the church, also the redecorating rund.

Secretary's report of the decorating committee was presented by Miss Winnifred Hay and treasurer's report by Mrs. Jack Clark. This committee consisted of R. N. Morrison, Jack Clark, Dr. O. C. Watson, Mrs. P. B. Nelson and Miss Winnifred Hay, with the following names added: Mrs. Fred Adamson, Harry Townsend, A. B. Stephens and Walter Scott, whose task was the redecorating of the interior of the church building, also securing funds to take care of the same. This work has been completed at the total cost of $696.12, all of which has been procured from contributions by the people, together with a sum from the sale of sheds voted to this cause by the congregation. All of the work has been paid for and a balance turned over to the managing board.

Votes of appreciation to the decorating committee were moved by W. J. Harold Dunk and Chas. Milne; and to Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hazel for the fine service rendered in connection with the choir by J. C. Anderson; to Mrs. F. F. Long for her services in supplying flowers for decorating the church at the Sababth services, by Chas. McKelvie; and to Rev. and Mrs. B. Simpson Black for their efficient and painstaking services in connection with the work of the church throughout the year, by J. F. McGregor. Rev. Mr. Black spoke briefly, expressing his appreciation for the manner in which the business of the meeting had been carried out and thanked Mr. MacGregor for his very kind words on behalf of himself and Mrs. Black. All members present concurred heartily in these expressions of appreciation.

In the election of officers the name of Gordon McCulloch came forward as the new appointee to the managing board. He will replace J. F. R. Douglas who requested that he be relieved of his duties in this connection.

A motion by Mrs. A. G. Thompson and Mrs. Albert Hazel that a letter be sent to Mr. Douglas expressing the appreciation of the congregation for the splendid service he had rendered during his term of office on the managing board.

At the close of the meeting an enjoyable social time was spent with lunch being served by the ladies of the congregation.

Orphaned By Tragedy

Aroused from her sleep by the sound of gun shots, five-year-old Joan Stephenson, of Bradford, Ont., ran into her parents' bedroom to find her mother and father dead. Police are of the opinion that Frank Stephenson shot his wife and then himself, but are at a loss to explain why as the couple were both popular and prominent in community affairs. Their deaths leave Joan and her nine-month-old sister Marilyn orphans. The children are shown here with their mother.

Nazis Beat Blockade, Wire Cash To Holland, Have Food Forwarded

NEW YORK, Jan. 24 — (CP). — Residents of Germany with friends or relatives in the United States were disclosed today to be augmenting their war rations with packages of foodstuffs "wirelessed" through the British blockade.

Under the scheme as outlined by T. E. Kessemeier, president of a forwarding organization named the Fortra Corporation, money collected in the United States is sent by wireless to neutral countries adjacent to the Reich. Food purchased in those countries is sent to Bremen where it is mailed to recipients.

Kessemeier said officers of the corporation, incorporated under the laws of the State of New York to transact a foreign trading business, are officials detached for the purpose from the staffs of the Hamburg-American and North German Lloyd Steamship Lines. The organization was said to have branches in 16 United States cities.

Kessemeier termed the service a "humanitarian job, for the nourishment of a civilian population." He said that since it organized November 1, with the approval of Adolf Hitler, 30,000 packages of food have been sent to German beneficiaries and claimed the volume of business was at the rate of $1,000,000 a year.

Sums collected from senders sympathetic to Germany prepay all costs. One standardized package, costing the sender $8.50, contains four pounds of butter, three pounds of Holland cheese, a pound of evaporated milk, coffee and cocoa. A "dairy products" package, costing $6.70, contains four pounds of butter, two pounds of cheese and a pound of evaporated milk.

Upon payment in the United States, the beneficiary's name and address in Germany are wirelessed to Bremen while purchasing agents in neutral countries buy foodstuffs. Carloads of the packages are shipped to Bremen, whence they are labelled with the names of the recipients and mailed.

Vote For Women

QUEBEC, Jan. 24—(CP).—In a memorandum presented to the Quebec Government, the Quebec Provincial Federation of Labor to-day urged "more strongly than ever that women of Quebec be granted the right to vote at provincial elections."

"We maintain that this would do away with an injustice which has been in existence already too long toward a number of the population who have amply demanstrated their ability, their demonstrated their ability, their all phases of human activity."

Deutschland Reaches Home, Will Give Her Name To New, Bigger Battleship

Cruiser Luetzow Launched July At Bremen To Yield Her Title To Pocket Craft In Germany's Naval Program Shuffle

BERLIN, Jan. 25—(AP).—The German high command claimed in its communique today that the pocket battleship Deutschland "returned home recently."

The communique said:

"No special events in the west.

"Air force units carried out reconnaissance flights over France and Britain.

"The armored ship Deutschland, which has been conducting mercantile warfare in the Atlantic since the outbreak of war, returned home recently."

It was also said that Adolf Hitler had ordered the Deutschland renamed the Luetzow to reserve the name Deutschland for "a bigger ship."

It was not disclosed whether such a ship was already under construction.

The original Luetzow, a heavy cruiser, also will be renamed.

Luetzow Launched July

The Luetzow, fifth of a new German series of 10,000-ton cruiser, was lanuched at Bremen on July 1.

What its new name will be was not disclosed.

The Deutschland was one of three 10,000-ton pocket battleships which Germany had at the start of the war.

The Admiral Graf Spee, another of that class, was destroyed by its own commander on December 7 off Montevideo, Uruguay, four days after limping into that port following a running fight with three British cruisers.

The third, the Admiral Scheer, was reported widely active in the first months of the war, but the Admiral Graf Spee's crew said they frequently masqueraded as the Admiral Scheer.

British aviators said that in a raid on Kiel on September 4, the day after war was declared, they badly damaged a vessel believed to have been the Admiral Graf Spee. When the Admiral Graf Spee showed up in Montevideo, it was presumed that the pocket battleship which the airmen mentioned may have been the Admiral Scheer instead, since it never has been located beyond doubt on the high seas.

The Deutschland broke into the headlines first when it captured the American merchant City of Flint, subsequently taken from the German prize crew by Norwegian authorities and released. On November 25, the Deutschland sank with shellfire the British armed merchant cruiser Rawalpindi near Iceland.

The only other vessel definitely known to have been sunk by the Deutschland was the British freighter Stonegate on October 23.

On May 29, 1937, the Deutschland was bombed by Spanish Government planes during the Spanish Civil War, 23 of the crew being killed and 83 wounded.

Two days later, Germany warships shelled the Spanish city of Almeria and killed a score of persons in reprisal.

Last March, when Memel was absorbed into the German Reich, the Deutschland carried Hitler there.

Two Moons

Philadelphia, Jan. 25 (AP)

PHILADELPIANS saw two moons in the sky last night. What's more, I. M. Levitt, astronomical expert at Franklin Institute, said there was nothing wrong with their sight. The second, he explained, was a "mock" moon, caused by drifting particles of snow and ice, a comparatively rare phenomenon.

Steel, Textiles Lead Upswing Over Province

TORONTO, Jan. 25 (CP)—Improvement in Ontario industrial conditions is most pronounced in steel and textiles, according to the weekly labor report issued today by Labor Minister Norman Hipel. War orders are also stepping up activities in other manufacturing lines.

Brantford reported improvement that has developed in recent months is being maintained. Primary departments of iron and steel establishments are showing increased activity and registration of unemployed is steadily decreasing.

Two tobacco firms in the Chatham area are working at full capacity and a textile company is working full time, while at Fort William aircraft mechanics were being sought.

An electrical firm at Guelph is turning out 160 motors a day while textile firms are busy. A bridge company at Hamilton is opening one of their plants which has been closed for a year. Industries manufacturing automobile tires and accessories, railroad stock and practically all lines of textiles are running full strength. Firms have received war orders for barracks supplies, uniforms, food supplies and shoe polish. Unemployed are warned there are sufficient men in the city to supply demands.

More Men Called

A cereal firm at London has taken back many old employees and report their outlook is good. Shoe factories are very busy as are box and printing plants.

A large soup company at New Toronto is much busier than a year ago, while a can company has called back some old employees.

Loot Found From Four Raids Upon Service Stations In District About Oshawa

One Captive Found To Be Wounded In Thigh Result Of Shot At Pickering As Owner Fires At Gang Prying Door

TORONTO, Jan. 25 — (CP). — After a whirlwind trail of crime blazed across the south end of Ontario county, five men, one suffering from a bullet wound in the thigh, were trapped in a Toronto police net early today when a squad of police raided a house on Miller Avenue.

The raid came as the climax to a series of robberies of service stations and garages at Pickering, Whitby, Oshawa and Harmony by a group of young men operating in a stolen car. A large quantity of loot, including radios, shotgun, batteries, tools and other merchandise was recovered by the police.

Under arrest are Dayton Platten 19, the wounded youth; Bruce Rodden, 20; Jamese Tomlinson, 20; Leonard Elonar, 18, and Robert Weir, 23.

Platten was removed to hospital under police guard for a minor operation on the wound. Hospital officials stated that the wound was not of a serious nature, the bullet having passed through the flesh. All were booked on charges of shopbreaking, retaining stolen goods and theft of a car.

The car used by the men, according to police, was stolen from the garage of Col. A. W. Langmuir.

The serie sof robberies began at Harmony, just east of Oshawa early yesterday.

Platten was wounded near Pickering. Stopping about a mile west of the village, the thieves attempted entry at Ernest Cook's garage. Their efforts to jimmy the door were heard by Cook, who looked out to find the door half sprung as a bar was being applied. Grabbing a .44 calibre rifle, he fired at the marauders and heard one scream "my God, they've got me."

Before he could fire again, Cook saw two men jump out of a standing car and pick up the wounded man and then head the car for Toronto at high speed.

Some Praise

ALDERSHOT, Jan. 25 (CP Cable)—The First Canadian Division, signally honored by a visit from the King yesterday, received yet another royal tribute today.

In time of war it is not customary for the King to send a message following an inspection. The Canadians, however, gave such a sterling account of themselves that His Majesty made an exception in their case.

Through his private secretary, Sir Alexander Hardinge, the King asked that a message be telephoned to Major-General A. G. L. McNaughton, general officer commanding the Canadian Active Service Force, at his divisional headquarters, saying how much the King had enjoyed the visit and expressing thanks for the hospitality.

Finns Stop Russian Attacks With "Heavy Losses" Along Lagoda, Arctic Fronts

Red Divisions In Central Areas, Cut Off Reported Eating Their Horses; Many Tanks Destroyed—Viborg Bombed

HELSINGFORS, Jan. 25—(AP).—Costly Russian attacks northeast of Lake Ladoga and the resumption of long-range shelling of Viborg (Viipuri) by Red army artillery were reported today by the Finnish high command's communique.

"Heavy losses" for the Red army were reported by the Finns to have resulted when the "especially heavy" attacks, continuing all day, were repulsed near Aittojoki.

The Soviet forces "again lost several hundred killed" by the time the attacks were turned back this morning, the Finnish communique said, reporting additional success in repulsing enemy thrusts in the far north.

Russian pounding against Finnish defence lines near Holleanjoki "continued at intervals throughout the night," the communique said. Three Soviet tanks were destroyed on this front.

On the central front a Soviet blow was warded off near Markajaervi and two similar attacks repulsed in the far northern Petsamo region, where two more tanks were destroyed, the Finns declared.

Viborg Escapes Lightly.

Artillery shelling of Viborg, coastal city near the Karelian Isthmus fighting zone, failed to do any damage, the Finns said.

Snowy weather prevented air activity over Finland yesterday "except for minor raids" on Kuusamo and the Aaland Islands, on the sea route to Sweden across the Gulf of Bothnia.

A Finnish merchant ship was sunk in the raid.

—Hit-skip tactics of Finland's ski-ing sharp-shooters are frustrating Russian mechanized units and are in large measure responsible for the entrapment of a big red army force northeast of Lake Ladoga, Finnish sources reported today.

Russian tank crews are so provoked by the white-clad ski troops that they often send their theoretically formidable machines barging about in futile circles in search of their tormentors, the Finns said.

Excitement is growing in Helsingfors, where Finns made it appear that something "big" is brewing northeast of the lake.

Two Diphtheria Deaths Alarm Village

ST. JOSEPH DE BEAUCE, Que., Jan. 25—(CP). — Two diphtheria deaths and several other cases of the disease brought provincial medical authorities today to this little Beauce County town of 1,600 persons. A health department official said he did not think the disease would spread because most of the children here are inoculater against it.

Two sons of Mr. and Mrs. Aurele Poulin died yesterday. They were eight and five years of age. Five or six other cases were reported to have broken out among three families. The afflicted children are being attended by doctors and nurses of a sanitary health unit.

Britain Calling Men 20-23 For February 17

LONDON, Jan. 25—(CP).—The government today announced 250,000 men aged 20 through 23 would be registered Feb. 17 for military service, which was considered likely to start about the middle of March.

The order, issued by the ministry of labor and national service, was authorized by the New Year's Day royal proclamation placing at the disposal of military authorities all British subjects between the ages of 19 and 28.

Develpments in the war situation will dictate the speed at which the conscription program is carried out. Men up to 28 years old will be called up at intervals during the year. The process will be speeded up in

Wood Cutter Is Struck On Head By Falling Tree

HASTINGS, Jan. 25 (ENS). — An hour after he had been struck by the butt of a falling tree in a woods near his home, Harry Seeney, 28, of Percy Township, died at his home from concussion of the brain.

The tragedy occurred in a woods near the Seeney home on Wednesday night about five o'clock, when the victim was sawing wood with his brother Charles and Ralph Meyers. They had completed sawing through the butt of a tree and, when it started to topple, all three began to run. The unfortunate Harry tripped in some deep snow and the tree struck him about the head and shoulders rendering him unconscious.

He was carried by Charles and Ralph to his home nearby after the pair had worked feverishly to release him for about ten minutes. Without regaining consciousness, he died an hour after the accident.

Dr. J. A. MacDonald of Hastings was called to the Seeney home from Peterborough, but the youth had died before his arrival. Coroner Dr. C. C. Armstrong of Warkworth investigated the case.

Surviving the victim are his wife, the former Edna Millar, a two-year-old son, three brothers, Ray of Campbellford, Ward of Timmins, and Charles at home; one sister, Mrs. Fred Jones of Omemee.

Youth Gets Bounty

THERE are times when the work of the county clerk and treasurer is not all roses. One of those occasions was on Wednesday when Murray Barrons, the Belmont youth who killed a wolf in his back yard last Saturday morning as contrast and anti-climax to the Kingan Expedition into Apsley, called on Miss Jennie Batten, county treasurer, with the hide of the Cordova wolf, to get the bounty of $15 allowed by the Provincial Government. Then the hide is sent to Toronto and the county is given a rebate of $6 from the Department of Fish and Game. And the wrapping of the wolf pelt is a swift job for which a gas mask should be supplied, for wolves do not sleep in beds of violets. Probably Miss Batten wasn't deeply disappointed last week when Herb Mason and Charlie Kingan returned home from the Chandos bush empty-handed.

Holland Denies Obligation To Enter War

THE HAGUE, Jan. 25.—(AP). — Foreign Minister Eelco Vanklieffens declared to-day that the Netherlands is under no obligation to depart from her policy of strict neutrality.

Thus he closed foreign affair debate in Parliament without mentioning by name Winston Churchill, First Lord of the British Admiralty, who recently voiced the contention that safety of small European states depends on "united action" with the British-French allies.

The foreign minister said:

"From the British side there has come a voice which declared that neutral nations have a juridical obligation as members of the League of Nations to go into the war.

"I strongly deny there is a juridical or a moral obligation for the Netherlands to participate in the war.

"Our task is no collaboration with others. That is a positive attitude and a positive policy and, moreover, our good right."

Frost Real Foe To Red Aces On Bomb Raids

NEW YORK, Jan. 25 — (AP). — A phenomenon which has stumped United States aeronautical engineers for years is adding to the wartime hazards of air fighting in Finland's winter weather.

Airplanes left unprotected in the open overnight frequently refuse to fly at all or, if pilots do manage to get them aloft, they are often vicious and untractable.

The trouble has been traced to film-thin deposits of frost, ice or snow on the wings which are not readily discernible. For reasons engineers have not been able to explain to their own satisfaction, such deposits interrupt the smooth flow of air over the wing in flight and rob it of its lift.

Mystery accidents, in which airplanes have failed to leave the Ship Strikes Mine, Sinks In Minute

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 25.—(AP).—Twelve passengers and 26 crewmen lost their lives to-day when the 1,752-ton Norwegian steamship Biarritz struck a mine and sank in one minute in the North Sea.

The Norwegian steamship Borgholm rescued 12 passengers and seven of the crew, bringing the survivors to Ijmuiden.

The Biarritz went down at 2 a.m. 36 miles northwest of Ijmuiden after a tremendous explosion, which the first officer said was due to a mine.

He said the fact one lifeboat was hanging ready in the davits permitted the 19 survivors to get away. The Borgholm was nearby and rescued them.

Tiny Import Trickle Seen Holding Nazi War Machine In Low Gear

BERLIN, Jan. 25 — (AP). — How long Germany, with raw materials constituting 40 per cent. of her imports in peacetime, can hold out against the wartime Allied blockade is a question perhaps no more than a half-dozen individuals can answer anywhere near accurately. Guesses range from six months to eight years.

Nazis say they are prepared for a war of several years, but what their reserves are and the amounts it is necessary to import are military secrets.

It is no secret, however, that the economic front is Germany's weakness. This point continually is hammered upon, although officials say the existence of food rations and exceedingly strict clothing allowances are a precaution, rather than a necessity.

That reserves are insufficient is indicated, nevertheless, by the stress officials place on Adolf Hitler's peacetime edict to the country that it "must export or die."

Without gold or foreign balances, the only way the Reich can import is through exports. The blockade has trimmed foreign trade 50 per cent.—ruining overseas trade except in the Baltic.

She Needs Freight Cars.

Countries which the actual blockade can not touch—such as the Balkans, Scandinavia, and Russia—have been delivering sufficiently to keep the war machine at its present slow speed. They could deliver more but Germany hasn't enough railway cars, and the neutrals are refusing to permit their cars to leave home during wartime.

Germany is depending upon her back door entrance to the Reich — the Balkans now and Russia later. Hence a close watch is being kept on Allied moves like the British efforts to buy Balkan products for cash and the presence in French-mandated Syria of General Maxim Weygand's army.

Rumor here says the French First Great War hero's forces in Syria may be used to seize Russia's rich Baku oil fields. This and British TORONTO, Jan. 25 (CP)—Alexander Stark, Toronto barrister, today denied Premier Hepburn's assertion in the Ontario Legislature yesterday that arrangements had been made to accord special court treatment to the grandsons of Joseph Atkinson, publisher of the Toronto Star.

Premier Hepburn told the legislature that the boys, sons of H. C. Hindmarsh, vice-president of the Star, had been summonsed on charges arising from splashing red paint over an Oakville schoolhouse. The premier said that under arrangements made to have the case heard by a different magistrate, the charges were closed by having the father pay the $90 damage and having the boys apologize to the TORONTO, Jan. 25 — (CP). — Scheduled today to come off the sidetrack where it was shunted yesterday while Ontario legislators sat back and listened to the clash between Premier Mitchell Hepburn and Arthur Roebuck, his former Attorney-General, is the bill to extend to two years terms of persons elected to municipal office.

The Local Government Extension Act, as the measure to be effective February 1, 1941, is titled, reached committee stage yesterday, but only one clause had been dealt with when Premier Hepburn, carefully prepared with files marked private and confidential, moved to the onslaught on Mr. Roebuck; Joseph Atkinson, publisher of The Toronto Daily Star, and Lewis Duncan, prominent Liberal lawyer who January 1 last was candidate for the Toronto mayoralty.

It was another of those explosions for which the Ontario House was unprepared—though the Premier was. Intensity of the attack took Mr. Roebuck by surprise, but he matched language with the Premier.

UK Paying 2 Cents Above US Prices For Bacon, Deal Critics Answered

TORONTO, Jan. 25 (CP) — If Great Britain had decided to handle its bacon buying as a cold, business proposition, it could have gone to the United States and purchased bacon hogs at two to three cents less per pound.

This was the reminder given the Ontario legislature commitee today by L. W. Pearsall, secretary-manager of the Canadian bacon board, in discussing criticism of the new bacon agreement between Canada and Great Britain.

There have been some say that the Canadian farmer could have got more money for his hogs if this agreement had not entered into," said Mr. Fearsall. "But Great Britain had to have the bacon and it was prepared to pay all the extraordinary costs in connection with the shipment. Under this contract we are being paid in Canadian funds at Canadian seaboard.

"Looking at it from a cold, business proposition, Great Britain could have gone to the United States and bought its bacon for from two to three cents less."

"They couldn't have done that," interjected Col. T. L. Kennedy (Con. Peel). "Not with 12,000 Canadian boys over there."

Situation Explained

TORONTO, Jan. 25. —(CP)— An agreement between the British Ministry of Food and the Canadian Bacon Board, whereby 5,600,000 pounds of bacon and hams are to be shipped weekly from this country to Great Britain, was outlined to the Legislature's Agriculture committee by L. W. Pearsall, secretary-manager of the Bacon Board here today.

He told of negotiations concerning the huge war-time shipment of hogs and pointed out that from the outset, it was realized a boost in price was needed to cover the increased cost of marine insurance and exchange. He explained that before acting on price, the Bacon Board had conferred with Packers' and Production committees and consolidated the information in the offer presented to the British Ministry of Food.

"We knew that hog production was increasing rapidly," Mr. Pearsall told the committee. "Our view was that what the industry needed was an outlet for the surplus of the product." The Board official revealed that the Canadian group had been against a flat rate agreement but the British authorities had insisted. The Food Ministry had agreed, however, to assist in retention of grade quality of this country's bacon.

Experiment To Test Sensation Of Death Goes Wrong, German Lad Really Dies

OCEANSIDE, N.Y., Jan. 25 — (AP). — The Hans Kuck family (father, mother and son, Walter) came to America from Germany two years ago so that Walter, then 13, would have an opportunity for proper development.

Father Kuck got a job as a hotel cook. Mother Kuck found occasional work as a domestic.

Walter became an honor student at high school, showing brilliance in chemistry. He set up a "lab" in his basement and planned to go to college.

Yesterday, the father was in New York. The mother, leaving for work, kissed Walter, who was in pajamas.

He still was in pajamas and sitting on the kitchen floor when she returned at night.

Over his face was a rubber bathing cap, held in place by aviator's goggles. Tucked under the lower edge of the cap was a rubber bottle. From it, a tube led to an open gas jet.

Walter was dead.

In front of him was a book, Robert Louis Stevenson's eerie tale of how a physician accidentally found a way to transform himself into a depraved being, ("Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde."

After examining Walter's "lab" and library on scientific subjects, Dr. Abraham Freireich, deputy medical examiner, concluded the boy was the victim of a chemical experiment that went wrong, or that he had wanted to feel, as an experiment, the preliminary sensations of dying and had been unable to stop at the preliminary stage.

Craigie Completely Outrages Japs Trying To Oil Over Ship Holdup

TOKYO, Jan. 25—(CP-Havas). — Sir Robert Craigie, the British Ambassador, attempted today to appease Japanese anger over the Asama Maru incident in a communique to the press, giving the British point of view on the incident in which a British warship stopped the Japanese liner near the Japanese coast Sunday and took off 21 Germans of military age. Japan formally protested the action the next day.

The Ambassador's communique explained Great Britain considered the act entirely within her rights as a belligerent and had no thought of damaging Japanese prestige. A copy of the statement was sent to the Foreign Office.

Instead of appeasement, however, the envoy found himself the centre of a new storm of protest. Evening newspapers published his statement accompanied by headlines and comments sharply criticizing the envoy's act in making a statement before Britain's reply to Japan's protest had been received.

Craigie's Effort.

Sir Robert's statement follows:

"Judging from articles appearing in the Japanese press and statements made by many Japanese visitors to this Embassy, I gained the impression that there is a great misapprehension in the Asama Maru case. I should like to assure my friends that the very last thing Great Britain would do is take action derogatory to Japanese prestige.

"It will be seen that the only question really at issue between Great Britain and Japan is whether under international law Germans of military age returning to the Reich under the orders and at the expense of the German government for service in the armed forces may be removed from a neutral ship, or whether this action must be confined to enemy nationals actually serving in Germany's armed forces.

"I think that the question can surely be settled between our governments in a calm atmosphere without arousing anger on either side. In this hope, I have wished to attempt this brief definition of the points at issue as they appear to me."

A Terrible Slip.

The Asahi quoted Yakichiro Suma, Foreign Office spokesman, as telling Japanese newsmen the envoy's action was "arrogant and insulting" and that he found it "truly outrageous" that the Ambassador should have made a statement to the press in the midst of delicate diplomatic negotiations.

The Asahi itself found the com-

PEIPING, Jan. 25.—(AP).—Marshal Wu Pei-Fu, the model warlord who refused to his death to lead a Japanese-sponsored government for conquered portions of China, is on his way to the status of a Chinese God—God of mercy in time of war.

With Lang Ching-Wei, former Chinese premier who did accept the Japanese offer, now at Tsingtao trying to form such a regime and with Chinese Nationalists overjoyed by victory reports from South and Central China, Marshal Wu was given a grandiose funeral yesterday in this North China city.

Cutting Off Of Oil Supply To Germany Is Developing Into a War All In Itself

LONDON, Jan. 25. —(CP) —Great Britain is keeping sharp watch on the world's oil fields with the aim of drying up sources of fuel supply for Germany's war machine, authoritative sources said today.

Because one of Britan's greatest worries is the possibility of German air raids on a large scale to counter British sea power, the drive to buy gasoline that otherwise might fill the tanks of Nazi bombers is one of the chief problems of the economic warfare department. It is working closely in this with the foreign office.

The effort to shoulder Germany out of oil markets supplements the two-way blockade of Germany's commerce in which, informed British sources have disclosed, a wide variety of "contraband" was seized from 25,000 parcel post packages from the Americas examined between October 12 and January 12.

British anxiety momentarily is centered on Rumania and in Iran.

In Rumania, formation of a new oil control board has created the possibility of an increased flow to Germany. The new Rumanian commission has authority to take over companies that disobey its orders and the Allies have warned that any attempt to compel British and French oil companies in Rumania to furnish oil to Germany might "lead to grave complications."

In Iran, Germany has been reported making a determined campaign for a trade increase.

Watching All Producers.

Britain, however, was said to be in contact not only with the governments of Iran and Rumania, but also with various other oil-producing countries—Mexico, for instance.

Ronald Cross, Minister for Economic Warfare, said in a broadcast yesterday that "Germany is practically self-sufficient if the Nazis use their plentiful foodstuffs to feed their people, not their guns."

Mr. Cross was challenging arguments that the British blockade of Germany is inhuman and affects women and children rather than men at the front.

"I am not for a moment suggesting that any methods are justifiable against barbarians, and I do not want to bother you with the legal aspects of our case, but I would like to put before you certain considerations to show that there is nothing in our policy of which you or I need feel ashamed," he said.

"As for Russia, from which the Nazis hope to supply some of their greatest needs, particularly oil and food—Russia has now encountered difficulties of her own.

"The Finnish war will have decreased Russia's exportable stocks of oil, never very large, and put a great strain on her railways, never her strong point. I do not suggest that be taken a small margin per hundredweight which will be set up by the board as a protection against the increased cost of production in the summer.

"The idea that this margin will be held by the board and allowed to accumulate so that in the summer, when the cost of production is greater, we will be able to pay the producers a correspondingly higher price," Mr. Pearsall said. "It is an attempt to level out the price throughout the year."

While the British Ministry had asked for a flat rate price, the Canadian Board had pegged its prices according to quality, the committee was told. The schedule of pricesp aid the farmer in Canada includes 18 grades, with a top price of $17.70 a cwt. for "A" grade, No. 1 selected sizeable.

90 Per Cent A Grade

The secretary-manager went on to explain that approximately 90 per cent of shipments of Canadian bacon are "A" grade.

Kenneth Morrison, manager of the First Ontario Co-operative Packers, Barrie, answered questions of the committee members concerning the agreements and explained benefits to be derived from it.

"There is one real danger, however, and that rests in possibility of over-emphasis on production," said Mr. Morrison, "and a sudden stoppage of hostilities that would leave the producers holding the bag with a lot of hogs."

The Barrie man noted that should the war continue for two or three years, Denmark would probably be unable to import the necessary feeding grains for its sows. The result would be to reduce bacon hog production in Denmark and the extent of bacon and ham it could place on the British market.

"In this event, Canada will be in a position to replace this reduction from Denmark and, by maintaining quality produce, have first place in the Old Country market at conclusion of the war," he said.

ground and crashed at the end of airport runways, have been traced to the presence of light frost or snow on the wing.

The difficulties of winter flying, which Finnish and Russian airmen must add to the dangers of anti-aircraft fire and attacks by enemy planes, do not stop at that.

3 Hours To Warm Up

For three hours prior to takeoff engines must be nursed into temperature ranges where they will function. Almost the instant airplanes come to rest after the completion of a mission, oil must be drained from the engines to keep it from congealing. Fire pots enclosed in canvas tents must be put under the motors in exceptionally cold weather to raise the temperature of the metal to 75 degrees as a guarantee against power failure on takeoff.

No better description of the work entailed in keeping an airplane functioning in below-zero weather has been supplied than accounts of flying operations in the interior of Alaska and in the northern reaches of Canada where hardy fliers have piloted planes through many bitter winters.

There not only the motors but the wings are sheathed when the transports are at rest to prevent accidents. A troublesome but less serious problem encountered aloft by these pilots is the frosting of the cockpit windshield inside during flight. They resort to the use of putty knives or razor blades to scrape off the frost.

SHERBROOKE, Que.—(CP).—Newton Construction Company of Sherbrooke has been awarded a $90,000 contract for construction of temporary quarters for student pilots at the St. Francis Xavier De Brompton flying field, it was announced today. The youths will be trained under the Empire air scheme. Plans call for storage, sheds, hangar, gunnery instruction school, mess and quarters buildings. Work is expected to be completed in June.

LONDON — (CP). — The admiralty announced today that 68 men were missing, instead of the 73 reported Sunday, in the sinking of the destroyer Grenville by a mine or torpedo. Eight others were known to be dead.

OSLO — (AP). — The Norwegian radio said today Russian troops were being concentrated in the Petsamo area of northern Finland and that it might indicate preparations for new action on the Arctic front.

Finn Ship Hits Mine

LONDON — (CP). — Sinking of the 1,333-ton Finnish steamship Onto by a mine in the North Sea was disclosed today when the crew of 18 reached a northeast coast port aboard a Greek vessel. They said the Onto sank Tuesday. It was disclosed at the same time that the Norwegian steamship Ila., 1,580 tons was wrecked last Sunday off the English coast. The crew of 19 was rescued by a lifeboat.

COPENHAGEN — (AP). — As gently as possible, two Danish military planes "bombed" the island of Salthom, near Copenhagen, today with wheat and corn. The "raid" was made at the request of the animal protection society which reported 2,000 wild swans living on the island were in danger of starvation because of the severe winter.

SHANGHAI — (CP - Havas). — Japanese military authorities decreed martial law beginning today for the entire Shanghai region as a precaution against possible demonstrations on Sunday, anniversary of the outbreak of Sino-Japanese hostilities in 1932. Authorities in the International Settlement and French concession also ordered precautionary mobilization of police and the volunteer corps. All roads will be barricaded and house-to-house searches will be made for arms.

LONDON — (CP Cable). — Two hours before the sailing of the destroyer Exmouth, loss of which with all hands was announced yesterday, ordnance artificer Sam Turton of Wombwell, Yorkshire, married his childhood sweetheart, Eleanor, by special license. On Monday Eleanor, who had known 48 hours of married life, received a letter from her husband to say he could be expected home on leave at any moment. On Tuesday came a telegram that she thought would tell her that Sam was en route home. It was the Admiralty's advice that he was "missing."

HELSINGFORS.— (AP)— Twenty buildings were reported damaged today in an air raid on an unidentified village in the interior of Finland.

A British labor delegation, which yesterday inspected bomb damage at Abo (Turku) went today to Tammersfors (Tampere), another city frequently bombed.

GENOA.—(AP)—The French auxiliary naval vessel Forfait, 622 tons, was reported to have sent out a call for help today. The Italian freighter Cellina wirelessed she was steaming to the aid of the French boat, which apparently was somewhere in Western Mediterranean.

Nature of the Forfait's plight was not at once made known.

PARIS.—(AP)— The government warned talkative persons today to guard their tongues under pain of fine or imprisonment.

A new decree provided sentences up to two years and fines up to 5,000 francs (about $110) for "false assertions which, presented as personal opinions, correspond in reality to the keynote of enemy propaganda and which, expressed publicly, indicate the marked intention of their authors to injure national defence by attacking the morale of the army and population."

Drifting at Sea.

LONDON.—(CP).—A Netherlands ship to-lay brought to a British port the bodies of four men taken from a raft found drifting in the North Sea. There was nothing to show the nationality of the men.

BRUSSELS.—(AP).—Three members of the Fascist Rexist Party were arrested to-day at Charleroi on spying charges.

They were Jean Perot, chief of Heste Rexists and a frequent visitor to Germany, Joseph Desmedt and Emile De Lattre.

Belgian police Monday seized Flemish Nationalist documents in a search of the offices of two pro-German newspapers in Eupen and the houses of a retired policeman and a member of the pro-German organization, Heimat Front. The searches followed the arrest of a Flemish Nationalist, also accused of spying.

Lewis Predicts Defeat For Roosevelt

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 25—(AP).—John L. Lewis' break with President Roosevelt's new deal policies appeared today to lack the solid support of his United Mine Workers of America.

At least 45 resolutions urging a third term in the presidency for Mr. Roosevelt were reported reliably to have been introduced at the U.M.W. convention. They contrasted with the prediction by Lewis, head of the mine workers and the congress of industrial organizations, that a campaign to re-elect Mr. Roosevelt would result in "ignominious defeat."

Washington, startled by John L. Lewis' prediction of defeat for president if he seeks a third term, was ready to lay odds today that the chief of the congress of industrial organization is thinking of endorsing Senator Burton Wheeler of Montana for the Democratic Party's presidential nomination.

One report circulated in authoritative congressional circles was that

Pomp Eliminated For Opening Of Parliament

OTTAWA, Jan. 25—(CP).—Without the usual pomp and fanfare Canada's parliament swings into action today to begin the first full war session since 1918.

In keeping with the spirit of the times the traditional opening ceremonies have been pared to their historic essentials.

The social program has been eliminated. There will be no cannon salute for His Majesty's representative, no brilliant dress uniforms, no swords, no regalia, no mass of beautifully gowned women.

Instead, the opening of parliament will be marked by the grim seriousness of a nation at war, a nation bending every energy to the defence of its ideals.

Because of that, unusual interest will attach to the Speech from the Throne, read by Lord Tweedsmuir to members of both Senate and House of Commons assembled in the Senate Chamber. In it members and the nation at large may find re-school principal and the school-board chairman.

The statement by Mr. Stark, who acted in behalf of the boys, said:

"The premier's suggestion that the magistrate who normally would have been trying the case had been replaced by Magistrate McIlveen in order that more favored treatment might be received is absolutely incorrect. The only reason for the presence of Magistrate McIlveen was the fact that he was the judge of the juvenile court of the County of Halton, and certain of the charges had been laid under the juvenile delinquents act, and therefore had, by law, to be tried by him.

"The case was fully reported in the papers at the time, and at the commencement of the case, in open court, I requested that the charges be withdrawn provided the boys wrote letters of apology to the board of education and the school principal, and provided they pay the court costs, and pay also any

"The boys had never been in any trouble of any kind before, and it was pointed out to the court that conviction for a boyish prank of this kind would constitute a black mark on their reputations. Crown-Attorney Dick then told the Magistrate that the charge was a minor one and that it would be unfair to the boys if a conviction were registered against them in view of the offers which had been made to the court.

"In acceding to the request of the defence counsel and the crown, His Worship expressly declared that these boys were not being singled out for special treatment. His Worship advised counsel that the course he was following was similar to what had been done in other instances.

"I am satisfied that there is no magistrate in the province who would have come to any different verdict upon the evidence. Premier Hepburn's assertion that 'had the case been tried by Magistrate Davidson a heavy fine would have been imposed with the option of a jail sentence in addition to an assessment for damages,' is a statement made without any foundation whatever. No fair-minded magistrate would have done any such thing."

Duncan's Statement.

TORONTO, Jan. 25 — (CP). — Commenting on Premier Hepburn's attack on him in the Ontario Legislature yesterday, Lewis Duncan, K.C., of Toronto to-day issued the following statement:

"Public life has reached a low ebb when the Premier of a Province makes false statements against private individuals under the privilege of Parliament. Our democratic way of life is threatened by such gangster tactics."

(Mr. Hepburn described Mr. Duncan as a "grasspy and greedy person" in referring to a bill for legal services paid to Mr. Duncan by the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission.)

Port traffic of Amsterdam, Netherlands, has been halved by the war.

National Feeling Outraged By British Act Japs Prepare Retaliatory Measure Fire Ship Captain, Refuse Nazi Passengers

TOKYO, Jan. 25—(AP).—An Admiralty spokesman, declaring Japan's national sentiments had been "outraged" by removal of 21 German passengers from the Japanese liner Asama Maru by a British naval unit, said today that "the navy is making preparations to prevent such incidents in the future."

The spokesman declingd to divulge the nature of such preparations.

He said he was unwilling to discuss the legal aspects of the German's removal from the Asama Maru near Japan Sunday, but declared, "National feelings are more important than questions of law. The issue lies not in the fact that the Germans were removed, but that the incident occurred at Japan's very front gate."

The Japanese preventive program was said to await Great Britain's reply to a Japanese protest.

The Foreign Office denied it had ordered Japanese ships to cease accepting belligerent nationals as passengers.

(In San Francisco, however, officials of Nippon Yusen Kaisha, the Japan Mail Line, said no more Germans subject to military duty would be accepted as passengers and that Germans seeking passage must make affidavits that they were not eligible for army or navy service, and were not returning to Germany by government order.

(Both the Asama Maru and the Tatuta Maru, which was halted by an unidentified warship between San Francisco and Honolulu, are N.Y.K. ships).

Captain Yoshisada Watanabe of the Asama Maru was retired from active service by the N.Y.K. Line on the grounds of misconduct in connection with the halting of his ship. No further explanation was given.

Chapter Masons Instal Officers

The Corinthian Chapter No. 36 of Royal Arch Masons held their annual installation and banquet in the Masonic Hall, Peterborough, Wednesday night. There were present approximately 90 Royal Arch Masons from Peterborough and surrounding district, with Ex. Comp. W. Alex Donnelly in charge of the meeting and presiding at the banquet.

The toast to the Grand Chapter was very ably proposed by Comp. Stan Adamson and was responded to by Rt. Ex. Comp. Fred Fisher, the Grand Scribe N. Rt. Ex. Comp. Fisher advocated that Royal Arch Masons should take more interest in the welfare of their community and cited as an example that the Companions in the City of Toronto provide transportation for twelve hundred mothers and children each year to and from a summer camp.

The toast to the visitors was proposed by Comp. Fred Hills and responded to by Comp. C. E. LaBranche, who remarked that in his belief the Masonic hospitality in Peterborough exceeded that of any other place where he had been.

Eery Ev. Comp. John Dishart most ably proposed a toast to the absent brethren, during which he pointed out that the local Chapter had members scattered to the four corners of the earth. He also mentioned that Corinthian Chapter had lost through death many very valuable Companions during this past year.

Comp. H. G. H. Melton sang two very appropriate numbers, which were much enjoyed. He was accompanied on the piano by Ex. Comp. F. G. Mann. The gath

A Great National Asset

The method used by the Government at Ottawa to hold up the proposed sale of 1,000,000 bushels of wheat to Russia was not a complicated affair. Simply the passing of an Order-in-Council saying that such shipments to countries contiguous to territory under enemy occupation would require a special export license. And in this case the license will not be granted.

What Russia may say about it we do not know. The main point is that our Government has done what the people of this country wanted it to do.

We are advised that Ottawa heard about the business from people all over the country, and that is a splendid example of the power of public opinion. It shows plainly that the public conscience is something which can be touched into action; that our people can discern readily and accurately where something is being done of which they do not approve.

They read about that proposed sale of wheat to Russia; and it did not require any person passing up and down the street bearing a petition asking them to sign their names to register protest. It was not necessary to explain the situation, nor were there any public meetings called. People could see and they could also feel that something was under way of which they did not approve, and as individuals without any urging they began to say so.

A widespread ability to feel that way is nothing short of a great and a valuable public asset. Being sensitive about an injustice which is aimed at some other nation is a bulwark against injustice at home. The feeling which passed over our Canadian people and which drew back from the selling of our wheat to Russia is about as fine a demonstration of a clear-thinking public opinion as could have been given. It is not possible to suppress a little pride that such a wholesome asset is one of our national possessions.

He's Talking Too Much

The reports coming from Ottawa and Toronto do not agree. Premier Hepburn stated he was not keen on handing over the O.A.C. as a training centre for the air force because the Mental Hospital at St. Thomas was not being well used for that purpose. His comment was that "the government was not disposed to turn them over after the farce the Dominion Government made out of the air force training school at St. Thomas."

At Ottawa, Defence Minister Rogers discussed the matter of the St. Thomas school, and said progress there was fully up to expectations. The commander in charge was satisfied and so was the Government. Already 700 students were being trained there and it is running at one-third capacity. There had been a schedule prepared by which the work was to develop and that schedule was being fully maintained.

Then there was the purchase of the Eglington Hunt Club property in Toronto. Mr. Hepburn did not like that and said so this way:

"It is just a case of dipping into the old pork barrel again. Here is a fine example of a few Federal Liberals exerting enough pressure to have the Government buy this defunct organization."

The news from Ottawa is again different. Lieut.-Col. K. S. MacLachlan, acting deputy minister of national defence, said "the deal was one of the happiest things we have hit upon and we got the club at a rock-bottom figure." The property was secured for $55,000, and the purchase was the result of a bid made to court by the Government on a competitive basis for a defunct concern. It is asserted the buildings on the property could not be placed there for $500,000, and these buildings will all be used.

If we believe Mr. Hepburn then we must come to the conclusion that everything which is being done at Ottawa or by Ottawa is wrong and corrupt, while people in general know well enough that while Ottawa is bound to blunder now and then it could not possibly be wrong all the time. Mr. Hepburn is talking too much.

What Will They Say?

The editor of "Hush" and his assistant have been ordered by a judge in Toronto to spend three months in jail. There was material printed in their paper which court held to be obscene. According to evidence it had been the custom of the editors to submit their articles to a lawyer who looked over them to see if they could "get by." He was engaged to see that the writers did not step too far over the line.

We can only speculate on what people do when they enter jail. Possibly there are times of day when inmates can talk to each other and recount, or perhaps boast, of what they did to be locked up in such a place.

We wonder where those fellows will rank if they tell their associates they were sent down for printing something which the court considered obscene—otherwise filthy. Our one fond hope at the moment is that they do not tell the other prisoners that they are journalists.

It Is All Plain Now

The Examiner as a rule does not return frequently to the same subject. But in the case of Russia it is different. We have heard so much of this country in recent years. There was something new being worked out there for the good of the common people. Years ago they had herded together the members of the last Romanoff family and had killed them all. The world said it was brutal, but we were told it was necessary in order that the old czarist regime should never again show its head. The leaders of the revolution had something better in mind. They had seen a vision.

Then there was the war against God. A silly and a futile thing the world thought, but again it was explained that the idea was that people should live well and comfortably right now and not have their minds taken up too much with the future or anything else. That movement tapered off because it was not possible of success.

We were told of community farms, where people shared the crops; we were informed that unemployment did not exist in Russia while puzzling us and causing our folk no end of trouble.

There really never has been opportunity for world tourists to enter Russia, see what they desired to see and go where they wished to go. The Soviet would take small parties and conduct them so they would see what the Soviet wished to show as their masterpieces.

But it is a mystery country no longer. All that the apologists and propagandists had to say, and all that the Moscow-inspired Communists in our land had to utter has gone overboard. We find the real Russia today in the news despatches from Finland. This way:

> "The town was bombed, and four hospitals in the district have been bombed, and a Finnish surgeon and seven nurses were killed. The weather was clear at the time and the hospitals were plainly marked, and officials asserted the attacks were deliberate as the planes came down low."

So it is not necessary to go back through the history and designs of Russia during past years to find what the leaders of the revolution had in mind, or yet to learn what sort of man is Stalin. It is all told in the despatches "...the weather was clear...the hospitals were plainly marked...that attacks were deliberate as the planes came down low."

Where Snow Is Deep

There has been much snow falling in the Western section of our province, and the depth and extent of the snow is reflected in the assertions and claims of correspondents who write things to be printed in the newspapers.

A correspondent at Dungannon is tops for the moment. Snow is deep along the roads near this splendid little Huron Co. community, and they have to pitch it wherever they can. So it is plowed up and shovelled up into great walls along the side of the road.

Men working at that sort of labor even in cold weather find it necessary to remove their outer jackets—otherwise overcoats. They are particular people too and do not care to pitch their garments about and leave them where it might be difficult to find them readily. So this is the method:

> "Digging out snowbanks, men hang their coats along the telephone wires so deep is the snow in places."

The winter is still a rather young thing and if snow continues to fall the problem may become acute, for where will the men hang their coats after the telephone wires have been completely buried?

Soap Wins The Dollar Race

United States has changed its method of listing those who are in receipt of large salaries. Formerly the names released by the Treasury were those with incomes of $15,000 or more. Now it is necessary for the individual to have gathered together $75,000 during the year before the Treasury folk think it worth while to divulge his name.

The list has been cut by that process from 50,000 to 400, but "dividend" people do not figure in it. Henry Ford and John D. Rockefeller, Jr., are out.

Heading the list is F. A. Countway, and his business is making soap—also some money for himself to the extent of $469,713 in salary and bonus for one year.

Then as usual there are a large number of people from the moving picture business. Dozens of them. It has always been that way and it grows monotonous. Perhaps it is because we see some of them on the screen at times and are occasionally moved to wonder if they are protected by some kindly minimum wage law.

So we think things are turning better in 1940 when we read that a man who makes soap in a big way heads the list. Certainly he got too much money, for no man living is worth $469,000 a year—with the possible exception of one who knows how to defeat Hitler inside six months. But soap's such a common article around the house and at the office. Useful stuff too, so we like to see it elevated to the high ranks of big money. It's at least a change after having watched moving picture folk and makers of cars and all such leading the big money parade year after year.

NOTE AND COMMENT

And now a U.S. reporter is being held by the Japanese, and that is serious enough to make it look like another war.

We read today of one of those dinners under the auspices of some organization which was billed to start at 6.30 in the evening. And it did.

There are Liberals who fear if Mr. Hepburn is going to be successful in doing any splitting it will fall on the Liberal party in Ontario.

Britain is finding itself short on barley and the suggestion now is that the strength of beer be reduced to conserve the supply. Less kick in the beer might result in a greater kick elsewhere.

The Government is planning to show people how to save money during war time, and admittedly there is a large class which might benefit by such instruction.

Two bankers who manage the affairs of their firm at Auburn, Ont., were unable to get there because snow drifts were 10 feet high. Probably they will report they had been held up.

Easter comes this year on March 24, the earliest date since the year 1913. We make the announcement now merely because later on there are always so many inquiries regarding this date.

Montreal announces it will have a deficit of $6,000,000 this year, and then adds something to further chill the cold spines of its population..."unless it finds some new sources of revenue."

Chinese troops say they are going to recapture Canton from the Japs, and if they do there will be rejoicing among the Chinese in Canada, because the Canton district is the place where most of them came from.

Recruit at London, Ont., says he is starting out with the intention of getting Hitler. There is a good deal about war which we do not understand, but we have a feeling that he will not find this Hitler individual in the front line.

For the first time in four and a-half years there was not a case in police court at London, Ont., on a Monday morning, and the magistrate was given a pair of white gloves. In this weather why not wool mittens?

In Italy people can buy 1 1-10 pounds of sugar per month, and the coffee ration is 1.7 ounces per person for a month. So most of the time they will have no sugar to put into the coffee they haven't got.

The Sydney Post-Record speaks of radio addresses given there during the recent municipal election as being of the variety which required "toleration to listen to and sweet charity to forget." And that gives us a fairly good idea of what it was like.

HOPE

(By A. H. E.)

¶ I've got the newest almanac, all yellow covered front and back, I rather like the thing; for I read weather far ahead, so I have shed all fear and dread, and walk toward the spring.

¶ I learned as well about my dreams, it tells me plain what each one means, of enemies and friends; the proper gifts for birthdays too, are spread before me in review, and gifts that each one sends.

¶ I read with interest of the pills, that people take to cure their ills, and they astound me too; folks swallow down a half a peck, for pains that stretch from heel to neck, and say they feel like new.

¶ A man who limped each time 'twould rain, who hollered out when came the pain, and felt both cold and hot; he rubbed on ointment in despair, and says that now he doesn't care, if it comes rain or not.

¶ A man whose feet were bound with corns, no longer mopes about and mourns, his callous lumps were big; he put on plasters in July, the month had scarcely gotten by, before he danced a jig.

¶ And thus I read the almanac, and hang it safely on a tack, it tells of pills and health; if ailments come and park on me, there's no good reason I can see—why I can't fix myself.

Former Editor Feels Forced To Take Up His Pen

FROM WHAT The Examiner can learn the Hepburn censure of the King Government is going to produce some strange results. One Liberal of many years standing, and at one time a candidate for the Federal House, writes to say "If there is going to be a split at all I fear it will fall right across the ranks of the Liberal party in Ontario."

W. R. Givens writes to the Globe and Mail from his winter home in St. Petersburg, Florida. Before giving the letter it is well to say something of W. R. Givens. For a long time he was publisher and editor of the Kingston Standard, then one of the most consistent Conservative newspapers in the Dominion. W. R. Givens it was who told Hon. R. B. Bennett that he was wrong, and that he would wreck the Conservative party by refusing to develop any new leaders. He was always a plain-spoken and forceful writer. Nothing could happen to cause him to be anything but a Conservative. His letter:—

I was shocked and, as a Canadian, greatly disturbed when, opening the final edition of the St. Petersburg (Florida) evening Independent of Jan 18, the first item to catch my eye was the following, in conspicuously black type:

BULLETIN

Toronto, Jan. 18 (AP)—The Ontario Legislature late today adopted, by a vote of 44 to 10, a motion condemning the Canadian Government's alleged inefficiency in war effort after Provincial Premier Mitchell Hepburn, sponsor of the motion, had threatened to resign if it failed of passage.

Now, in common with hundreds of others, I have known for some time that Premier Hepburn had his political axe out for Premier King and the King Administration generally and purposed to wage a relentless war against the Ottawa Liberal Government, but that he would carry his fight so far as to bludgeon the Provincial Legislature into an open condemnation of the Ottawa Government few people believed, since such a condemnation must in the very nature of things have a deplorably bad influence and effect, even if only temporary, upon public sentiment and opinion outside Canada and will give a wholly erroneous impression of the efforts put forth by the Canadian Government in behalf of the cause of Empire and civilization.

The very fact that already — the first of the overseas Dominions—Canada has a formidable contingent overseas who have been cordially received and highly praised by the British command, and the further fact that intensive training of hundreds of other troops, including air pilots, is now being carried on at home would seem to be an effectual and fairly complete answer to this ridiculous resolution passed by the men and mice of the Ontario Legislature. But, better still, is the ringing answer of all Canada in refutation of the resolution, in the form of the instant and magnificent response to the $200,000,000 loan offer of the Government, when the loan was oversubscribed within less than forty-eight hours of its offering. Surely this is the real verdict of he people of Canada—surely this the unanswerable judgment of Canadians of all classes, conditions and politics, in respect of Canada's war efforts. Surely, too, this spontaneous vote of confidence of all the people is more truly representative of public opinion than a made-to-order dictated partisan condemnation put through at the crack of a party whip much after the manner of "legislation" put through by the late Huey Long of Louisiana when his "yes" men jumped through the political hoop at his every command, nor dared call their souls their own.

Undoubtedly there have been mistakes and shortcomings on the part of the Government, just as there have been mistakes and shortcomings on the part of the British Government, and to that extent some criticism is warranted. But it is worth noting that in times of crises England closes up her ranks and presents a united front, and does not resort to petty, pleayune, peanut politics, nor to bombastic, jingoistic boasts such as that made by the ebullient Mr. Hepburn, that he has deliberately been seeking to pick a quarrel with Premier King. If only Mr. Hepburn had the proper perspective; if only he would not allow his jealousy of and personal antagonism toward Mr. King to becloud his vision and prejudice his judgment, he would then realize that as the Premier of the leading Province of the Dominion, his quarrel is not with Mr. King, but side by side with Mr. King against the common enemy—the war-mad Nazis and Reds who seek to crush and rule the world by ruthless brute force. Unity, not disunity, is Canada's need.

In the meantime Mr. Hepburn and his spineless whip-cracked followers have the proud satisfaction of knowing that they have scored a temporary victory in Toronto. But do they realize that at the same time they have caused to be flashed throughout the world the villainously unfair and cruel charge that Canada has been recreant to her trust and has failed the Empire in her hour of peril? The tragedy of it—that such a charge should ever have been made! Happily, however, the world, knowing Canada, knowing her people and knowing the glorious record of her gallant sons in the World War—who could ever forget that splendid record?—is not likely to be long deluded by the rubber-stamp vote of the Ontario Legislature under orders from a pocket-size Boss of the Huey Long type.

RETRIBUTION

"It's all my fault for teaching her mother the 'boomps-a-daisy'."
—Humorist.

• Trading A Horse With The Heaves

A WRITER on the Stratford Beacon-Herald asked a number of farmers this question:

Can you cure a horse of the heaves Have you ever doped one up to make him appear as if he didn't have the heaves while you sold him or dealt him on something new?

Ezra Schellenberger, Fullarton Township: "I wouldn't like to say that a horse can be cured of the heaves, but at the same time I wouldn't go so far as to say a horse cannot be cured, because years ago I had a cure that worked. A man from the bush gave me the recipe. You had to get a lot of different things from the drugstore and mix them up. I loaned it to another fellow and never got it back again. I never cured a horse of the heaves for a short time, long enough to sell him; but I guess lots of men who have bought and sold horses have done that very thing."

Conrad Shearer, Sebringville: "I don't know whether or not there is a cure for the heaves, but I know I had an experience with a little mare I had. When she was about thirteen year old she started heaving like everything. I happened to be talking to Dr. Steele, who used to live in Stratford and Shakespeare. He told me to use some kind of a weed from the bush. The treatment lasted for two weeks and the mare was cured. We had her until she was about twenty-one years' old. I knew of one man who doped up a horse with the heaves and sold him for $200."

E. Merner, Sebringville: "There is some kind of remedy to use to ease the heaves but I don't think you can term it a cure. There are different kinds of heaves. Years ago we were told to take wild leakes from the bush and use them in the food. If I remember correctly it helped the heaves considerably."

Fred Thompson, Goderich Township: "No, I don't think there is a cure for a horse with the heaves. There is a remedy which will help them for a while and it is simple enough to fix a horse up so the buyer won't know he has the heaves. About the easiest way is to put some lamp soot in his oats. I don't think there are many horse dealers who haven't sold a 'heavey' horse in their day, knowing it had the heaves, but all doctored up for a few days."

R. G. Thompson, Goderich Township: "The only cure for the heaves is known as the gypsy's cure, which means a cure long enough to make a buyer think the horse hasn't anything wrong with him. I remember years ago being around a gypsy camp and I heard some of them talking by the fire about how to dope a horse with the heaves. The simplest way was to use a pound of lard. You can also use two or three drops of carbolic acid in the water and it, too, will have the effect of removing the heaves, but only for a period about as long as you could sell him and deliver him and make your return safely."

• Tells Story of Life in Canada

(Letter in Montreal Star)

SIR,—I am an ex-marine engineer, still young, who came to Canada three years ago to help my brother, a farmer, in Alberta. Conditions out West were truly appalling. He suffered hardships. He married a Canadian girl. I brought money out from Scotland to help in the struggle to keep his small farm. I left his farm—farmers were having a terrible time—and sought work. I got it occasionally. In Vancouver, I suffered tortures of mind and body by being unemployed. I was railroaded positively to the Immigration authorities through a relief office where I had gone to try and get placed in a single men's work camp. I was refused, humiliated and broken in spirit by it all. I came out passenger on the Duchess of York paid my own way with a few hundred dollars. I was hounded from pillar to post, until I nearly lost my senses. The war came. I was in the Rocky Mountains. I offered my services, was told to wait. Fancy waiting orders from Ottawa! I waited all right on an empty stomach until I was exasperated. On to Vancouver I went, signed on a British vessel (crying loudly for engineers). I did 50 days at sea, 50 days of hell in a stokehold. I did two men's work ;one chap was ill all the way. I stuck it out until I landed in Montreal and was hospitalized. Montreal has been good to me. I am well again and strong, ready to go back to sea very soon again. I want to do my duty. I have two brothers, one a captain and one a buck in the army in Scotland and six nephews, all cadet officers in various units.

I myself did a year or two in the French Foreign Legion some years ago and came out with a certificate of merit from that regiment in Morocco. I wanted to taste army life. I didn't join for any other reason. I had been at sea and wanted a change, that was all.

On arrival in Montreal I had a letter from my mother in Scotland. She is heartbroken. My brother, only 39, died in University Hospital two months ago. I know it was the hardships. It has all been tragical. Canada means just as much to me as Scotland. I'll fight for both willingly and honorably because we're all of the Empire.

My mother in Scotland is bitter, yet we all speak well of Canada. I believe my sister had some Canadian lads for Christmas in Scotland. Please understand the essence of this letter. It is in no sense an appeal but a case in point only.

ALASTAIR McLAREN STUART LINDSAY.

AFTER SIXTY

A Pennsylvania doctor recently gave an audience of women the following rules for enjoying life after the age of 60:

"Avoid the consuming fires of hatred and jealously—they cause high blood pressure.

"Eat sparingly.

"Forget worries.

"Preserve a sense of humor and have a good time.

"Grow a little every day intellectually.

"Cultivate the friendship of young people—for you have much to learn from youth.

"Read widely.

"Clean out the mind.

"Rest body, nerves and intellectual emotions.

"And never retire—it's better to wear out than rust out."

All of which is just as good advice for men as it is for women.

What the doctor might also have said is that one way to enjoy life after 60 is to live wholesomely before one is 60.

Age is much more kindly to men and women who have not frittered away their strength in loose idle living while they were young than it is to those who reach it with their bodies and minds weakened by dissipation.—Detroit Free Press.

HIS $10 COMES BACK

(Letter to New York Sun)

SIR:—Kindly inform me if the following is a legal transaction:

I am seated at a round table with nine other men. Each man owes the man on the left $100. In my hand I hold a new ten-dollar bill. I hand the $10 to the man on my left, making my indebtedness $90. All the men do the same thing, and when the bill has made its rounds and come back to me $100 has been paid with the $10 bill. It goes around ten times and finally comes back to me. One thousand dollars has been paid in legal money and finally I still have my $10 bill.

Is the transaction legal? What kind of a financial system would you call it?

DR. TALI ESEN MORGAN.
Brooklyn, January 8.

ONE-WAY TREATMENT

THE CITY of Lethbridge owns in its sinking fund some $187,000 of Alberta bonds—worse luck. When Lethbridge bought these bonds with the taxpayers' money the province was paying $10,100 yearly interest on them.

Mr. Aberhart without so much as a "by your leave" slashed the interest to $5,000 a year. Lethbridge citizens are being "gypped" to the tune of $5,000 a year. Yet the Aberhart Government demands the last cent on interest owing it on bonds of Alberta cities held in provincial funds.

Yet Mr. Aberhart continues to hold himself up before Albertans as something special in the way of an example in fair dealing. — Lethbridge Herald.

FURNISH THE MATERIAL

A great many people do not talk scandal, but they furnish the material, which is just as bad.

To The Editor

GOOD NEWS

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—To my mind the most delightful bit of news that I have heard since the start of the war came last night, when it was announced that the Dominion Government was considering the cancellation of the sale of one million bushels of wheat to Russia. This, due to the number of protests made by the people of Canada.

Would it not be a wonderful thing for the people of Canada to donate this million bushels of wheat to the people of Finland? What a slap in the face for those Red Devils in Moscow.

Yours truly,
H. G. C. HOUSFIELD.
Peterborough, Jan. 24.

FOR THE FUEHRER

IT IS COLD in Berlin these days—a few degrees below zero most of the time. And there is precious little coal to spare, with the munitions plants burning it up as they do. So a decree has been published in the Official Gazette, ordering all hot water shut off in Berlin dwellings, except on Saturdays and Sundays. There has been remarkably little grumbling, we hear. Well, the Germans may be willing to make sacrifices for their Fuehrer, but with bathing restricted to week-ends it's a dirty war.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

How excellent is thy lovingkindness, O God! therefore the children of men put their trust under the shadow of thy wings. They shall be abundantly satisfied with the fatness of thy house; and thou shalt make them drink of the river of thy pleasures. For with thee is the fountain of life: in thy light shall we see light. . . .

MAY BE THE ANSWER

THE MYSTERY of the disappearance of millions of passenger pigeons from the North American continent in the eighties of the last century has never been solved. Old timers, and there are few of them now, used to tell of flocks of these pigeons that were so large as to darken the sky. Came the time when they were no more on this continent. It was believed they had died of disease or had been destroyed in a storm at sea.

However, Adventure Magazine of the latest issue contains a letter from a man in Chile who claims that he has just shot two bagfuls of passenger pigeons. According to this man, the pigeons do not leave South America and number hundreds of thousands.

Ornithologists are now expected to study the Chile claim of passenger pigeons in that country. They may learn that the passenger pigeon has not disappeared at all, but that it has gone to another continent. — Trenton Courier-Advocate.

KNOWS HE CAN'T WIN

THE TRUTH probably is that Hitler sees no way of winning the war, and does not expect to do so. He is engaged in just the kind of war which it is consistently argued Germany should never wage.

A man of temperament like Hitler's may react in such circumstances in two opposite ways. Because he knows he is unwise, but cannot bring himself to admit it, he may persist still more obstinately in what he knows to be folly. Or, on the other hand, he is capable of reverting violently back to his original ideas and making a dramatic gesture of resignation in the hope of saving his country, and incidentally himself.

The course of the war so far encourages us to keep both these possibilities in mind.—London Sunday Times.

Doc Kearns is good and sore at Jimmy Johnston and Bob Pastor for signing to fight Lee Savold here on March 1 and is talking to his lawyer.... The good doc is afraid this bout will smell so loud it'll kill Pastor vs. Burman in Detroit two weeks later .... Talking about Savold, sports writers in the middle west are laughing themselves sick at the way the big town scribes went overboard for Savold....

Trinity Gains Win Over St. John's 4-1

The smart young Trinity Bantams nearly clinched a Church Loop play-off berth last night at All Saints' rink with a 4-1 win over St. Johns. The losers, defending champs, had little team play but banked solo thrusts by Frank and Clark. Frank scored in the first. Clark failed to pas senough Trinity had a stout defence and two good passing lines. Meredith got three goals and Beatty the other. It was 2-1 till late in the third. The teams:

St. John's—Goal, Currie; defence, Frank, Hooper; centre, Clark; wings, Howard, Gray; sub, Logan.

Referee—D. Charlton.

St. Andrew's Lose In Neat Contest

St. Andrew's Juveniles dropped a 5-2 Church League game to Mark Street, last night, at All Saints' rink but made a fine showing in holding the classy East City crew so close. It was 2-all in the first, McTavish, Murphy, Robinson and Ferguson counting. Andrews, Eason and Wade scored for Mark Street in the second, Ridyard and Richardson swapped places in the third and St. Andrew's pressed. The starting line and Ridyard shone for the improved saints, while none of the Mark street squad proved an individual standout. They combined well. The teams:

St. Andrew's: Goal, Ridyard; defence, Johnston, Richardson; centre Harris; wings, McTavish, Murphy; subs, McDonald, Wall.

Mark Street: Goal, Shearer; defence, Moore, Joyce; centre, Ralph; wings, Andrews, Eason; subs, Wade, Mason, Robinson, Ferguson.

Referee: D. Charlton.

All Saints' Seniors Defeat Murray St.

In a senior Church League game at All Saints' rink last night, All Saints beat Murray Street 4-1. Callen got the first goal late in the second with Mowry off. Hopkins made it 2-0 early in the third. A goal, Padgett, from Dundas was followed by a tally by Platt. It was the first loss for Murray Street and All Saints' first win. The losers were shy some regulars but had Ira Dundas out for the first time. He was quite effective, and Spencely also looked good. King and Platt went best for the winners. The teams:

Referee: G. Webb.

St. James' Puckists Lose A 1-0 Joust

All Saints Juniors edged out a 1-0 nod over St. James in a nifty Church Loop fray at All Saints' rink last night. Fine goal tending by Spooner meant much in the win, the All Saints' manpower also making a difference in a good go. Bill Lawson stood out for St. James, being the faster player present. Prowt got the only goal in the second. The win leaves All Saints in the running with St. James' chances slim. The team:

St. James: Goal, Langton; defence F. Lawson, McGregor; centre, B. Lawson; wings, Williams, Roode; sub, Dafoe.

Referee: G. Webb.

Grads Beat Grove

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 25. —(ENS) — In a fast exhibition game here last night" The Grads," Peterborough's threat to juvenile hockey defeated the Grove first team by one goal in overtime 6-5. The game was well handled by referee Braden Blewett and very clean with only two penalties handed out, one to each side. Both goalies played well, with the Grads having the play in their end of the rink most of the last period and overtime. The Grove were a little superior on passing but the "Grads" made up with speed. The Grads tallied once in the opening period this being all the scoring. The second saw the Grove tie it up but the "Grads" beat Herold three times, ending the period 4-1. The last period, the Grove started pressing and led by Frewer they had it tied up and no scoring was counted for Peterborough. The Grads led again by scoring one minute after the overtime started only to be tied again by the Grove. Paterson of the Grads broke the tie and Lakefield were unable to come back with another counter, losing the game 6-5.

Anderson, Halihan were the goal-getters for the Grads with 2 goals apiece to their credit also Agnew and Gillespie also tallied. Frewer led the Grove with 2 goals and Roberts, Harris and St. Remy also turned the light on.

The teams:

"Grads"— Goal, Shea; defence, Patterson, Dundas; centre, Halliihan; wings, Ainslie, Courneya. Subs, Woodgate, Gillespie, O'Brien, Roberts, O'Donnel. Sub goalie, Leether.

Grove: Herold; defence, Foster, Carson; centre, Frewer; wings, J Roberts, Harris. Subs, Potts, St Remy, Wilkes, Langmuir. Sub goalie, Fairhead.

Referee: B. Blewett, Lakefield.

Dine With President Roosevelt

Raymond Massey, Canadian-born actor who has won fame through his portrayal of Abe Lincoln, and Mrs. Massey, were forced to take to the air to get to the White House in time for dinner with the President and Mrs. Roosevelt. They were en route for the capital by train but were delayed by an accident to the train preceding theirs and had to complete the trip by air to get to the White House in time. Mr. and Mrs. Massey are shown getting flowers from Jean Purucker, air-line hostess.

Martin On Top City Bowling

At the half way mark in the City League schedule the averages given out by Secretary Walter Firth show Fred Martin, the captain of Gordon's team, heading the list of 42 men who are hitting at a 200 or better rate per game. Martin, runner up to Bud Weese last year and champion of the league himself for several previous seasons, is travelling at a 249 clip for the 42 games he has rolled. The other four ringers who round out the big five of the loop are Bud White with 248, Jack Playford 240 and Bud Weese and Fred Hickey with 238 each.

Gordon's who strung through the first section without losing a game received a few minor setbacks during the round just finished. However, they are still a way in front with 50 points out of a possible 56. Jay's the hot team of the last few weeks are fairly safe in second place, while the other six squads are bunched in such a way that a bad spill to any of them would make sudden changes in their positions.

Tom Curvin's 952 rolled November 23rd is still up there for the league's high three and George Robertson's 412 of December 28th, is the best single so far. Tom's score was only beaten by Bill Masters on the K. of C. Alleys when 957 was hit while Robertson's 412 was tied by Mike Doris at the same place.

Starting the third section tonight at 9:15 Jay's are matched against Gordon's, G.E. vs Grafton's, Grant's vs Capitol Grill and Lock Works vs Duffus'. It is possible that tonight's games will be rolled on new pins which are on order, and if such is the case the corner pin experts will have a chance to show their skill.

Joe Gets Almost What He Asked

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 25.—(AP) Joe DiMaggio, New York Yankee centrefielder who was the major leagues most unsuccessful holdout two seasons ago, looked over his 1940 contract today and said:

"I don't anticipate any trouble at all this year."

He refused to divulge what the Yankee management offered him this year, but said the figure was "not far away" from what he has expected.

In 1938 DiMaggio held out for $40,000 until the playing season was nearly a month old. Then he settled for $25,000. Last season he topped American League batters with a .381 average, was voted the "most valuable player" award and drew down $27,500.

Wild And Hungry

BRULE, Neb., Jan. 25—(AP)—The wild ducks wintering on C. B. Douglas' farm are really wild. Douglas put up a scarecrow after the ducks ate 25 bushels of his Kaffir corn. The ducks ate the hat off the scarecrow.

H. MORRISON'S RINK OF OSHAWA WINS W. G. MORROW TROPHY

28 Rinks Enter Successful Local Bonspiel

(By Herb Martin.)

For the second time in four years, H. Morrison's rink from the Oshawa club won the W. G. Morrow Cup; Billy Widdess rink from the local club was the runner-up, only a plus of six points behind.

In the best one-day bonspiel ever staged by the club, 28 entries from all parts of Central Ontario competed for the beautiful sterling silver trophy donated by the late W. G. Morrow. It was the first time since the present system of running bonspiels was inaugurated, that there has been a full entry. So keen was the interest in this bonspiel that entries had to be refused late on Tuesday night.

The committee in charge and the club in general are to be congratulated on the success of this bonspiel.

"From Behind The Glass"

If the Bell Telephone Co. had as busy a day on all their phone as we did on our one, they must have had a record day.

Imagine Judge Larry O'Connor, Cobourg; George Brooks, Lindsay and Cyril Giroux, Peterborough, wearing "Scotch" tams.

We could have used a gas mask quite handily this morning when we opened up the rink. No London fog was ever any thicker.

Dr. Harvey of Oshawa, who has been coming to our 'spiels for years and years, tells us he has been curling for 53 years—and he's a young man yet.

Some of the scores handed in were bigger than Mitch Hepburn's new car markers.

The Oshawa club did well by sending up four rinks.

It's been a long time since Ben Ward of Oshawa lost three straight games in any man's bonspiel.

You have to hand it to J. T. Braund. He picks up a rink at the last minute to replace a default and lands in the money.

It was the first time some of the curlers ever visited our rink and they were greatly impressed.

Congratulations are due the bonspiel committee: Ray Best, E. Thomas, W. Oke, I. Hamley, E. Sackville and Harry Foote. Everything went off as smooth as ice.

And so the bonspiel for the Morrow Cup for 1940 will go down in the history of the club as the best

Goodyears Whip Sailors 4-2; 20 Penalty Tilt

TORONTO, Jan. 25.—(CP)—Immediate threat of Port Colborne to Toronto's leadership of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior "A" series was halted last night for the Sailors went down 4-2 in a rugged, exciting battle punctuated with 20 penalties, four of them majors and one misconduct.

Toronto got off to a good start before 4,000 home fans by scoring twice in the first period through King and O'Flaherty. Imlach made it 3-0 halfway through the second before Vince Upper snared Ports first goal. Imlach added another in the third then followed the losing team's second marker, Thompson registering after a triple passing bout.

The Toronto team is now four points ahead of the second place Port Colborne outfit which in turn has only a margin of two over St. Catharines. The latter club defeated Hamilton 7-3.

Hamilton notched the first and last two goals against St. Kitts but were widely outplayed for the major part of the game. After Miocinovich got the first goal for the losing side in the first session Rudy Pilous equalized 13 minutes later. Boyd and Rost gave the home club a big edge by scoring in the second. Goals in the third frame by Mocha twice, Rombough and Boyd put the result beyond doubt before Miocinovich and Conick pounded home the final Hamilton scores.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC PERDUE

A triple offering of hockey tonight at the Brock St. palais d'ice, the Industrial Puck Loop tossing three games on at a very low fee per fan. Canada Packers in their second start will be trying to crash the win section (not wine section, Mr. Printer) 'gainst the potent porridge punchers from the Quaker Oats. This opener is billed for 7.30 on ye dot. Next number is at 8.30 betwixt Brintons and the Marines, and the Carpeteers are facing tough opposition but claim the spirit is willing and flesh won't be weak this tiff. Final fray is at 9.30 and tosses Watercrafts and Westclox into the arena together. The former has lost one whilst the Clockmen are sittin' pretty with two straight nods, but don't sell the Canoeists short.

* * * * * *

In their third night of activity, the Industrial Leaguers hope for a respectable crowd. They expect some vocal support from fellow workers in their shops. The first p.m. they played, quite a gang attended, but Jack Frost chased away a lot the second e'en. Tonight should see a flock of fans and fanettes again, as these teams dish up some speedy hockey and many of the tussles are tighter than three in a rumble seat. As one well-read chap, who is studying Finnish since he hates caviar, remarked recently: "Many of these contests are suomussalmi to say the least." That's pronounced soo-oh-moo-sahl-mee, and simply means suomussalmi. Isn't that silly?

Boys Of Bella Villa

Tied for first place with the Fliers of Trenton, the Petes tackle the Redmen of Belleville here tomorrow after supper. The second and final appearance of the boys of Bella Villa in this city this cold spell. And the Petes' second last scheduled tilt. We'll be surprised if the Buckaroos don't cop the win o'er the Redmen, but then we've been surprised before. Especially when Harry the Bite told us last week that he could not recall at anytime getting into us for four bits — the rat! It should be a right lively scrap, though, and maybe pretty close. And there are some bruised feelings existing between these clubs, so 'tis hoped a competent referee is in charge.

* * * * * *

Along Windy Avenoo at the Brock, some of the dopesters are taking note—though it wasn't so noticeable 'gainst the streamlined Goodyears—that the Petes are using a coupla the Rangers' tricks this season. When shorthanded, the locals put on the pressure instead of playing back defensively, moving right up on the attack and banking on superior speed to get back in time if a breakaway occurs. It's working pretty well, too. Another stunt they try is for the defencemen to move out nearly to centre ice when the Petes are carrying the puck as it may aid with the attack and—with the wings fast and willing to back-check—sort of providing two lines of defence, the wings going into their own territory when the opposition starts a counter-thrust.

Colts Getting Set

Not feeling anywhere nearly as low as a dachshund's tummy, the local Colts are rarin' to gallop up to Lindsay on the morrow for a junior joust! They absorbed two reverses at the hands of the strong Oshawa Bees, but still think they have an even chance to knock 'em off in group playoffs. They found they could match speed with 'em on the Motor City pond, but after holding their own for half the game, began to follow the puck around, instead of sticking to their positions. So shinny took possession of the piece from then on, and the Bees buzzed in to cop a handy win in the third stanza. The Colts will have no bowl of chicken soup in the Scugog corral tomorrow, either, as the Midgets are downright inhospitable in their own town. But we like the Colts' chances.

* * * * * *

They ran off four Church Hockey League tussles last eve at All Saints' rink, all of 'em well contested. All Saints Seniors took a 4-1 win over Murray St., St. James Juniors dropped a 1-0 fray to All Saints, Mark St. Juveniles yanked out a 5-2 verdict o'er St. Andrew's, and Trinity Bantams defeated St. John's 4 to 1. With the schedule pretty well advanced, it's possible to gauge the chances of several clubs, and some have playoff berths practically clinched already. Games on tonight are: George St. Bantams vs. St. Paul's at six, St. John's vs. All Saints Juveniles at seven, Park St. Juniors vs. Mark St. at eight, and St. James Seniors vs. George St. at nine.

Nifty Cage Offering

The large floor of the Y.W. gym tomorrow will give two classy men's teams, St. Paul's and St. John's an opportunity to really dish up some smart basketball. These teams staged a nifty duel last season in city playoffs and then went into Ontario church playdowns, St. Paul's winning a title. They're playing an exhibition game at 9.15 in the Y.W. this Friday p.m. after a trio of girls' games. St. Paul's will have practically all last year's players again, including Capt. Gord McIntyre, Harry Marsh, Don Sedgewick, Jim Thorburn, Pete McArthur, Jack Gemmell, Doug McPherson and Walter Ward. On St. John's will be Les Ascott, Bob Dyer, Ken Gillespie, Jack Craig, Joe Stewart and Hewitt Amys. The scheduled lasses' games are: "Y" Gym vs. St. John's at 6.30, Orfuns vs. Debs at 7.30, and Westclox vs. Aces at 8.15. This attractive hoop offering should pack in the rooters.

Y.M.C.A. senior volleyballers journey to Toronto Saturday to participate in the first round-robin series of the Ontario championships 'gainst Kitchener and Toronto aces. Meantime, these local games will be played here at two Saturday aft in the "Y":

Mercurys vs. Lincolns and Dodges vs. Packards, winners playing off. Each team may be minus a star player, with the series on in Toronto. Second half of the schedule, which has been drawn—with teams reshuffled—will commence locally on Feb. 3rd. Just thought the volleyballers might like a mention in this pillar de piffle once in awhile.

Belleville Redmen Here To Play Local Puckists On Friday Night

Belleville Redmen clash with the Petes in an O. H. A. intermediate "A" fixture here tomorrow (Friday) night at 8.30 in the Brock Street rink. It will be the second, and final appearance of the revamped Belleville squad here this season, as the Petes and Fliers—tied atop the group—are favorites for the playoffs. The Redmen, with Speedy St. Louis replacing Ed Thomas as coach, gave the locals a tough battle their last meeting in Belleville—and only bowed 6-3 to the Fliers—so they are expected to make it a lively scrap here Friday.

Coach Frank Buckland may have all his squad ready, though Jim Ellis had a sore ankle when Goodyears were here early this week. Eddie Starr will be on the first line with Tompkins and Kingdon, while the second firing crew will have J. Jopling, Coughlin and Blewett. Heal being the extra forward. Defencemen include F. Jopling, Crowe, Gardner, Burton and possibly Ellis; with Harding in goal. It should be a speedy, interesting joust before a good-sized Friday night crowd.

PRO PUCK PERSONALITIES

DES SMITH
Chicago Black Hawks

(By Central Press Canadian)

One of the commonest names in the National League, as elsewhere is Smith, and one of the three representatives of the clan now doing business is Des of the Black Hawks. He teams with Joe Cooper to form the defence pair that alternates with Earl Seibert and Art Wiebe. This is his third N.H.L. season, but his first full one. His first was two years ago with Maroons, the second last season with Canadiens, who, incidentally, would welcome him back. The only reason he got away from them was an oversight on the part of club officials which allowed Chicago to "steal" him from the minor league New Haven team. Born in Ottawa was Des 26 years ago come Feb. 22. Christened Desmond Patrick. Played amateur in the capital, later shifting to the Maritimes and finally to England, where he sported the colors of Wembley Lions. Chosen on the all-star British team, came back home with the squad for an abortive international tournament held at Toronto, and became one of the most sought-after players in the land. Took the pro plunge with Maroons. Statistical totals for his short career are six goals, four assists and 55 minutes in penalties until the beginning of the present season. Weighs around 180 pounds, shoots left.

Following the skating the young people, about sixty in number, motored to the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Blakely for a hot bean supper. The remainder of the evening was spent in various games and contests. A hearty vote of thanks was extended the Blakely family for their hospitality.

Lakefield Boys Are Defeated By Norwood 8-1

HAVELOCK, Jan. 25—(ENS). — "Mickey" Puffer, sensational young defenceman for the Norwood High School hockey team, set up something of a scoring record for the Trent Valley Interscholastic League when he popped home all eight goals, as Norwood defeated Lakefield by an 8 to 1 count, Wednesday at the Norwood arena.

Buck, a heady playmaker and tireless worker for the winners, laid down some neat passes during the encounter to assist Puffer in four of his tallies. The line of Buck, Green and Johnson was especially effective for Norwood, with Sargent showing to advantage as Puffer's defensive partner. Bongard had only a few real hard drives to stop from the visiting attackers, and handled these fairly easy.

Birch, the Lakefield goalie, was plenty busy throughout the entire session with rubber flying in his direction the major portion of the time. The game was held up for five minutes near the end of the second period, when the puck clipped him on the forehead. After temporary repairs he took his place in the net again and continued to give a good account of himself for the remainder of the game. Stewart and Lloyst were the standout performers for the losers, the former notching their lone goal. The line of Clarke, Skelcher and Carveth was best among the remainder of the lineup. The teams:

Attempt Being Made To Match Burk and Pearce

Much publicity is being given an attempt to match Joe Burk, RIGHT, and Bob Pearce, LEFT, in an open sculling championship match under the joint auspices of Canadian and American charities. Up to the present the scheme is just in the idea stage, but should anything come of it there is no doubt that the two great scullers would put on a great performance well worth watching. Burk is a little doubtful of the safety of his amateur standing, but is reported to be eager for the match providing permission of the American Association of Amateur Oarsmen can be obtained.

Win Comes First With Bob Feller

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 25—(AP).—It will be all right with Bob Feller if 1940 brings him the no-hit game he's narrowly missed three times, but the Cleveland fireballer is more interested in winning games.

"That's the easiest way to get 'em out, though, by not letting 'em hit the ball," said Feller, here on vacation. "But I don't start a game with any striking record in mind. All I want is to win the game.

The 21-year-old star hurled two one-hit games last year, and one before that in four years of major league competition. He struck out 246 batters last summer and 240 the season before.

Feller said New York Yankees were the hardest club to pitch to "because they're all dangerous hitters."

Urges Pan-American Games Be Permanent

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 25.—(AP)—International sponsors of the proposed 1940 Pan American athletic games could well listen to a few suggestions from the man who staged the first tournament of this kind three years ago and made it an unqualified success.

He is George Preston Marshall, a Washington, D.C., business mansportsman who, in 1937 directed the first Pan-American games in Dallas, Tex. Marshall, wintering here, is owner of the Washington Redskins professional football team.

He has several ideas about the proposed Pan-American games this year. The games, he said, must be established as a permanent annual event, based solely on the idea of promoting solid good feeling between the Americas.

A system of point scoring must be adopted so that the smaller countries will have an equal chance in competition; sports musb be included in the program in which the Latin Americans excel, such as polo, horsemanship and soccer.

Honduras shipped 1,062,205 bunches of bananas to other countries in a recent month.

Henry Mops Up Puerto Rican In Nine Rounds

NEW YORK, Jan. 25. — (AP) — The three-point landing welterweight champion Henry Armstrong mapped for 1940 was one-third accomplished today—Pedro Montanez down; Al Davis and Cefarino Garcia coming up.

It took only nine of the allotted 15 rounds last night for the hammer to pound his pluck Puerto Rican foe into a bloody, helpless figure.

Weighing 139¾, four and three-quarter pounds less than Montanez, the Los Angeles negro looked capable of crushing anyone who could come under the welterweight limit and give a mighty accounting as a middleweight, as well.

The grind was 47 seconds into the ninth round when referee Billy Cavanaugh stopped it and awarded a technical knockout to the champion. The challenger was down three times before that and was twice saved by the bell.

For two rounds the two fought furiously shoulder to shoulder, never moving a foot in either direction for a minute or more at a time. In the third Armstrong caught Montanez in the centre of the ring, put a crimson gash over his right eye with a full left.

They continued to churn at each other close in until in the fourth a ringing right jarred Montanez' guard down. Henry hammered with both hands until Pedro's knees buckled. Montanez came back up at the count of five and stumbled around until he collapsed on the ropes. The count had reached seven when the gong sounded.

Montanez tried valiantly to come back and succeeded in shading his opponent in the sixth round. But in the seventh Armstrong opened another cut, this time under his left left eye, and just as the bell rang in the eigth he fell to the floor again.

Lineups:

Sweetman.—Goal, A. Robinson; defence, B. Price, J. Meagher; centre, D. Meraw; wings, F. Donahue, G. Connor; subs, J. Lajoie, H. Fobert, R. Rashotte, R. Cornell, H. Austin.

In the second game of the double beader, the Geraldi and Corcoran teams clashed and battled to a 3-all tie. Both teams tallied once in the first period, and the Geraldi team went into a one-goal lead in the second period, and a two-goal lead early in the third period. However in the last period the Corcoran boys came back with two quick counters in the closing minutes of the game to tie the count. The lineups:

Geraldi.—Goal, K. Jones; defence, Levack, Steward; centre, Alexander; defence, J. Price, Champagne; subs, T. Cassidy, K. Cassidy, Sills, Lavallee, W. Rashotte.

Remember When—

Toronto Maple Leafs' "kid line" topped all National Hockey League point-getters eight years ago today. Pacing Toronto to the Canadian section lead, Charley Conacher, Harvey Jackson and Joe Primeau each had 29 points. Final statistics that year showed Jackson leading the league with 53 points, Primeau next with 50 and Conacher with 48.

Hornets Wallop Batas 6 to 1 At Frankford

HAVELOCK, Jan. 25.—(ENS).—The Norwood Hornets maintained their sizzling pace in the T.V.L. race for group leadership when they went into Frankford arena Wednesday evening and emerged with a decisive 6 to 1 victory over the fast flying Batas.

Alex. Kempt's squad have chalked up five wins and a tie in their last six encounters, and are now seriously challenging the Campbellford Sunocos for supremacy in the Trent Valley League schedule. With a four-point game booked for Friday evening, when Marmora will make their initial appearance of the current season at Norwood arena, the Hornets are looking with an optimistic eye towards a quick leap to the top of the T.V.L. heap.

McMaster, who certainly deserved a shutout on his performance in the winners' cage, was knocked cold during the scramble in which Meyette notched the homesters' lone tally. McMaster received a bad cut over his right eye in this play which took place with about two minutes to go in the final session. Bill Rogers donned the pads for the remainder of the game.

Norwood took the lead at the eight-minute mark, when O'Leary counted from Brady. This was the only goal of the initial session which was entirely free of penalties.

Half-way through the second, Hill nabbed a pass from Gordie Puffer to tally Norwood's second counter, and shortly after "Dude" Brady executed a solo to make the count 3 to 0.

The Hornets added another marker at the fourteen-minute mark in the third when Aboud evaded the Bata defense to pick up a pass from Davis and drive one past Rogers. Two minutes later Gordie Puffer picked up Norwood's fifth goal, with Hill assisting. Shortly after Meyette scored Batas' only goal of the game, McMaster being injured in the play. With just a minute and a half remaining, Pep Rogers combined with Puffer for the Hornets' sixth and final tally. Rogers drew the only penalty of the final session for rough tactics.

The teams:

Norwood — Goal, McMaster; defense, Webb, Rothwell; centre, G. Puffer; wings, Hill, N. Rogers; alternates, Brady, O'Leary, W. Rogers, Richardson, Davis, Aboud.

Frankford — Goal, Rogers; defense, Dore, K. Lawrence; centre, Reid; wings, Meyette, McDonell; alternates, Pollard, H. Foster, Rose, Radcliffe, Spencer.

Referees—R. Ennis, Norwood; H. Finnegan, Frankford.

Summary:

Leafs Are Jittery Minus Apps To Face Rangers

TORONTO, Jan. 25 —(CP) —Toronto Maple Leafs are walking the last weary mile they'll have to walk before smooth Sylvanus Apps comes back to their lineup with promise of better National Hockey League fortunes.

The Leafs undergo that most dreaded of all this season's assignments tonight, a game with the Rangers at New York, and Apps will have been missing from his centre-ice beat exactly one month. Then the Toronto club returns home for a Saturday night engagement with Montreal Canadiens and that probably will be the last time Sylvanus will be missing for a while.

When the Rangers whipped the Leafs Christmas night in New York, Apps suffered a broken collarbone and his team fell to four points off the pace. Since then the forward line that Syl centres hasn't been the same, but Toronto still is only seven points from the front.

If Toronto should upset estimates and win at New York, Boston could enter a first-place tie with the Rangers by defeating the Black Hawks at Chicago. Again the Bruins will play without Captain Dit Clapper and Chicago is no place to be without so powerful a key man as Clapper.

In the night's third game, New York Americans and the Canadiens will battle over last place at Montreal. The Canadiens hold the cellar now a point behind the Americans, who in turn are a point back of Detroit's fifth-place Red Wings.

Fractured Thumb

Atkinson, Duncan

do business in Ontario, said the premier. Shortly afterwards, Mr. Roebuck, with his brother-in-law, Donald Walkinshaw, went to England "for the pay-off."

Walkinshaw served at the time as Mr. Roebuck's secretary. After their return from England, said the premier, Mr. Roebuck asked him to transfer Walkinshaw to a post where he would have charge of Hydro insurance, though Mr. Roebuck knew that certain charges were to be made against Walkinshaw.

"I said then I had reason to believe that Walkinshaw was just as crooked as Drew (Col. George Drew, new Conservative leader) is going to paint him," said Mr. Hepburn.

The Atkinson Affair

Mr. Atkinson and Mr. Roebuck had a lot in common, said the premier. He accused Mr. Atkinson of being vindictive toward him after the Oshawa General Motors strike in 1937. He (Mr. Hepburn) wouldn't bow to Mr. Atkinson, but Mr. Roebuck had.

After Dick Merrill, trans-Atlantic aviator, was received in Toronto, the Toronto Star editorially criticized disregard of traffic laws in the reception, said Mr. Hepburn. He would tell some things about Mr. Atkinson's grandsons that the Star wouldn't publish.

Mr. Hepburn read from a memorandum from H. R. Polson, deputy inspector of legal offices, concerning a charge laid against Harry and John Hindmarsh, grandsons of Mr. Atkinson, and another youth, Harry Farr, for splashing red paint on the school at Oakville. Malicious damage to property was charged.

Harry Hindmarsh, Sr., vice-president of the Toronto Star, got in touch with Mr. Roebuck and then exerted influence on the crown attorney to have the trial held under circumstances which would not be generally known in Oakville. The charge was withdrawn and damages were paid.

"What do you think of that when you talk of justice in Ontario?" asked Mr. Hepburn.

On Feb. 20, 1937, Harry Hindmarsh, Jr., was arrested on a highway and taken to Brampton jail on a reckless driving charge. Hindmarsh, Sr., got in touch with the crown attorney and guaranteed production of his son for trial. Influence was used to have the trial in the magistrate's office. Evidence that young Hindmarsh was driving 80 miles an hour and he was fined $25.

Mr. Hindmarsh requested special consideration for his son and gave his guarantee that he would not drive anywhere outside Toronto city limits, the magistrate feeling sure Toronto police would stop reckless driving.

"He was quite free to kill anybody in Toronto, but he couldn't kill anybody outside Toronto," said Mr. Hepburn. "That shows influence."

Special Consideration

The Premier produced another memorandum—from the Education Department. It related to an application for special consideration for John Hindmarsh, in June, 1934, when John was unable to write certain examination papers. He was granted standing.

In 1935, John Hindmarsh failed in four Middle School papers.. Again special consideration was sought, the memorandum said.

Mr. Roebuck labelled the Premier's remarks an exhibition of meanness and smallness.

"This attempt to injure Mr. Atkinson through his grandsons because of a speeding record is cheap and contemptible," thundered Mr. Roebuck. The school painting episode was a boyish prank.

It was a disgrace that two youths should be held up and pilloried in formal debate in the Legislature, said Mr. Roebuck.

In reference to Mr. Walkinshaw's appointment as his secretary, Mr. Roebuck said he had discussed it with the Premier, and there was no objection. The attack on Walkinshaw was Hepburnian at its worst —ruthless and brutal.

Records Ready.

"Because of his record, the insurance department refused him a licence," said Mr. Hepburn. "If you want the record I'll table it."

"No doubt you'll blast his reputation," retorted Mr. Roebuck. "No doubt you will exercise all the ability you have to drive the knife in and turn it around." Mr. Roebuck said he took all responsibility for granting Iloyds an Ontario licence.

"This shows the lengths to which the Prime Minister will go in trying to injure a member who may not agree with him and who will not submit to his dictation," he said. "I was in politics when the Prime Minister was in short pants. If he carries on in the future as he has in the past, I'll be in politics after he's back to the farm."

The Duncan Fees.

Renewing the attack on Mr. Roebuck, Mr. Hepburn said his then Attorney-General had persuaded him to have withdrawn from the order paper a motion asking information concerning fees paid Lewis Duncan by the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission. The substance of the matter was that Mr. Duncan had been paid $16,000 for preparing a speech that took Mr. Roebuck in the legislature nine hours to deliver. He wanted $10,000 more.

"But we're protected from this graspy and greedy person by reason of legislation passed by the former Attorney-General,' 'said Mr. Hepburn. "He can't sue us without a fiat."

Mr. Roebuck said that it was not his legislation that required a fiat to bring action against Hydro. If Mr. Hepburn's charge against Mr. Duncan was no more accurate than his accusations against Mr. Atkinson, there wasn't much truth in them. Mr. Roebuck said he was present when Mr. Atkinson was supposed to have threatened to hound and harass the Premier, but he did not hear it. The Premier was reporting an interview without a "shred of truth."

"I rise to support the Premier," said Provincial Secretary Harry Nixon.

"Mr. Atkinson did not tell him that on that occasion, nor was his voice raised," said Mr. Roebuck, inquiring of the speaker how he could stay within parliamentary bounds and yet speak the truth.

Mr. Duncan's bill was for a variety of services, said Mr. Roebuck. He earned every dollar of the $16,000 as a "most persistent, industrious, and capable investigator." He denied that Mr. Duncan wrote the nine-hour speech.

"The Premier will not annihilate me with this kind of chaff," said Mr. Roebuck.

"I wouldn't use a sledge hammer on a fly," said the Premier.

Reason for asking that the Duncan return be not tabled was to prevent private power companies, then engaged in litigation with Hydro, from obtaining information that would have been of value to them, said Mr. Roebuck.

Referring to the Government's bill to provide a general one-year extension of the terms of persons in elected municipal offices on February 1, 1941, Mr. Hepburn said fear of revenue losses inspired city newspapers and rural weeklies to oppose the measure, said Premier Hepburn. The city papers feared loss of advertising revenue and the rural weeklies would lose the revenue from printing voters' lists.

The imputation that newspapers opposed the two-year term for financial reasons was deplorable, said Mr. Roebuck.

Upholds the Press.

"No country in the world has a finer set of newspapers than we have in this province. They are just as high-minded, patriotic and sincere as you will find in the whole world. To try to intimate on the floor of the House that Ontario newspapers are actuated only by what is mean and venal is deplorable."

Hundreds of letters had ben received commending him on his stand against the war policies of the Federal administration, Premier Hepburn told the House. He paid no attention to a series of meetings organized by Bart Sullivan, "a paid employee of the Federal crowd," professing to speak in the name of Liberals. The Premier read a letter from Hamilton saying that anti-Hepburn meeting there were not representative of Liberals generally.

that his death may have been hastened by two years of unremitting pressure to head a Japanese-controlled government.

The attending physician said death resulted from blood poisoning induced by an infected tooth. Wu was 61 years old. His career as a warlord is known to millions of Chinese because he paid his soldiers and ordered them not to loot.

The story goes that a Japanese Major-General, one Kawamoto, had threatened to commit hari-kiri in Wu's home unless the warlord agreed to head a new regime.

This was said so to have upset the aging marshal that he developed a "political illness" and refused to see anyone. A few days later he died.

Shortly after his death came suggestions from a local Chinese newspaper and also from Chungking, seat of the Central China Government, that he be enshrined as a god of mercy in time of war.

Hastening the movement toward Deification is the arrival of a Taoits monk at Peiping with an account of communication with the "newly liberated spirit" of the old warlord.

Supplies Cut Off the past three days in that sector, the Finns said there was this unofficial story:—

Large Russian forces early in the war pushed northwestward around Lake Ladoga in an effort to flank the Karelian Isthmus defences of the Mannerheim line. Their two columns were smashed at Loimola and Syskyjaervi, about 20 miles inside Finland.

Another heavy drive was stopped at Kitela, also a score of miles from the border and six or seven miles north of the lake.

Anxious to relieve the Kitela divisions before they could be cut to pieces in the manner of the 163rd and 44th divisions at Suomossalmi, the Russian command tried vainly to send troops across the frozen lake.

Block Reinforcements

Then they sought to bring up reinforcements along the railroad from Suojaervi, 55 miles northeast of Kitela, but the Finns stopped them where the line crosses the Kollaan River near Loimola.

In a more desperate effort, the Russian comand launched repeated attacks overland, but in the past three days these have been thrown back with heavy Russian losses.

Russian advances in force at Atojoki, farther south, also have been hurled back.

In the meantime the Russians in the neighborhood of Kitela were said to be in an increasingly difficult situation and are eating the flesh of their horses.

That is the Finnish story.

On the darker side for Finland is the wholesale bombing of communities behind the lines.

Here, again, individuals, in pursuit ships can work wonders against squadrons of Red bombers, the Finns contend. One pilot is credited with destroying six bombers on a single flight—but Finland's airforce is insignificant compared with the Soviet armada.

The Soviet bombers droned over Finland again yesterday sank the 1,133-ton Finnish merchant ship Notung at Sottunja, in the eastern Aland Islands, barely missed an unidentified German ship which had run aground nearby, and attacked with machine-guns a third ship, also unidentified.

vealed the government's program for the session, its plans for the future.

The combination of war and an impending general election—involving, among other things, certain criticisms of the government's quiet conduct of the national war effort—is generally expected to provide sessional interest not exceeded since the first Great War.

An Election?

Debate may be long and intense. It may, on the other hand, be short and intense—if the government suddenly decides to dissolve parliament and call an election.

In this connection, the expectation is widespread among members that the government's war-time minimum of legislation will include changes in the Election Act to make it possible to bring on an election with less notice than now required and also to provide for soldiers voting, including those already overseas.

Seven weeks' notice of an election is necessary at present, plus two or three days of grace. Rumors persist that this is to be reduced to 30 days.

Whether an election is called early this summer, it is generally agreed, will depend in part on the course of the war itself. If the present comparative quiet should burst into a dreadful fury, any election plans would undoubtedly be shelved for many months.

Six new members elected since the last session of parliament will be introduced during to-day's brief and simple ceremonies. Even so, the Commons still meets with four vacancies, the Senate with 13.

The proceedings will be short. Then Friday afternoon the House will hear J. A. Bradette (Lib. Cochrane) and W. G. Weir (Lib. MacDonald), move and second a reply to the Speech from the Throne, clearing the decks for the party leaders to begin the major firing on Monday.

At least one of these tickets, it was said, had Wheeler in second place—a nomination which the Montanan has said he would not accept.

Ontario Court Dismisses Assault Appeal

LINDSAY, Jan. 25.—(ENS).—The appeal gy William Joseph Hannivan, Verulay township, of a conviction by Magistrate E. A. Gee on a charge of assault was dismissed in the Ontario Court of Appeal Tuesday. Hannivan was sentenced to three months in jail for assaulting Gunner Andrew Gillingham of the 45th Battery and breaking his jaw. It was at this trial, January 3, that Crown Attorney J. E. Anderson refused to allow Provincial Constable David Adair to give character evidence for the accused.

It came out in the trial that Gillingham had taken Hannivan's girl skating and that a fight was precipitated later at a dance hall in which Gillingham suffered the broken jaw.

Kiwanis' Anniversary.

The Lindsay Kiwanis Club cooperated with the Kiwanis International on Tuesday in celebrating the 25th anniversary of Kiwanis. The head table was decorated with a huge three-storey birthday cake and the cake was officially cut by H. Stinson, K.C., first president of the Lindsay club.

Stan Longhurst, vice-president of the Peterborough club, was present with several members to extend Peterborough's greetings.

Directors Meet.

Bruce McNevin, M.P., president of the Farmers' Mutual Fire Insurance Co., was host to the Board of Directors and officials of the company at a dinner Tuesday. The directors were told that the company is in excellent financial condition. Among the speakers was S. A. Darling of Peterborough, one of the company's agents.

E. G. Whitaker, of Lindsay, has been approached by the Ontario Provincial Command of the Legion of Frontiersmen with regard to the formation of a unit of this organization in Lindsay.

Middlebourne, W.Va., Jan. 25. THE Rev. J. J. Kelly, 69-year-old retired Methodist minister, boasted today he was cutting his third set of teeth. He had his second set pulled three months ago, with the intention of getting artificial teeth. Seven new molars began pushing through the gums a few days ago.

Five Girls Hurt; One Suffers Fractured Spine

Five girls were injured, three of them seriously, when a toboggan on which they were coasting down an Otonabee hill during a church tobogganing and skiing party Tuesday night crashed into a bump at the bottom of the incline and threw them off.

The five victims were:

Mary M. Thompson, 341 Charlotte street, in St. Joseph's Hospital with back injuries.

Iris Whalen, 370 John street, in St. Joseph's Hospital, with back injuries.

Jane Ireland, 17, 287 Dalhousie street, ankle injuries.

The accident happened during the annual sports night of the Trinity Young People's Society. Some of the crowd were on skis and others were engaged in tobogganing and this party of girls had coasted down a high hill east of Burnham's Woods when their toboggan careening down the incline at a high rate of speed smashed into the bump at the bottom and the occupants were tossed off.

It was realized that Miss Elliott was badly hurt and she was taken to Nicholls Hospital. Miss Sexsmith also went to the hospital but was allowed to go home. Miss Thompson and Miss Whalen were not at first thought to be seriously hurt, but Wednesday they had to be taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, where they were placed in casts.

Local Tourist Revenue $240,000 In 1939

The council of Wellington county has been talking about a publicity committee. "We have something here that should be advertitsed," Reeve William Duncan of Elora, said a few days ago. "There is not another county in Canada that has as much for tourists as we have."

Something along the same line was said in that forward-looking council of Peterboro county that was headed by E. N. McDonald two years ago, and although every Peterboro reeve knows that this county ranks around the top of the scenic rating, and already has a well established tourist business nothing has actually been undertaken or accomplished along the county front.

It was said at the meeting of the manufacturers' committee of the city council the other night that the tourist business in this Peterboro area last year amounted to $240,000. The local committee headed now by Alderman Bradburn is concerned about making a special effort to maintain the tourist influx into the Kawarthas this year. They believe that with a war in Europe there is likely to be more attention turned to Canada by American holiday seekers, but there have been rumors across the line that seem to be calculated to frighten tourists away from Canada because this country is at war.

Beauty Spots.

There is hardly one township in this county that lacks desirable water front, fishing grounds and the other attractions of summer. And that should include South Monaghan as part of the area north of Rice Lake. You could set out from the western boundary of the county between Ennismore and Emily and head easterly to the Hastings line, and make the entire route by water.

One of the beauty spots of the county rests right on the Hastings-Peterboro border, at the east end of Deer Lake, just one of the outer holiday spots this county has to sell, but so far no one in the county council has used the words of the Wellington reeve —"We have some thing here that should be advertised."

The fact is that some members of the city council feel that the county council should join up with them in a publicity effort, but there has been a hesitation about broaching the subject. Others would go further afield in an attempt to get a co-operative publicity undertaking, the idea Perry Alexander of Oak Orchard tried to get under way last year, but in the words of Mayor Hamilton, there is too much petty, local jealousy in the Kawarthas, obstructing the work that should be done.

Incidentally, Mr. Alexander is down at Pine Forest Inn, Summerville, South Carolina, for the winter. In one of his letters to the Examiner last fall he appealed to the Kawartha district as a whole to link up its forces for fuller effects of advertising and publicity, but no one did anything about it.

Some members of the city council said the other night that if places like Lindsay did not want to join in such a propaganda program, at least the municipalities of Peterboro county should be willing to contribute some help, not only by some appropriation for that cause, but also by personal interest and organization.

Dies In Her 94th Year

One of Peterborough's grand old ladies, Mrs. Elizabeth Vinette, died late Wednesday afternoon in her 94th year. Born in Quebec, she lived in Peterborough from the age of eight years, had 16 children, seven of whom are living, 37 grandchildren and 19 great-grandchildren.

(Examiner Staff Photo.)

Resident Of City For 83 Years Mrs. Elizabeth Vinette Passes

One of Peterborough's oldest residents, a woman noted for her charm and youthful spirit, was claimed by death late yesterday afternoon. She was Elizabeth Vinette, 10 Lisburn street, and she died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Edith Rishea, 193 Lake street. She was in her 94th year.

Life was kind to this grand old lady for, though she had known sorrow aplenty, she retained one of the most cheerful, happy outlooks possible to see. She did not look within twenty five years of her age, and although she was a little deaf, she had use of her other faculties almost to the fullest degree. One of her greatest joys was her knitting, at which her proficiency would put to shame many a woman half a century her junior.

Her spontaneous good nature, her keen intelligence, her quick wit, won for her countless friends in this city among people far younger than herself.

She was born Elizabeth Feeley, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Narcse Feeley of St. Agnes, Quebec. As a young girl of 11 years she moved to Peterborough and lived here until her death yesterday—a period of 82 years. In that time she married Edward Vinette, who died 17 years ago, and gave birth to 16 children, seven of whom are still living. She has 37 grandchildren and 21 great grandchildren. The immediate children are Mrs. Louise Saunders of Thornton, R.I., Mrs. Elese Miner of Thornton, R.I., Mrs. Adell Hounsell of Troy, N. IS REMANDED

In police court this morning a young man was charged with obtaining $1.86 under false pretences and pleaded not guilty. The crown was not ready to go on and the case was enlarged until Monday next, the accused being released on his own bail of $100.

CAR IS RECOVERED

The automobile belonging to William Milliken that was stolen from in front of the Elite Cafe early Sunday morning has been recovered by Chief Wallace Hendren of Lakefield who found the machine abandoned on a street near the Lakefield public school.

NORWOOD FAIR MEETING

The question of resuming the Norwood Fair will likely be the main question before the members of the East Peterborough Agricultural Society at its annual meeting this afternoon. The county council last week renewed its grant of $300, but the similar amount of last year was presumably not applied for because the Fair was suspended last fall.

COLLIDE ON SIMCOE STREET

As City Treasurer Morley Shaver was moving his car out from the curb on Simcoe street between Water and George streets Wednesday afternoon, his machine and another automobile being driven east on Simcoe street by S. C. Elliott, 567 Aylmer street, came into collision. The right front and rear fenders of the car driven by Elliott were damaged and a tire was torn and blown out.

AVIATION CAPS POPULAR.

Mothers are noticing a good deal less blinking by their sons this winter with a switch in popularity from aviator caps to skin caps with ear protectors. Many's the mother, it is claimed, who spent all summer trying to cure her son of a blink caused by piece of fur in the embryo flyer's headpiece that caused irritation to his forehead. The new caps, they claim, have no such fur, cause no wrinkled brows.

FOR THE RED CROSS

Cobourg police and firemen are to be hooked up in a hockey game for the benefit of the Canadian Red Cross Society and the advance sale of tickets has been so great that the original affair has broadened out into a gala program with a number of the best figure skaters in Toronto added to the entertainment. One game will be played in Cobourg and another in Port Hope and a sell-out for both fixtures is anticipated. The suggestion has been made that Peterborough police and firefighters might also be interested in staging a similar game in aid of the Red Cross.

PRIORITY FOR WAR SUPPLIES

Railroads of France are giving priority to the transport of war materials and second priority to coal, armaments, food supplies, certain indispensible raw materials and goods for export.

The Rambling REPORTERS

AN EMBARRASSING MOMENT

The story has been going the rounds of a King street woman who found herself in an embarrassing position the other day through a moment of absent-mindedness. It appears that she had shoved what she thought was a duster into her coat pocket while she went out to hang the clothes, the idea being to clean the clothes line. She forgot all about the article in her pocket when she had to go down town a little later until she had reason to search for a pocket handkerchief. Then she found herself waving around in public a snappy looking pair of what we believe are commonly called "scanties." And was her face red!—F.D.C.

AN OBLIGING OFFICER

If a Peterborough citizen finds himself handicapped today because his set of artificial teeth were not ready for installation at the time specified the blame cannot be laid on the doorstep of the dentist, "even if the trouble did originate on that very doorstep. It seems that the dentist has a habit of putting dentures in the course of manufacture outdoors to harden over night. He did so in this particular case, along came the policeman on duty making his rounds, the box with the artificial grinders caught his eye, and the result was that the teeth instead of being ready Wednesday for another stage of manufacture were in custody at the police station. And a day had been lost in the process. The customer would probably be grinding his teeth today — if he had any to grind.—F.D.C.

Henry D. Coons Again Head Of Lakefield Fair

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 25 — (ENS). — Henry D. Coons was re-elected president of the Lakefield Agricultural Society at the annual meeting on Wednesday afternoon in the Memorial Hall.

In his opening remarks Mr. Coons thanked the members for their support during his previous term of office. Lakefield Fair, he said, is one of the oldest in the province and while some of the many smaller fairs are dropping out, Lakefield is still able to keep going. This was probably due owing to the time and energy spent by the founders of the society, who were perhaps more optimistic than the present generation. They received little assistance in those days, but had the courage to carry on.

The financial statement showed that there is a balance on hand of $205.60. The receipts for this year were: Grants, $785.40; membership and entry fees, $245.90; rent of grounds and goods sold, $16.75; donations and advertisements, $261; proceeds from concert, $145.85; gate receipts, grand stand and concessions, $279.95—total, $1,734.85.

Expenses: Insurance and interest, $85.20; advertising, stationery and stamps, $142.25; improvements, $104.92; salary, wages and judges, $117; miscellaneous and meals, $38.35; entertainment, $195.10; prize list, $984.40—total, $1,667.22.

Total number of exhibitors were 68; black and white exhibitors, 14; calf club exhibitors, 16; children's, 45; grand total, 143. The total entries were 1,420.

Re-arrange Prize-List.

There was some discussion as to the advisability of re-arranging the prize-list of the horses, particularly the carriage and road horse classes. Some changes were also recommended by the beef and dairy cattle committees, especially if the Fair Board continues to sponsor the black and white day.

When the president asked for discussion on the weakest feature of the fair, the secretary laughingly said he thought the weakest feature this past year was the gate reecipts. This led to argument as to the best method of raising the gate receipts. The 1939 date brought the fair on Monday and Tuesday, and this was thought to not be so satisfactory as later in the week. A date for 1940 was suggested as nearer October 1. However, the date will be set at a later meeting.

One member suggested that if there were less horse racing and this money put into more amusement as an added attraction for the public.

The two-dollar fee to the Ontario Fair Association will be paid.

H. D. Coons will represent the local society at the Ontario Fairs convention.

J. W. Ridpath was appointed chairman for the election of officers.

A new ruling passed at the last convention of the Ontario Fairs Association, requires that twelve members comprise the board of directors. Permission being secured, six more members may be added, and an additional six junior members with the age limit of the juniors to be thirty years of age.

This led to a lively discussion lasting for over half an hour. There were seventeen members on the 1939 board, without the president, and first and second vice-presidents, and the new board of directors shall comprise these officers in the list of directors.

Several motions and amendments were passed and it was finally decided to elect the old board minus the names of George Harrison and W. H. Peacock and adding the three presidents, thus bringing the total up to eighteen, providing these additional six directors be given the necessary permission to act. The presidents were elected at the board meeting which followed the general meeting and resulted as follows:

President, H. D. Coons; First Vice-President, H. J. Abbot; Second Vice-President, George Mullen; Secretary-Treasurer, H. W. Beavis. Board of Directors: J. W. Ridpath, Wm. Hawthorne, Wm. Tedford, E. Maloney, F. J. Patterson, H. Bullock, R. Darling, T. Garvey, H. J. Abbot, A. Darling, E. Dunford, M. Pimmet, Roy Mullen, E. Waldon and J. McKercher.

A. E. Higgins, first vice-president for the previous term, asked to be relieved of this office and H. J. Abbot was then elected in his place.

The chairman in closing, spoke of the splendid work which the secretary has been doing and recommended that he given an increase in salary. The necessary motion was passed giving a $25 increase to the present salary of $75.

The re-elected president thanked the members for his appointment to office and said he hoped the 1940 Exhibition would be even more successful than the previous years.

A BURNS' THOUGHT

John A. Smith was thinking this morning of the Scot who was born in the little hamlet of Alloway, Ayrshire, 181 years ago today.—Robert Burns. And he quoted the line "Man's inhumanity to man makes countless thousands mourn," from the poem "Man Was Made to Mourn," and remarked that it had not lost any of its force with the flight of time since the birth of the immortal "Rab." Mr. Smith said it seemed to be true that there was more inhumanity by man to man today than in Burns' time during the eighteenth century.

Canadian Shell

Ottawa, Jan. 25 (CP)

A PARACHUTE SHELL, designed by G. D. Wright of Ottawa, may become part of Great Britain's anti-aircraft defence system.

The shell, which will drop parachutes with wires attached for trapping attacking aircraft, has been forwarded by the national defence department to the British war office, it was learned today.

It is understood the new shell is more fully developed than a similar shell of American design now being tested in France.

Police Called To Probe Two Rifle Shots

The sharp report of two rifle shots ringing out on the night air almost completely ruined a friendly game of cards at the home of Leo J. Cleary, 529 Rogers street, Wednesday night, the woman players being badly frightened by the unexpected development.

Two men were seen in the garden of the Cleary home immediately after the firing and a hurry call was put in for police assistance.

Constables Percy Sexsmith and C. J. McGillen investigated but the men had disappeared and there was no clue as to their identity and nothing to explain the cause of all the shooting.

St. Paul's Church Membership Stands At Highest In History

There was a fairly good representation of members present at the annual congregational meeting of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, held in the Sunday School Hall last evening. The minister presided and conducted devotional exercises. He reported having travelled nearly five thousand miles in visitation, as well as having attended over four hundred meetings of all kinds, occasionally being at fifteen meetings in a week. Miss Walker, deaconess, reported on the varied phases of her work, visiting the shutins, as well as carrying on her secretarial duties. The report of the Kirk Session, presented by W. S. Hill, Clerk, revealed an addition to membership of 74 during the year, a net gain of 30, which leaves the roll of membership at 1,068, the highest in the history of the church.

The report of the Board of Management showed a slight deficit on the year's operations, but reported economies for the coming year which will bring about a saving of $1,100. The chairman, G. A. Macdonald, offered two recommendations which were approved, one with regard to societies contributing to the new maintenance fund, and the other giving authority to consider the advisability of disposing of the present manse property. He also reported a reduction of $1,000 on the mortgage indebtedness. The budget giving for missions showed an increase of over $600, the total raised being $3,687.98. Elections to the board resulted in the following being elected for three years: John T. Hornsby, G. Wilson Craw, Reub. Wilson, W. G. Morrow, and Lt.-Col. W. Gordon Hall; and for two years, R. J. Goring.

Reports were heard from the Ladies' Aid Society, which raised $878.89, and assisted the board of management with a donation of $400; from the Women's Missionary Society, presented by Miss Nina Davidson, showing that $837.78 had been sent in for allocation; from the Fraser Auxiliary, W.M.S., which raised $418, and the Y.W. Auxiliary, which had raised $172.59 for missions. The choir reported a total of $163.47 on hand, and the project of getting new gowns well in hand.

The Sunday School report was very gratifying. C. M. Lawrence, superintendent, reported increased interest, many new members added to the staff, and the beginning of a library for teachers. Progress was noted in each department. Reports were also presented from the Girls' Guilds and the Mission Bands, as well as the Muriel Davis Girls' Auxiliary, and the Y.P. Society.

Mrs. H. A. Marsh was officially elected to the Board of Anson House; Mr. T. A. Mackay, to the Board of Nicholl's Hospital; W. S. Hill was elected to the Board of Trustees of St. Paul's congregation; and H. B. Cowan and A. Watkins to the Bible Society. T. H. Taylor and W. L. Ferguson were re-elected auditors. The meeting was closed with the singing of "Blest Be the Tie That Binds" and the Benediction by the minister, Dr. A. T. Barr. The total receipts from all sources amounted to over fifteen thousand dollars.

Youth Is Struck By Locomotive

Elmer Berardi, 480 Parnell street, came within an ace of being killed at the C.P.R. station the other night when he was struck by the evening train from Toronto as it was pulling into the station.

The only thing that saved the youth was that he was tossed clear of the rails by the front of the locomotive instead of being thrown on to the track.

He was walking along the side of the track as the train slowly moved into the station and in stepping around a pile of snow stepped close enough to be hit. Fortunately, although he was knocked off his feet, Berardi fell to one side and escaped being run over.

He was not hurt, Dr. D. W. Clark who examined him later finding no signs of injury.

County's Roads Are Still Open

The two hundred miles of county roads in the local system are open to traffic, and the county's plows are working on some township roads that need clearing, E. A. Chalmers, county engineer, told the Examiner today.

There has been no serious trouble yet from the weather although snow flurries in the last week called out two of the county's three plows. Traffic conditions throughout the Peterborough area are reported good.

BOARD MEETING

A meeting of the Exhibition Board is slated for Friday evening February 2 in the office of F. C. Paterson.

St. Lawrence Seaway Lives Again Talks Re-open On Proposed Plan

By R. K. CARNEGIE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

OTTAWA, Jan. 23 — (CP). — Since almost the beginning of the century governments at Ottawa and Washington have been moving in the general direction of a St. Lawrence development which would enable ocean-going ships to steam to the head of Lake Superior and provide for development of enormous additional electrical power for Canadian and American industries.

Since the New Year Prime Minister Mackenzie King confirmed the report that good progress was being made in the project negotiations between Canada and the United States, and also between the Dominion and the Province of Ontario. A delegation from Washington is in Ottawa to discuss the treaty provisions.

Supporters of so ambitious a project have met many reverses and delays, but 1940 starts off with bright prospects that negotiations between the two Governments will result in a treaty that both countries will be willing to ratify, and will provide not only greater transportation facilities, but more than 2,000,000 more horse-power from Hydro development.

Costs of the proposition to be borne by Canada amount to about $271,000,000, but $132,000,000 of this is represented in the already built Welland Canal. Ontario as a province woud pay for a large part of the power construction sections and the Dominion's share, still to be paid, would be $44,000,000. Costs assessed the United States total $272,751,000.

38 Years' Discussion.

The history of the St. Lawrence waterways negotiations dates back to 1902 when Congress asked the United States President to invite Great Britain to join in an international commission to report on levels, water diversion, navigation, and improvement of lakes on the boundary and the St. Lawrence. The invitation wa saccepted in 1903.

The first international commission on the subject was finally completed in 1905 and was occupied with study of upper lake problems until it was succeeded by an international joint committee set up under a treaty between the United States and the United Kingdom in 1909.

Early in 1914 the International Joint Commission was instructed to report on the advantageous use of the boundary waters from the head of the lakes to the Atlantic Ocean.

The First Great War intervened and in 1920 the International Joint Commission was further instructed to report on the feasibility of making the St. Lawrence from Montreal to Lake Ontario navigable for ocean-going traffic and to apportion the cost of such a project as between the United States and Canada.

In 1921 Col. W. P. Wooten for the United States and W. A. Bowden for Canada made a report on the project to the Commission. The same year the Commission recommended the United States and Canada enter into a treaty combining the St. Lawrence devleopment and the new Welland Canal.

In 1923 United States Secretary of State notified Canada of his country's readiness to enter into negotiations for a treaty based on the report. Canada replied, agreeing to start the negotiations by having a more thorough study made of the engineering difficulties of the undertaking by an enlarged engineering board. The engineering board was organized in 1924.

The same year Canada appointed a national advisory committee consisting of Hon. George B. Graham, Thomas Ahearn, Hon. W. E. Foster, E. D. Martin, V. L. McDougald, Sir Clifford Sifton, Major-General J. W. Stewart, and Hon. Adelard Turgeon to aid the Government in reaching a decision.

It was another year before the terms of reference to the joint board of engineers was agreed to and the board reported back to their respective governments on November 16, 1926. Hon. Herbert Hoover was chairman of the United States advisory committee which passed the report on to President Coolidge.

The United States government in 1927 intimated its acceptance of the report, but in Canada a delay occurred because of the uncertainty as to whether the Dominion or the Provinces owned power rights in navigable waters and particularly in international boundary waters.

Power Ownership.

The matter of power ownership was referred to the Supreme Court of Canada in 1928 which the following year gave a judgment that the general questions submitted to it, involving provincial rights, could not be definitely answered except through test cases.

No definite answer has ever been obtained as to the ownership of water power on the St. Lawrence, although after a Dominion-Provincial conference discussed the question in 1929 the Dominion has not disputed the claim of the provinces to water power ownership.

The report of the joint board of engineers, confined to the international section between Prescott and Cornwall, was not unanimous, the United States engineers, while agreeing a single dam would be more economical, contended it would endanger Canadian communities along the river shore above Cornwall and recommended two dams, one at Cryaler Island below Morrisburg, and the second below Cornwall.

During the session of 1928 a committee of the Canadian Senate made an exhaustive study of the engineers' report, but had not completed the hearings when Parliament prorogued. The inquiry was not continued the following year.

Decision to go ahead with the project remained in abeyance until President Herbert Hoover and Prime Minister R. B. Bennett went to work on it in 1931.

In 1932, the Welland Ship Canal, a part of the seaway project started in 1913, was completed. The cost, approximatley $132,000,000, was borne entirely by Canada.

In the same year Canada completed its share of deepening the channels in the Thousand Islands and United States completed its share the year following. This completed a 27-foot channel from Prescott to the head of the Lakes with certain works to be done at Sault Ste. Marie.

About the same time the Beauharnois Powe Canal, so constructed as to be used as a navigation canal between Lake St. Francis and Lake St. Louis, was completed, but no navigation facilities have been installed. This will be part of the new work.

An agreement was signed on July 11, 1932, between the Dominion and the Province of Ontario, setting out the terms under which the Canadian portion of the power developed in the inter-section rapids section at the dams at Crysler Island near Morrisbug and Barnhart Island below Cornwall—approximately 1,000,000 horse-power—would be turned over to Cornwall.

The Dominion was to bear the costs chargeable to navigation and Ontario the costs incidental to power development. Ontario's payments were estimated at $27,115,700 for the Crysler Island development and $35,846,800 for the development at Barnhart Island. Premier George Henry signed for Ontario.

On July 18, 1932, the treaty to carry out the project was signed for Canada and the United in Washington.

Ratified and Vetoed

On two or more previous occasions, treaties signed by Canada and the United States were ratified by the Canadian parliament and turned down by the United States senate, so the understanding was that the St. Lawrence treaty should not be presented to the Canadian parliament until it had been ratified at Washington.

On March 14, 1934, the United States Senate rejected the treaty. The same year the Hepburn government came into power in Ontario and soon expressed opposition to the treaty and to the Dominion-Ontario agreement. It contended Ontario did not need the additional power and Canada did not need the additional transportation facilities the seaway would provide, so the expenditures could not be justified.

On Feb. 23, 1938, Prime Minister Mackenzie King tabled in the Commons correspondence with Premier Hepburn in which Mr. Hepburn asked the Dominions to propose to Washington that a treaty between the two countries be entered into to provide for diversion of water from Long Lake to Lake Superior, the diverted water to remain the property of the province for power purposes and also to provide for exporting electrical energy in greater quantities from Ontario to the United States. On March 17, 1938, the United States rejected Ontario's proposal.

On May 31, 1938, the United States submitted the draft of a new St. Lawrence waterways treaty which would make provision for diversion of water from Long Lake and steps to protect the scenic beauty of Niagara Falls.

On Aug. 18, 1938, at the opening of the Thuosand Islands bridge, President Roosevelt expressed the hope the seaway project would be brought to a successful conclusion.

Three days later Prime Minister Mackenzie King, speaking at Woodbridge, Ont., said the new draft treaty afforded a practical basis for the discussion of the whole situation. On Sept. 22, 1938, Premier Hepburn declined Mr. Mackenzie King's invitation to have technical men of the provincial and Dominion governments confer on power features of the St. Lawrence seaway plan. Premier Duplessis of Quebec congratulated Mr. Hepburn on his opposition to the seaway.

On Nov. 1, 1939, Premier Hepburn announced that because of the war and the need of Ontario industries to be geared up to wartime production, requiring more electrical energy, he had withdrawn his opposition to the seaway project and the same day it was revealed in Ottawa negotiations had been in progress for a month between the two governments.

Italy Admits 104 Lost Aboard Burned Liner

GENOA, Jan. 25.—(AP)—Italian Line officials today gave up for lost 104 persons—44 passengers and 60 crew members—in the burning of the liner Orazio.

A statement issued by the line said an official investigation of the fire that swept the South America-bound liner Sunday in the Western Mediterranean showed it was due entirely "to a mechanical accident to the left motor."

The ship sailed from Genoa last Saturday with 643 passengers and crew members and 1,500 tons of cargo.

Helping To Save Forest Wealth

Canada's National Forestry Program is to carry on this year despite the fact that the country is at war and that large numbers of the boys who were trained under this scheme last year have joined the colors. Here are some of the N.F.P. boys in their natty khaki drill shirts and trousers, forage caps and frieze windbreakers. The job of these trainers is to assist in saving Canada's forest wealth. They learn the best means of fighting forest fires, how to build trails and roads, bridges and ranger cabins. Their work also includes clearing camp sites, making ski runs, building telephone lines between points in the forest reserves and also studying right in the open woodcraft, first aid, the combatting of insect pests and safeguarding the scenic attractions of the national playgrounds. Their work is similar in many respects to that of the Civilian Observation Corps in the United States.

The church treasurer, A. I. Edmison, reported receipts of over $1,300, of which over $250, was for missions. All other departments reported most satisfactory progress.

Why Be a Bear about Winter?

THERE are a lot of men in this world who disappear about October and it isn't until next April that you see them chugging along the road again.

Gentlemen, why be a bear about Winter?

Today—right now—you can step into 17 feet of sunny loveliness that's called a 1940 Nash and thumb your nose at Winter from now on!

The incredible magic begins the moment you twist that "Weather Eye" dial and feel a gust of air so warm and balmy you'd swear you were basking in middle-May!

A hint to your hundred-odd horses, and you're off with the headlong rush of a skier down the chute . . .

When your Automatic Fourth Speed Forward clicks in, you're skippering the closest thing known to a silent-flying iceboat . . .

And when a laggard disputes your path, a nudge on the throttle gives you "Overtake" power that whips you out and around like a champion Olympic bobsled taking the turns.

Those frozen ruts and bumps . . . why don't you feel them?

You can't—because they never get past your dancing wheels. It's Nash's amazing new Arrow-Flight Ride . . . result of an utterly new springing combination.

Right down to its big Manifold-Sealed engine . . . that sends you singing on your way while your friends' cars are still coughing and sputtering at the curb . . . you've found a car built to take the headaches out of Winter.

Come on down today and see it. With figures and facts and a surprising automobile X-Ray, we'll prove that inch for inch and pound for pound of sheer, fine steel . . . no car costs so little to own and run.

And we'll explain why . . . with 18 sleek, luxurious, big-car Nashes . . . our prices go right down to a few dollars more than the lowest.

Why not see your Nash dealer—and put an end to this dull Winter now?

CAMPBELLFORD

Man Has Right To Demand, Give Fair Deal

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 25 (ENS)—"To find and take the best, easiest and quickest ways to the desirable things of life you must give and demand a fair deal," declared Mayor F. F. Long in an address before Rotarians at their noonday luncheon here. In his remarks to the club and members of the council who were also guests of the luncheon Mr. Long caused some measure of surprise when he failed to touch on civic affairs. "You have a right to give others a fair deal and to demand a fair deal from them in return. Like a strand of thread in a rope each of us sustains the strain of life only because other threads are twisted all about and near him. A man's every thought, word and act springs from and brings him into relation with other men. To be on the lookout for a chance to give service to others is the biggest way to play the game. If you are an employee in any capacity, the best that you can offer your employer for the wages you expect to receive from him is service, and if you are in business of any kind the only equivalent you have to offer him for what you expect to receive, is service of one kind or another. Efficient service means a fair deal.

There is a certain class of retail dealer who, I presume, is as willing to give the fair deal as anyone, but laziness and a tendency to take the path of least resistance has dulled his mental faculties until he seems almost to resent the intrusion of a customer into the peaceful repose of his store. You can almost detect an air of relief when they can get out of waiting on you by telling you they haven't got what you want in stock. These same retailers complain about mail order houses butting in on their trade and the increasing number of their townspeople who do most of their shopping in a nearby city. Contrast the prosperity of various chain stores with their great variety of stock quick, courteous and accurate. As quick, courteous and accurate. As you give, so you receive; as you judge, so you are judged; as you deal—in business, society, politics, in your private life, and in your relations to life itself, so you will be dealt with.

You may think that your neighbor is paying a very high price for very little, or on the other hand that he is getting something for little less than nothing. But don't be deceived and don't deceive yourself for your neighbor, like you, will in the long run, know that he has had a fair deal.

'Men have been trying since there were men to avoid giving fair value for what they receive, but they have always ended by paying the price with interest and collection charges added."

Rotarian Bruce Longmore moved a hearty vote of thanks to the speaker for his splendid address.

Well Ballasted

Indianapolis, Jan. 25 (AP)

A 16-POUND impost did not prevent Detective Philip Miller from winning a race with a burglar. Miller, carrying a 16-pound bowling ball, was getting out of his car when he saw two men breaking into a parked automobile. Still carrying the ball, he chased the pair two blocks and caught one of the men. The other later surrendered to police.

Charge Nazis Using Counterfeit U.S. Cash For Goods From Italy, Balkans, Egypt

NEW YORK, Jan. 25. —(CP)— The New York Times says in a that the United States Secret dispatch from Washington today Service is investigating reports of the circulation of "enormous quantities" of counterfeit United States currency in Italy, Egypt and the Balkans by German Government sources.

"Exchanged for the currencies of these countries, constant supply of foreign exchange is thereby made available to Nazi officials for their foreign purchases," says the dispatch.

The method is regarded as a desperate one, which would be employed only by a country lacking gold and sorely in need of currency with which to make foreign purchases."

The immediate problem created by the reported practice is one for the countries where the counterfeit money is being circulated, it was said. Treasury officials were said to have pointed out that the process amounts to theft of the currency of countries where the counterfeit is passed and is not of concern to the United States unless the bogus currency reaches this country.

"I Spy—"

A Nazi Oil Line?

LONDON, Jan. 25 — (CP). — Great Britain is consulting Rumania to determine whether the recent reorganization of the Rumanian oil industry means more oil is to go to Germany, officials said today. This development coincided with reports here that the Germans are considering a pipe line through Russian Poland to the Rumanian oil fields.

Suspects Germany Must Be Made Fight

LONDON, Jan. 25—(CP)—L. S. Amery, Conservative Member of Parliament and former Dominion Secretary, believes that economic warfare is not enough and that Germany perhaps can only be defeated by forcing her to fight.

Mr. Amery, who served in 1917-18, is assistant secretary to the Imperial War Cabinet, declared in the course of a speech last night: last night:

"Raids on Germany would shake the confidence of the people of Germany in Adolf Hitler and would disorganize their national life and be worth many victories in the field.

"Blockade alone will never bring about Germany's defeat and it would be an illusion on our part to believe or think we can starve Germany into surrender."

Couldn't Walk Alone Or Dress Herself Unaided

Now Praises Syntona For Grand Relief From Five Years' Suffering. As She Once More Can Do Work Around the House.

All who suffer from ailments of the stomach, liver, kidneys, and bowels, and their long train of associated diseases, should be interested in the realities of the benefits women are receiving from Syntona every day. Here, for example, is the splendid experience of Mrs. J. McKay, 101 Byron Avenue, London:

"About five years ago I contracted pains in my shoulders and limbs. My stomach gave out on me and I suffered a lot from gas, cramps and acidity. During those years I took many medicines and treatments, but nothing seemed to help me and I got steadily worse until about a year ago, when I was so bad I could not dress myself or walk without help. I lost my appetite and became very nervous and couldn't sleep. I used to get hunger pains, but what little I did eat would not digest properly. Often dizzy spells came over me and my complexion was very sallow.

"I had tried so many things that first when I read about Syntona, I thought it was overrated, but when my sister told me about the wonderful results she got from it, I decided to give it a good trial. I have taken nine bottles and it has certainly helped me. My nerves are more relaxed now, I sleep well and can eat well without all that stomach distress. My bowels are regular and the dizzy spells have left me. The pains in my shoulder and limbs are not near so bad. Now I can get around by myself, make my husband's meals and wash the dishes. In my advanced age I am very pleased to have found a medicine that helps so much."

DAILY WAR SUMMARY

(By Canadian Press.)

Several hundred German technicians and instructors are reported at work in the southern part of Polish territory now occupied by Russia. This is the region to the north of Hungary and Rumania and the object of the Germans is said to be to assure the transport of goods from Rumania and Soviet Ukraine into Germany.

German economic experts are confronted with a serious transport difficulty in the southeast, owing to the prolonged tie-up of water communication on the Danube. The winter has been unusually severe and the Danube which should be floating hundreds of barges northwest into Germany still is ice-bound.

Moreover, the Russians, despite German pleas, are showing little haste or efficiency in getting railways into a condition which will permit regular and continuous service through th section of Poland now under their control.

Although the transport situation provides ample reason for the presence of the German technicians in the area, the fact that certain movements of a more or less military character are occurring in Slovakia, revive earlier suspicions a joint German-Russian move may be in process of organization.

The Soviet government never has concealed its intention of recovering the province of Bessarabia from Rumania sooner or later. Germany needs oil, metals and agricultural products from Southeastern Europe in order to continue the war.

Military operations in conjunction with Russia, designed to obtain effective control of the sources and means of transport of the desired products would be an attractive prospect if they could be assured of a speedy success.

Devotional Talk Is Given Lakefield YPS

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 25—(ENS). — "Kept for the Master's Use' was the title of the interesting talk given by Mrs. A. H. Clark, devotional convener at the regular meeting of the Young People's Society of St. Andrews church, Lakefield, on Monday evening.

She chose the hymn "Take My Life and Let It Be," stressing the meaning of each verse and substituting the word "keep" instead of "take" in the verses. "We have all said or sung this hymn many times but if we only once were to whisper it in the Master's ear with true earnestness and meaning, how well God would be pleased and He would help us, knowing that we put our trust in Him and depend on Him to carry us through all our trials and troubles," she said.

"Goldie Locks Goes to China," was the title of Lillian Calberry's reading.

Prayer was offered by Rev. J. M. Young and the Bible lesson read responsively. The roll call being answered with a verse of Scripture.

During the business period it was decided to invite the Young People's Society of the United church for the evening of Feb. 19, for a social evening.

Hide Negro Convict Fearing Lynching

FORT TOWSON, Okla., Jan. 25.—(AP).—A 21-year-old negro who confessed participation in the New Year's eve slayings of a farm couple and their four-year-old son was taken to an undisclosed jail today as county and state authorities feared violence.

Feeling ran high after W. D. Lyone, former convict, admitted complicity in the axe and shotgun killings of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Rogers and Dean.

"We put Lyons away for safekeeping," said Vern Cheatwood, special investigator for Governor Leon Phillips.

"People began collecting as soon as the thing leaked out and you can never tell what might happen."

Cheatwood said Lyons named another negro former convict, Van Bizzel, as the man who shot the Rogerses, hacked them with an axe and then fired their frame home. Bizzel was arrested with Lyons Jan. 11 for questioning.

The Rogers' eight-year-old son, James Glenn, fled with his one-year-old brother, Billie Don, and told authorities two men had shot his parents and set fire to the house.

Holmes—Lee

CAMPBELLFORD, Jan. 25. — (ENS) — Mary Frances, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lee of Seymour Township became the bride of Edward James Holmes, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Holmes of Cobourg. The marriage took place in St. Mary's Church on Monday morning with Rev. J. V. McAuley officiating.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, looked lovely in a floor length bridal satin gown made on Princess lines and embroidered net veil caught with a wreath of orange blossoms. She carried an exotic pearl Rosary, the gift of her cousin, Eleanor McGrath of Flint, Mich. She carried a sheaf of Talisman roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Patricia Regan of Frankford, a cousin of the bride, was charming in a floor length pink taffeta gown with pale blue accessories, and carried Briar Cliff roses.

Following a delightful wedding dinner at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Holmes left on a wedding trip to an undisclosed destination. They will reside in Cobourg. For travelling the bride donned a black lamb trimmed coat and hat over a gray alpaca dress.

Rita E. Hanrahan Becomes Bride Of J. M. Collins

Immaculate Conception Church was the setting for the marriage at eight-thirty o'clock this (Thursday) morning of Miss Rita Elizabeth Hanrahan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hanrahan, 522 Armour Road, and Mr. Joseph M. Collins, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Collins. Very Rev. Dean F. J. Sullivan officiated. Miss Bernice Flynn was at the organ, and Miss Stella Brady was soloist.

The bride, whose father gave her in marriage, wore a gown of misty blue taffeta in period style, with bouffant skirt and slim-fitting bodice with heart-shaped neckline and tiny puff sleeves. Her small hat was fashioned entirely of yellow, mauve and pink roses, and she wore elbow-length white kid gloves, and carried yellow roses. Miss Jean Hanrahan was her sister's bridesmaid, in a frock of pink taffeta designed on princess lines. Her tiny hat was similar in style to the bride's and was of pink velvet trimmed with blue velvet bows, and she carried a bouquet of deep pink roses. Mr. Oswald Corkery was groomsman, and the ushers were Mr. Roy Bacon and Mr. Herb Masterson.

A reception was held after the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents. Later the bridal couple left on a short trip, and will live in Peterborough on their return. For travelling the bride wore a frock of powder blue crepe, simply tailored, under a seal coat, and had chosen accessories in a Chinese Tea shade.

FASHIONS

Blouses made a wardrobe so much more extensive. Paired with plaid or plain, evening and daytime skirts they make varied costumes that take you everywhere, in style. For evening, a basque blouse of velveteen, satin or crepe with bright appliqued leaves and tiny covered buttons; for sports, a fireman blouse with long shirt sleeves and broad shoulders and a snug waistband, of flannel; and for dress up afternoons a brocade or printed silk blouse in the longer length. Make these smart toppers yourself and see how economical they are and what they do for a wardrobe that needs picking up.

Style No. 3110 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 requires 1¼ yards of 39-inch material for short fitted blouse; 2¼ yards for longer fitted blouse; 2¼ yards for fireman blouse.

Emb. 11185, leaf applique, must be ordered separately.

Younger Girls Frequently Fail To Attract Boy Friends Of Their Own Age Class Because They Show a Superiority Complex And Boys Do Not Like That Attitude.

DEAR MISS DIX—I am a pretty young girl and I want to know why I am more popular with old men and married men than I am with boys of my own age. I am not one of the husband-stealers and home-wreckers. I want a boy friend who hasn't a mortgage on him. Also, I would much prefer stepping out with a lad who is young and supple and can jitterbug instead of a man whose dancing dates back to the President Wilson era. Yet the boys in my own age class pass me up, while the oldsters fall for me. Why is this?—JANE.

ANSWER:

There may be several reasons why you are more popular with the oldsters than the youngsters. You may be more mature than the boys of your own age. Youth isn't a question of years. It is a matter of temperament. There are grandmothers who are still girlie-girlies and on a mental part with rah-rah college boys. And there are girls still in their teens who are settled and sedate and poised, and who have nothing in common with lads in their salad days.

Perhaps you fail to attract the boys of your own age because you are more intelligent and better educated than they are. Adult men like women who have brains and who carry an interesting line of conversation. They enjoy as companions girls who read and think and who are well-informed, but the average youth would run faster from a high-browed girl than he would from one afflicted with leprosy. He wants a girl who will chatter as meaninglessly as a sparrow, who giggles over his inane jokes, who has the latest hair bob and the shortest skirt, who can put the most wiggles in her dancing and who is just as silly and inconsequential as he is. Most likely the reason you attract old men and married men instead of boys of your own age is because you are, in reality, the mental age of the grown-up men and you meet on the same plane, whereas with the immature boys you cannot help being patronizing. You play with them as you would play with a child and they unconsciously resent it. Also, for the older men you present the highest type of fascination—a young girl's freshness and prettiness and a mature woman's intelligence.

Young boys are no more connoisseurs of women than they are of food and drink. It takes age and experience to teach them how to pick 'em.

DEAR MISS DIX—I am 21 years old. Married when I was 15 a man I didn't love because he offered me a good home. I told him at the time I didn't love him, but he said he would teach me to love him. Now I have met a man with whom I am madly in love and who wants to marry me, but my husband refuses to let me go, although I have told him that he could keep our two children. I am sick with grief and longing for my sweetheart. Don't you think my husband should consider my feelings?—LOLETA.

ANSWER:

Any man who is foolish enough to marry a girl of 15 expecting to get anything but grief out of it is certainly one of the world's greatest optimists. Furthermore, he puts the climax on his hopefulness by believing that he can teach her to love him.

Love can't be taught, and any man must be a paranoic, with illusions of grandeur, who thinks he can teach a woman to thrill at his touch and to be hungry for his kisses by being kind to her and making her presents. A woman may have an affection for a man and be grateful to him for being good to her, but she doesn't love him for it in the way a husband wants to be loved.

No woman knows why she loves. She just does, and that's that. No girl of 15 is capable of feeling for a man anything more than a childish crush, which she is virtually sure to outgrow. Nor does any girl of 15 know what kind of a man she is going to want when she is grown. And it is the tragedy of these too-early marriages that sooner or later the girl is almost sure to fall in love, as you have done, with some handsome stranger who rides down her alley.

What the wife should do and what the husband should do under these circumstances make one of the bitter problems that can have no happy solution, because however it ends there is bound to be a broken heart and a wrecked life, perhaps three of them. Unhappiness follows wrongdoing as the night the day, and the memory of every wrecked marriage is like a worm in the heart that gnaws at it incessantly. You think that you would be happy if you could leave your husband and little children and go off with this man, but your conscience would never cease to trouble you in thinking how you repaid your husband's kindness to you by betraying him.

Nor could you go so far that the voices of little deserted children crying for their mother would not reach you. Think long and carefully before you make your decision.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—What do you think of a woman who never keeps any appointment or arrives at any function on time? When she is invited to dinner she keeps her hostess and the other guests waiting thirty or forty minutes while the soup scorches and the souffle falls and everybody gets hungrier and hungrier and crosser and crosser and the affair is ruined. Otherwise this woman is charming and pleasant, but she is losing all of her friends by her utter disregard of other people's convenience.—JANE.

ANSWER:

It is said that promptness is the courtesy of Kings, and certainly nothing shows such utter lack of breeding as for a selfish individual to make other people wait for him or her. I knew one woman who solved this problem of the dilatory guest very satisfactorily. In her house when dinner was at 8 it was promptly at 8, and the guests who arrived late were served the course that was then in progress, and if they only got in for the salad it was just too bad for them. The result was that as far as Mrs. B., who was noted for her famous food, was concerned, her guests were always on time. I recommend this plan. It always works.

DOROTHY DIX.

WOMEN'S WORK AND INTERESTS

Peterboro Women Engaged In Community Service Are Happier Than Those Not

A number of Peterborough women who are always busy with club, organization and home activities have given their opinion of the following questions put by an Examiner reporter: (1) "To be active in community life, must a woman devote 50 per cent. of her time to it?" and (2) "Is she happier than the one who does not?"

Mrs. R. H. Turner, president of the Red Cross Society branch in Peterborough. (1) Feels that since the war many women are giving even more than half of their time and energy to community work. (2) "Yes. I am quite sure that any woman who gives part of her time to the betterment of others is happier than the woman who has no interest in anyone outside of her own family."

Mrs. F. J. Lynch, convener of the Home Nursing Class for the Red Cross. "I do not believe that community work should involve half a woman's time, although there are those who accomplish more in less time than others." (2) "One obtains self-satisfaction out of assisting one's fellowmen. Years ago women were content to limit their community work to attending the annual church picnic or an occasional sewing bee, but welfare workers of to-day have extended their interest to child and adult education, and through persistent, constant work have improved tremendously conditions that existed twenty-five years ago."

Mrs. E. Wand, president of the Local Council of Women, and of the Peterborough and Northumberland County W.C.T.U.. (1) Feels that fifty per cent. of time is used when telephoning, organizing, correspondence, etc, is taken into consideration. (2) "Oh, yes, because the woman active in outside work does not have time to think she is not feeling well," was Mrs. Wand's quick response to the second question. "Many women would forget their ills and worries if they would widen their interests and do a little something for somebody else. Women who can give little financially in connection with community work are usually happier when they can give of their time—it is the women who are merely 'joiners,' women who like the honor of belonging but refuse to take an active part, who make it necessary for the workers to assume a heavier burden," Mrs. Wand remarked.

Mrs. Fred E. Hooper, Councillor on the Provincial Executive of the I.O.D.E., believes that (1) "At least fifty per cent. of one's time must be given if one is actively interested in community work—taking into consideration, of course, the telephone calls, parties, bridges, etc., that such work involves." (2) "Yes. After all, we only get out of life what we put into it—it is a great source of satisfaction, also, to know we can do these things." Mrs. Hooper feels such outside interests are a boon to the woman who has been left a widow, or whose family has grown up—it gives them less time to think about themselves and more time to think of others.

Mrs. I. T. Lillico, president of the Nicholls Hospital Women's Auxiliary. (1) Feels that the majority of women interested in community life do not give it half of their time. (2) "Yes. A woman who is doing something worthwhile in the community would naturally be happier than the one who is contributing nothing."

Mrs. R. Parnell, president of the Home and School Council. (1) Believes community work usually takes half the time of the woman who is active in its interests. "If the women of to-day would all do their part, however, no one would be overworked," she said. (2) Yes—we must either wear out or rust out. Such interests outside the home are a satisfaction to most women.

Mrs. R. E. Clarke, Standard-Bearer of the Provincial Chapter, I.O.D.E. (1) "I would say such interests woud occupy approximately half the time of the community worker when all details are considered." (2) "Definitely yes. It would be very monotonous to have no outside work or interests—a woman could not help but grow selfish and introspective; a woman is a better companion to her husband and family if she broadens her viewpoint with outside interests than the woman who remains in her kitchen.

Mrs. J. Mills, Chairman of the Women's Auxiliary to the War Veterans. (1) Yes. (2) Believes that such a woman would be much happier.

Mrs. S. J. Graham, first president of the Nicholls Hospital Women's Auxiliary. (1) It doesn't need to take 50 per cent. of a woman's time, but she will usually spend the time at her disposal if she is required. (2) If her contribution is worthwhile she will be satisfied.

Mrs. H. R. H. Kenner, president of the Y.W.C.A. Board of Directors, was busy at Red Cross work rooms and could not be contacted.

Do You Write Letters the Hard Way?

Good Letters Simple to Write

Oh! dear, the letters you owe, but how you dread writing them! That's because you go about it the hard way.

Maybe you chew your pen—wondering how to start, how to write in a "dressy" way. And then you turn out something as dull as this: "It was nice to hear from you. We are having quite a number of little functions—"!

But how can you write easily? Know helpful pointers, simple rules for charming letters.

To start your letter think what you'd say if you suddenly met the person you're writing to. You'd bubble over with "How I've missed you!" Write that! And don't be pompous, write like yourself: "We've had lots of parties here—such fun!"

Of course, you write more easily when sure of your English—know, for instance, that "except the music" is correct, not "excepting the music." And knowing etiquette points adds to confidence, too.

Our 32-page booklet gives the etiquette of letters, has pointers on English, what to write about. Gives many sample letters as a guide for your own—on social, business occasions.

Send 15c in coins or stamps for your copy of GOOD LETTER-WRITING MADE EASY to Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

Put almonds and crumbs through food chopper using finest knife. Beat egg yolks well, add sugar and beat until fluffy; add lemon rind, cinnamon, almonds and bread crumbs. The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Friday, January 26.

Very definite progress may be made on this day, particularly in breaking up long-crystallized or static conditions, according to the lunar transits. This will be through hard work, sound judgment and a firm grasp of impeding circumstances. Rash or impulsive attack would prove hazardous. Change, removal of travel might be advisable.

Those whose birthday it is have the promise of a year in which difficult or static conditions may be profitably manipulated by energy and application, shrewd insight into causes and frustrations, and by the advice and co-operation of elders or other wise heads. Rash, impulsive and extravagant conduct would be perilous, change of plans and environs advisable.

A child born on this day may be deep, studious, serious and dependable, although prone to be stubborn, set and dogmatic. Yet, in may prove originality and some definitely progressive ideas for group benefit.

BARGAINS IN KILTS

Following the British War Office ban on the wearing of kilts by Scottish regiments in active service, Boy Scouts of Aberdeen, Scotland, are buying the abandoned kilts at reduced prices.

When Using Your Oven Use To Full Capacity

Like most deliverers of dogmatic messages I have one condition to impress upon you. If you do use your oven to cook your whole meal—and that usually implies a cooked dessert—you must plan a generous salad course. Either your dessert course or your salad course are the old reliable "raw food" ingredient that is a necessity to every meal—hence if dessert is cooked the salad is indispensable.

The menu that follows was planned rather off-handedly when Audrey and I were planning our evening dinner one morning. It happened that a friend dropped in about one-half hour before dinner and we invited him to dine with us. About half way through dessert he asked us if we had good meals like this every day—if so he'd drop in oftener. It was gradually dawning on me that I was enjoying every successive mouthful, and that the head had a very gratified look on his face, so that is why I am repeating it to you—goodness knows it was plenty inexpensive.

A "Hit" Family Dinner (Baked)
Hot Grapefruit Juice (half-and-half grapefruit juice and boiling water)
Sausage Loaf Horseradish Sauce
Hungarian Potato Cakes
Tomato Casserole
Shredded Cabbage, Parsley and Celery Salad Mayonnaise
Hot Apple Sauce Cake
Tutti-Fruitti Whipped Cream
Coffee

Preparation

The grapefruit served hot and half-and-half was a discovery made by me when I had a head cold. To half a glass of either grapefruit juice add half glass of boiling water. Drink immediately—it spins out the juice so that you can have two glasses instead of one and I think gives orange juice a pungency that taken cold it never acquires. Grand for invalids to warm their 'innards."

Sausage Loaf

One cup sausage meat—buy farmers' sausage; they aer easily taken from the casing or tell your butcher to save some out of casings next time he makes them. One cup stewed tomatoes, 1 cup either mashed potato or rice, 2 cups crumbs—either cracker or fresh or stale bread, 1 cup cooked beans (if you do not have these on hand increase the quantity of rice or potatoes to 2 cups), 1 egg beaten, 1 tablespoon fat, 1 teaspoon salt, dash of pepper, 1 teaspoon of sage or sweet basil. Mix all ingredients, shape into loaf, bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 40 minutes. If you do not serve this with the prescribed horseradish sauce serve with a hot sauce such as tomato, currant jelly or raisin. These amounts serve 8 generously.

Horseradish Sauce

Be smart—don't overlook this.

Four teaspoons grated horseradish, 2 teaspoons vinegar, ½ cup milk, ½ teaspoon salt, 4 teaspoons sifted cracker crumbs, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon sugar, ¼ teaspoon mustard. Mix ingredients and heat in double boiler about 5 minutes. Serve hot.

Hungarian Potato Cakes

These are called "fangks" I think by native Hungarian and we printed the recipe over six years ago—I was reminded of their goodness when going through some old files.

Wash, peal and grate raw potatoes, until you have 3 cups—immediately moisten with cold milk—about 2-3 cup to prevent them browning—it is wise to grate them directly into this amount of milk Beat 1 egg, add to potatoes, add 1½ teaspons salt, ½ teaspoon pepper and 1 teaspoon paprika. Form into thin cakes and dip in flour and place about ½-inch apart on buttered pan. Bake about ½ hour at the same temperature as the sausage loaf—375 deg. Fahr.—until golden and potatoes are cooked.

Tomato Casserole

One No. 2½ can tomates, 2-3 cup cracker crumbs, ½ Spanish onion coarsely grated, 2 teaspoons salt, ½ teaspoon peper. Mix tomatoes, half the crumbs, the onion and salt and pepper, and put in buttered baking dish. Sprinkle remaining crumbs over top and dot with butter and sprinkle with papriks. Bake at same temperature as other dishes for oven—about 375 deg. Fahr. until heated through and golden.

As for the salad—the best thing I can tell you is to shred the cabbage extremely thin and use plenty of parsley, 1 cup quite well packed with 2 cups cabbage and 1 cup finely sliced celery makes a nice combination. If you do not like mayonnaise, French dressing is very good with it.

Emem's Applesauce Cake

One cup brown sugar, 1-3 cup shortening, 1 teaspoon mace, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup seeded raisins (these may be omitted), 1 cup unsweetened strained applesauce, 1½ cups flour, ½ teaspoon baking powder, 1 teaspoon soda. Put in saucepan all ingredients except flour, baking powder and soda. Bring to boiling point, reduce heat, let simmer 3 minutes, then cool. Sift in dry ingredients. Beat 3 minutes. Bake in well buttered loaf pan at 375 deg. Fahr. for about 45 minutes. This cake will keep moist for more than a week. The spices may be varied—if you do not use raisins, add about 1 tablespoon grated lemon rind. Serve hot with

Tutti-Fruitti Whipped Cream.

Whip heavy cream very stiff—to it add choped candied or drained maraschino cherries, and blanched almonds shredded or shredded peeled Brazils—to 1 cup cream use 3 tablespoons each fruit and nuts and about 2 tablespoons sugar. Serve cake at table—and add cream just before passing.

"TELL BILL GOODBYE"

By Marie Blizard

SYNOPSIS

THE CHARACTERS:

FABIENNE SEYMOUR, rich, young and beautiful.

NICKY BARTLETT, wealthy and in love with Fabienne.

ELLEN CHAPMAN, young and capable mistress of Willoughby house.

DR. BILL MALLORY, close friend of Ellen's.

YESTERDAY: Fabienne knows she is falling in love with Bill, tries to fight it off for Ellen's sake.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR

AFTER PRUNELLA closed the door back of her, Fabienne reached for the lamp switch on her bedside table. She held a mirror from the drawer and held it up to her face. Only anxiety showed there, and some of her shock. So her love for Bill Mallory showed in her face, did it!

She put the mirror away and lay in darkness, knowing, admitting that she did love Bill. And she knew it took no second sight for anyone to read it, knowing that in her unguarded moments, her thoughts must have been written in her eyes.

If Prunella had seen it, Ellen, too, must have been aware of it.

And Bill? No, not Bill. She had been careful of that, leaning backward in her effort to keep from him what she felt. Also a man was not as likely, as a woman would be, to know what those swift changes, those lights in her eyes, those tender smiles would mean.

A woman in love would know. Ellen would know. Ellen had never said that she was in love with Bill. But wasn't their easy camaraderie, their long intimacy, those looks of unspoken understanding enough to convince Fabienne that their was a love that needed no announcement?

Ellen—Ellen, who was such a good, kind, understanding friend: Ellen, who had been closer to her than any other girl she had ever known; Ellen who had given her work that gave her life meaning, and who had even taken her into her home, nursed her when she was ill. Her thoughts were filled with Ellen and they were compounded of gratitude and affection and shame.

On the fringe of that tapestry of thought, there was the image of Bill. Telling herself that she did love him—even though she knew that he was not for her—she would like to have taken out her memories like treasures and fondled them, cherishing the remembrance of his touch, his tenderness; delighting her mind's eye with a gallery of pictures of him: Bill at the clinic in his white coat with his kindly eyes and slow smile, silencing fears and promising healing; Bill with his hat brim snapped over his eyes, his trench coat collar carelessly turned up as he walked with her one snowy, still night; Bill sitting beside her bed during those long, feverish nights, giving her his strength.

No, she must not think of that while there was Ellen, Ellen whom she had hurt so much.

It must end now. She must go away. Bill said that she couldn't go back to the settlement house for some time, that she ought to go south and get some warm sunshine. But she couldn't do that; there was the little theatre nearing its completion—and there was also the fact that she was without funds. Of course, she know that she could always get money from Uncle Mark or Gertrude.

She wouldn't go south, but she would leave Ellen's apartment. The problem was how to do it without making her reason obvious.

The solution came from a quarter she least expected. Two days after the long night she had spent in unhappy speculation, Dick came down from Harvard and told her that he was going to be married at once and leave for Chile.

He came in at supper time when Bill and Ellen were keeping Fabienne company at a card table set up beside her couch.

"My two very good friends, Ellen Chapman and Dr. Mallory, I want you to meet my brother, Dick," she said, kissing Dick and holding him at arm's length. "And what's the meaning of this? I didn't know there were any holidays this week?"

"No more holidays for me," he said gaily. "I'm going to work."

"Work?" She hadn't taken him seriously. Seymour men never worked. They raised horses or served on boards.

"My girl's old man is giving me a job with his company in Chile. Brenda and I are going to be married a week from Saturday. We're sailing the following Monday. Incidentally, Fab, she's a swell person. She want you to be a bridesmaid."

Fabienne's thoughts were in a state of utter confusion. "A little slower, please, darling. Is this the Haviland girl who lives in California?"

He nodded proudly.

"But I don't even know her," Fabienne protested. "And she wants me to be a bridesmaid? I don't believe I'll be able to get to California that time."

"The wedding is going to be here. At the apartment."

"What apartment?" Fabienne asked patiently.

"Mother's apartment, of course."

"But mother hasn't an apartment. At least, it's rented to the Derwents."

"Was," he told her. "They've gone to Arizona. I called mother in Paris last night. She's sailing for home day after tomorrow. Grenda's mother is dead and so mother is going to give her the wedding"

Yes, Fabienne thought, mother would. She remembered her mother's Christmas letter and her hopes for her son. ("The Havilands have tons of money.")

Dick was saying apologetically, "I'd just as soon get married at the City Hall, but you know how girls are. We'll be in the wilds for some time, so Brenda wants a big show before she goes. Bridesmaids and veil and church wedding. All that stuff."

Belatedly, Fabienne caught her brother's hand and gave it a little squeeze. "The best of luck to you, Dick! I'd love to be a bridesmaid at your wedding."

"When you and Nicky get married, send me a wire and I'll do the same for you. How is the old boy?"

"Very fine," she said, looking neither at Ellen nor Bill, but managing enthusiasm in her voice for their benefit. "I haven't seen him for a month and I miss him. I expect he'll be here shortly. I'd like him to be here for the wedding. Any family party without Nicky wouldn't seem right. He— he belongs, doesn't he?" When she finished her effort there were spots of pink showing on the thin bones of her face.

"They've been sweethearts since they were kids," Dick explained to Ellen and Bill.

Fabienne lowered her eyes, not denying it, hoping that Ellen would think what she wanted her to.

"Now what about you, sis? Had a cold?"

Bill said, "She nearly had pneumonia."

Fabienne said, "It wasn't too serious, Dick. Not worth troubling you all about. Ellen and Bill have taken very good care of me between them."

"It looks as if they did.... You got a cozy place here," Dick told Ellen frankly, scrutinizing the big pleasant room.

"I like it better since Fabienne came to live with me," Ellen answered, smiling at the girl on the couch. "It was big and lonesome before."

"I've liked it, too," Fabienne said steadily, meeting Ellen's eyes across the room. "I'm going to miss it when I go."

"GO?" Bill and Ellen said it together.

"Where are you going?" Dick put the rest of the question.

"Why, back to mother's, of course," she said simply.

Back to mother's big, beautiful apartment, away from the first real home she had ever had, away from those morning breakfasts with Ellen, from those evenings with Ellen and Bill. Back to a life she no longer wanted so that Ellen would never again see her look at Bill and know that she loved him.

New Defeats

HELSINGFORS, Jan. 25—(AP).—Russian attacks north-east of Lake Ladoga, scene of bitter Finnish-Russian fighting for weeks, were reported today to have been repulsed by Finland with "very heavy" losses to the invaders.

The Russian attacks came "in greatest strength' at Kollaanjoki and Aittojoki, a Finnish communique said, adding that bitter fighting continued throughout yesterday.

"The Authority on Authorities"

CAN YOU RUN NINE TRICKS?

YOU NEED only nine tricks to make a game in No Trump. You can afford to let the opponents take the first four, if you can then get the rest. Not even the running of an entire suit by them can hurt you if it is only four cards long. So if the bidding by their side makes it appear as if they have no more than four cards in your unstopped suit, it is perfectly sound to try 3-No Trumps against them when you reckon nine consecutive tricks are in sight as soon as they get through.

♠ Q 10 8 6 ♥ 9 6 5 4 ♦ 6 3 ♣ Q J 4	N. W. E. S.	♠ K J 7 5 ♥ Q J 10 ♦ 9 7 ♣ A K 10 7
	♠ A 4 2 ♥ A K 8 3 ♦ A Q 5 ♣ 8 6 5

(Dealer: West. North-South vulnerable.)

Lee Hazen, one of the most recent arrivals in the ranks of the great masters, outpointed a great pair on this deal. Sherman Stearns in the East bid 1-Club, Mr. Hazen doubled in the South, Mel Alexander in the North bid 1-Diamond, Mr. Hazen 1-Heart, Walter Malowan in the West 1-Spade, then came 2-Diamonds from North, 2-Spades from East, 3-Diamonds from South, 3-Spades from West, and this passed around to Mr. Hazen.

He had heard his partner answer his double with 1-Diamond. Later, after his own 1-Heart and Mr. Malowan's 1-Spade, he had heard his partner make a free rebid of 2-Diamonds. Doing that on a suit so weak that he lacked the major tenace honors, held by Mr. Hazen, indicated probably at least a six-card suit. In other words, nine tricks should be in sight unless the opponents could run more than four clubs first.

Since that suit had been bid only once, to open the hand, it probably was no more than four cards in length. So Mr. Hazen bid 3-No Trumps and made it, winning the hand for his team.

Watchman Dies Victim Of Fire

WINDSOR, Ont., Jan. 24—(CP)—Blackened ruins marked the locations of two business premises in downtown Windsor today, where approximately $250,000 property damage was caused by two fires, of undetermined origin, one of the fires resulted in a fatality.

The more disastrous blaze yesterday was at the warehouse of G. G McKeough Hardware. William Aitchison, 69-year-old night watchman, was trapped on the top floor of the large, three-storey building. Injuries he received caused his death in hospital.

Only the blackened brick walls and ice-covered debris remained of the building and large stock of hardware, plumbing and mill supplies. Estimates of damage ran up to $200,000.

The other fire occurred early last night at the Neil and Bondy Shoe Store. Flames lighted the sky briefly but firemen quickly subdued the blaze. Smoke continued to pour from the structure for some time and damage by water, fire and smoke to the store, adjoining the C. H. Smith Department Store, was estimated at $50,000.

St. John Church In Havelock Wipes Out Debt

HAVELOCK, Jan. 25—(ENS)—In addition to a most notable celebration of its fiftieth anniversary, St. John's Anglican Church, Havelock, managed as well to wipe off all indebtedness last year, it was revealed by the warden's financial report at the annual vestry meeting, held on Monday evening in the church basement. Rev. R. E. Lemon presided at the meeting which was well attended, and Miss Madge Curtis acted as vestry clerk.

Rector's warden, William Seabrook, and people's warden, H. W. Roche, who presented a most favorable report upon the church's activities during the past year were both re-appointed. Other appointments made by the vestry were: Incumbent's sidesmen: Messrs. Dr. D. J. Holdcroft, L. Thompson, Howard Lemon, Merle Clarke, Ernest Sanderson; people's sidesmen: Messrs. John Barlow, E. J. Leeson, Max Poste, R. F. Covert, Lawrence Sanderson, George Weymark and F. J. Watson; auditors, B. Longmuir, J. Covert; lay delegate to the Synod, L. Thompson, J. Covert alternate.

Rev. R. E. Lemon commented upon the outstanding success of the three-day "golden jubilee" celebration sponsored last July. He congratulated the wardens upon their splendid report, and said that he would like to see the men of the congregation take a more active part in church work. The rector's report placed the number of families in the church at 40, with a total population of 140, of which 99 are confirmed members.

Encouraging reports were also received from representatives of the different organizations. The Parish Guild enjoyed an especially successful year with receipts at $217.89 and expenditures $149.41. They sponsored the "Snow White" play and introduced the distribution of special donation "dime cards" to members of the congregation.

The Women's Auxiliary under the efficient leadership of Mrs. Joseph Holdcroft also reported much progress, having packed two bales, and sponsored a supper in addition to many other items. The Junior W.A. under their leader, Mrs. W. Drew, presented a good report, as did the Little Helpers of whom Mrs. W. Varty has charge.

The choir, whose membership was greatly increased during the past year, was represented by Mrs. D. J. Holdcroft, the leader. She spoke enthusiastically of the improvement, and commented upon the successful candlelight service which was sponsored by them. She reported also that a junior choir had been organized and was progressing steadily.

The Church Boys' League with Meryl Clarke as president and Oaklie Peters as secretary also reported a most successful year.

At the conclusion of the meeting a hearty vote of thanks to the rector, Rev. R. E. Lemon, was extended by Mrs. Joseph Holdcroft on behalf of the rest of the congregation. Refreshments were afterwards served by the church ladies.

Havelock To Hold Nursing Classes

HAVELOCK, Jan. 25 — (ENS). — The Havelock-Belmont Red Cross Society were engaged in quilting, making quilt blocks, labelling socks and pyjamas as they assembled on Monday afternoon in the local council chamber.

A volunteer committee were asked to meet on Wednesday afternoon to pack garments which have already been completed. Thirty-five ladies were in attendance at Monday's meeting, with the president, Mrs. A. McLauchlin in the chair for the business period. The secretary was instructed to send a letter of thanks to Mr. Rappaport, owner of the Hollywood theatre in Campbellford, for his contribution to the local Red Cross Society. Mr. Rappaport presented the branch with a hundred tickets, good for any show this week, which the members are now disposing of. The executive decided to purchase $50 more worth of wool for socks.

Over twenty have registered for the nursing school which is being conducted under the auspices of the Red Cross here. The first class was held on Monday afternoon at Mrs. D. Young's private nursing home, with Miss Evelyn Rigby, R. N., of town in charge. The classes will continue for about ten days, two hours in the afternoon and two hours in the evening. Miss G. Maloney, R.N., will also assist with the teaching.

Allies Eliminate Confliction In U.S. Orders

NEW YORK, Jan. 25 — (CP). — Great Britain and France in ordering supplies in North America will consult each other so closely that there is no possibility of conflict in orders, Arthur B. Purvis revealed as the new Anglo-French Purchasing Board which he heads began to get settled in new quarters here to-day.

The Allies have two commissions which have worked closely together. But it was decided that still more co-operation was needed so the formation of the board was announced yesterday under the chairmanship of Mr. Purvis and with the head of the French Commission, Frederic Bloch-Laine, as vice-chairman. The board now will be the supreme co-ordinating body.

Mr. Purvis told a group of newspapermen that the only limit to the amount of spending the board would control depended upon how long the war will last. He said care is being taken not to interfere with the preparedness plans and domestic economy of the United States.

He said the policy of both commissions is to deal directly with manufacturers and thus avoid taking up stocks bought by third parties for speculative purposes. Many intermediaries had approached them and had been "discouraged."

In the more than 200 persons engaged in all the ramifications of purchasing are many technical experts of the Allied military machine.

How It Works

The way the system functioned, Mr. Purvis said, was that requisitions would come from London and Paris for certain articles. The commission would call in its experts on the things required and they would draw up a list of manufacturers from whom tenders would be invited.

Before the tenders were given out experts would visit the factory to assure themselves that the plant was capable of filling the orders.

Mr. Purvis said experience had shown that the Allies were able to obtain supplies at market levels but in certain cases where special requirements were demanded the manufacturer was entitled to, and received, a premium.

The greatest single article of purchasing was aircraft. The aviation industry, he said, is doing everything in its power to fill orders from the United States, British and French governments.

Asked if United States planes were being bought for the Empire air training plan being set up in Canada, Mr. Purvis said it would be found that planes from Canada, the United States and Britain all would be used in the Dominion and that all the planes needed in the initial stages are already contracted for.

Orders Good for Whole War.

Purchase of planes would last as long as the war did, he said. The movement of goods across the Atlantic is proceeding smoothly after "certain initial difficulties"— the closest he came to mentioning enemy activity—had been overcome.

Mr. Bloch-Laine said France did not intend to alter the present set up of purchasing in Canada where close contact was maintained with the War Supply Board. The question of buying Canadian remounts for France was under consideration, he said. Both he and Mr. Purvis emphasized that large quantities of Canadian materials are being bought by the Allies.

Asked just what the commissions are purchasing, Mr. Purvis said the reporters could almost write their own lists. Then he mentioned raw materials, metals, foodstuffs, textiles, munitions, gun linings, guns, explosives and "a host of other things."

Charge Woman Bandit Driver For 2 Brothers

LONDON, Ont., Jan. 25—(CP)—Alleged to have acted as chauffeur for two brothers in a series of robberies, Mrs. Myrtle Millard ,35, of Galt, was committed for trial here today on a charge of breaking and entering.

Accused with her are James Partlo, 38, and Ernest Partlo, 32, both of Ingersoll. All are charged with stealing four cow hides from the Byron Brooks slaughterhouse at Dorchester, January 2.

County Magistrate C. W. Hankshaw fixed bail for Mrs. Millard at $5,000 property, as in the cases of the Partlos. The trio has been held in custody up to the present time.

Counsel Mayer Lerner waved preliminary hearing for the Partlos, but R. M. Byers, of Galt, counsel for the woman, offered defense evidence arguing that the Crown hadn't a case against her.

Both Mrs. Millard and her husband, John, admitted they knew Ernest Partlo has a criminal record.

'NATIONAL GOVERNMENT IF TORIES WIN'-MANION KING EXPECTS ELECTION MARCH 26 OR BEFORE

Retain Same Cabinet Says Premier

Call Another Session In April If Party Returned

OTTAWA, Jan. 26 — (CP). — At the close of a Liberal caucus today Prime Minister Mackenzie King said the general election would probably be held March 26 but he would not know definitely until he had a final report from the chief electoral officer.

The Prime Minister also said that he would go to the country with his Cabinet fully organized so that the people would know exactly who would be in the government if they returned the Liberal party. He said he would call another session of parliament early in April if his party wins at the polls.

Caucus gave the Prime Minister an enthusiastic reception and a vote of confidence in his leadership. "There was not one discordant note," the Prime Minister said, "but there was the utmost enthusiasm and the greatest demonstration of loyalty any leader ever received."

Mr. Mackenzie King was told of Conservative Leader Manion's statement that, if victorious, he would form a national government calling in the best brains in the country to assist him in the administration.

"Ask him who the best minds in the country are," the Prime Minister said. "Let him state during the

Furious Russian Attacks Fail To Budge Finns

HELSINGFORS, Jan. 26.—(AP). —Furious attacks against Finnish positions north-east of Lake Ladoga were continuing, the army communique said to-day, but Red army troops everywhere had been thrown back

A desperate Russian offensive in that region has been under way for almost a week with the Finns reporting no Soviet gains and the ice and snow of the battlefield covered with Russian dead.

An attempt to storm Fort Mantsi on the east coast of Lake Ladoga also failed, the army said, although the Russians made repeated attacks with artillery support.

The communique, reviewing yesterday's activities, said the Finnish lines north-east of Lake Ladoga were under "almost unremitting pressure," but attacks "all were beaten off and our troops retained

Sees Election Trick For Liberal Win Upon Snap Decision

OTTAWA, Jan. 26 — (CP). — A "truly National Government" with a Cabinet composed of the best brains available in the country was promised by Conservative Leader Manion today if the National Conservative Party is successful at the coming election.

In a statement issued after a party caucus, which endorsed his leadership, Dr. Manion berated the present Government for calling an election without giving Parliament an opportunity to review the war administration.

"I am convinced," Dr. Manion said, "that fair-minded citizens everywhere will place their stamp of disapproval upon this unnecessary and uncalled for political manoeuvre and will put into power a Government of action, decision, courage and vision ,to handle not only our war effort but to assure the necessary attention to after-war problems.

"Such a Government, to be really effective and to achieve the results desired by all Canadians, must be a truly National Government in the sense that the very best brains obtainable among our people are drafted to serve in the Cabinet. Therefore, if the National Conservative Party is successful at the coming election I shall form such a Government."

Cloak Tossed Off.

The Prime Minister had thrown aside "his cloak of democratic belief in a manner that was an affront; not only to Parliament, but to the whole British parliamentary system of Government—indeed, to the people of Canada Generally."

"He has, in fact, laughed at the people's representatives in Parliament itself and by all these acts he has imitated the autocracies which we are fighting." Dr. Manion charged.

The National Conservative Party had refrained from criticism and had been continually ready to offer any assistance in its power to the Government, but "we have been ignored as completely by Mr. King and his Government as he is today ignoring all the historic principles which govern the conduct of Canada's affairs by the Government and Parliament of Canada.

"Indeed, had he and some of the members of his Government had their way, we would have been gagged yesterday and so not permitted to express an opinion of any kind.

He contended that the Prime Minister was trying "by the most unfair and unsportsmanlike trick" to obtain from the people of Canada a snap decision, before they have the opportunity of being advised as to the weaknesses of Mr. King and his government and their unfitness

Premier Afraid To Meet Canadian People Submit Conduct For House Analysis Manion Charges Of Sudden Election Move

OTTAWA, Jan. 26. —(CP) — Following is text of a statement issued today by Conservative leader Manion:—

One month ago, Mr. King (Prime Minister Mackenzie King) announced the meeting of Canada's parliament on Thursday, Jan. 25. The members of that parliament arrived yesterday in Ottawa from all over the country; but, instead of meeting in session for Mr. King and his Government to give an accounting of their stewardship, it was announced by Mr. King, in the speech from the throne, that he is going to call an immediate election.

Only one conclusion can be arrived at as to the cause of this extraordinary and unprecedented action of the Prime Minister, namely, that he is afraid to meet the representatives of the people and submit the conduct of his Government to their analysis inquiry and discussion.

Mr. King has for years gone about Canada proclaiming his profound belief in the supremacy of parliament, but yesterday he threw aside his cloak of democratic belief in a manner that was an affront, not only to parliament but to the whole British parliamentary system of Government— indeed, to the people of Canada generally.

Knew of Dissatisfaction.

Undoubtedly the true cause of the action of Mr. King is that he knew full well the grave dissatisfaction among all classes of our people, not only at the disgraceful condition of unpreparedness which has been exposed by the outbreak of war, but the deporably weak manner in which he and his government have carried on every aspect of Canada's effort in the war. It is the feeling of the Canadian people from coast to coast that, having once declared ourselves by the side of Britain and France in this war against the barbarism of the autocracies, we should take our part heartily and

King Lays Blame On Ontario As Four-Hour Session Sees Parliament Dissolve

Announcement Comes As Shock To All Parties Premier Holds Vote Advisable Before Spring Offensive So Troops May Vote

OTTAWA, Jan. 26—(CP). — Canada will have a wartime election at the earliest possible moment, perhaps the last week in March.

Taking up the challenge thrown to him and his Ministers by Premier Mitchell Hepburn and Lieut.-Colonel George Drew, leaders respectively of the Liberal and Conservative parties in Ontario, Prime Minister Mackenzie King seeks a new mandate from the people.

The sixth and final session of the 18th parliament of Canada began and ended yesterday, an unprecedented day in Canadian parliamentary history.

Never before has a session lasted only four hours. Never before have members left the House at six o'clock for dinner, expecting to resume at eight o'clock and learned at seven o'clock after a Cabinet meeting that they were mere private citizens again.

Whatever the result of the election the first session of the new parliament will likely assemble in April or May. It must vote the funds for all government activities, including the war, in the fiscal year starting April 1.

The government's lightning move did not go without protest. Conservative Leader Manion denounced it as "unscrupulous politics," "disgraceful," "sneering at parliament," "a political trick."

"Act Of Dictator"

J. S. Woodsworth, veteran parliamentary leader of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation said the Prime Minister was acting like a dictator.

Miss Agnes Macphail (U.F.O.-Labor Grey-Bruce) was on her feet when the House rose for dinner. Her speech went unsaid.

In the Senate Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Conservative leader, said it was an insult to parliament to call members together without having any legislation to lay before them.

Although he denounced the government's methods Dr. Manion welcomed the election. For him it means the chance of becoming Prime Minister of Canada at the age of 48. The prospect of leading Canada through the difficult years of the war and its aftermath looms before him.

He complained of being taken by surprise by the government's action but made a fighting speech winding up with the declaration.

It was predicted that presentation of the Ontario budget will now be delayed until after the parliament soon to be elected has met at Ottawa and decided on federal taxation. If federal income taxes are increased, then Ontario is likely to follow suit.

Britishers Hint Deutschland Been Torpedoed

LONDON, Jan. 26 (CP)—British newspapers hinted today that the reason for the transfer of the name Deutschland from the German pocket battleship to a war vessel as yet unlaunched might be that the original Deutschland had been damaged or sunk.

The German admiralty claimed yesterday that the Deutschland had returned to its home port after forays in the Atlantic and that it was being renamed the Luetzow.

The transfer of its name, said the naval expert of the News Chronicle "encourages the suspicion that the original Deutschland was

British Shippers Complain Japs Retaliating

TOKYO, Jan. 26—(AP).—Controversy over the removal of German seamen from the Japanese liner Asama Maru by a British naval patrol reached new bitterness today and officials described the incident as "very serious."

Yakichiro Suma, foreign office spokesman, said he was of the impression that "national feelings are rising very high" over the Sunday incident and that they would "not be cooled by the lapse of time."

Dispatches from Hong Kong meanwhile said that British shipping circles complained today that the Japanese navy had begun retaliatory activities in China waters as a result of the British seizure of the 21 Germans.

The Wing Sang, coastal steamship of Jardine, Matheson and Company, was stopped by two blank shots Wednesday from a Japanese warship off Foochow, the captain reported at Hong Kong.

Suma said the foreign, navy, war and communications ministries were conferring regularly but declined to disclose any decisions of the Asama case.

The foreign office was flooded with telegrams and letters urging strong action, and rightist parties were believed to be attempting to utilize public feeling to discredit any cabinet policy which might favor western democracies.

Observers expressed belief that strong anti-British sentiment was being aroused deliberately in order to switch attention from the lapse of the Japanese-United States trade treaty, which expired today.

The end of the treaty leaves the United States technically free to exert economic pressure on Japan in behalf of American interests in China, and the Japanese foreign office said last night that relations would be "under strain."

US Legation Tips Americans To Quit Sweden

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 26 — (AP).— The United States Legation here has advised Americans to consider returning home "because of the prevailing international situation," it was disclosed to-day.

Legation officials, however, said that the advice was routine precaution and that previous reports, indicating urgency in view of supposed "German troop concentrations," were incorrect. They attributed them to a "complete misunderstanding."

"A routine letter was sent to Americans here asking them to consider the advisability of returning to the United States because of the prevailing international situation," Legation Secretary Winthrop Green said.

"There was not the slightest mention of any troop concentrations and no element of urgency or compulsion in the letter."

Only The Cabinet In Secret Of King Decision

By ROSS MUNRO
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

OTTAWA, Jan. 26—(CP).—A peek at Canada's four-hour parliamentary session that fooled everyone but the 16 Cabinet Ministers:

The betting was odds on that even private secretaries of the Ministers didn't have an inkling...The dissolution and election were secrets known only to the Cabinet...If any Minister told his wife, she is one woman who can keep a secret.

A close advisor of the Prime Minister worked day and night until yesterday afternoon preparing material for his chief's scheduled speech in the Commons Monday...He had enough copy for a week's address and slaved to cut it to four hours... The Cabinet slashed it to nil by dissolution.

Developments snowballed in frantic sequence...From the Senate to the Commons to the Privy Council room to Rideau Hall...Private members and Opposition leaders still hold their heads after the most amazing four hours in the life of any Canadian parliament.

Newshawks in the press gallery... Supposed to be in the know...They knew nothing of the government's plan...The press room was a madhouse...They ran out of messenger boys...More writers than any time in a decade exhausted desk space...

Ontario Tories With Manion Says Col. Drew

OTTAWA, Jan. 26. —(CP)— Col. George Drew, Ontario Conservative leader said in an interview here today that the Ontario Conservative party "is solidly behind" Hon. R. J. Manion, National Conservative leader, in the coming election.

Last night he made the following statement in comment on the calling of a federal election:

"This country has seldom seen such an act of abject cowardice. Mr. King held back the mounting wave of criticism of his war effort with the promise that he would answer every charge when he met parliament. Now he has deserted in the face of the enemy.

He was answerable in the House of Commons where Dr. Manion was ready to demand an accounting for Mr. King's disgraceful bungling of our war effort. His excuses for refusing to explain his pitiful failure are a shabby return for the courtesies which have been extended to him by Dr. Manion.

"Mr. King apparently thinks he can hide behind his powerful propaganda machine. He will soon learn how much the public already knows.

"I know that every Conservative in the Province of Ontario will get behind Dr. Manion in a united effort to restore responsible government at Ottawa.

Ontario Swings To Native Wines Less Beer Sold-Profit 11 Million

TORONTO, Jan 26—(CP).— An increasing taste for domestic wines and a slight falling off in consumption of hard liquors and beer was revealed in the report of the Ontario Liquor Control Board, covering operations for the year ending March 31, 1939, which was tabled in the Legislature yesterday.

Total sales, total profit, sales from liquor stores, breweries, brewers' warehouses and beer export sales all decreased when compared with the previous months, but sales of native wines were up. There was a small increase in gallonage consumption of imported spirits, but this was overcome by a greater percentage of decrease in consumption of domestic spirits. Sales of imported wines were down.

For the period under review total sales were valued at $49,637,986, compared with $51,005,668 in the previous year. Total profit was $9,-576,021, down $317,566.

Sales of native wines and licensed wine offices and wineries were valued at $3,025,700, up $139,-170. Gallonage dropped to 24,715,-368 from 25,799,176.

The total profit, together with accumulated profits from previous years' operations, sundry adjustments, and sums on account of permits and forfeited liquor, was turned over to the provincial treasurer, $11,000,000 in all. In the previous 12 months the provincial treasury was enriched by $10,500,000 through the Board's operations.

Village Gassed

Oslo, Jan. 26 (AP)

POISONOUS chlorine gas from a leaking tank car was wafted by a light wind into the homes of sleeping residents of the little village of Mjondalen early today.

Two were killed and 26, including eight women and several children, were hurried to hospital.

Rescue squads, wearing gas masks, saved hundreds of the 2,000 inhabitants by rushing them away to clear air by automobile, still in their night clothes.

The tank car leak developed about 4 a.m., and gas had seeped through many windows and doors before an alarm.

Workers from a pulp factory for which the chlorine was intended managed to plug the leak.

Rumanians Jittery Under Pressure By Berlin For "All Oil She Needs"

King Carol faced a critical choice to-day of acceding to German pressure for an increased portion of Rumana's oil output or risking Nazi wrath by holding out a generous share of that war essential for her own protection.

The Allied-German battle for Rumanian oil appeared to be approaching a crisis as reports reached Bucharest that the Reich had warned 'other methods" would be employed if she failed to obtain all the petroleum needed from King Carol's nation.

Rumanian nerves were not eased by reports, meanwhile, that approximately one division of German troops was deployed along the railway linking Germany with Rumania through Russian-occupied Poland.

Allied warning that the Nazi demands were to be resisted were implied meanwhile in an editorial in the influential Turkish newspaper Republic saying that Great Britain and France would stand behind the Balkan nations if they went to war against the Reich or Soviet Russia.

As Turkey is working with the Allies in this sector and as the editorial coincided with the arrival of the French middle-eastern commander in Istanbul, considerable weight was attached to it.

Between Two Fires.

It followed by only two days reported Allied warnings that British and French oil producers in Rumania, constituting about 40 per cent of the industry, must not be compelled by Carol's Government to hand over their output to supply the Nazi war machine.

Rumania was expected to stick to the middle road between the conflicting pressures, keeping her exports to Germany to about 1,500,-000 tons annually, a figure she considered normal.

However, fears were expressed in Bucharest that Nazi demands might exceed the limit Rumania has set and that Germany's resort to other measures might touch off the spark which would set southeastern Europe ablaze with war.

As the week drew to a close, the nervousness caused by the presence of German troops in Russian-Poland eased slightly. Informed French military sources were of the opinion that the troops were not in sufficient numbers to provide a menace. These sources put the number of Germans of all ranks at about 15,000 and said they were engaged mainly in guarding the rail line and in arranging repatriation of Germans in that area.

Presence of General Maxine Weygand in Turkey gave rise to specula-

C.A.S.F. Troops Favor Getting Election Over 'So We Can Concentrate On Winning War'

ALDERSHOT, Eng., Jan. 26 — (CP Cable)—Announcement that Prime Minister Mackenzie King had called a general election came like a thunder bolt to members of the Canadian Active Service Force in training here.

That news was almost the sole topic of discussion at the breakfast table. Everywhere groups of officers and men huddled around anyone lucky enough to have a copy of a morning paper. The same paper was passed on from group to group until bugles summoned the troops to the parade ground.

Men on active service do not speak for publication on matters political. But they discussed the issue among themselves as freely and candidly as they would in peace time.

The consensus inclined to this view: "The sooner this election business is disposed of the quicker we'll be able to concentrate on the task of winning the war."

One lad piped up: "If the election campaign will help break the present cold wave, I'm all for it."

Another shot back, "I'm all agin' it unless we get leave to go back home to vote."

Canadian news has been so meagre in papers in the United Kingdom that the boys seized on the election report as a welcome diversion.

'Bundles For Britain' Catches U.S. Sets Society Ladies Knitting

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.— (CP). — "Bundles for Britain." The sign hits the eye from a Park avenue window warm with wool destined to comfort the heads and hands and bellies of grimy boys from Grimsby, stout lads from Portsmouth and Plymouth and Aberdeen.

The wool was manufactured in the last eight days. It has taken shape as sweaters and socks, gloves and balaclava helmets. Many a seaman on night patrol will shove his hands deeper into mitts fashioned by the knitting fingers of a girl or woman whose peacetime life is scheduled by the social calendar of a great American city.

"Bundles for Britain" — still a baby but growing fast—is Park avenues effort to do its bit for "western civilization's first line of defence." Its slogan is "American wool for British seamen" and in eight days it has collected hundreds of dollars, established itself in the foyer of a vacant apartment house at rental of a dollar a year — "through friends"—and progressed so far that within a day or two its first bundle or more than 1,000 woollen garments will be on the way across the Atlantic.

Mrs. Stuart--Linton Gagne, secretary of the organization, gives credit for the idea to Mrs. Wales Latham, its president. "The response has been wonderful," says Mrs. Gagne. "We have already given out more than 400 pounds of wool for knitting, and the idea is catching on. Branches are being started in Palm Beach, Miami Beach and Washington, and we hope to get it going all over."

Easing The Burden

The organization's brochure sets forth that "bundles for Britain is a non-profit organization formed by Americans to meet the active and immediate needs of Great Britain's soldiers, sailors, airmen and civilian population when in need, by answering the urgent appeal for sweaters, knitted helmets, gloves and socks which has been made by the British Red Cross. It is inspired by the belief that Great Britain is bearing a greater burden than is generally realized, and that believers in human liberty, democracy, human decency and freedom of spirit, which are being defended by the forces of Great Britain and France will wish to render this aid."

Mrs. Gagne explained that so far work is being concentrated on woollens for seamen, all put into shape according to direction issued by the British war office. Manufactured garments not regulation in size or color go to the merchant marine and the trawler-men.

Transient Given Freedom To Aid Lady M.P. In Her Election Campaign In Grey County?

Thanks to Magistrate E. A. Gee, William Dolan, transient, is at liberty to go up to Grey county as soon as he wishes and help Miss Agnes Macphail in her election campaign. Dolan was charged in police court this morning with having been drunk here Thursday and pleaded guilty.

"I haven't been here since 1931," he told the magistrate.

"How has Peterborough been getting on without you?" asked Magistrate Gee. "What town have you been helping?"

"Toronto," replied Dolan, "but I was born in Grey county."

"Perhaps Miss Agnes Macphail will want you up there to help in the election," said the court.

"I know Miss Macphail, your Worship," said Dolan.

"Very well, then, you had better get up there," said Magistrate Gee. "You are remanded for sentence until called on."

That, of course, meant the transient was at liberty to go and he lost no time in taking his departure from court. "Get out of town as quickly as possible," Chief Constable Newhall warned him.

DAILY WAR SUMMARY

(By Canadian Press.)

After a brief respite following the first Russian thrusts Finland's gallant defenders are again fighting off powerful attacks while the civilian population is harassed by air raids whenever good flying conditions prevail.

In the present fighting the Russians suffer heavy casualties but reports from the front suggest the Soviet commanders have troops of better calibre than in the first stages of the war and are using them more intelligently.

Should the Russians fail to smash the Finns now they will probably not get another chance to attack in force under winter conditions. It is nearly two months since the Russians marched across the Finnish border and if the Finns succeed defeating them a second time now they may be safe from further land attacks for an indefinite period.

Operations in the period of the spring breakup when the heavy winter snow is melting and the ice on rivers and lakes is softening would be hazardous if not impossible and in late spring and summer different methods would be in order. The Russians would be unable to move their tanks and heavy vehicles as they can when the ground, the marshes and the lakes are frozen. Under summer conditions the Finns might be able to employ their guerilla methods with even greater effect than in the past.

Finland's danger lies in the weariness of troops on constant duty at the front and the effectiveness of Russian air attacks on the civilian population. If the Russians continue to bomb towns and cities with hundreds of aircraft the morale of the people is bound to suffer and the distribution of food and other supplies to the people as well as to the troops may be so disrupted as to cause serious difficulty.

ClaimFrenchmen Fly Bombers Across From U.S.

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—(CP)—The New York Herald Tribune says in a despatch from Washington today that Lockheed bombing planes purchased in the United States by Great Britain "have been flying over American soil with foreign crews, en route to Botwood, Nfld., when they are flown across the Atlantic Ocean to be used on the Western Front."

The transatlantic flight, which the Herald Tribune says "involve violations of the American neutrality law which are being winked at," have been "going on for some time, as weather permits."

The despatch continues:

"The procedure now being employed to deliver Lockheed bombers to the British involves, oddly enough the use of French crews rather than British crews. That is explicable on the ground that the British are much more hard-pressed in the air than the French at present and the French are relieving British aviation personnel by undertaking to make transatlantic deliveries for their allies.

sincerely in the struggle.

Yet despite the repeated boasts of the Prime Minister that for four or five years his chief anxiety has been the outbreak of war in which we would be involved, and despite vast sums of money expended by his government on defence, Canada had no preparation for her men in the way of clothes, boots, blankets or military equipment for any section of Canada—no machinery for the caring of the loved ones of the men who are offering their lives in Canada's behalf. What is worse, no plans for the speedy correction of these deficiencies were ever prepared, though the Canadian Defence Association advised their preparation as long ago as 1936.

Inadequate Extravagant.

As a result, our whole effort has been so inadequate, and yet so extravagant, that Mr. King feared to face the parliament of Canada which he had called for January 25.

He has flouted parliament, to which he has paid so much lip-service— he has ignored the tradition and practice of our parliamentary system, he has, in fact, laughed at the people's representatives in parliament itself, and by all these acts he has imitated the autocracies which we are fighting.

However, the die has been cast by Mr. King, without discussion with myself or the leaders of any of the other political parties, despite the fact that, so far as the National Conservative Party is concerned, we, in the war session of September last, not only fully co-operated with the Government and refrained from criticism of any kind but we have held ourselves open since that session to continue such co-operation and offer any assistance to the Government that might be within our power.

We have been ignored as completely by Mr. King and his Government as he is today ignoring all the historic principles which govern the conduct of Canada's affairs by the Government and parliament of Canada. Indeed, had he and some of the members of his Government had their way, we would have been gagged yesterday, and so not permitted to express an opinion of any kind.

Wants a Snap Decision.

To sum up, Mr. King is attempting by the most unfair and unsportsmanlike trick to obtain from the people of Canada a snap decision, before they have the opportunity of being advised as to the weaknesses of Mr. King and his government and their unfitness to administer Canada's war effort. They have been as incompetent in this as they were incompetent in times of peace, when they earned most deservedly the nickname of the "no nothing government."

Between now and election day, it will be the duty of myself and the party which I have the honor to lead to inform the people of Canada fully and fairly, not only of the failures of the Mackenzie King government, but to expose to them all aspects of Canada's war and peace problems.

Such a government, to be really effective and to achieve the results desired by all Canadians, must be a truly national government in the sense that the very best brains obtainable among our people are drafted to serve in the Cabinet. Therefore, if the National Conservative party is successful at the coming election, I shall form such a government.

Cheers Seep Out.

Loud cheers frequently were heard through the guarded doors of the caucus chamber where the Prime Minister and his supporters in the House of Commons and the Senate sat for 2½ hours.

The vote of confidence was moved by Malcolm McLean (Lib. Melfort) and seconded by Ernest Bertrand (Lib. Montreal-Laurier).

Speeches were made by every minister and every one of them endorsed dissolution as the proper thing to do at this stage, the Prime Minister said.

"The party is quite evidently of one mind and there was not one discordant note.

"I don't know what others may do, but if our Government comes back we will seek to bring Parliament together in April. That means Ottawa will not lose its annual session, but it will be starting where usually it finishes.

"And it will be a parliament with a direct mandate from the people."

Vote Before Easter?

Normally general elections are always on Monday but the earliest Monday which it now seems possible to hold the election is Easter, March 25, which means the voting will be on Tuesday, March 26, unless it is found possible to bring it on earlier.

It was the prime minister's hope, he said, that it might be possible to get the election over before the Easter holiday and the chief electoral officer was still studying the situation to see if that might be done.

Definite decision may be announced tonight, following this afternoon's cabinet meeting, or tomorrow morning, depending on when the final report is received from the chief electoral officer.

their positions everywhere."

"These attacks have proved very costly to for the enemy," it continued. "Several companies were cut up and the number of fallen can be counted in the hundreds. In addition certain columns of altogether over 400 horses were destroyed."

In the attacks on Fort Mantsi the army said the Russians left "over 100 dead in front of our positions."

Every Kiwanian Purchases A Charm; Awaits Until Sundown Tonight To Open

Call out the Banshees and the Skelpins and the Pucks and the Elves, and all the tiny folk of the hills, and rally them around the home of Bill Richardson of the Peterborough Canoe Company.

He'll welcome them all, and believe in their presence, too. Or so he told Kiwanians today. And he was so convincing about them that he sold every man of them a charm to ward off the ones that were evil.

It's all a big puzzle how he put such fear into each and every one of them that all and sundry, even to a hard-up reporter, forked across forty cents for something they can't look at until sundown tonight. Even the clergy was taken, for this reporter saw Rev. Dr. E. W. Young dig into his pocket for forty cents in silver—it had to be silver, so Past President Richardson said. But then Dr. Young is an Irishman and that explains many things.

It all came about when the Past President rose to tell his fellow members they should take away from the meeting some token of Kiwanis' 25th anniversary. "Now it should be a charm," he said. "Me. I've been carrying charms since I was eight year sold and I've been pretty lucky in one way or another." He said he had obtained a bunch of silver tokens and proceeded to sell them, sight unseen. "They'll bring you luck," he promised. "If, at the end of three months, they haven't brought you luck I'l buy them back at three times the price you are paying today." But never a look would he give them at the article they were buying. Each was wrapped up and he warned, "Don't open them until sundown, or the charm will be broken."

So all Kiwanians, 38 of them, are waiting for sundown tonight to see just what their charm is to be. Not one had courage to open his purchase at noon.

271 R.A.F. Fliers Arrive At St. Thomas

ST. THOMAS, Jan. 26.—Four days' warning, then 2,500 miles of convoyed, blacked-out ocean travel, then more than 1,000 miles overland by rail all within two weeks, and then, "Sir, reporting for duty!"

Such is the speed and efficiency of this modern war and such was the experience of the advance guard of the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan arriving here at 2:30 p.m. today. Seventeen officers of the R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. comprised the contingent that arrived by special train from Halifax and Ottawa.

Awaiting the men from across the seas were Squadron Leader W. and Mrs. Macey and Flying Officer J. Duham, adjutant of No. 1 Technical Training Centre. Squadron Leader Macey, and R.A.F. officer, who has been stationed at the T.T.C. for some time, greeted many of the officers as old friends.

A motorcade of cars, busses and trucks drawn up alongside the railway siding was quickly filled by officers, men and baggage and whisk-

Fire Department Will Require $38,365 In 1940

The fire department's estimates of $38,365.35 were recommended to the finance committee of the council last night by the fire, water and light committee with Alderman M. McIntyre presiding.

This amount does not include the cost of a new pumper which the committee is contemplating buying from Bickle-Seagrave Limited, Woodstock, for $9,450.

The estimates of the Department last year were $38,315.35 and of that appropriation the actual expenditure was $36,441.96. The main item in the estimates for this year is again the aggregate salaries of $32,750. The total estimate of the salaries last year was $32,734.35 and the expenditure was $32,585.29.

Few changes were made by the committee in the routine budget as submitted by Alderman McIntyre. Chief Gimblett has asked for 1,000 feet of new hose at a cost of $1,500, but this new supply was reduced to 750 feet costing $1,000.

The council last year bought 500 feet for $686, but it was assumed that some increase in the price should be anticipated in ordering the new purchase. Chief Gimblett also asked for 300 feet of 1½-inch hose, used for the chemical engine, costing $300. It was also approved. Alderman McIntyre reported that the Department was still using the same hose of this size which had been bought before Chief Gimblett was appointed. No purchase had been made since then.

Ask For Allowance

A motion by Alderman Dulton, seconded by Alderman Ovens, directed that a letter be written the Bickle-Seagrave Company suggesting that they should make some price concession to the city on the proposed purchase of a new pumper. It was pointed out that a year ago the company had offereened the city $2,000 trade-in value for three pieces of old equipment, but was now withdrawing that offer entirely. It was also mentioned that a better pumper was now under consideration and that it was a cash deal.

If the council decided to buy the new machine costing $9,450, Alderman McIntyre said that the Department's surplus should be applied to the purchase, leaving around $3,000 which would probably have to be added to the estimates for this year. However, City Treasurer Shaver advised that too much dependence should not be placed on the expectations of a surplus until the finance committee meets.

Organizations Of St. James' Church Report Most Successful Year

Despite the unusually cold night, the annual congregational meeting of St. James' United Church held on Wednesday night, was a decided success, and a fair representation of the various organizations was present to hear and to report the fine progress of the church during the past year.

The pastor, Rev. F. W. Craik, on motion of E. Kitney and E. Frost, was elected chairman, and led the devotional service. Mrs. A. Davis, the capable secretary for the past few years, was again chosen, by motion of B. Pitchford and Mrs. E. R. Frost.

After the reading and adoption of the minutes, reports were called for, when John Sanderson responded with a splendid showing of the work and givings of the Sunday School and its six thriving organized classes, each class working on a high spiritual level as well as working on a strong financial basis.

Reason for Encouragement

All the church organizations have reason for encouragement and optimism if we judge by the reports. The energetic Women's Association exceeded their last year's receipts by well over $200.00, and the Missionary department, including Auxiliary, Circle and Band, while perhaps not quite reaching their allocation, reached or exceeded last year's givings.

In his very encouraging report of the church funds, C. F. Kitney, as treasurer, gave the details for the current account, Missionary and Maintenance, needy and trustee funds. The beautiful, recently-installed organ, had a fund all its own, which naturally demanded many extra dollars.

Appointment of representatives from St. James' United Church to various boards of the city, were taken care of by motions which all carried as follows: On motion of A. E. Prest and George Cuff, C. F. Kitney was re-appointed to Nicholls Hospital Board for the term of three years; C. F. Kitney and B. Pitchford moved that Mrs. M. H. Drysdale and Mrs. W. K. Sloane be representatives to Anson House, while E. R. Frost and Mrs. Brumwell moved that Mrs. A. Rosborough be the representative to the Women's Hospital Auxiliary.

W. Rose and A. E. Saunders moved that F. Hogan and W. Swanger be the auditors, and William Fell and J. H. Spence were elevated to life membership in the sessions on motion of W. Rose and W. A. Wood.

Session Increased

After discussion, on motion of C. F. Kitney and A. E. Saunders, the number of members on session was increased to fifteen. Scrutineers for the election of officers which followed were George Wallace and A. Fife, the latter reporting for the nominating committee. The following elders were elected: For three years—W. Rose, A. Brumwell, R. B. English, J. Sanderson, George Cuff; for two years—W. A. Wood; for one year—T. Littlefair, William Atkinson. Stewards: For three years—E. Kitney, B. Pitchford, A. Saunders, Jr., S. Hanlon, E. Lee; for two years—R. Howarth.

A letter of sympathy was requested sent to the family of the late J. N. Welbourn, highly respected member and official of St. James' for many years. Letters will also be sent to J. H. Spence and William Fell, to advise them of the honor done them in their promotion to life membership in the church sessions.

As pastor of the church, Rev. Mr. Craik reported a busy and a happy year. Some of his activities were recorded in the many ceremonies conducted in the reception of twenty-five new members into the church, nineteen marriages, twenty-five baptisms and fifteen burials.

Before the meeting closed a motion of appreciation and sincere praise was moved to the minister and his wife by C. F. Kitney and A. E. Saunders, which was unanimously endorsed by the congregation. In his reply Mr. Craik thanked his people for their loyalty. He also paid tribute to Mrs. Craik for her encouragement and co-operation in all his work for St. James'.

This being the 23th anniversary of Mr. Craik's ordination, a special celebration is being planned for June 6th.

Another appointment made by the meeting was that of Mrs. A. Fife and Mrs. Gerald Cuff to the vestry committee, and the secretary was directed to notify new members of their appointment to office.

Another year of success and promise closed with this meeting with the earnest prayer offered by Mr. A. E. Prest.

Easy To Get

TORONTO, Jan. 26 — (CP). — The charge that prisoners at the Mercer Reformatory for Women in Toronto had no difficulty in obtaining continuous supplies of drugs was heard in Magistrate Robert Forsyth's Court to-day when Frances Salsbury, convicted of three charges of fraud, begged to be sent to Kingston Penitentiary rather than to be returned to the Reformatory. She said she obtained drugs during the five years she was in Mercer. Visitors brought the drugs and the prisoners would share them.

Quiet On Front

PARIS, Jan. 26—(CP-Havas). — Almost complete inactivity on the western front was reported by military authorities today.

French patrols and so-called "security units," despite the bitter cold, went out on their usual missions yesterday, but there were no clashes. Only a few artillery shots were fired in the region west of the Vosges.

In the air there was the same inactivity. Even the German planes which appear almost daily on long-distance reconnaissance flights failed to show up.

ROSENEATH, Jan. 26 (ENS). — The annual meeting of the Roseneath Agricultural Society was characterized by satisfactory reports. The financial statement showed that disbursements were in excess of $4,000 for 1939 and the society has a credit balance of nearly $3,000.

Delegates were named to attend the Central Fairs Association in Belleville, and the Provincial Fairs Association in Toronto.

Fireman's Widow Given Salary

Extension of six months of her husband's salary to the widow of the late Fireman Arthur Rose, who died this week, was recommended by the fire, water and light committee last night.

The amount of this allowance is $700. The resolution was proposed by Alderman Dutton and seconded by Alderman Ovens. Alderman McIntyre, chairman, said that in conversation with Chief Gimblett he had taken the responsibility of directing payment of the salary of the late fireman for January. He then asked whether the committee was in favor of granting any further allowance in view of Mr. Rose's twenty years' service in the Department. The Dutton proposal was unanimously supported. Alderman Dutton remarked that the circumstances suggested another reason for considering a form of group insurance for all employees of the city.

Havelock Youth Is Fined $16.50

HAVELOCK, Jan. 26—(ENS). — Seventeen-year-old Lloyd Rowatt of Havelock was convicted in local police court yesterday afternoon on a traffic charge of driving an automobile without the necessary permit, and fined $10 and $6.50 costs, with the alternative of ten days in jail. Taking into consideration the youth of the accused; Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., let Rowatt off with the minimum penalty.

Rowatt was charged with having driven a motor vehicle in Belmont Township on December 9 without having a chauffeur's license or operator's permit, and pleaded not guilty at the first hearing, held in Peterborough traffic court three weeks ago. The case was enlarged at that time to allow Rowatt to produce a witness, Ken Hill, of Havelock, who he swore had driven the car on the occasion mentioned by the plaintiff. Hill at the time of the first hearing was said to be sick with the mumps.

Provincial Constable John A. Rogers of Havelock conducted the prosecution, and the only witness for the crown was Chief Constable W. J. Akins of town, who swore that he had seen Rowatt driving the car on the day in question and that the accused had admitted that he had no permit. D. F. Miller, B.A., of Havelock appeared on behalf of the accused at yesterday's hearing.

A second charge against Rowatt of having obtained $2 under false pretenses was dismissed by Magistrate Langley, due to contradictory and non-sufficient evidence.

Rowatt, who had been employed by Archie Stevenson of Havelock to help on his sawing-machine, was alleged, on November 29, to have collected the sum of $2 from Mr. Edward Forbes, a creditor of Stevenson's, on the excuse that the latter had sent him to obtain the money, in order to repair his machine. Rowatt admitted to have obtained the $2 and to have given Forbes a receipt on his wood-cutting account. Rowatt claimed, through his attorney, that Stevenson owed him $1 and he honestly thought the other was due him, for a day's work which he said Stevenson had caused him to lose.

The Government of Australia is determined that complete automobiles shall be made in that country.

The Decision Has Been Made

The present session of Parliament was barely under way before the shadow of dissolution was cast over it. Prime Minister Mackenzie King and his colleagues had guarded well the decision to go to the country as soon as possible. It is something over which the people themselves have little control. The King Government was elected on the 14th of October, 1935, and the maximum legal duration is five years, which would have taken us along to the days of early fall.

Mr. King's explanation is that the country is now at war, and a government which is going to carry on the business of this nation in war-time requires a fresh and direct mandate from the people. Whether the vote of censure which was passed in the Ontario Legislature, prompted by a Liberal Premier, was responsible for the choice is something we do not know. It was not in itself a matter of sufficient weight to bring on a general election.

There is no way of determining how long the war will last, and as parliaments go the present one would have come to the end of the road this fall. In the previous war the life of parliament was extended. This time the people will decide for themselves who is going to form the war government of the Dominion.

The belief of the Examiner was that when war was declared it should have been a sign for the closing of the political ranks and gaps in public life. Our government then should have become nothing more or less than a Canadian government. We stated at the time that the leaders of the various groups in the House should be invited to join in war plans. They should have been taken into the complete confidence of the Government. We still believe that way would have been best. It would have been regarded as evidence of the abandonment of party advantage and a token to the people that the successful prosecution of the war was the one great issue before our governing body.

The suggestion has been made previously, and will be made again, that we need a National Government in Canada. Admittedly there is much about that which is desirable, but in a practical way we do not see how one could be elected.

It would mean that all the Liberals and all the Conservatives and all the members of other parties would have to cut themselves free from their present political moorings. If not, then we would have to have a Nationalist candidate in each riding and elect a sufficiency of such candidates to form a government. Even then we would have an opposition formed of those coming from ridings where the Nationalist candidates had failed to secure election.

The dream of a Nationalist Government is alluring but we doubt if it is practical.

If the campaign is as bitter as the debate in the Ontario Legislature then it is well that it should be made as short as possible. We can well afford to remember that we will be talking and arguing before the world. If we show bitterness; if we exhibit a wide and glaring difference regarding our attitude toward participation in the present conflict, then we will be providing excellent material for the enemy.

If those who appeal to the electors are content to deal with known facts, and if their one and only aim is to so strengthen the hand of whatever Government may be returned to power, then we should be able to pass through a campaign without injury and emerge from it as united as we entered. That is something which is pretty much in the hands of the candidates and campaign directors themselves. We were aware of no general demand for an election at the moment, but the election is coming. But through the campaign and before it and after it, it must be taken for granted there will be no slackening of the war effort of this Dominion.

Why Should U.S. Protest?

United States has protested that Britain is doing too much searching of goods and letters sent by U.S. and other vessels from United States to Europe. The answer is that the British sea patrol have found in mail pouches carried in United States ships evidence of a highly organized traffic in food, clothing, soap, fats, films, maps of military importance, drugs, machine parts, industrial diamonds, negotiable securities. Even Canadian dollars have been secured. All of this material comes under the general rating of contraband of war because it would all be useful and valuable to the strengthening of Germany.

Since the war started it has become certain there is a well-organized effort in United States, strongly financed, which makes a business of having food and supplies shipped into Germany. The plan is to arrange credits in the Netherlands, and wireless orders are sent there from United States giving instructions as to where and to whom to ship supplies in Germany. The money is put up by German sympathizers in United States. The British Ministry of Information announces it has plans to halt this trade, but that is all that was said.

Before Britain and France declared war on Germany there was plenty of opinion in United States which was quick to express the view that these nations should halt Germany. When Czecho-Slovakia was dismembered and finally absorbed this brand of opinion became noisy; it was stated plainly that Britain and France were being false to the cause of democracy. It never did seem to occur to the critics that the cause of democracy was something in which United States was just as much interested as any other nation.

Now that Britain and France have gone to war in the interests of the lesser nations, and United States has remained neutral, we expect the nation to the South to accept it as a fact that Britain is at war fighting for her own life and for the kind of living which United States cherishes on her own behalf. The searching of mail pouches becomes something about which complaint should never be heard.
